SEIZE SINGER'S 'RICH' HUSBAND AS SWINDLER

'Dreamer' Admits He's Bigamist.

Shakespeare avenue police early today were questioning Howard L. Shaw, 34 years old, whom they described as a bigamist and a confidence man who painted a dream path from Chicago to Hollywood and back again, with a beautiful Chicago club singer —his fourth wife—as his victim.

Detectives James Lynch and James Canning seized him yesterday in front of Henry's New York, Inc., 101 East Walton street, where they said he had been negotiating to buy a half interest—apparently without funds.

Charges $10,000 Swindle.

The Chicago singer, whom he allegedly victimized, is Miss Janina La Boda, 29 years old, now appearing at the Club Yar on Walton street. She charged that she and her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Anderson, 2851 North Talman avenue, were duped out of more than $10,000 in jewelry and cash by Shaw.

Miss La Boda met him last December. Shaw appeared to be wealthy. He spent freely. He said he was a contractor, a former Purdue university student, and son of Stacy Shaw, head of an engineering firm in Lafayette, Ind. He led two Great Dane dogs about on a leash. He took Miss La Boda to 18th street and Central avenue, pointed out the area, and said he expected a $4,500,000 government housing contract there.

Elope to Crown Point.

Miss La Boda was properly impressed, and when Shaw proposed marriage, she said yes. On Jan. 24 they eloped to Crown Point. Shaw, she recalled last night, promised her a life of ease that would not conflict with her artistic career.

They moved into a suite at the Belden Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West, where Shaw paid $235 a month rent. In addition, he had a $100 suite at a downtown hotel.

On Feb. 2 Shaw and his singer bride left Chicago for Hollywood. There Shaw purchased a blue roadster costing $3,700. Then he looked over a palatial home next to that of Robert Montgomery, a film star.

Takes Option on Castle.

Without any great fuss, Shaw arranged to take an option on the house, the purchase price of which was $82,000. Newspaper gossips mentioned this later, saying Janina La Boda was a lucky girl because she was going to have a Hollywood castle.

Shaw and his wife returned to Chicago April 1 in their blue roadster. He remained long enough to borrow $2,300 from her mother, Mrs. Anderson. He told her, according to police, he needed additional cash to fight for a $100,000 estate. Then Shaw and Miss La Boda drove back to Hollywood. There he turned in the roadster on a twelve cylinder car costing $5,900 and put down $1,000 cash—part of the money he borrowed from Mrs. Anderson.

Pawns Her Fur Coat.

About five weeks ago Shaw and Miss La Boda returned to Chicago. By now it was apparent, she told police, his funds were running low. She said he pawned her fur coat, next he pawned her diamond pendant, valued at $8,000, and even pawned his watch.

On Friday Miss La Boda and her mother complained to police that they suspected Shaw was a confidence artist. Detectives Lynch and Canning began a search for him and ran across him at Henry's New York at 5 a. m.

Shaw, when questioned last night, insisted he had some money. Then he confessed, the detectives said early today, that he had only "been living a dream."

Lives "in a Dream," He Says.

"The California trip," he said, "was my dream castle. I lived above my means to please my beautiful wife."

He said he had spent his savings of $7,700, and admitted borrowing money from Mrs. Anderson and pawning his wife's possessions. Police inquired whether he had been married before. Shaw replied, "Yes, three times." His former wives were June Booth of Lafayette, Ind., Myrtle Flynn of Baltimore, and Mary Comstock of Cleveland. Had he been divorced from them?

Shaw thought hard for a few minutes. From the first two, yes, he thought. "But I'm not so sure I was divorced from Mary Comstock," he said.

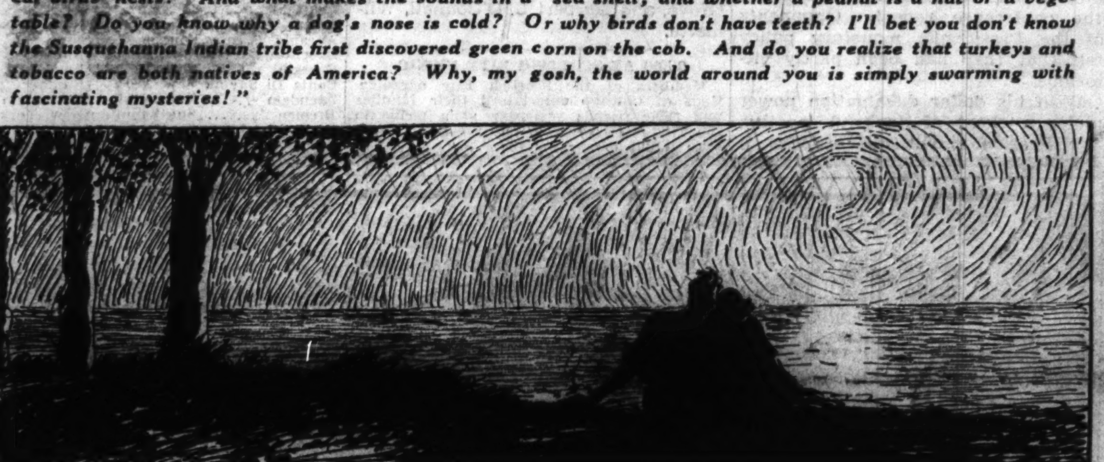
THESE LONG, LAZY VACATION DAYS ARE CERTAINLY FINE FOR CONTEMPLATIVE WONDERING

"When I'm in town I never seem to get the time to think about things, such as the wonders of nature, but out here there is lots of time. For instance, I wonder how fast birds can fly and how they can find their way to a certain tree a thousand miles away. And I wonder why rain falls in drops and who invented sandwiches and why our coats have buttons on the sleeves — that, by the way, is quite funny. A king decreed it to stop the habit of his subjects from using their sleeves as handkerchiefs. And have you noticed that clouds, like finger prints, are all different? And do you know why cats have whiskers?"

"George, what do you think about when you're not doing something? Do you ever wonder about nature — or just take things for granted? Do you know why the sky is blue or why some people eat birds' nests? And what makes the sounds in a sea shell; and whether a peanut is a nut or a vegetable? Do you know why a dog's nose is cold? Or why birds don't have teeth? I'll bet you don't know the Susquehanna Indian tribe first discovered green corn on the cob. And do you realize that turkeys and tobacco are both natives of America? Why, my gosh, the world around you is simply swarming with fascinating mysteries!"



"Isn't it all wonderful! The full moon, yellow as it rises and white as it sails across the heavens, always fills me with restless longings for things too vague to pin down. How deep and soft the sky! I wonder how much velvet it takes to cover such a sky! And how much silver to tint the little dancing waves! And why some eyes are blue! Like the heavens! All moons are beautiful, but none so beautiful as the honeymoon, because it takes two to enjoy it. With the nightingale singing! All of life may be just a succession of heartbeats, but it is heavenly symphony when tuned together."

Moves of Nazi Troops Leave Poland Jittery

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Aug 5.—This capital tonight began what it expects to be the first of a series of jittery weekends. In official circles, the word was that all was calm, but many citizens were far from reassured.

Uneasiness this evening was caused by rumors that a big concentration of German troops was being carried out in East Prussia on Poland's northern border. The report here was that during the last week shipments of field artillery, both heavy and light, had been sent into East Prussia by sea from Hamburg and Stettin.

Tension was high here all this morning as word went around that a major crisis was expected before Monday. French and Hungarian embassy officials received word to cancel all week-end plans and to stand by on duty.

Order Is Canceled.

About 2 o'clock this afternoon, however, word went around Warsaw that these embassy staffs had been notified to proceed with their week-end plans.

The cause of the flurry was a matter of speculation in Warsaw's coffee houses. On good authority, THE TRIBUNE learned it arose through a leakage from the foreign office to the effect that the Polish government intended sending a sharp note to the Danzig senate in regard to the recent armament of the free state. Apparently there was an intention to take some action, but the idea later was abandoned.

Truce in Margarine War.

The Polish government, according to political circles here, will continue its attitude of watchful waiting in regard to Danzig. It is indicated, however, that this attitude cannot be maintained indefinitly if the Danzig senate continues to encroach on what the Poles consider their indisputable economic rights inside the free state territory, rights which were awarded Poland in the world war settlement.

On the bright side news was received in Warsaw today that the Danzig senate was willing to back down in the margarine war and that it would send a conciliatory reply to the Polish government's note of yesterday. Polish customs inspectors therefore, would resume their duties at the Amada margarine factory and the Polish government would raise its ban against the factory's products.

This news was received with relief at Warsaw. It was realized here that both sides in the controversy had got themselves into a difficult situation. The Polish government, by hasty action, practically had invited the Danzigers to open the East Prussian border and effect a customs and economic union with Germany. On the other hand, the senate realized that if it took this action—which it threatened—then the Poles would have been compelled to intervene by force and the real action would have begun.

A SURGEON WHO CAN'T BE COWED SOLVES BIG BARNYARD MYSTERY

Mahomet, Ill., Aug. 5 [Special].—Two of Louis Kuhns' cows are recovering from operations performed in quest of $56, a handkerchief, and a checkbook.

Mr. Kuhns was awakened from a midday nap under a tree when a cow nuzzled him. He reached for his hip but was too slow on the draw; his roll of bills was gone.

A veterinarian operated on the cow without finding the articles. Standing before him were five other cows, and one was a pickpocket. The surgeon solved the puzzle: He offered a handkerchief to each and one, a Jersey, nibbled at it. An anesthetic was administered to this cow, the operation was' performed, and the money, handkerchief, and checkbook were found.

Spanking Good Blaze Finds 4 Heroes on Job

"Look at that car—fire!"

The four boys who had reached Madison street and Wolcott avenue yesterday in the course of an aimless stroll stopped for an instant, then raced toward the sedan parked in front of 19 South Wolcott avenue.

Black smoke swirled from the windows, which were rolled down only an inch or so from the top. Through the smoke the boys could see the driver asleep at the wheel.

They tried to open the doors, and found them locked. They hammered on the windows, and shouted at the tops of their voices. Finally the driver awoke, shook himself, and looked out at the boys.

Modesty Impedes Flight.

"Hey, mister, your car's on fire!" they shrilled. "Come on out!"

The driver squirmed and twisted. He seemed to be spanking himself.

"I can't come out," he choked, "my pants are on fire, too!"

The gentleman in this unfortunate predicament was Edward J. Tolmie, 2917 Sheffield avenue, an engineer. His pants, or rather his greasy, oil-soaked overalls, were, indeed, on fire.

He opened the doors, got a breath of fresh air, and wriggled out of the smoldering garment. But modest man that he is, Mr. Tolmie remained in the car until he could put on a spare pair of pants he was carrying in the back seat.

Grabs Trusty Extinguisher.

Then he seized a fire extinguisher, also part of the car's cruising equipment, and sloshed out the blaze.

Tolmie's rescuers were Gilbert Clark, 15 years old, 29 South Honore street; Reynolds Minard, 15, of 20 South Honore street; Ausby Morris, 14, of 15 South Wolcott avenue, and Raymond Menaris, 13, of 1858 Monroe street.

"I got through work about 1:30 this morning and drove some friends home," said Tolmie. "Then I started home myself. I don't remember getting sleepy or stopping the car. I don't know how the fire started—maybe I had some matches in my pocket—but there it was. The boys saved me and I wish I could afford to do as much for them as I'd like to do."

GROUP IS NAMED FOR SEARCHING QUIZ INTO NLRB

Radicals Lose Fight for Whitewash.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—A thorough and sweeping investigation of the many charges of bias and favoritism which have been leveled at the National Labor Relations board was foreshadowed tonight as Speaker William B. Bankhead named a committee of five house members to inquire into the labor board's administration of the Wagner act.

The committee has been voted $50,000 to conduct an inquiry into charges that the labor board has shown partisanship for the C. I. O. in its rulings in labor disputes. The board also has been accused of being under the domination of the communist party.

A struggle between radical and conservative members of the house had been waged for places on the committee. The administration sought the appointment of representatives friendly to the board. Critics of the board's operations appealed for a thorough investigation of the many charges leveled against Chairman J. Warren Madden and his associates.

Radicals Lose Out.

Speaker Bankhead today named the following to the committee: Howard W. Smith [D., Va.], chairman; Arthur D. Healey [D., Mass.]; Abe Murdock [D., Utah]; Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.], and Harry N. Routzohn [R., O.].

Smith, author of the investigating resolution, promised a sweeping inquiry into all phases of the administration of the labor act. Smith is an anti-administration Democrat. Healey and Murdock are New Deal Democrats, but are not classed with the ultraradical group. Halleck and Routzohn are esteemed as among the more capable Republicans in the house.

Healey resigned from the Dies committee on un-American activities in order to work with the Smith committee.

Hoffman Slams New Deal.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.], a leading critic of the C. I. O. and the labor board, told the house: "It has been decreed that I should be barred from the committee, although it has been my privilege to bring to the attention of the house facts showing the unlawful activities of the C. I. O. and the prejudice and bias of the NLRB.

"Such action on the part of the New Dealers I consider a tribute to whatever ability I may have to think clearly, speak conscientiously, and voice on the floor of congress self-evident truths which must be observed if our liberty is to be preserved."

Hoffman condemned the action of the senate in granting another $50,000 to the so-called civil liberties committee headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.].

Recalls $470,000 Gift.

"That action was another payment on the political debt the administration owes Lewis as the result of campaign contributions amounting to more than $470,000 from the United Mine Workers of America by John L. Lewis," Hoffman declared. "The reports of the La Follette committee, which constitute a vicious persecution of employers, are of invaluable aid to Lewis in his organizing campaign against employers and workers."

HIGH SPENDING, F. D. R.'S DEFEATS MARK CONGRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—The first session of the seventy-sixth congress which adjourned this evening has distinguished itself paradoxically as both the greatest spending session in the peacetime history of the nation and the most rebellious against the spending and other policies of the New Deal with which President Roosevelt has had to contend.

The session appropriated a total of more than 13 billion dollars, only 5 billions short of the first year's world war appropriations in 1917, and then wound up in a burst of economy by killing President Roosevelt's 4 billion dollar spending-lending program.

This program, including the 800 million dollar housing subsidy bill, was killed by a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats in the house, but the New Deal spending policy was repudiated also in the senate, where the Democrats have a 3 to 1 majority.

Spend-Lend Bill Slashed.

The main spending-lending bill was slashed from its original total of 3 billion 200 million dollars down to 1 billion 615 million dollars before the senate passed it and sent it to death in the house.

The appropriations total for the year was almost 2 billion dollars in excess of last year's total of 11 billion 361 million. It was almost 4 billion dollars in excess of the 1937 total of 9 billion 356 million dollars. National defense and higher subsidies for the farmers accounted for the greater part of the increase, but there were boosts in the outlays for all activities of the government except relief.

The agriculture department appropriation bill totaled 1 billion 194 millions, the highest in history, and carried almost a billion dollars in farm subsidies. Various other spending bills carrying miscellaneous funds for the department of agriculture brought the total for that department close to 1½ billion dollars.

Huge Sum for Defense.

Appropriations for the national defense during the session totaled 1 billion 614 million dollars, the highest in peacetime history. In addition there were authorizations during the session of some 640 million dollars, in part for expenditure in future years. As a result of this year's authorizations, next year's defense appropriations are expected to reach 2 billion dollars.

The principal increase in this year's appropriations was accounted for by President Roosevelt's half billion dollar army expansion program, which included an increase in the authorized strength of the air corps to 6,000 planes.

Relief appropriations during the session totaled 825 million dollars for the last fiscal year, ended June 30, and 1 billion 755 million dollars for the current fiscal year. The total appropriated for relief during the 1940 fiscal year was 784 million dollars less than the total for the last fiscal year, but the next session of congress may be called upon to make deficiency appropriations before the current fiscal year ends.

WAR POLICY SCRAPPED

The killing of Mr. Roosevelt's 4 billion dollar spending-lending program was regarded as his most sensational defeat for the session, but the scrapping of his war policy program was perhaps a greater personal blow to the President. Mr. Roosevelt had demanded that the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act be repealed so that France and England could rely upon the United States for supplies in case of war with Germany and Italy.

The house first repudiated the President's war policy by retaining a modi

34c AND $119,599,918 COVER TWO ITEMS IN DEFICIENCY MEASURE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 [U.P.].—The third deficiency bill, which operated as the major barrier to congressional adjournment, contained two items which ran the gamut of high finance.

The first was: "For operating rescue cars and stations and investigation of accidents, bureau of mines, 34 cents." [No member seemed to know just how this deficiency arose.]

The other: "To enable the secretary of the treasury to restore the amount of the capital impairment of the Commodity Credit corporation, $119,599,918.05."

STORMY SCENE MARKS CLOSING HOUR IN SENATE

Fireworks Lacking in Lower House.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—The first session of the 76th congress adjourned sine die tonight with a final, violent clash in the senate between the New Dealers and the anti-New Dealers of the Democratic party.

The house adjourned at 6:31 p. m. and the senate quit four minutes later, after appropriating $13,344,077,162 during the seven months session.

The actual business of the day was disposed of quietly. There was no last minute jam of legislation because adjournment hinged only on disposition of two measures. These were the third deficiency appropriation measure, including restoration of 119½ million dollars for farm loans to keep crops off the market, and the amended social security measure, both of which were sent to the White House without hitch.

Congress will meet again next Jan. 3, unless sooner called in special session by the President.

New Dealer Provokes Clash.

The senate explosion was the result of political bitterness that had accumulated throughout the session and had produced a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats strong enough to put the New Deal to rout on several occasions.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], a fervid New Dealer, provoked the clash in the senate when he read a prepared speech denouncing "the unrighteous partnership of those who have been willing to scuttle the American government and the American people and jeopardize the peace of the world because they hate Roosevelt and what Roosevelt stands for."

Pepper was referring among other things to the defeat of the President's 4 billion dollar spending-lending program by the coalition in the house and the defeat of the President's proposal to repeal the arms embargo provision of the neutrality act by the coalition in the senate.

Accuses the "Alliance."

"I accuse the willful alliance of a designed attempt to withhold aid and meager succor from the unemployed and the aged of America in the hope that in their mad misery they might raise their hand against a President and an administration who have tried to restore them to the dignity and the opportunity of American citizens," Pepper said.

"I accuse that designing alliance of a deliberate attempt to sabotage the first real effort ever made in this nation to secure for the workers of America industrial democracy and economic emancipation."

Conservative Democratic senators were boiling with indignation by the time Pepper had reached this point.

Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] arose and took Pepper off his feet under the senate rule which prohibits the imputation of uncomplimentary motives to senators.

Ordered to His Seat.

Burke challenged Pepper's speech under this rule, and Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], president pro tempore, ordered Pepper to take his seat.

Senator Sherman Minton [D., Ind.], a New Dealer, immediately moved that Pepper be permitted to "proceed in order." Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], an anti-New Dealer, demanded the "yeas" and "nays" and Pepper was permitted to proceed by a vote of 34 to 15.

Many senators who customarily vote against everything Pepper stands for voted to allow him to proceed, in accordance with the senate tradition of free and unlimited debate.

Senator Burke obtained permission from the chair and left the chamber, saying he doubted that Pepper "could proceed in order."

Senator Walter F. George [D., Ga.], interrupted Pepper and challenged him to name the senators to whom he referred. Pepper refused.

Taunted by George.

"Hasn't the senator the courage to name them?" Senator George demanded. Pepper still refused.

When Pepper had concluded, Senator Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.] asked Senator Pittman, the presiding officer whether it would be permissible under the rules to characterize Pepper's remarks as "cowardly and mendacious." Pittman said the remarks could be so characterized and that the senate would determine whether Senator Baily had violated the rules.

"Whether permissible or not, I shall say it to him privately," said Senator Bailey.

Even Senator Sheridan Downey of California, regarded as one of the most radical members of the senate, rebuked Pepper in a speech appealing for tolerance and mutual respect for the sincerity of opposing views.

The adjournment scene in the senate was reminiscent of the occasion two years ago when Senator Joseph F. Guffey [D., Pa.] was denounced on the final day of the session for his attempt to read three Democratic senators out of their party. In a prolog to the President's purge adventure, Guffey undertook to excommunicate Senator Burke, Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont], and Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] because of their opposition to the President's court packing scheme.

Hilarity in House.

The closing scene in the house tonight was the antithesis of that in the senate. There was nothing but good fellowship in that body, with Majority Leader Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] and Minority Leader Joseph C. Martin [R., Mass.] exchanging compliments and members generally joining in tributes to one another.

There was merriment in the house when President Roosevelt's farewell message was read just before the final fall of the gavel. The message was terse and cool, merely requesting Speaker William B. Bankhead to express to the members "my good wishes for a pleasant vacation." Obviously recalling the President's fullsome thanks on previous occasions for the rubber stamping of his "must" projects, the members laughed uproariously when the message was read.

The message to Vice President John N. Garner asked him to express the same wish to members of the senate. It, too, was devoid of the usual thank you note. Senators, however, listened to it in grim silence.

Barkley Causes Delay.

Congress had concluded all essential business and was ready to adjourn at 4 o'clock, but Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] caused the delay of 2½ hours. He was attempting to make arrangements for the consideration of various minor bills in which individual senators were interested.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] single handedly killed a bill by Senator Pittman authorizing the government to construct or purchase warships, aircraft and other munitions for sale to Latin American countries. When Senator Vandenberg informed the senate that he was not disposed to permit passage of the bill, and proceeded to talk in a very determined manner, Pittman withdrew the measure.

When Senator Barkley sought to obtain various other unanimous consent agreements, any one of which might have delayed adjournment until late in the night, Acting Minority Leader Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.] literally took charge of the senate and forced it to adjourn. He refused to permit the consideration of any further business.

"In Public Interest."

"I consider it in the public interest that this congress do now adjourn," he said.

Barkley gave up then and sent up the sine die adjournment resolution. It provided that the congress adjourn sine die when it adjourned on Aug. 5, 1939.

The house had been waiting for the senate. By the time the house had adopted the concurrent adjournment resolution and returned it, the Pepper explosion had occurred and Senator Barkley had concluded a farewell speech. The senate then adjourned.

Barkley said it had been a hard session and that congress had "accomplished many things that cannot be obscured by the failures of the last few weeks."

The only important business transacted was the adoption by the senate of the conference report on the amendments to the Social Security act and the adoption by both houses of the conference report on the 119½ million dollar third deficiency bill. Both measures were rushed to acceptance and sent to the President for his approval or veto.

Security Tax Unchanged.

The social security act amendments freeze the old age annuity pay roll taxes on employers and employés at 1 per cent each for the next three years, extend the social security coverage to 1,300,000 additional persons, and liberalize benefit payments in many respects.

The senate restored and the house accepted most of the reductions originally voted by the house in the third deficiency bill. The principal item restored by the senate and accepted by the house was the appropriation of 119½ million dollars for crop loans under the New Deal's farm program.

The administration requested the 119½ million item to replenish the capital losses of the Commodity Credit corporation. The house also rejected numerous other budget recommendations, cutting the total from 215 million to 54 million dollars. The senate restored 138 million dollars and the house conferees accepted 131 million of the senate additions.

fied arms embargo in the neutrality act revision bill that it passed. After the senate foreign relations committee had voted, 12 to 11, to postpone consideration of the whole subject until the next session, Mr. Roosevelt was told at a momentous White House conference that he did not have the votes in the senate to override the committee.

Foreign Policy Denounced.

The defeat of the neutrality revision program was preceded by recurrent senate denunciation of the administration's foreign policy. Nationalist senators repeatedly accused the President of meddling in the power politics of Europe. They did not like his annual message last Jan. 4 saying there were methods "short of war but stronger and more effective than mere words" for dealing with aggressor nations.

There were charges that the administration had formed a military alliance, tacitly or otherwise, after the famous White House conference with the senate military affairs committee that grew out of the French airplane scandal in January. The President had ordered the war department, over the objections of the army high command, to violate its own regulations and permit a French air mission to inspect and purchase secret military aircraft.

Defeated on Hatch Bill.

Of immediate political significance was the administration's defeat on the Hatch bill, prohibiting "pernicious political activity" by the hundreds of thousands of New Deal office holders and employés and designed to take the relief administration out of politics. New Dealers in congress vigorously opposed the Hatch bill, charging that its purpose was to promote the presidential candidacy of Vice President John N. Garner.

Friends of Mr. Garner made no secret of their desire for the bill as a weapon to prevent Mr. Roosevelt from using federal relief and federal patronage for the purpose of nominating himself or a New Dealer of his choice at the 1940 Democratic national convention.

The President signed the bill but manifested his annoyance by enumerating in a message to Congress reservations as to the manner in which his administration would enforce it.

The President's undertaking to purge the Democratic party of what he called "yes, but" men in 1938 contributed to the passage of the Hatch bill, as well as to several defeats dealt him by the senate in refusing to confirm nominations for federal offices.

Withdraws Amlie's Name.

The President was forced to withdraw nomination of Thomas R. Amlie of Wisconsin, a lame duck radical ex-congressman, for the interstate commerce commission. Amlie was confronted by certain defeat as a result of his admission that his economic theories differed from communism only as to the means of changing the social order.

Growing directly out of the purge adventure was the President's defeat on the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia and his defeat on the nomination of William S. Boyle to be United States attorney for Nevada.

The President was forced to replace Donald Wakefield Smith, who had been given a recess reappointment to the National Labor Relations board, in order to avoid another defeat in the senate. Smith was opposed by the American Federation of Labor, which accused the board of flagrant prejudice in favor of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The appropriations by congress for each year since 1929 are compared by the height of the pillars.

VOTE LABOR BOARD QUIZ

The administration succeeded in postponing a showdown on amendments to modify the Wagner act and curb the powers of the labor board by dilatory tactics in both the senate and house labor committees. It paid for this success, however, with a defeat at the hands of the house of representatives, which ordered a sweeping investigation of the labor board as the basis of corrective legislation at the next session.

Another major defeat for the administration in the matter of congressional investigations was the overwhelming vote of the house to continue the Dies committee's investigation of un-American activities. The committee had incurred the displeasure of the administration by exposing communist influences in the New Deal and in the C. I. O., with which it is allied politically.

The administration won a victory when the senate voted additional funds of $50,000 for the so-called civil liberties committee, headed by Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.], which has conducted a three-year inquisition against employers opposed by the C. I. O.

Other Roosevelt Defeats.

Other major administration defeats during the session were:

1. Taxes. President Roosevelt last year denounced and let become a law without his signature a bill eliminating all but a 2½ per cent vestige of his undistributed corporation profits tax and abolishing the Roosevelt principle of taxing long term capital gains as ordinary income. This year Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau advocated still further relief from business stifling taxation and Democratic leaders in congress took him at his word. President Roosevelt, however, attempted to halt the clamor for tax revision.

After a series of White House conferences Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, told him congress would act, whether he liked it or not, and congress did. The bill to which Mr. Roosevelt silently assented abolished the last vestige of the undistributed profits tax, substituting a flat 18 per cent income tax for corporations earning more than $25,000. It also softened the capital stock and excess profits tax and liberalized the provision for loss carry overs to offset taxes in future years.

LOSES ON DEBT LIMIT

2. The debt limit. Early in January Secretary Morgenthau informed congress that the statutory debt limit of 45 billion dollars would have to be raised, but Senator Harrison and others told him congress would not increase it. The administration acquiesced when congress removed the 30 billion dollar ceiling from the long-term bonded indebtedness without changing the 45 billion dollar limit on all indebtedness.

Within the 45 billion dollar limit the administration was given discretionary authority to adjust the national debt between long and short term obligations as conditions might require. The direct national debt will approach the 45 billion dollar limit by the end of this fiscal year, and congress next year will have to increase it or balance the budget.

3. The 200 million dollar Florida ship canal. The President has started this project with $5,000,000 of relief funds and despite two congressional rebuffs he demanded again this year that congress approve it. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] convinced a majority of the senate that the project was indefensible from any conceivable standpoint, and the bill was killed outright.

Shorn of Money Power.

4. The President's extraordinary monetary powers. The senate voted to abolish the President's power to devalue the dollar from 59.06 down to 50 per cent of its former value, and voted also to fix a mandatory price of 77.57 cents an ounce for domestic silver and to terminate the administration's foreign silver buying program, which has cost almost a billion dollars.

The President's powers actually died by statutory expiration when the senate refused to adopt a conference report by midnight on June 30. The administration, however, contended that the dead powers were revived by a bill intended to extend them when the senate finally adopted the conference report. Opponents of the President's monetary policy felt that they had been partly victorious.

With his dollar devaluation power under a cloud of doubtful legality, the President will not exercise it and risk repudiation by the courts, his opponents believe.

Two Billion Fund Extended.

The legislation also extended the noncontroversial 2 billion dollar exchange stabilization fund.

Congress this year finally gave the President limited authority to reorganize the multitudinous bureaus and agencies of the executive branch of the government, but exempted the quasi-judicial and legislative regulatory agencies. Exempted also was the office of the controler general, which handles the purse strings, and the independent civil service commission. The bill was a mere skeleton of the so-called "dictator" measure which the house of representatives killed last year.

OTHER ACTS PASSED

Other legislation of the session included acts providing for:

1. Reciprocal taxation of federal and state employés, including judges, by the federal and state governments.

2. Regulation by the Securities and Exchange commission of trust indentures.

3. Expansion of the Mortgage Insurance authority of the Federal Housing administration from 3 billion to 4 billion dollars.

4. Authorization to the Tennessee Valley authority to issue bonds of 61 million dollars for the purchase of the properties of the Tennessee Electric Power company.

5. Extension of the RFC, the Commodity Credit corporation, the Export-Import bank, and other government lending agencies to June 30, 1941.

6. Voluntary debt adjustment of railroads without the necessity of going through bankruptcy reorganization. This was the only railroad legislation enacted.

7. Drastic revision of the social security law by freezing the old age annuity pay roll taxes at 1 per cent each on employers and employés for the next three years and liberalizing various benefit payments. The act also exempts from unemployment compensation taxation that part of each salary in excess of $3,000. It is estimated that tax savings to employers and employés during the next three years will approach 1 billion dollars.

20 Illinois Postmasters Are Confirmed by Senate

The appointments of postmasters for twenty cities and towns in Illinois were confirmed yesterday by the United States senate. Six of the appointments were for towns near Chicago. They were: Jane M. Dorfler, Mundelein; William K. Lyon, Niles Center; Mary Bellert Corson, Northbrook; William H. Woodward, North Chicago; Edna O. Trumbull, River Grove, and Herbert L. O'Connell, Wilmette.

2,500 AT SCOTTISH RITE PICNIC.

Members of the Scottish Rite organizations of Chicago entertained their families and their friends yesterday at a picnic in the Thatcher's woods forest preserve. More than 2,500 persons attended.

ST. LOUIS WRITER SUES SEN. GUFFEY OVER OIL STORY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—Marquis W. Childs, Washington correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, brought a $100,000 damage suit in federal District court today against Senator Guffey [D., Pa.]. He charged Guffey with slander.

Childs' complaint says he had written a Post-Dispatch story, published June 15, linking Guffey with a free lance oil operator seeking to effect deals involving disposal of Mexican oil drawn from American properties expropriated by the Mexican government. He charged that on July 28 Guffey said in the presence of others: "I know that he got paid for that," and again the following day said: "He was paid for writing that article."

PRESIDENT HOME TO CONGRESSMEN AT WHITE HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—President Roosevelt today held open house for departing members of congress. He also plans to leave his door open tomorrow to members who wish to bid him good-by.

The first to walk into the President's oval study was Representative Adolph Sabath [D., Ill.], chairman of the house rules committee and dean of the house. The parade consisted entirely of New Dealers in congress. The rebels stayed away.

Monday night the President will leave for his family home at Hyde Park, N. Y. He will take with him 350 bills on which he will act during the week.

Will Board Cruiser at Boston.

When these are out of the way he will take a special train to Boston and board a cruiser for a sea cruise in the North Atlantic. He will pause for a few hours on his way north at Campobello Island, New Brunswick, where he has a summer home. The cruise will last from ten days to two weeks.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to divide his time between Washington and Hyde Park until he leaves on his western trip Oct. 1. He will go south to Asheville, N. C., where White House Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre is convalescing, and then cross the country to San Francisco. From that city he will proceed north to see his latest grandchild, John Boettiger Jr., at Seattle, Wash.

Two Scheduled Speeches.

The President has said he has no scheduled speeches except at the dedication of Great Smoky Mountain National park in North Carolina and at the San Francisco fair. However, he is expected to carry his fight against congress to the people in platform appearances en route.

In official circles it is believed that the President will measure sentiment on the question of a third term and make up his mind whether to attempt to shatter this precedent.

2,500 BANDSMEN TO THRILL MUSIC FESTIVAL THRONG

Players Will Mass in Two Giant Groups.

Festival Tickets!

Reserved seats for the Chicagoland Music Festival are now on sale at 50 cents and $1 each. They may be obtained by mail [make check or money order payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.] or by calling at the Tribune public service bureau at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower lobby.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

In America the military or brass band is a part of most great celebrations or spectacles. At the Chicagoland Music Festival its importance is recognized as it is probably nowhere else in the country.

On Saturday evening, Aug. 19, the throng that fills Soldiers' field for the Chicago Tribune's tenth annual festival will see and hear dozens of bands. It will see these bands—all large—massed in two amazing instrumental divisions, one of 1,500 players and the other of 1,000.

How Bands Are Judged.

The larger group will be made up of the Chicagoland bands which competed for top honors at the festival, each a winner in its district. The smaller or 1,000 piece massed band will be composed of the young musicians from Chicago's high schools.

In festivals of the past you probably realized that all the bands gathered there were exceptionally fine. Perhaps you wondered just how the judges determine that one or another is the best. You probably would not like to face these hundreds of young musicians and make a decision.

But the men who do the judging are leaders in creating and perfecting band music. And here are the things they listen for, as defined by Capt. Howard Stube, chairman of the festival band and instrumental contests.

They Listen First for Tone.

"First of all," said Capt. Stube, "a judge listens for tone, which must be pleasing to the ear. This means the tone of individual instruments as well as that of the entire band. Next he listens for balance. This means that the strident toned cornets must not drown out the reedy voices of the clarinets. The drums and tubas must not override the alto and baritone horns, which give tonal body to the music.

"Then comes technique. This is the speed, accuracy, and ease with which the players read their music. One instrument badly played can ruin the chances of the entire band."

Capt. Stube then took up interpretation, which usually is traditional. This is important. Suppose a band selects "The Italians in Algiers," by Rossini, and plays it in the Wagnerian manner. This would be just as wrong as playing "Turkey in the Straw" as a Viennese waltz.

Uniforms Mean Nothing.

Capt. Stube was asked what judges look for in evaluating a band.

"Nothing," he replied. "A judge could blindfold himself—he should, in fact—and do as accurate a job as he would do with his eyes open. Pretty uniforms mean nothing in these contests. And the applause means nothing. Home town rooters don't influence the judges."

Among the men who are judging this year's competing bands are Stanley Vesely of Coe college at Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Lorraine Watters of the Des Moines, Ia., city schools; King Stacy of the Boys' Vocational school at Lansing, Mich.; David Hughes of the Elkhart, Ind., public schools, and Gardner P. Huff of Lane Technical High school and Charles D. Ostergren of Senn High school, both of Chicago.

The competing bands, 1,500 strong, will be directed by David Hughes, and the massed high school bands will be led by Oscar Anderson.

1,500 Accordionists to Play.

Capt. Stube will direct the most amazing band of all, the assembly of 1,500 accordionists. Its players will range in age from 7 to 65 years. Capt. Stube has been asked to supply music for 3,000 prospective accordionists, so there may be more players than the number now expected.

And when all these musicians are on the field at once—as they will be during the opening spectacle—you will be looking at musical instruments valued at more than $600,000.

8,000 Persons to Participate.

The bands, great as they are, will be only a part of the evening's entertainment, however. Eight thousand performers will be seen and heard that night. There will be mighty choruses, instrumentalists, and vocalists.

The night will be filled with music. John Carter of the Metropolitan Opera company will lift his golden voice. A girl who will have flown an ocean and nearly half a continent to reach Chicago will sing for the 100,000 spectators. She is Marjorie Farrage of London, the beautiful British singer who was chosen last week from a field of hundreds to represent her homeland. The London Daily Sketch, coöperating with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, conducted the contests.

Just a little more than twenty-four hours remain before the deadline for entries in the six following competitions: Bands, choruses, vocalists outside Cook county, violinists, cornetists, and accordionists. All entries in these divisions, signed, must be in the office of the festival director, Tribune Tower, not later than 6 p. m. tomorrow.

British Contestants

These girls were among the contestants for the honor of representing Great Britain at the Chicagoland Music Festival on Aug. 19. The contest, held at Queens Hall, London, on Thursday, was won by Marjorie Farrage, beautiful soprano from Darlington, in north England. She is 21 years old. Twenty-two girls competed in the finals.

Miss Joyce Hutchinson, 23, soprano, Worthing, Sussex.

Miss Mary Lowe, 23, soprano, Hurlingham.

MISS BRITAIN SET FOR A FLYING TRIP TO CHICAGO FETE

Home Town Friends to Start Her Off.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Music lovers of Darlington, north of England home town of Marjorie Farrage, are planning a gala sendoff for her on Monday. That is the day she leaves for London on her way to Chicago, where she will be Miss Britain in the Tribune Music Festival in Soldiers' field on Aug. 19.

Hundreds of friends of Miss Farrage, who has been winning singing honors since she was 8 years old, are to see her off on a train for the 250 mile trip to London, the first stop on a journey which will bring her fame on two continents.

Miss Farrage, 21 years old now, is widely known in the north of England as a singer, but she is a real discovery so far as London is concerned. She was selected last Thursday at Queen's Hall in London by prominent music authorities acting as judges on behalf of the London Daily Sketch, the newspaper which coöperated with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in combing England, Ireland, Wales and Scotland to select the best amateur voice to be Miss Britain.

Many Sought Honor.

The Daily Sketch, which is printed simultaneously in Birmingham and London, covers the entire country, and its announcement of the Miss Britain contest brought entries from a flood of girls from all over the country seeking the opportunity to fly to Chicago on the Yankee Clipper and to sing at the Music Festival.

Twenty-one appeared in the final auditions at Queen's Hall and from these Miss Farrage, who is a blonde, was picked as Miss Britain. Mary Balders, an attractive 21 year old brunette school teacher, was named alternate. Both are sopranos.

Miss Farrage found her family and friends excited when she returned to Darlington from London with the coveted title of Miss Britain.

Mother Is Proud of Her.

"I think this is a very big chance for my daughter and it will be a big thrill for her to go to America by air," said her mother, Mrs. Robert Farrage.

Miss Farrage's three sisters were highly excited at the prospect of a member of their family flying the Atlantic ocean and they overwhelmed her with congratulations. "I am very pleased about it all, as my sister has worked very hard and so has daddy," said Audrey, 25 year old sister of the winner. "I am particularly pleased for his sake."

Trained by Father.

The father, Robert Farrage, who teaches voice, has trained his daughter since she was very small. But the congratulations for Miss Farrage's success did not come only from the family. Among the scores of messages of good wishes which poured into the Farrage home was one from the mayor of Darlington, John Dougill, who saw in Marjorie's selection a great honor for her home town.

"I am delighted with Miss Farrage's success," he said. "I have known the family for many years. I am very pleased for her own sake, but I recognize her selection in this contest is a great honor for Darlington. We are all very proud of Marjorie."

Postmaster Is Sad.

Darlington's postmaster, J. Hewitt, was pleased with Miss Farrage's success, but he expressed regret that the trip to America would deprive the Darlington amateur operatic society of her voice in its forthcoming production, "The Student Prince."

Among others who sent congratulations were members of the church choir in which Miss Farrage and her three sisters sing and which her father leads. Miss Britain will be entertained this week in London by the Daily Sketch before departing for America on the Yankee Clipper.

Goes to Hospital

CAROLE LOMBARD.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 5 [Special].—Carole Lombard, taken to Good Samaritan hospital late Thursday for an emergency appendicitis operation, was convalescing today. Miss Lombard is playing the part of a nurse in her new picture, "Vigil in the Night," and was stricken while at the studio where she works. Clark Gable, the actress' husband, told friends today that Miss Lombard was out of danger.

T. R.'s Widow 78 Today; Honored with a Picnic

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of President Theodore Roosevelt, will be 78 tomorrow. On the eve of her birthday, members of the Edith Kermit Roosevelt Woman's Republican club met for their annual fête in her honor—picnic supper with a big birthday cake, and a campfire songfest.

WHITING HOLDS GOLDEN JUBILEE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Winners to Appear in the Chicagoland Event.

Several thousand Whiting citizens turned out last night to hear and see the Whiting Golden Jubilee Musical Festival, whose contest winners will appear at the Chicagoland Music Festival Aug. 19. The event was held in the Whiting High school stadium. More than 400 singers and musicians participated. Mayor James T. McNamara presided. The festival was part of the celebrations observing the fiftieth anniversary of Whiting's founding.

One of the features of the night was the crowning of Miss Caroline Johnson, 16 years old, of 1710 La Porte avenue, Whiting, as festival queen. She was surrounded by a court of twelve beautiful girls.

High School Bands Play.

High schools bands, a 75 piece band from the Carnegie Illinois Steel company, and a drum and bugle corps from the Woman's auxiliary of the Whiting American Legion gave a martial musical touch to the grand show. Miss Kathryn Witwer, W-G-N radio soprano, sang. Another singer was Herbert Ingraham, whose uncle, a Whiting man of the same name, composed "Roses Bring Dreams of You," a favorite ballad some years ago.

Results of Finals.

Contest finals were held during the day and evening, with the following persons winning in their respective divisions:

Rubert Corney, 19 years old, 110 West Green street, Michigan City, first basso; Shirley Dickinson, 18, of 626 West 119th, Hammond, first coloratura soprano; Dorothy Kell, 20, of 448 Harrison street, Gary, first soprano and first lyric soprano; Ann McIsaac, 20, of 820 Polk street, Gary, first contralto and first in all women's voices; Nancy Jane Norton, 23, of 971 Murray street, Hammond, first mezzo soprano; Mary Ridgway, 25, of 949 May street, Hammond, first dramatic soprano; Robert Fischer, 24, of 239 William street, Hammond, first baritone and first in all men's voices, and John W. Powell, 23, of 11 Ruth street, Hammond, first tenor.

In the instrumental contests, Robert Christopherson, 16, of 1839 Pennsylvania street, Whiting, won the first violinist honors, and Robert Tancredi, 13, of 331 Hayes street, Gary, won the piano-accordion honors. Girl and boy baton twirling championships went respectively to Delphine Podraza, 15, of 325 153d street, Calumet City, and William Price, 15, of 4136 Northcote avenue, East Chicago.

"L" GUARD BADLY INJURED IN FALL FROM TRESTLE

Garner J. Duvall, 36 years old, a guard for the Rapid Transit Lines, was seriously injured last evening when he fell from the Lake street trestle to the pavement in front of 2253 Lake street. He suffered hip and other injuries, and was taken to the Washington Boulevard hospital.

Duvall, who lives at 330 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park, was working on a collection car, whose crew picks up receipts at the various stations along the Lake street line. The car stopped at the Oakley boulevard station and Duvall picked up the receipts there.

The car started to move away as he emerged from the ticket office. He ran down the platform after it, grabbed onto the gate railing, and then lost his hold as the train cleared the platform end. He crashed to the street.

GERMANY VISIONS AIR BLOCKADE OF ENGLAND, FRANCE

Aims to Deadlock Powers While Marching East.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Although the Nazis have published plans for what they call a lightning war against any European opponent with whom they may become involved, I have been told by a number of aviation authorities and army leaders here that this is purely propaganda, intended to frighten politicians and nations that "do not have strong nerves."

The real German plans, these men say, call for an aerial blockade of England and France comparable to the kind of blockade that was attempted with submarines in the world war. They also call for defensive action only by German troops on the western fronts.

This program is based on the assumption that the present German air force can at once obtain and hold absolute command of the European skies. Once this command of the air is established, it is contended, the enormous speed and range of modern military planes can enable the Germans to prevent sea vessels from delivering food stuffs or war materials to either French or English ports.

Plan Patrols Over Seas.

I was told that careful plans have been drawn for creation of regular aerial patrols over the North sea, the Atlantic, and the Mediterranean. Long range bombers carrying heavy fuel loads and relatively light bomb loads could attack and destroy any commercial vessels that might attempt to run the gantlet. Experiments in the Spanish conflict showed how effective are bombers against merchant ships.

While it is impossible to know whether this account of German plans is accurate, military officials throughout Europe admit that the program is entirely feasible. It is wholly dependent, however, upon an absence of interference in aerial operations.

"Our first move would be to bomb into ruins every aircraft factory in England and France," a German military pilot told me. "We would not strike at London or Paris or any large city. Only at the aviation industry.

Hope to Absorb Poland.

"The point is that once we have eliminated means of aircraft production in Europe we can command the air, for we are prepared for high speed plane building to recoup our own losses of planes. The next air war will be won by the country that can build most swiftly."

A number of persons told me that the Nazis intend to expand only eastward. Eventually they hope to absorb Poland. And this program of aerial blockade in the west is intended to give German ground forces an opportunity to gobble up the Polish legions without interference in the west.

The Nazis now believe that their Siegfried line—equivalent to the French Maginot line — is strong enough to cause a deadlock in the west. The Siegfried line extends from the North sea to Switzerland and is enormously strong by any military standards. And a defensive war here would be the least expensive kind of conflict possible.

War on Shipping Outlined.

Operating from flying fields on the western German borders, bombers and patrol ships—secure from interception and the necessity of combat with English or French fighters—could patrol an area nearly 700 miles in radius around the coastline of the British Isles. These patrols, operating only in daylight hours, could prevent any large scale reënforcement of Britain's allies by sea.

If vessels remained outside the blockaded area until nightfall it still would be impossible for them to cross the zone and enter British harbors before daylight would bring another aerial patrol. Storms would mean less to the aircraft than to the surface vessels and, if necessary, night patrols could be carried out, I was told.

German experience in Spain has shown that 100 pound bombs will sink any commercial vessel. These bombs need not even make a direct hit to destroy their targets. The light steel hulls of merchant ships were caved in by the concussion when 100 pound bombs fell within twenty yards of them in Spanish harbors.

Hope to Avoid Revenge Spirit.

"We learned our lesson in Spain," said one Nazi aviation officer in explaining why German airplanes do not intend to bomb large cities. "We could eventually destroy London or Paris from the air, but it would cost too much and mean too little to the course of the war.

"But chiefly we would not want to arouse the revenge spirit. If we gain command of the air and prevent England and France from getting supplies by sea or by manufacturing them internally, we cripple them completely. That would give us time to take Poland without straining our own resources.

"Civilian morale is always lowest in an offensive war such as the British and French would be forced to wage against us. The peoples of England and France would soon see the situation was hopeless and Poland lost anyway. There would be every reason to sue for peace.

"Germany would welcome such an honorable peace. Our destiny lies in the east. And we would not have roused in the English or French peoples the hatred that would grow if we killed hundreds of thousands of helpless civilians in an attack upon their great cities."

AMERICAN ARMY STEPS UP SPEED OF WAR PLANES

Britain Also Follows Germany's Lead.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—The high commands of the British and American air forces are giving increased emphasis to speed of fighting planes in the current air expansion programs of the two nations.

The two countries were aroused to the importance of speed early this year. At that time the question of airplane design and speed became entangled with foreign policy when a Douglas bombing plane crashed on the west coast.

The crash became important because it was learned that a representative of the French air ministry was a passenger on the plane which had been designed for the American army. The manufacturers hoped to win army orders by demonstrating the superiority of the plane in tests with competing experimental planes.

Congress Starts Inquiry.

Congress started an inquiry into the administration's attempt to assist the French armament program. In the course of the investigation President Roosevelt assumed responsibility for facilitating French purchase of American planes on the ground that foreign orders would keep American plants operating and work toward improvement of American planes.

In the controversy over the existence of a working alliance by the New Deal with France and Britain to offset the Rome-Berlin axis, attention of America and Britain was focused on the performance and numbers of world air forces.

It was revealed that the Douglas experimental bomber had a speed in excess of 350 miles an hour, which was superior to that of almost any plane either power had in the air. At the same time it was learned that Germany was emphasizing speed. Reports of superior performance and numbers of German planes flew about in the controversy.

Aiming at 400 Miles.

As a result Britain and the United States concentrated on speed. Both countries in the new programs sought planes of a speed of about 400 miles an hour, a rate German planes possessed. More recently it was reported that German planes are nearing the 500 mile an hour rate.

One thing has hampered somewhat America's quest for speed. Because of the extent of this country from coast to coast, American planes necessarily must have larger fuel tanks to permit a greater cruising range and be of sturdier construction to make longer flights. Because Europe is more compact, Germany has been able to get more speed by cutting down on fuel tanks and evolving lighter construction.

In the American air corps, some officers feel that too much emphasis is being placed on the life of ships. American ships are being designed for four years of service with consequent loss of speed as opposed to the forty hour fighting life of German ships.

Point to Lindbergh Survey.

Reports are current that the prestige of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, trans-Atlantic flyer, awoke both nations to the importance of speed as a result of his unofficial survey of foreign air strengths.

The air corps took advantage of Lindbergh's name to get publicity for the air expansion drive, by bringing him back from Europe to active duty to make a survey of air research facilities. Army officers are said to be well aware that the survey could have been conducted as well by any one of hundreds of officers in the air corps.

Lindbergh was engaged to compile a routine report on a subject with which the air corps was familiar. He has had no part in directing the building of the nation's air strength.

PICK AIR CORPS OFFICER TO FILL HIGH ARMY POST

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—(AP)—In recognition of the new importance of air power, the war department announced today that an air corps officer, Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, had been put in charge of all army operations and training.

Gen. Andrews, for four years chief of the mobile general headquarters air force, was named assistant chief of staff for operations and training, effective yesterday.

Officials said Andrews was the first air force officer to hold such a high command post. He succeeds Maj. Gen. R. M. Beck Jr., who will retire on Oct. 31 after forty-two years' service. Gen. Andrews, a native of Nashville, Tenn., is 55 and has been a flyer since the world war.

6 OF AMERICA'S 60 WORLD WAR ACES IN SERVICE

Hold Responsible Posts in Army Air Corps.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—Six of America's sixty world war aces still are in active service with the army air corps.

Of the more than 800 pilots who saw service in France in the American army about sixty brought down five or more planes or balloons.

Of these, about a dozen met death in the war. Others returned to civil life as did Capt. Edward Rickenbacker, America's No. 1 ace, who is now the head of a commercial flying company.

Some remained in the army. Death and retirement have taken their toll of these in the twenty-one years since the end of the war, so that now only six remain.

Officers in Air Corps.

These all hold responsible positions in the air corps—in the office of the chief of the corps and at various flying fields. They are: Lieut. Col. Arthur E. Easterbrook and Majs. Frank O'D. Hunter, Martinus Stenseth, Clayton L. Bissell, H. H. George, and Victor Strahm.

The air corps on Wednesday celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of the purchase of the first army planes. In connection with that celebration the army traced its first twenty-four aviators—all of whom were qualified in 1912 and 1913—and found that eleven survive.

Of these five are still in the air corps and six are retired. Of the five in active service one is Brig. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the air corps.

Five Still in Service.

The others are: Brig. Gen. Herbert A. Dargue and Cols. Lewis H. Brereton, Frank P. Lahm, and Hollis Le R. Muller.

These men at the outbreak of the war were given the task of training pilots for war service. Because teachers of military flying were scarce, they got but little chance for overseas service and almost none against an enemy.

SOVIET REPORTS VICTORIES OVER JAPS ON BORDER

MOSCOW, Aug 5 (AP).—A soviet Mongol army communique reported today Japanese forces had been repulsed in frequent clashes since July 26 on the border between Russian protected Outer Mongolia and Japanese sponsored Manchukuo.

Infantry, artillery, and aerial engagements were reported in the area east of the Khalka river, where fighting has been in progress since May 11. The communique, distributed by Tass, Russian official news agency, said sixty-seven Japanese and six soviet planes were downed in the air battles.

BRITISH PLANE OVER ATLANTIC; REFUELED IN AIR

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Carrying 70,000 letters and postcards, the Caribou, Imperial Airways' giant 23½ ton flying boat, was out over the Atlantic tonight on the first flight of the All-British airmail service to New York.

With Capt. J. C. Kelly Rogers at the controls, the plane took off from Southampton at 2:15 p. m. [8:15 a. m. Chicago time] and flew 380 miles to Foynes, where it was refueled in the air and then headed out over the Atlantic.

The Caribou will leave some mail at Botwood, Newfoundland, and is due in New York at 6 p. m. [Chicago time] Sunday, after a total flight of 3,500 miles in thirty-four hours. With its sister ship, the Cabot, the Caribou will maintain a regular weekly service to New York throughout the summer. The Caribou will start its return trip on Wednesday and the Cabot will leave for New York on Saturday. Thus, there will be two trans-Atlantic services weekly over the northern route, one British and one American.

Germany and Afghanistan Reach Trade Agreement

HITLER AND DUCE URGE JAPANESE TO JOIN ALLIANCE

Fuehrer Sends a Secret Report to Mussolini.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Germany and Italy are redoubling their efforts to induce Japan to sign an ironclad military alliance with them.

Foreign diplomats have contended for a month that the axis partners are united with Japan in a secret military alliance. German circles have denied that they were even anxious for a military pact with Japan.

Today, however, official German spokesmen expressed hope that America's cancellation of its trade agreement with Japan will automatically drive Japan completely into the arms of Germany and Italy.

Hitler Sends Report to Duce.

Early this week Reichsfuehrer Hitler sent a personal courier to Premier Mussolini with a long report on his analysis of the situation and his plans for the near future. No written reply has been received in Berlin, but the Rome-Berlin telephone line has been in constant use. It is assumed that Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, will meet soon.

A great increase in the number of conversations between German and Japanese diplomats has been noted in the last week. One usually well informed source alleged that the Germans were trying to induce Italy and Japan to agree to the publication of a military alliance "as a reply to the agreement between London, Moscow, and Paris when and if the latter finally is reached."

Charges Britain Is Insincere.

Germany's efforts to influence Moscow and prevail upon it not to come to terms with England are evident in an obviously inspired editorial in the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, which warned Russia of Germany's doubt about the sincerity of England's desire to conclude a military pact. The editorial was preceded by this caption: "England's double-crossing game in Moscow."

"We think we are accurate when we state that the skepticism prevailing in English military circles regarding the forthcoming military talks in Moscow is in surprising contrast to some political utterances made in England recently," the editorial said.

"According to our information, it is probable that Britain is conducting military talks with Russia only to get information about the real combat value of the Red army."

2 MEN SLAIN, ONE SHOT IN MEXICAN ASSASSIN ATTACK

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 5 (AP).—Bolivar Sierra, member of the Mexican congress, was shot and wounded and two other men were killed today in the office of the Democratic Front, an independent political organization.

The three were struck by shots fired into the front door of the office by unidentified persons who escaped. The two killed were club employés.

Sierra is one of the front leaders and has been taking part in a spirited presidential campaign.

Six Killed in Two Train Accidents in Great Britain

LONDON, Aug. 5 (AP)—Six persons were killed in two railroad accidents today. Police at Ardrossan, Ayrshire, Scotland, said three died in a derailment near there, and railway officials said an express killed three at Farnborough, Hants.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Joe Louis earned $388,426 for three fights in 1938. How much should he pay in income tax?

Where Answered.

In the loop.

The Answers.

Gilbert W. McClelland, 801 North Wabash avenue, advertising man.—I believe he should pay about what he must pay under the present rates. They seem fair to me. Any one who makes that much money from the American public for a few days' work a year should be willing to give most of it back. He doesn't have to work as hard for it as a movie star or a captain of industry. In fact, there are few persons who make money easier.

Mrs. Dorothy Abney, 2920 North Francisco avenue, housewife.—He should, of course, pay back something to the government. But his profession is a dangerous one. Every time he steps into the ring he risks his life. And then a fighter's career doesn't run on indefinitly. So he is entitled to make a lot of money. I think about 20 per cent of it should be paid in income tax.

Harry Scott, 3651 Ravenswood avenue, club entertainer.—Well, if that's his net income he should pay around half of it back in income taxes. I could get along very nicely on what that would be. Joe is a very lucky man to be making all that money that easily. All that talk about the risks you take is bosh; he doesn't take as much risk when he goes into the ring as a pedestrian does when he walks out into the street.

Mrs. Margaret Pierce, 4518 North Whipple street, housewife.—While I am not interested in prize fighting and know nothing about it, I don't think any one who makes that much money through his own efforts should be required to pay as much as half of it in income taxes. I presume a boxer is entitled to big pay; they tell me they don't last so long.

Charles Tobias, 533 North Artesian street, elevator operator.—I don't think that Joe Louis earns all that money. But I don't believe that he ought to pay back in income taxes as much as half of what he earns. He doesn't work as hard for the money as a lot of people do. But he ought to pay some. About 45 per cent would be about right, I think.

BARKING OF DOG REVEALS DEATH OF BABY IN CRIB

A dog barked excitedly from a second floor window at 1924 West Adams street last night. Miss Geraldine Shaw, 17 years old, of 12 South Hoyne avenue, decided something was wrong.

She called Nicholas Apostole, 24, of the Adams street address, and they went into the flat where the dog was barking. They found William Carl Beltezore, 6 months old, lying in his crib with a blanket covering his head.

They took the infant to the County hospital, where it was found he was dead of suffocation. Ironically, his young mother, Mrs. Yvonne Beltezore, at the time was in the same hospital visiting her mother-in-law, a patient. She had left her baby alone to go to the hospital. The father of the baby, Clarence Beltezore, a member of the 132d infantry, Illinois National Guard, is at Camp Grant in summer training.

FOUND HANGED IN HOME.

Richard Schroeder, 77 years old, was found hanged yesterday in his home at 9033 Brandon avenue. His son, Max, 45, with whom he lived, said he had been ill.

BRITISH-FRENCH ARMS MISSIONS SAIL FOR RUSSIA

Diplomats Ponder Import of Strang's Return.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 5 — British and French military missions left London today for Moscow to begin anti-aggression staff conversations. Simultaneously, William Strang, foreign office civil servant sent to Russia forty-five days ago to speed up Anglo-soviet pact talks, prepared to return to London.

When Strang left London the second week of June for the soviet capital, it was said the only remaining barrier to signing of the pact was in reaching an agreement on indirect aggression. With Strang scheduled to leave Moscow on Monday, the only remaining barrier to an alliance with the soviets still is said to be the definition of indirect aggression. It appears, therefore, he accomplished nothing.

Seed to Carry On.

These are two official reasons given for Strang's return. One is that his work is piling up in the Central European department of the foreign office. The other is that he has given all the information he can to Ambassador Sir William Seeds and is no longer needed there. Seeds will continue the negotiations. Neither of these explanations carries much weight in diplomatic circles here. It is pointed out that in the first place it is curious that Strang's work in London should be considered more important than the Russian pact and secondly, it is odd that it took forty-five days for Strang to tell Seeds what he knew.

Twenty-five members of the British military mission and 22 members of the French mission left Tilbury dock, London, in a specially chartered steamer, the City of Exeter, for Leningrad, from where they will proceed to Moscow.

Shy at Ordinary Route.

They were not taking the normal commercial route through Germany's Kiel canal, but will sail around the Baltic, adding a couple of days to the voyage. They were expected to arrive in Moscow on Wednesday or Thursday.

Soviet Ambassador Jean Maisky and Air Attaché Ivan Cherny saw the military missions off this afternoon. The progovernment British press, which once more claims there are only a few little details to be worked out before signature of the pact, prints pictures of Maisky wearing a broad grin as he shakes hands with the head of the British mission, Admiral Sir Reginald Plunkett-Ernle-Erle-Drax, the man with the longest name in the British navy, and Gen. Edouard Joseph Doumenc, leader of the French group.

Nazis Jail 3 Austrians Who Quit Jobs in Germany

VIENNA, Aug. 5 [U. P.].—Two laborers have been sentenced to four months in prison and a third to six months for quitting jobs they had been given on "work important to the state," it was made known today. It was charged the men sent to work in Germany had left and refused to return.

GERMANY NAMES A DICTATOR FOR COAL INDUSTRY

Seeks to Solve Shortage of Gasoline.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 5.—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of the Nazi four year plan for economic self-sufficiency, today appointed Paul Walter as commissar to increase Germany's output of coal and lignite. Walter, who is 40 years old, has been a member of the Nazi party since 1926.

It is understood that the chief purpose of the campaign to increase the output of German mines is to accelerate the country's production of synthetic gasoline. Despite official denials, private motorists throughout Germany are feeling the shortage of gasoline acutely. Most high grade gasoline is being reserved for the army.

Coal Output Sets Record.

Germany's coal output reached an all time high of 186,000,000 metric tons in 1938. This, the Germans declare, places Germany third, after the United States of America and England, as a world coal producer. Germany holds first place in the output of lignite since its own reserves were reinforced by those of Czecho-Slovakia, which heretofore held second position.

Owing to rearmament, production of synthetic gasoline, exploitation of low grade ores and similar experiments, Germany's consumption of coal and lignite has trebled since 1932.

Walter to "Act Personally."

Officials stress that Walter will "act personally" and not organize a new special office to carry out his job. This statement is made because industrialists recently have been complaining that the vast organizations built up by the Nazis to direct and control industry are proving too costly.

KENTUCKY C. I. O. CANDIDATE LAGS IN PRIMARY VOTE

Nearly 9,000 Behind in Governor Race.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 6 [Sunday] (AP).—Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson, supported by Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler's administration forces and the American Federation of Labor, took a lead of nearly 9,000 votes today over former Congressman John Young Brown, on incomplete returns from yesterday's Democratic gubernatorial primary. Brown is backed by the C. I. O.

A tabulation at 12:30 a. m. from 723 of the state's 4,307 precincts, gave Johnson 53,145 and Brown 44,173. Secretary of State Charles D. Arnett was a poor third with 1,054. Further tabulation was postponed until tomorrow.

Charges C. I. O. Is Red.

Johnson, in campaign speeches, had contended that the C. I. O. was communistic and that the nomination and election of Brown would mean that the state would be run by John L. Lewis, chief of the C. I. O.

Lewis supported Gov. Chandler in his race for governor in 1935, but since that time they have exchanged harsh words over Chandler's sending troops into Harlan county because of labor troubles.

Brown is an attorney for the United Mine Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate. He had the personal backing of Alben W. Barkley, majority leader of the United States senate, and claimed he would not have entered the race without President Roosevelt's approval. There was no subsequent word from the White House.

Swope Takes Lead.

In the heated Republican primary for governor Circuit Judge King Swope of Lexington took an early lead and maintained it over John Sherman Cooper, Somerset lawyer. On the basis of returns from 617 precincts the vote was: Swope, 16,992; Cooper, 13,852.

One man was killed and another was wounded in Harlan county election day shootings. James Howard, 35 years old, a farmer, died in a hospital from a bullet wound received shortly after the polls closed in Baxter. Earlier Robert Thomas, 25, was wounded in the abdomen in a fight at Ages, and Delbert Cross, 30, was held without charge. Sherif Herbert C. Cawood said neither shooting had any connection with today's primary, but resulted from old grudges.

NAZI RULE FORCES NUNS IN AUSTRIA TO LOOK FOR JOBS

Many Work in Factories; Thousands Emigrate.

BERLIN, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Nazi church policy in Austria has forced thousands of Roman Catholic monks and nuns to emigrate or to readjust their lives.

The transition—which still is active—is the result of the numerous Nazi occupations of monastic lands and buildings, the closing of parochial schools, and the secularization of the hospitals.

When Germany absorbed Austria in March, 1938, there were some 13,000 nuns and 3,400 monks in a country which was almost 95 per cent Catholic.

Church Schools Closed.

Most of the nuns were nurses in public and private hospitals or conducted private boarding schools. By the beginning of 1939 they gradually were being replaced in the hospitals by Red Cross or other nurses and last September all church schools were closed in keeping with the Nazi policy of monopolizing the education of youth.

As a result they were forced to look for new fields of endeavor or to emigrate. Many chose to leave.

Those who stayed are trying to make a living by needlework, as cooks, or as private teachers. Many younger nuns hurry off to offices and factories each day in working clothes after devotions in their cloisters, and in the evening they return to the monastic routine.

Nazis Covet Church Property.

Nazi organs, such as the Voelkischer Beobachter and Das Schwarze Korps, have shown that the Nazis have their eyes on Catholic church property. The latter, for instance, remarked that the church owned land which it was not putting to the service of the people, although the state has to reclaim land to feed its citizens.

Since then Nazi spokesmen in Vienna have readily acknowledged that several monasteries have been taken over but, they insist, by legal means. They said that under an arrangement 150 years old a number of monastery properties belonged to the state, but had been leased to various orders and the Nazis merely refused to renew the leases.

When the blow against the church schools fell, the monks for the most part remained where they were, but turned their efforts into new channels—to parochial and administrative work or to teaching religion in the elementary and higher schools. Many emigrated, however, especially the Jesuits, who settled in Switzerland.

New Field Opened for Clergy.

A new field—paradoxically because of the Nazi racial theory—also opened for the clergy in ancestral research. Parochial chancelleries are kept busy seeking out and copying birth, baptismal and wedding certificates of parents and grandparents for German citizens, all of whom are required to obtain official recognition of their Aryan descent.

Lay brothers, if they are young enough, are required to enter the labor service and the army. Others have become craftsmen.

Farley Pays a Courtesy Call on Nazi Postal Chiefs

French Reporter Arrested in Prague; Papers Seized

PRAGUE, Aug. 5 (AP).—M. Corbe, correspondent of Havas, French news agency, was arrested last night and all French newspapers coming into the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia were confiscated. No reason was given for the arrest, but informed quarters believed it was in connection with a military news report.

CROAT HOME RULE PLAN SUBMITTED TO SERB REGENT

Government's Fate Hangs on Prince's Decision.

BLED, Jugo-Slavia, Aug. 5 (AP).—A plan to federalize the kingdom of Jugo-Slavia, thereby satisfying Croatian demands for home rule, was taken under consideration today by Regent Prince Paul.

On Prince Paul's decision hangs the fate of Premier Dragisha Tsvetkovitch's government.

All three races which combined to form Jugo-Slavia—Serbs, Croats and Slovenes—waited anxiously for the regent's decision.

As drawn up by Tsvetkovitch, who is a Serb, and Dr. Vladko Matchek, white-haired peasant leader of 5,000,000 Croats, the proposed transformation of Jugo-Slavia's political system may take many months.

Would Create New States.

New states would be created with self-administrative powers. The civil and military personnel of the national government would be altered to meet Croatian claims for representation.

This is the second time a Tsvetkovitch-Matchek accord has been presented to Prince Paul and his two coregents, who govern as a council for 15 year old King Peter. The first agreement was rejected in April for undisclosed reasons.

The prince will receive Matchek in special audience Monday. High sources said the final terms might be ready for publication Tuesday. Paul is understood to have special authority to act for the entire regency council.

Croats, who form a third of Jugo-Slavia's population, have accused the Serbs of monopolizing the higher ranks in the army and public services, besides ruling Croatia with an iron hand.

May Repatriate Turks.

So deep has been the estrangement between the two races, with the Slovenes apparently siding with the Serbs, that grave concern for national unity has been felt. This inner dissension placed Jugo-Slavia at a disadvantage in resisting international pressure, such as might have come from Italy and Germany.

In Belgrade reports circulated that settlement of the Croat crisis would be followed by repatriation of 270,000 Turks. They live chiefly in South Serbia, once a part of the Ottoman empire.

FASCISTS ATTACK LOYALIST CROWD AT SECRET RADIO

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 5 [U. P.]—Spanish Falangists [the dominant Fascist faction] were reported in advices reaching the border today to have stormed the Casino club at San Sebastian, wrecking the place and battling with patrons who were listening to a clandestine Republican radio broadcast.

The broadcast, after reporting various incidents connected with the ousting of Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano as army commander in the south, was concluding with the Republican hymn when the raiders entered.

JAPANESE SEIZE TWO AMERICAN SCHOOL PRIESTS

Kidnapers Fire Upon One as He Puts Up Battle.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 5 [U. P.].—Plain clothes operatives of the Japanese dominated provisional government have seized two priests of the American Catholic university of Peking, it was disclosed today.

On Wednesday they seized the Rev. Father John Fu, Chinese professor of philosophy. On Thursday they seized the Rev. Father Henry Kroes, director of studies and registrar. Father Kroes is a native of the Netherlands.

Held in Dirty Cell.

Father Kroes telephoned the university yesterday and said that he was being held in a hot, dirty cell but hoped to be released soon. He said that the plain clothes men who seized him and Father Fu were seeking the names of students intending to go to southern China.

News of the seizures was disclosed only today. Dispatches said that university officials, not desiring to prejudice the university in the present situation in North China, promised the Japanese embassy not to make them public.

Father Kroes had left the university to accompany plain clothes men to a police station to investigate the previous seizure of Father Fu. Dispatches said that the plain clothes men walked only a few steps with Father Kroes before they attempted to push him into a waiting automobile.

Priest Puts Up a Battle.

Father Kroes, a 6 footer, knocked down his assailants, dispatches said, and ran toward the university. He was wearing a long gown and tripped and fell. One assailant fired a revolver shot at him, but was not believed, in view of yesterday's telephone call, to have wounded him.

Hearing the revolver shot, the Rev. Father Rudolph Rahmann, rector and professor of sociology and ethnology, ran outside to Father Kroes' aid.

An armed assailant forced Father Rahmann inside the building while several confederates carried off Father Kroes, the dispatches said.

The university, known in China as the Fu Jen university, has its offices at 176 West Adams street, Chicago, where the Rev. Ralph Thyken is national director. The seized priests are members of the Society of the Divine Word, a Lazarist order.

Protest Anti-Americanism.

SHANGHAI, Aug 5 (AP).—American authorities made new representations today to the Japanese against anti-American demonstrations in Kaifeng despite Japanese denials that an anti-American movement was under way in North China.

Increasingly threatening anti-American agitation caused Americans in Kaifeng to get ready for flight from the Honan province capital. It was understood that some already had left, although direct reports of the Kaifeng situation were meager.

American authorities in Hankow, the nearest large city, said their information came from authoritative quarters sufficient to warant further representations to the Japanese, who control Kaifeng. The city is the seat of extensive American mission properties and some business concerns.

Report Communications Cut.

It was reported that the Japanese had cut the city's communications after Americans there had sent first word of their plight by a courier who crossed the Japanese lines and telegraphed the American embassy at Chungking.

Japanese spokesmen asserted that they had little information from Kaifeng.

"As far as we know the movement there continues to be entirely anti-British," one spokesman said.

[In Washington, D. C., state department officials watched with care signs from China of what they said appeared to be a Japanese campaign to expel Americans and other foreigners by getting Chinese to put pressure on them.]

Report of Violence at Yochow.

American officials also were anxious concerning Chinese press reports — not confirmed by other sources—that anti-foreign demonstrators at Yochow had wrecked mission buildings and compelled both American and British missionaries to leave the city.

Japanese denied, however, that there had been any disorders in Yochow, an important port in Hunan province at the confluence of the Yangtze river and Tungting lake. Records here indicated that two missionaries of the Reformed church in the United States were there—the Rev. Edwin Beck of Tiffin, O., and Miss Mary Edna Myers, a nurse, native of Westminster, Md.

It was understood here that since the Japanese occupation of Yochow the Americans had been living outside the city at a mission school on the shores of Tungting lake.

Belgian Embassy Damaged.

Japanese hostility in Tsingtao also has caused Americans to fear for their security and their properties. Japanese consulates were reported to be intending to refuse further permits to Americans to travel in Japanese-occupied areas in retaliation for the abrogation by the United States of the 1911 trade treaty with Japan.

The Belgian embassy at Chungking was damaged early today in the fourth Japanese moonlight air raid within the week on the temporary Chinese capital. The French and German consulates were damaged by Japanese bombs yesterday.

Diplomats and newspapermen in the Belgian embassy dugout were floored but uninjured by the bomb explosions. They joined other rescue workers in digging out 30 dead and injured Chinese from a nearby dugout.

Priests Seized by Japanese

The Rev. Father Henry Kroes (left) and the Rev. Father John Fu (right), members of the faculty of the American Catholic university in Peking, China, have been seized by police of Japanese dominated government. When the Rev. Father Rudolph Rahmann (center) rushed to the aid of Father Kroes, an armed assailant forced Father Rahmann inside a building.

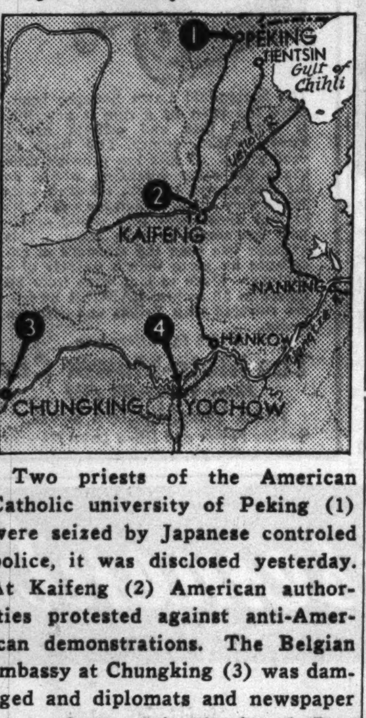
The main building of the university, which is known in China as Fu Jen university. The institution has offices in Chicago.



Two priests of the American Catholic university of Peking (1) were seized by Japanese controled police, it was disclosed yesterday. At Kaifeng (2) American authorities protested against anti-American demonstrations. The Belgian embassy at Chungking (3) was damaged and diplomats and newspaper men endangered by the fourth Japanese air raid in a week. Mission buildings were reported to have been wrecked at Yochow (4) by anti-foreign demonstrators.

A 24 HOUR SUN, AND MATANUSKA CROPS FLOURISH

Colony Sells Produce by Truckloads.

PALMER, Alaska, Aug. 5 (AP).—Crops maturing rapidly under a warm, twenty-four hour a day sub-Arctic sun gave evidence today bounty had come to the colonists who turned a far northern, wooded valley into a promised land of farms and gardens.

The Matanuska colony, established in 1935 by men and women who had lost their economic footing in America, began talking for the first time about a shortage of crop storage space; about yields in the thousands of tons.

Demand Can't Be Met.

Truckload after truckload of garden stuff has been leaving the valley daily, taking cabbage, cauliflower, head lettuce, turnips, beets, strawberries, mushrooms, chard, and new potatoes to market. But the demand for green produce at Alaska railroad communities could not be met.

Walter Pippel, whose long difference with the colony over marketing his stuff ended last week when he agreed to withdraw, has had a $200 weekly income this summer, coöperative records showed. He was compelled by an injunction to market with the coöperative.

Abundance of Peas.

A week ago today the colony's cannery started the season's operations with the first work on the eighty acres of garden peas. Upwards of 30,000 cases will be packed.

Chinese Break River Dykes; Flood Areas Held by Japs

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 5 [U. P.]. —Chinese sources reported today that twenty-two districts of Hopei province, with a population of 1,000,000, had been flooded by the deliberate breaking of dykes on ten rivers. The reports said the lands of central Hopei had been converted into a lake and that Japanese military operations were seriously hampered.

FASCIST ORGAN DEMANDS BRITAIN QUIT GIBRALTAR

ROME, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Bologna newspaper, Il Resto del Carlino, today called upon Great Britain to return Gibraltar to Spain. After noting that Madrid newspapers had said Britain should leave the rock, which the British have held for 235 years, Il Resto del Carlino said:

"The presence of the British at Gibraltar as well as at Malta is like a shadow projected across the Mediterranean by a power that no longer strikes Spain or Italy with fear. It is a specter which no longer impresses any one and, as we well know, which is destined to disappear with the first rays of the sun.

"The shout, 'the English out of Gibraltar,' finds a profound echo in all Italy, in Germany, and in the powers friendly to the axis because it is a spontaneous and just cry."

WHERE THERE'S LOAF THERE'S LIFE!

By CALEB

A DAY arrives in the career of the success-chaser when he can no longer vacate—he can only vocate! Hard-working, direct-driving—he has been the embodiment of both so long that only "doctor's orders" can ever get him off the job. And once he's off—

"Doctor, what in the world am I going to do, with a whole month of loafing on my hands?" The thought of not getting into harness by eight, and hurtling through, with a hastily grabbed lunch, till five—why, it's appalling!

Maybe he should take a look, as we've been doing from week to week, at the column in one of our current publishing journals, laconically headed: Deaths. During the past year that grim space has underscored just one fact: the constancy with which eight or ten men decease at 40 to 55, for every one or two who do not pass to their reward until 70, 80 or beyond. And therein is a blasting indictment of every businessman who refuses to see any but the difference of a letter between "vocation" and "vacation."

Truth is, the brain and talent of today's Captains of Industry have mastered almost every art but the longevity-art of loafing. Confusing its particular function—that of slackening weary nerves and aerating fuzzy minds—with the plain laziness of the hobo or box-whittler, they disdain the gift of dolce far niente till a "stroke," or angina, or arteriosclerosis, interpolates, in the very midst of their boldest sentence, a black period!

But you don't find Mr. Fourscore so foolish! Even at twoscore, he had discovered what it means in dollars and sense to escape the whole plaguy program of routine — and vacate. Dozens of him, daily, are dropping into our Store for Men, and equipping or appareling themselves for a lot of first-class loafing. Soon, one will be drowsing over the thwarts of a boat, hammocked on the heave of the lazy Gulf. Another will drop line for hours into the crystalline shadow and stillness of some green pool, with a dragon-fly for company. A third will be racing the sunrise winking on his tiller—

Yet one and all—when you again find them in harness—will be stepping off the accomplishment miles like thoroughbreds. For they long ago learned what any trainer of horseflesh will tell you: that the leader in today's finish heat owes a lot to the yesterdays he spent . . . just dallying in a pasture.

AUTO MASSACRE INCREASES, BUT PENALTIES DROP

Judges' Records Compared in Court Study.

Municipal court records showed yesterday that Judges Jay A. Schiller and Thomas A. Green sat in the Safety court in the first five months of 1939 when the driving privileges of 162 motorists were suspended. In the same period of 1938 Judges J. M. Braude, Charles S. Dougherty, and Stephen Adamowski deprived 685 motorists of their driving privileges.

Judge Schiller sat in the Safety court last January, Februrary, and March. He was succeeded by Judge Green, who remained there for the next three months. Court records for June have not been tabulated in the office of Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby, and a comparison of only a five month period was available.

While Judges Schiller and Green meted out suspensions to only one-fourth as many drivers as did the judges in the first five months of 1938, there was no decrease in injuries and deaths in automobile accidents. Instead, there was an increase. A total of 7,237 injuries and 264 deaths was recorded in the five month period of 1938, and there were 8,115 injuries and 270 deaths in the five month period of 1939.

Only Ninety Fewer Cases.

Judges Schiller and Green presided over only ninety fewer court cases in the five months than did Judges Braude, Dougherty, and Adamowski. There were 2,205 cases in the 1939 period and 2,295 in that of 1938.

Speeders and parking violators are not sent to the Safety court. They either are permitted to pay a designated fine without court appearance or they report in person at the Speeders' court, at which Judge John Gutknecht presides. Only flagrant cases, therefore, were assigned to Judges Schiller and Green, police said.

Officials of the Chicago Motor club said the drivers' license law became effective July 12, 1938. May 1, 1939, was the first date on which a person could be penalized for driving an automobile without having a drivers' license. Licenses were issued before May 1, 1938, and could have been revoked before then, according to the motor club. As far as could be learned, however, no licenses were revoked before last May 1.

Before then courts possessed power to suspend driving privileges by placing motorists on probation. Probation violators were subject to punishment for contempt of court. Since the passage of the drivers' license law judges have the power to take away a license..

Woman's Case Arouses Attention.

Failure of the municipal courts to enforce the drivers' license law in its entirety came to public attention a week ago through the second arrest of Mrs. Joan Meriault, 1404 East 63d place. On May 22 Judge Green had found her guilty of driving while drunk but had not entered his finding on the back of her driver's license, as provided by law. He granted her probation.

When she was arrested the second time—on a charge of reckless driving—she was released on $50 bond. She forfeited the bond and disappeared.

After her second arrest Judge Green admitted that he had been at fault in not entering his findings on her license. Police said if he had taken up her license or made the notation on it she would not have been released on the relatively small bond after her second arrest.

Captain Cites Arrests.

Capt. David Flynn of the trafic division said his men have arrested thousands of motorists since May 1 who had no drivers' license. In each case the court imposed a fine, he said.

He said Judge Gutknecht in the Speeders' court requires the presentation of the licenses and the notation on them of violations and penalties. He said that if Safety court judges did this in every case, the good effects of the law, if there are to be any, would soon be apparent.

Train Hits German Bus; 8 Women Killed; 20 Hurt

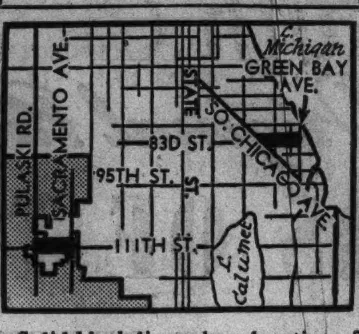
BERLIN, Aug. 5.—A city bus in Potsdam-Babelsberg, carrying housewives from their marketing, was struck by a freight train this afternoon. Eight were killed and 20 critically injured.

Bus Routes



Solid black lines show location of feeder bus routes recommended by Shaw.

Walter A. Shaw, traction adviser to the federal court, has recommended the installation of two new feeder bus routes by the Chicago Surface Lines and disapproved a third proposed bus installation. All three routes had been ordered by the Illinois commerce commission, but action on them requires court approval, because the surface lines are under court jurisdiction.

The two bus routes Shaw approved are on 111th street between Sacramento avenue and Pulaski road and on 83d street between Green Bay and South Chicago avenues. The third route, that did not get Shaw's approval, was proposed for Central avenue between Milwaukee and Dowagiac avenues. Shaw found that all persons who would be served by the Central avenue extension are already within a quarter of a mile of existing transportation facilities.

Shaw's report will be presented later this month to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who asked Shaw to investigate the three extension proposals.

4 ARMY CHIEFS TO BE RAISED TO LIEUT. GENERALS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 [U. P.].—The war department announced tonight that the commanding generals of the four armies into which the troops within the nation are organized will be nominated for the rank of lieutenant general, under provisions of a house bill signed today by President Roosevelt.

These officers, now major generals, are: Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, first army; Maj. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, second army; Maj. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, third army, and Maj. Gen. Albert J. Bowley, fourth army.

ADMITS DRIVING WITH NO LICENSE AND GETS $25 FINE

Jerome Gottlieb, 22 years old, of 4868½ Sheridan road, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Eugene Holland in the Boys' court on a charge of failing to have a license to drive an automobile. Gottlieb, a clerk, fought with a deputy bailiff and insisted he should not be treated as a criminal. He asserted he was not driving the car but was only sitting in it, and therefore should not have been arrested. When he admitted he had been driving the car, Judge Holland fined him $25.

Contractors Bid $848,674 for Road and Bridge Jobs

The Illinois division of highways received low bids aggregating $848,674 yesterday for road and bridge construction. Two of the bids were for Chicago improvements: .82 of a mile of sheet asphalt covering in Addison street near Cicero avenue, and the same length in Addison street near Elston avenue.

FOUR BROTHERS DIE IN BLAST; 2 OTHERS HURT

New York, Aug. 5 (AP)—Four brothers died in an explosion today because of their zeal for cleanliness.

The Melillo brothers—Nicholas, 28 years old, Joseph 23, Lorenzo, 21, and Louis, 18, and two others, Sol Beck, 19, and James Turello, 24, all employés of the Long Island Trucking company, moved into a new building this morning. They decided to scour the floor with benzine.

A few minutes later an explosion rocked the one story building. Joseph and Lorenzo died immediately. Louis and Nicholas succumbed a few hours later. Beck and Turello are in critical condition.

Police believe metal brushes used by the men caused a spark that exploded the benzine.

BOY, 10, KILLED AS HIT-RUN CAR STRIKES BICYCLE

Leo Laurencit, 10 years old, of 5042 South Kostner avenue, was fatally injured last night when the bicycle on which he was riding was struck by an automobile at 44th street and Pulaski road. The driver did not stop.

Joseph Gac, 43 years old, 5305 North Mobile avenue, was killed early today by a hit and run car in Higgins road, near Melvina avenue. There were no witnesses, but broken bits of headlight glass on the pavement told the story of the hit and run car. Gac's death was particularly tragic because only a week ago his daughter, Dolores, 8, died, making two deaths in the family in one week.

Emil Edman, 51 years old, 4002 Southport avenue, a carpenter, was fatally injured when he was run down by an ice truck at Irving Park and Ashland avenue. The driver was Carl Mathison, 1232 Winona avenue.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 482 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 371 were killed in Chicago, where 12,497 were injured in the same period.

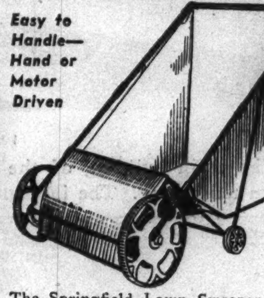
the modern way with a

SPRINGFIELD LAWN SWEEPER

Easy to Handle— Hand or Motor Driven



The Springfield Lawn Sweeper beautifies the lawn by giving it new life. It gently lifts and collects paper, leaves, sticks, stones, and fresh or dead grass. It lifts low-growing crab grass and other spreading weeds, so the lawnmower can cut off seed pods before they ripen. Removes quantities of foul weed seeds that would otherwise germinate in your lawn. This sweeper has been the standard of excellence for more than a quarter of a century. Made in four sizes from 20 inches to 36 inches. LARGER Sweepers powered with Briggs and Stratton motor.

PLAN FOR TUNNEL UNDER ENGLISH CHANNEL REVIVED

Push Idea as Strategic Factor in Wartime.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 5.—As a result of threatening conditions in Europe, the project of a tunnel under the English channel from England to France has been revived and is receiving stronger support than at any time in the sixty years that the plan has been contemplated.

Arrow locates sites of proposed tunnel.

The project received consideration in the house of commons in 1930 and was laid aside then on the narrow margin of 179 votes to 172. Recently the plan was revived and discussed in the annual congress of the international committee of exchanges.

The English entrance to the tunnel would be between Folkestone and St. Margaret's bay and the French opening between Wissant and Calais. The distance straight across at this point is twenty miles and the tunnel with approaches would be thirty-three miles long.

Would Cost $250,000,000.

The estimated cost would be 250 million dollars, including the cost of a pilot tunnel at 25 million dollars. It is estimated the pilot tunnel would require two and a half years to bore and the two main service tunnels four and a half years, a total of seven years.

The pilot tunnel, from 8 to 12 feet in diameter, would have galleries at intervals and these would be used to work on faces of the two main tunnels from many points at once. The trafic tunnels would be 18 feet in diameter. After completion of the project, the pilot tunnel would be used for drainage and to carry off exhaust fumes of the trafic tunnels.

The late Baron Emile d'Erlanger is credited with being the father of the channel tunnel scheme. The financier shortly before his death last July 24 was prominent in pushing the plan at the international committee of exchanges congress.

Stresses Strategic Angle.

"Strategic considerations claim first attention now as in the past," the baron contended. "In France military opinion has been unanimously in favor of the tunnel. Marshal Foch said that if it had existed in 1914, the war would not have taken place. In England military opinion has been divided since the great war.

"Since the strategic and tactical utility of the tunnel in case of war would depend upon the ability to use it, approval of its construction undoubtedly would have to be made conditional on adequate defenses. The French side has been made safe against any surprise attack by prolongation of the Maginot line to the coast. The approaches on the English side would have to be defended accordingly.

Baron d'Erlanger recounted that most of Great Britain's vital supplies are sea borne; that crowded docks would be targets for air bombers and transport ships for submarines in wartime.

Sees Escape from Blockade.

"On the other hand," he continued, "troops and materials passing through the tunnel would be exposed to no such dangers after they had entered and until they had left.

"If the tunnel were in being all the ports of the Atlantic coast of France would be available to British and allied ships for landing foodstuffs and other materials from overseas, which could be carried directly into England by rail. The necessity of having to blockade the Atlantic coast of France by submarines or aircraft as well as England's coasts, would add immensely to the enemies' problems."

The baron said that engineers have no doubt of the feasibility of driving the tunnel from shore to shore. The chalk strata under the channel, he said, is an ideal medium for tunneling. He said it had been tested by thousands of soundings.

Urges Government Project.

The baron believed that the tunnel should be a project of the British and French governments rather than one for private investors. He believed private sponsorship would have to face the opposition of railways, shipping companies and other transport interests. Furthermore the weight of double taxation on international investors, restrictions on the export of capital, and the burdens of taxation and governmental control that have fallen on transport and public utility concerns would be a further objection, he said.

JOYCE CLAIR.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 5 [Special].—Mrs. Joyce Clair, 32 years old, yesterday asked for an inquiry into the death of her husband, Al Clair, 40, who was a dance director for the films. Clair died in the County hospital of a skull fracture fifteen hours after he was arrested in Hollywood on a charge of intoxication.

CYANIDE ROUTS 10 STOWAWAYS HIDING ON SHIP

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Ten young men who stowed away in the hold of a freighter at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July 14, were smoked out today when the ship was fumigated with cyanide.

The Ayuruoca of the Lloyd Brasilerio line docked at a terminal in Brooklyn and the crew soon began to fumigiate, first closing the hatches.

Frenzied tapping from below caused the crew to reopen the hatches. The ten men, clad only in underwear, bolted out, gasping and yelling in Portuguese.

They said they were to have paid a man in New York $250 to get them into the United States. They were held for immigration authorities.

Seven Killed as Airliner Cracks Up in Spanish Fog

MADRID, Aug. 5 (AP).—Civil guards in the town of Montroig today reported an airliner en route from Toulouse, France, to Casablanca crashed in the Laveria mountains in a heavy fog, killing seven persons aboard. Civil guards said papers found in the wreckage indicated it was a French plane.

[Other dispatches said it was a German plane.]

SLAYER FACING 25 YEAR TERM HANGS HIMSELF

Convicted After 7 Year Secret Is Told.

Robert Wilson, 28 years old, who was sentenced on June 30 to twenty-five years in prison for murder, hanged himself with his belt in his cell in the County jail last night. He was being held pending an appeal. The crime of which he was convicted was the slaying of William J. Stinson, a druggist, in Brookfield, on April 16, 1932.

Robert Wilson.

Ever since Wilson's arrest a few months ago, and his subsequent conviction, he had been moody. He was given a cell to himself. A guard inspected the cell every thirty minutes. At 9 o'clock last night Guard Chris Marolis saw Wilson alive. Twenty-eight minutes later Marolis looked into the cell again.

Strive to Revive Him.

He found Wilson hanging by a belt from a cross bar. He cut him down at once, and called for help. Dr. M. H. Levy, jail physician, and Dr. John Erwin, an interne, worked on him and were aided later by fire inhalator squad 2, under Lieut. Joseph A. Flahive. They were unable to revive Wilson.

Wilson's conviction ended a seven year old murder mystery. Druggist Stinson was shot to death by one of two bandits in his store. No clews were discovered by police, and the case went into police records as unsolved.

Tells Seven Year Secret.

Then last April 13 Otto Gehrke, 27 years old, 2758 Roosevelt road, a music teacher, went to Brookfield police. He said he hadn't had a good night's sleep in seven years, that he wanted to rid himself of a terrible secret. The secret was the slaying of Stinson. Gehrke related that he had lived with Wilson at the Wilson family home at 3419 Arden avenue, Brookfield, and that one night he and Wilson attempted to hold up Stinson. Wilson shot Stinson when the latter resisted, Gehrke said.

Wilson was arrested. He denied Gehrke's story. He was indicted and tried before Judge William J. Lindsay. Gehrke told his story. A jury returned a verdict against Wilson in ninety minutes, fixing his punishment at twenty-five years' imprisonment. For clearing up the old crime, Gehrke received a sentence of one to fourteen years on a charge of manslaughter.

THIEF'S ACCOUNT BOOK REVEALS PROFIT IS SLIM

The slim living which Alex Piper, alias Frank Gore, picked from crime was shown by examination of his account book yesterday. Piper was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell on a charge of larceny Friday. The account book was found on him and Policeman Steve Werlick of the South State street police is keeping it as evidence that crime doesn't pay.

On the income side some of the entries were:

April 9—Through chicanery obtained $3.
May 7—Secured dishonestly $1.15.
May 20—Under a form of swindle obtained 75 cents.

Twenty-two entries over three months recorded deposits of stolen articles with a pawnbroker; the total received was $10.20. Expenses similarly were detailed — 1 cent for matches, a nickel for tobacco, lodging 20 cents, barber 10 cents, breakfast 7 cents.

3 BEER BOTTLE THUGS BEAT, ROB A DISABLED VET

Peter Johnson, a disabled war veteran, was beaten and robbed of $74 in his food shop at 5201 South Halsted street early yesterday by three men who used beer bottles as weapons.

Johnson said the three came into his place carrying the bottles of beer. They asked for glasses and when they had emptied the bottles one of them knocked him unconscious with a bottle. Later he discovered the money had been taken from the cash drawer.

As the police were taking him to the Evangelical hospital he pointed out a pedestrian who, he said, resembled one of the robbers. The latter was arrested and identified himself as Martin Kittier, 5614 South Halsted street.

SLAYER GORE GOES BACK TO BENTON JAIL

Benton, Ill., Aug. 5 [Special].—George Gore Jr., confessed slayer of his stepmother, was returned to the Franklin county jail here this morning by order of City Judge Paul Jones. He had been held in jail in Murphysboro.

Two physicians examined Gore in behalf of his lawyer, who said he had been mistreated after arrest, and said they found his left eye and several spots on his body discolored.

Coroner David J. Clayton probably will conduct an inquest into the killing of Mrs. Nancy Gore, the stepmother, on Monday evening in the city hall auditorium. Police have not found the revolver Gore said he threw into the Big Muddy river at Murphysboro after the killing.

Mrs. Gore, former secretary and the second wife of Dr. George W. Gore Sr., was slain on July 23 on a sleeping porch at the Gore home. Gore Jr. had opposed his father's marriage with her two years ago. His wife is in jail here as an accessory to the murder and faces a charge of theft of $500 in Cape Girardeau, Mo., their home.

SCARES BANDIT CAR AWAY, BUT IT COMES BACK

Charles S. Greene noticed a car without license plates in front of his Standard Fruit Products company office at 401 North Paulina street yesterday. Because he was carrying his $250 pay roll, he suspected a robbery plot and investigated. The car sped off. Confident that he had prevented a robbery, Greene went into his office.

Two gunmen were waiting. They already had forced Greene's wife and secretary to lie on the floor. The gunmen took the pay roll. When they had fled, Greene looked out the window. He saw the car he had suspected return. The driver picked up the gunmen and drove them away.

GIRL 'L' AGENT PANICS BANDIT; COP SEIZES HIM

When a young masked bandit attempted last night to hold up Miss Mary Terwick, ticket agent at the elevated station at 63d street and Parnell avenue, she didn't become frightened. She recognized his gun as a toy pistol. She stepped on a button which sounded a bell burglar alarm, and the bandit fled. Policeman Harry Musker of the Englewood station heard the alarm and ran to the station. A few minutes later, a block away, he arrested Edward Higgins, 21 years old, 6351 Yale avenue, on suspicion. He found a toy gun in Higgins' pocket.

THE HAND THAT JAMS TRAFIC GETS SWEEPING SENTENCE IN JAIL

George Lynch, 46 years old, who appointed himself a trafic policeman Friday night, much to the confusion of motorists at Schiller and La Salle streets, was sentenced to a day of janitor work yesterday at the Racine avenue station.

"Not only do you go out and get drunk on WPA money, but you try to take away a policeman's job," admonished Judge William V. Daly. "I think you should spend the day showing the other prisoners how to push a broom."

Lynch, a WPA worker, lives at 1227 North La Salle street. A trafic tangle resulted when he obeyed the urge to imitate a policeman. He wore a blue suit and many of the motorists, thinking he was a policeman, followed his orders. Others obeyed the trafic lights.

ST. CHARLES GRAD AND PAL SEIZED IN STOLEN AUTO

Police Chase Ends Plot for Holdup Tour.

A young parolee from the St. Charles School for Boys was seized with a companion in a stolen car yesterday after they led five policemen a chase along the Outer drive and through Lincoln park. The prisoners, both 17 years old, admitted, police said, that they had planned to use the car in a holdup tour.

The parolee is Roy Bybee, who was released from the school last April after serving a year for robbery. He and his companion, Thomas Burke, an ice cream vendor, stole an automobile Friday night at Stony Island avenue and 69th street. The car belonged to C. B. Noonan, 6759 Cornell avenue.

Policeman Starts Chase.

Several hours later they were seen zigzagging along Field boulevard. At Monroe street Policeman John Weeks of the Grand Crossing station, who was off duty and driving his own car, shouted to them: "Stop hogging the road."

Instead Bybee increased his speed. Policeman Weeks gave chase. At North avenue and Beach drive Park District Policemen Leo Bronstein and Carl Flynn saw the speeding cars and joined the pursuit.

Another park district squad, composed of Policemen Joseph Longo and Robert Donner, joined the chase as the other cars passed Belden avenue along the Outer drive. Policeman Flynn fired a warning shot into the air, then four other shots which struck the stolen car.

The two were captured near Melrose street and Lake Shore drive after their automobile crashed against one of the squad cars.

Robbery Plans Told.

Bybee said he and Burke planned to get enough money to buy a revolver and then intended to go out on some "real stickups."

They planned to buy the revolver from a cab driver, Bybee said. Police arrested James Terry, 35, of 1015 East 52d street. He said he owned a revolver which he had attempted to sell to the two for $10.

Bybee was placed on probation in the Juvenile court in 1937 after he stole an electric iron from a neighbor's basement. In April, 1938, he aided a man in robbing a cab driver and was sent to St. Charles. He was paroled last April 7. He lives with his widowed mother at 1318 East 73d street. Burke, who has no previous police record, lives at 6646 Stony Island avenue.

Held as Burglars

Tells of Robbery; Find Cash in Cab of Truck

Irving Ohrenstein, 21 years old, 1120 South Karlov avenue, an ice cream vender, was held by Hudson avenue police last night for reporting he had been robbed of $13 at North avenue and Lake Shore drive when, according to police, the money was actually concealed in his ice cream cab.

Farmer's Wife, 14, Gives Birth to Second Child

Pennsboro, W. Va., Aug. 5 (AP).—Mrs. John H. Stackhouse, 14 years old, wife of a farmer, has given birth to her second child, a daughter. Married at the age of 12, the girl bore her first child last year.

GIRLS, 12 AND 13, ADMIT STEALING TO TREAT BOYS

Two little girls, who broke into neighbors' homes and stole money and jewelry, which they used to show their boy friends good times, were placed in custody by Shakespeare avenue police last night.

They are Shirley Wolfe, 13 years old, 1743 North Drake avenue, and Beatrice Kerwin, 12, of 1749 Monticello avenue, school chums. Police said that Shirley is now on probation from the Juvenile court on a burglary charge. They said she admitted seven burglaries and Beatrice four.

According to police, Beatrice hoisted Shirley to windows and Shirley searched the homes visited for money. In one home, that of Mrs. Richard Killeen, 1657 North Central Park avenue, they stole $1,200 worth of jewelry. This tripped them up. They gave diamond rings around to neighborhood boys. The mother of one of the boys, Robert Michaels, 16, of 1714 North Lawndale avenue, learning that he got rings from Shirley, told Shirley's mother, who, in turn, turned her over to the police. Then Shirley told on Beatrice. The girls were taken to the Juvenile home.

SEEK TO INDICT LIFE TERMER IN TAVERN SLAYING

A murder indictment against Frank Haines, 37 years old, who now is serving a life sentence in Joliet penitentiary under the habitual criminal act, will be sought before the grand jury in September, Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers said yesterday.

Meyers said that if an indictment is returned he will demand that Haines be sent to the electric chair for the slaying of Paul Gagne, 24 years old, who died Friday. Gagne was wounded May 27 when Haines went berserk in a tavern at 651 Madison street and fired at a crowd of customers. Haines was a fugitive at the time, having led the escape of five men from the Ohio State Hospital for the Criminal Insane in Lima last New Year's day.

Haines subsequently was declared sane and was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge James F. Fardy in the Criminal court.

RED EDITOR HAS SIX MONTHS TO PAY LIBEL SUIT

Must Stay in Brooklyn Until He Settles.

New York, Aug. 5 [Special].—Clarence Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, official newspaper of the communist party, was freed from Brooklyn's civil prison today after posting a bond of $5,600, approximately double the amount of the unpaid libel verdict obtained against him by Mrs. Walter Liggett, widow of the Minneapolis editor slain while crusading against crime and crooked politics in that city.

Hathaway, although freed from his cell adjoining that of numerous alimony prisoners, is still a virtual prisoner in Brooklyn. The bond, provided by a surety company, guarantees that he will not leave Brooklyn for six months. If he does, the bond will be forfeited and he also will go back to jail.

Faces Sixty Day Term.

Hathaway was jailed Wednesday after Mrs. Liggett's attorney had obtained a writ for body execution of the libel judgment which was returned by a jury on May 23. Hathaway had made no attempt to pay. The writ provided that Hathaway could be kept in jail a maximum of sixty days in lieu of payment of the $2,672 judgment, or he might be freed on bail equal to double the amount of the verdict.

Unless the editor discharges his obligation within six months he will continue to be a prisoner within the borders of Brooklyn, and as the offices of the Daily Worker are in Manhattan, he will have to conduct his duties by messenger and telephone.

Mrs. Liggett first sued Hathaway, the Daily Worker, the Comprodaily Publishing company and Hyman Colodny, former business manager of the paper, over a year ago.

First Verdict Upset.

She won an original verdict of $25,000 on the basis of her charges that the Daily Worker had published a series of stories in which mention was made of the widow of the slain editor "selling the corpse limb by limb to the highest bidders."

This verdict was vacated subsequently against all the defendants except Colodny who could not be found. In May of this year, Mrs. Liggett sued again and won a verdict of $2,500 plus costs.

Walter Liggett, editor of the weekly Midwest American, was shot down in Minneapolis on Dec. 19, 1935, on the eve of his scheduled appearance before the Minnesota legislature, at which he was slated to give evidence of tieup between the underworld and politicians. His murderers were never caught.

HEPBURN JOINS UNION WAR ON SOPHIE TUCKER

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Katharine Hepburn, movie and stage star, joined the foes of Sophie Tucker in the theatrical union scrap today with a statement supporting the Associated Actors and Artists of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate.

"Any attempt on the part of the American Federation of Labor to disregard the just claims of the Four A will be regarded as a breach of faith not to be tolerated by the loyal members of our union," said Miss Hepburn, now appearing in a Broadway play.

Three affiliates of the Four A have suspended Miss Tucker because she allied the American Federation of Actors with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés [A. F. of L. stagehands' union].

The A. F. of L. has scheduled a hearing by its executive council in Atlantic City Thursday in an attempt to iron out the situation. If no settlement is reached, the scrap may bring a shutdown of Broadway playhouses later this month.

TRAILER HOMES MEAN WORRY TO CENSUS TAKERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—The census bureau has a new problem—tracking down those who live in trailers. The problem will arise during a practice census to be conducted in preparation for the national census of 1940.

During this trial job, which will cover St. Joseph and Marshall counties, Indiana, beginning Aug. 15, the bureau will tackle for the first time enumeration of trailer dwellers, who have increased a hundredfold since 1930.

It was stated that license plates on a trailer may have been issued in Maine or California, but if the trailer's occupant claims no other residence, he will be enumerated as of the place where his car happens to be parked.

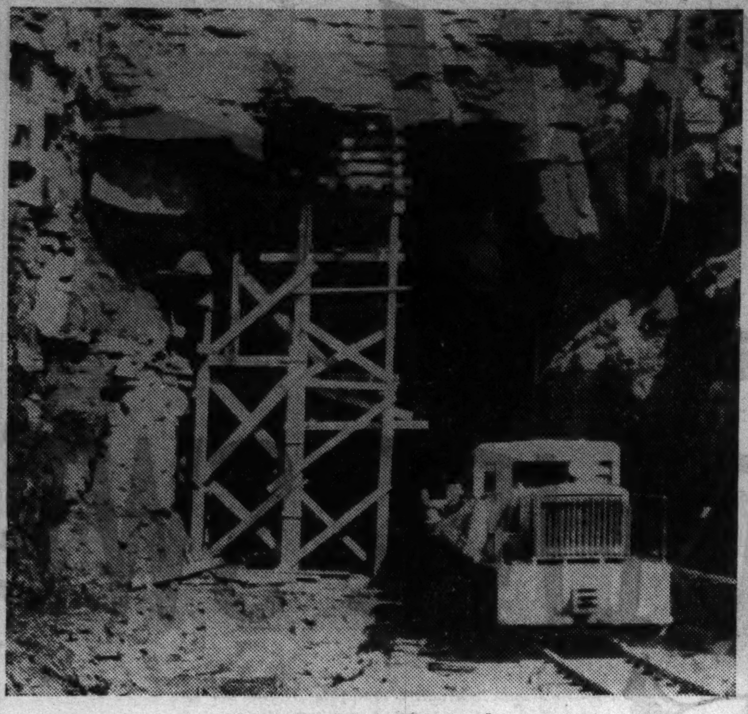
Rock Fall Kills 4 in Pennsylvania



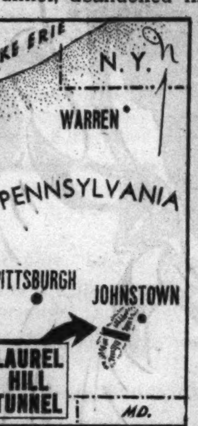
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Entrance to Laurel hill tunnel near Somerset, Pa., in which four workmen were killed yesterday when a huge bowlder rolled down on them. The tunnel is part of the state's 60 million dollar express highway project.

BOWLDER TRAPS AND KILLS 4 ON SUPERHIGHWAY

Crushes Tunnel Crew in Pennsylvania.

Somerset, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—Death in a mountain tunnel, abandoned in the railroad building era of the '80s, today struck down four men working to convert the project into a 20th century superhighway.



Arrow locates scene of tunnel accident.

A 20 ton bowlder ripped loose from the ceiling of Laurel hill tunnel, which workmen of the late William K. Vanderbilt began drilling nearly 60 years ago, and killed four men.

One lay for more than an hour with an arm crushed under the weight of the stone before a physician arrived from this western Pennsylvania mountain town 15 miles to the east. The physician amputated his arm, but the victim, William Leach, 33 years old, of nearby Boswell, died en route to a hospital.

Boss Leaps to Safety.

Killed instantly were Walter B. Daley, 28, of Langloth, Pa., and Olaf K. Schooling, 25, and Leonard Anderson, 26, both of near here.

A fifth man, Superintendent Al Huntingdon, escaped when he heard the rumbling of the rock fall and leaped aside. He shouted a warning to the others, but they could not hear.

An official of the construction company charged the project was "unsafe" and blamed the accident on "haggling" by the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission over the type of reinforcement to be used.

Later A. E. Lee, supervising engineer on the project, suspended work "until such time as we can get structural steel and make it safe for men to work."

Grass Grown for 50 Years.

In the '80s, when Vanderbilt needed a railroad line across Pennsylvania to carry steel from thriving Pittsburgh, he began construction of the "South Penn" railroad and spent $10,000,000 before the project was abandoned.

The tunnels he started drilling under the rugged Allegheny mountains stood idle, weeds growing between the stones, for more than 50 years. Then the state conceived the idea of the $61,000,000 superhighway and created the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission to build the road that limits grades to 3 per cent by utilizing eight tunnels, and cuts 50 miles from established east-west routes between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg.

WIFE BEATEN; HUSBAND SEIZED.

Mrs. Marcella Kaminski, 63 years old, 1800 North Wood street, was taken to County hospital last night after she had been struck on the head with a baseball bat. Her husband, Edward Kaminski, 49, was arrested.

STICKNEY SEWAGE PLANT READY FOR CAPACITY LOADS

Southwest Side Disposal Unit World's Biggest.

The new $14,000,000 southwest side sewage treatment plant at Stickney will be ready for operation at capacity tomorrow, Ross Woodhull, president of the sanitary district, announced yesterday. The plant, which has been under construction for four years, is the largest of its kind in the world.

It can treat 400 million gallons of sewage a day, but it will not carry this full load for several weeks until all the tributary intercepting sewers are open. The plant started partial operation last May 10 and has been treating more than 100 million gallons each day.

Last Link in a Giant System.

Completion of the southwest side works is the last link in the sanitary district's gigantic system of artificial sewage treatment to take over the disposal work done for generations by the Chicago river. Establishment of this system, at a cost to date of $162,000,000, became necessary when the United States Supreme court in 1930 decreed that on Jan. 1, 1939, the flow of water from Lake Michigan into the river must be limited to 1,500 cubic feet a second.

The new plant is situated on the north bank of the drainage canal at 59th avenue, south of Pershing road, in Stickney. It will treat sewage from an area of 195 square miles in and around Chicago.

The plant will take 92 per cent of the impurities out of sewage water through the activated sludge method of treatment which utilizes the micro-organisms in the waste material.

How the Sewage Is Treated.

The six specific steps are:

1. The sewage enters the plant from fifty-two miles of tributary intercepting sewers, which have carried waste from the smaller city sewers. [The plant also will dispose of the sludge from sewage treated at the north side plant at McCormick road and Howard street.]

2. The sewage enters preliminary settling tanks, flowing through twelve of them, each 103 feet long, 101 feet wide and 11 feet deep. The coarse organic solids settle and are drawn off, and grease, scum, and floating objects are skimmed from the top while the sewage remains in the tanks thirty-four minutes. The refuse drawn off is called sludge.

3. The sewage enters the aeration tanks; there are sixteen of these, each 434 by 136 feet. The sewage is mixed with sludge removed from other sewage and is submitted to the aeration or activating process. This means that eight to fifteen volumes of air are blown into the sewage for each volume of sewage.

85 Types of Bugs Go to Work.

The bugs now do their work. Sludge contains eighty-five known types of micro-organisms. They live, eat, and attach themselves to vegetable matter or impurities when supplied with oxygen and break apart chemical combinations in the refuse.

4. After five hours in the aeration tanks, the sewage goes to final settling tanks. The bugs sink to the bottom of the tanks, carrying the impurities with them.

5. The liquid is then drawn off the settling tanks. It is called effluent—something that flows out. It flows to the canal, and from there down the lakes to gulf waterway.

6. Most of the sludge from the settling tanks moves to concentration tanks near the incineration building. The rest is diverted to the aeration tanks to be mixed with incoming sewage.

Sludge Sold as Fuel, Fertilizer.

The sludge is dried in the incineration plant until it is a fine powder. It can then be used for fuel along with powdered coal in the furnaces, or it can be sold for fertilizer.

The Stickney plant is one of the major projects of the district's $60,000,000 construction program financed by Public Works administration funds. It will cost about $1,000,000 a year to operate.

The district's main treatment plants, in addition to the Stickney and the north side works, are the west side works, adjoining the Stickney plant, and the Calumet works, at 126th street west of Cottage Grove avenue. When they are all working at capacity they can handle 1,258,000,000 gallons of sewage a day. The normal flow is a billion gallons a day.

Finish Sewage Treatment Plant

RULES CITY ISN'T LIABLE FOR BENCH ELECTION RENTS

The county board must rent polling places for judicial elections, Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel, ruled yesterday. He said Illinois provides that all regular expenses of electing Circuit and Superior court judges be charged against county funds.

The city council requested the opinion after the county board sought to collect $36,480 from the city for polling place rental in the June 5 judicial election. Election expenses are shared by the city and the county when the county elections are held with state elections.

County records show that the city owes nearly half a million dollars for its share of elections since 1934. The county board has ordered the withholding of tax collections for city funds until the accounts are squared. The city also must make up a $200,000 deficit in the accounts of the board of election commissioners for 1939.

HUNT FOR HEIRS OF PROSPECTOR WHO LEFT $7,000

Public Administrator Martin J. O'Brien began a search yesterday for heirs of Henry Rathjen, Alaskan gold prospector, who died a month ago at Little Rock, Ark.

Rathjen, originally a Chicagoan, left here in 1900 to seek gold in Colorado, according to Samuel Shamberg, attorney placed in charge by the public administrator. Thence Rathjen went to Alaska, where he lived for years at Knik. At the age of 80 he decided to return to Chicago, but went south first.

Shamberg said Rathjen had about $7,000 in Chicago banks and that no relatives have thus far been found.

TAXES USED AS LOUISIANA CLUB, ROGGE CHARGES

New Orleans, La., Aug. 5 (AP).—Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge announced today the Federal bureau of investigation had been asked to inquire into reports that prohibitive tax assessments were made to intimidate a witness in the government's investigation of corruption in Louisiana.

Rogge made his announcement just before boarding a plane for Washington to confer with Attorney General Frank Murphy.

The government prosecutor said the property assessment of a New Orleans man who came to his office two weeks ago since had been doubled, and the man warned through an anonymous telephone call that if he didn't stay away from Rogge's office his assessment would be raised so high he couldn't reach it with a ten foot pole. Rogge previously had reported a fear complex on the part of witnesses and persons reporting alleged law violations by mail.

WOW—AIN'T LIFE SWEET!

WHEN YOUR HORSE COMES HOME IN FRONT

—and life is on the sunny side also when you find the apartment you really want

• The right apartment is easy to find when you review the Tribune rental want ad columns because the Tribune prints more want ads offering apartments than all other Chicago newspapers combined.

The selection is so large and varied that you can be practically certain of finding what you want no matter how much rent you want to pay, the number of rooms needed, or the location you prefer.

To make apartment hunting still easier, the Tribune lists all apartments by sections of the city and suburbs and by numbers of rooms. To save yourself time and useless stairs climbing, make use of this handy apartment guide. Consult the rental want ads in the Tribune want ad section today.

OWNERS—AGENTS—

• Because they get better results, apartment owners and rental agents place more rental want advertising in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined. If you want to get action on your offers from Chicago's largest constant audience call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. If your name is in the phone book, you may charge your Tribune want ad. If you prefer, a Tribune representative will call on you at your request.

PROGRESS ADDS TO PROBLEMS OF SKIN SPECIALIST

N. U. Dermatologist Tells of Changing Tasks.

Dr. Theodore K. Lawless at his microscope.

Modern transportation and the discoveries of research chemists have combined to make the work of skin specialists a steadily changing one, according to Dr. Theodore K. Lawless of Chicago, Dr. Lawless, who is regarded as one of the country's outstanding dermatologists, yesterday told of his work in the study and treatment of skin diseases.

The speed of modern travel, he says, has spread throughout the world diseases which once were confined to certain localities. And research chemists have developed some processes which are harmful to the skin of persons employed in many industrial fields. Skin specialists find it necessary to discover methods of treatment for these new disorders.

How He Entered Medicine.

Dr. Lawless, a Negro, was born 46 years ago in New Orleans, the son of a Congregational minister. He studied at Talladega college, Talladega, Ala., where he did painting and decorating and watched over a herd of prize hogs to earn his way. He rode into medicine, he says, on the back of a hog, because he first developed his interest in that field while helping a physician [not a veterinarian] care for the hogs that fell ill.

After being graduated from Talladega college, he attended the University of Kansas at Lawrence, which he stumbled on while working in the western wheat fields. Two years later he came to Chicago and entered Northwestern university, where he decided to specialize in skin diseases. He was graduated from the medical school there in 1919, and did post-graduate work at Columbia university, Harvard college, and at universities in Paris, Vienna, and Freiburg.

Teaches at Northwestern.

He returned from Vienna in 1924 and became an Elizabeth J. Ward research fellow at Northwestern, resuming the teaching he began as a senior student. He has been teaching there since.

His Chicago patients, who number more than 150,000 for the last fifteen years, have included some with unusual diseases. Ten of them had leprosy, and one had an East Indian disease known as leishmaniosis.

He cured one boy in the east of leishmaniosis who had been mistakenly treated for tuberculosis of the skin for more than a year. And a south side Chicago doctor, who had been treating a patient for syphilis, was so surprised he fainted when Dr. Lawless informed him the patient had leprosy.

People come to see him from all over this country, as well as from the West Indies, Cuba, Panama, France, England, Haiti, and British Guiana.

In one case a man suffering from what he had been told was an incurable skin disease in the region of the lower spine was cured when Dr. Lawless observed his sitting posture. The patient weighed about 250 pounds, and due to his habit of sitting incorrectly literally had worn the skin off the affected region.

The Cure Is Simple.

"I told him to sit up," Dr. Lawless says, "and the trouble disappeared."

Other unusual skin troubles were traced to [1] allergy to printers' ink, [2] sensitiveness to medicine used to remove week-end hangovers, and [3] constant rubbing by the rearpockets against the hands of a man who hid them there because of a previous blemish.

Dr. Lawless says there are two main types of skin disorders, those representing poor general health and those coming from an outward irritant.

Many skin diseases in women he blames on the fast pace of modern life, including smoking, drinking, and trying to keep up with the social whirl.

MAYOR KILLED BY CAR.

Fort Lee, N. J., Aug. 6 [Sunday.]—Mayor Arthur E. Kerwien, 66 years old, of Fort Lee was killed early today by an automobile in Palisades park, near here. Ned Hoffman, 37 years old, told police that Mayor Kerwien stepped from behind a parked automobile into the path of the car he was driving. Hoffman was arrested on a technical charge of automobile manslaughter. Kerwien, a Republican, was serving his third term as mayor.

THE ACCIDENT BREEDERS.

State, county and local police, at a recent conference arranged by the Chicago Motor club, laid out a campaign to curb trafic violations that are accident breeders. Throughout the country tourists are being warned to pay strict attention to trafic rules. Every state is becoming alarmed at the massacre on the highways and is setting out to do something about it.

A great surgeon once rebuked a newspaper man who in interviewing him referred to minor operations. There are no minor operations, the surgeon maintained. Any operation, improperly or carelessly performed, may hazard the life of the patient. Similarly, there are no minor trafic violations, unless the deaths any of them can cause are to be termed minor deaths. All too frequently it is an innocent driver or his passengers who suffer rather than the culprit.

The local campaign is directed particularly against slow-poke drivers, lane hogs, nonsignalers, and trafic weavers. Every one of these practices is a discourtesy to other motorists. Every one can also cause a deadly accident.

The driver who fails to keep up with the trafic stream is as dangerous as the speeder. He either blocks trafic or forces other drivers to swing around him, with the hazards that result from passing. The lane hog, on a two lane road, can ditch cars driving in the opposite direction. On a four lane express highway he forces cars seeking to pass him over against the opposing trafic stream.

This state, with most others, requires hand signals, because they have been demonstrated to reduce accidents sharply when they are generally and properly used. Until drivers are arrested for not using them their use will not become general. The trafic weaver is an unbearable nuisance. To drive five or ten miles faster than the stream of trafic he endangers every car on the road.

The police might add another type of violator to their list. This is the driver who makes a right turn from the center of the road or a left turn from the right curb, cutting across the path of cars following him. Because of the angle at which collisions caused by such practices occur, it is most often the following car that is forced into the ditch or over into the opposing trafic lane.

Trafic enforcement would be vastly improved if the police would get it out of their heads that arrests for these minor violations, as they are miscalled, are unpopular. They will be popular. With the possible exception of failures to signal, they are indulged in by a small minority of motorists. The majority will be glad to see these accident breeding pests punished.

SPANISH GOLD AND THE MEXICAN BUDGET.

The Spanish Republican government, which now has its offices of state on the boulevards of Paris, is as well heeled a bunch of statesmen as ever skipped across a frontier. In the closing days of the civil war it took gold estimated at $45,000,000 out of the national treasury and shipped it off to Paris.

The bank roll has split the fugitive leftists. Juan Negrin, former premier, wanted to use it to finance another whirl at Franco. The opposition, led by the socialist, Prieto, finally prevailed.

The money will be used to establish a bank in Mexico to facilitate the settlement of Spanish refugees in that country.

While President Cardenas is in favor of admitting the refugees, Mexican opinion is not unanimous in supporting him. There is the usual sentiment that the immigrants will take jobs from Mexican labor, and when the first consignment proved to be mostly café intellectuals, orders went to Mexican consuls abroad to issue no more visas until the applicants showed some calluses.

There seem to be no misgivings about the gold, however. Mexican newspapers are discussing it extensively and with enthusiasm. In view of recent occurrences in our neighbor republic, it is not without significance that the gold is being measured in terms of the Mexican budget. There is enough of it to run the government for nine months, the newspapers declare.

If this means what it seems to mean, Homeric gales of laughter may be expected at some time in the future from the offices of expropriated oil companies and other strongholds of capitalism.

OVERNIGHT TO LONDON.

The military flyers were set back on their heels seven years ago when big transport planes of a type still in use took the air. Here were planes capable of being converted into bombers that could outfly the best pursuit aviation then available.

Now the picture has been reversed. The army, celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the first military aircraft, has flown one of its flying fortress bombers across the United States in nine and a quarter hours. Its speed on the nonstop flight was 264.5 miles an hour.

The trip was made in the substratosphere, above 25,000 feet and at times at 33,000 feet above sea level. The performance was made possible by a new supercharger, a military secret, that permitted the plane to feed its motors in the rarefied atmosphere.

Flying boats in the trans-Atlantic passenger service take their passengers from New York to London in a little less than 24 hours, actual flying time. This includes a two hour train journey from Southampton harbor. At the speed set by the army a land transport plane of the flying fortress type could go from New York to London direct in 13 hours 4 minutes. Westbound, prevailing westerly winds in the stratosphere would probably reduce the speed considerably.

Unless there are radical improvements in flying boats, it seems probable that the big land planes will in time replace them on the transoceanic routes. The land planes can outfly and probably outcarry the best flying boats now available. Many aviation engineers hold that the large low-wing monoplane is actually safer, in case of a forced landing, than a flying boat. It cannot take off again, but its wings act as sturdy pontoons to hold the passengers in the cabin up out of the waves.

CLARK GABLE'S $289,000.

Most of the men and women interviewed by the Inquiring Reporter said they thought Clark Gable ought to pay as income tax something like half his earnings [which in 1937 amounted to $289,000]. Mr. Gable, it was said, could get along very nicely on the remaining half. The redistribution of his wealth, so it was argued, would tend to iron out inequalities in income and thus promote the general prosperity.

Few of those who answered the question seem to have considered how fleeting is the earning power of a moving picture star or of any one else whose principal stock in trade is youth and popular favor. Where are the snows of yesteryear and where are its movie stars, its baseball players, its Floradora girls, etc., etc.? The public taste is notoriously fickle; the only certainty about it is that it will, before long, fasten on a new face, a new figure, and a new and fresh type.

But even if this were not true—if Clark Gable could look forward with considerable confidence to twenty more years of stardom—the question would still remain whether a tax which would discourage him from seeking to increase his earnings now would serve the national welfare. Mr. Gable gets his big salary for just one reason: the public likes to see him in the movies and will pay hard money at the box office for the privilege. Mr. Gable's share of the proceeds is relatively small. The principal beneficiaries of his popularity are a host of relatively obscure men and women whose earning power depends in greater or less degree upon him.

They are found in his supporting casts. They write his continuities and his publicity. They are carpenters, electricians, scene designers, and scenery builders and movers. They are camera men and laboratory men. They sell films and own theaters. They are stenographers and bookkeepers, and office boys. They operate movie projectors. They are ushers in theaters, ticket sellers, and janitors. They are building tradesmen and engineers designing air-conditioning equipment. They jerk sodas in the ice cream parlor next door to the theater. They sell gasoline to movie patrons and park their cars. They print advertisments. They mine the silver in Utah which goes into the emulsion which other men at Rochester smear on raw film made from cotton, which still others have grown in Georgia, all in order that his public may enjoy the sight of Clark Gable making love.

Mr. Gable's $289,000 is small change in comparison with the huge amount which is distributed as a consequence of his popularity. A discouragement to him is an injury to an army whose prosperity depends upon him.

BRINGING PLAY TO THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Some time ago the national government became convinced that the people of Sawyer county, Wisconsin, were not having enough fun. They were happy and believed that they were blessed in being able to live in a community which had so much to offer. But Washington wasn't impressed with what was being done in the county in the way of barn dances, picnics, shinny, and community sings. And so the Roosevelt administration created a WPA recreation project to make Sawyer county people happy. Incidentally, it furnished a pleasant chance to dip into the federal treasury.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Sawyer County Gazette, devoted a column in last Thursday's issue to the news of this government activity. The Little Tots picnic last Tuesday, says the Gazette, was a big success. There have been no reports of assaults upon umpires in the soft ball league. The tennis tournament starts any day now, and don't forget WPA's old fashioned barn dance on the 23d. Everybody didn't take to the government's supervision of recreation in the beginning, but "many new faces are now seen in the play yards."

Sawyer county, which the government has undertaken to recreate, lies in that section of Wisconsin where nothing is so plentiful as recreation. It didn't have to be brought there. It was waiting for people to help themselves. For years people from all over the country have spent their vacations in Sawyer county. Muskie, bass, and croppie abound in the lakes and rivers near by. There is swimming, boating, golf, tennis, and all of the other summer sports.

A government which attempts to regulate all economic activities apparently cannot keep its hands off social activities. Let alone, Sawyer county people would find their own amusements. The facilities are excellent. But then, if let alone, the people of the United States would recover from the depression.

INFLATION PROSPECT REVIEWED

The great English economic historian, J. H. Clapham, in his work published last year, "Machines and National Rivalries," told of a financial condition a half century ago which is somewhat analogous to that of the United States today. In 1888 Viscount Goschen, an experienced financier who was in the exchequer, arranged for the conversion of the British debt of approximately 3 billion dollars. Three per cent bonds were replaced at par with bonds bearing 2¾ per cent until 1903 and 2½ per cent thereafter until maturity in 1923. The conversion was possible because in the midst of a depression there was no demand for money for private business enterprise. In the continuing low state of business the converted bonds rose until July, 1897, when they reached 113½.

In the Boer war the bonds dropped to 88, with new debt being incurred. And in the period of Great Britain's revival following 1908, despite a steady reduction of the debt, the bonds fell below 74. Those who had invested their money in government securities when hopelessness generally prevailed found that they had a severe loss to take in converting their investment into cash after confidence had returned. High government bond prices and low interest rates on the top grade of bonds are characteristic of depression. Rising interest rates and low bond prices come with recovery.

Mr. Walter Lichtenstein, vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, in a recent address before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, told of an earlier experience of the same sort. The same Viscount Goschen who had arranged the debt conversion of 1888 wrote an article for the Edinburgh Review for January, 1868, entitled "Two Per Cent." In the same magazine for January, 1865, appeared an article by the viscount entitled "Seven Per Cent." The 7 per cent article, Mr. Lichtenstein pointed out, described a situation existing in England in the years 1863 and 1864 which, like the years 1928 and 1929 here, was "a period of tempestuous and reckless activity followed by prolonged and almost unparalleled reaction."

The sentence in quotation marks above was Lichtenstein's direct quotation from the 1865 Goschen article. The viscount's description of the stagnation following 1866 was aptly quoted by the Chicago banker, so much was it like our own experience of the 1930s:

"It may not, however, be inopportune to inquire why, if money is at 2 per cent, everybody does not hasten to borrow? Can the rates of interest, so temptingly low, indicate any other feeling on the part of capitalists than an intense desire to lend, and to utilize at almost any price their superabundant store? . . . If, contrary to theory, money has once more become extraordinarily cheap, contrary to experience the cheapness of money has not borne its accustomed fruit. A year exceptional to an unparalleled degree in respect to a low rate of interest has been no less exceptional in respect of commercial depression, falling prices, and universal distrust. It is true that contraction has always followed expansion, and that low interest has been the invariable consequence of long continued commercial inflation after the inevitable crash. But the remarkable feature of the late year is the long continuance of this reaction and the apparent hopelessness of the situation. . . . No statistics, no arguments, no imports of gold, no tempting rates of interest for borrowers have the slightest effect."

Low interest rates are now no more effective in bringing about a business revival in the United States than they were in Great Britain in the 1860s or the '90s. In both British instances revival followed after a prolonged depression, but in neither was the low rate of return on money the precipitating cause of the recovery.

Several facts distinguish the British analogies from the present. In the first place, the British debt was not of such proportions as to prejudice full national recovery. And the British debt was well distributed among the people. Our government debt is 13 times as great as England's was. Moreover, it is highly concentrated in the banks which have demand obligations. When business recovers and funds are wanted for business purposes, interest rates will rise and the government bonds must fall. It has been said that a 10 point decline in the price of government bonds would impair the capital of most of the banks. A far greater decline is not unprecedented. In Great Britain the drop in government bonds following the '90s amounted to 40 points.

These considerations have led many people to conclude that the inflation of the currency is inevitable as a result of the huge debt the Roosevelt administration has incurred. It is seen that if the depression continues and the present administration continues in office, or if it is succeeded by another which also believes in spending for prosperity, sooner or later the general public must become aware that printing limitless bonds and giving them to the banks in exchange for deposit credit is not essentially different from printing limitless amounts of currency as Germany did.

And if the present administration is turned out and it is followed by one inspiring business confidence, the government will be obliged to print currency to keep afloat the banks which will suffer devastating losses when interest rates become normal. An administration which put into effect at once a vigorous program of financial reconstruction might yet prevent the chaos which seems inevitable. The program would be based upon a refunding of the debt with the purpose of getting it into the hands of the people as permanent investments and out of the banks where it is used for temporary employment of funds, pending the use of it to finance business revival or to meet the demands of depositors.

The second part of the program would be to balance the budget immediately, so that buyers of bonds could be truthfully told that the deterioration of the public credit had ceased. To sell bonds to the people while the printing presses were kept busy turning out more of them would be an act of dishonesty of which only the more callous governments are guilty.

As there is no prospect for such a plan of financial rehabilitation being put into effect before two years at least, currency inflation now casts a shadow over all plans for the future.

AUTOMOBILES HERE AND ELSEWHERE.
[Milwaukee Journal.]

In 1938 world registrations of automobiles reached a new high. More than 43,297,000 automobiles were in use, 35,000,000 of them passenger cars. And more than 25,000,000 of the passenger cars were in the United States.

We Americans are inclined to feel sorry for ourselves these days, what with the depression persisting and millions still being unemployed, but we still sport 25,000,000 pleasure cars. No other country on earth has as many as 2,000,000 and only four countries have more than 1,000,000. We have one motor vehicle to each four of our population. Only the British dominions even appoach us in that. France and England have one to eighteen; Germany has one to forty-two; Italy one to ninety-three; Russia one to 252; China one to 9,201.

It's something to think about when we feel that the country has slipped irretrievably in the last few years. A country which can go through a period with one out of seven on relief with a car for every four persons surely isn't down and out.

A POWERFUL ANTIDOTE FOR SNAKE VENOM.

SNAKE bites, while not common, occur with sufficient frequency to demand the attention of those who roam the fields, the woods, and the mountains. There are only four poisonous varieties which concern us, namely, the rattlesnake, the copperhead, the moccasin, and the coral snake.

A few years back the popular remedy was whisky, and plenty of it. Although it was accepted gratefully by some patients, we know now that this alleged antidote is of little value. It may do something to combat shock, but nothing toward destroying the poison. As a rule its rôle is harmful. Today the physician can administer a dose of antivenin with a sense of security.

Only a generation has elapsed since the earliest attempts were made to immunize horses against cobra venom and to use serum from these animals. Little more than a dozen years ago a laboratory was established at Sao Paulo, Brazil, for the manufacture of antitoxin, and shortly thereafter the Antivenin Institute of America was founded at Glenolden, Pa.

The composition of venom from various species differs and an effort has been made to prepare an agent which will be effective for all. Horses are injected with alternating and increasing doses of copperhead, rattlesnake, and moccasin poison. After a time the blood will form an antidote which will remain potent if kept under proper conditions. This is marketed in convenient ten cubic centimeter vials.

Whether the attack of a reptile will be serious depends upon many factors. If the fangs pierce a blood vessel, prostration may be as swift as though an intravenous injection of some powerful toxin had been received. In other words, if absorption occurs quickly, great speed will be required to save life. Clothing is a great protection, taking up much of the discharge before it penetrates the skin.

The richer the circulation in the wounded area, the more dangerous the bite. We observe this in farm animals. The legs of horses and cattle swell tremendously, while swine appear to be practically immune. They possess so much fat, poorly supplied with capillaries, that little if any injury ensues.

Symptoms include pain and tingling throughout the entire body; followed by nausea, dizziness, vomiting, numbness of the tongue, and inability to coördinate one's movements. Occasionally there is a pronounced sense of suffocation, accompanied by bleeding from the nose, lungs, stomach, and other mucous surfaces. Intense thirst is complained of and speaking and swallowing are difficult.

The first step in the treatment is to apply a tight bandage about the leg or arm above the wound. This is designed to check the return flow of venous blood toward the heart. Care must be taken, however, not to stop the arterial circulation, as anemia of the extremity may result. The usual practice is to release the tourniquet for thirty to sixty seconds every fifteen or twenty minutes, thus allowing a small portion of the poison to enter the system at a time.

A criscross knife cut, approximately one-quarter of an inch deep, is made through the fang punctures. There is no time for an anesthetic, and many patients assert that the tissues are not sensitive. Suction then is applied, with the lips or a glass tipped rubber bulb. This may be repeated at intervals for half an hour or longer. There is no danger to the one performing this operation if the material is expectorated at once and the mouth washed out, assuming, of course, that the tongue and lips are free from sores or cracks. Shock may be combated with adrenalin and caffeine [strong coffee].

Finally comes the injection of antivenin. It may take some time to locate a doctor and secure the medicine, but supplies are maintained in most large cities, and in reptile infested regions many practicing physicians keep it on hand. The dose may have to be repeated within two hours, and it goes without saying that the patient should be watched critically for several days.

Since our part of the globe lacks the patronage of St. Patrick, we are obliged to prepare ourselves against an emergency and to resort to protective measures.

UNDULANT FEVER.

Mrs. R. C. writes: I have been suffering from chills and fever for three weeks, and after numerous tests am told that I have undulant fever.

1. What could cause it? Milk is ruled out in my case.
2. How long is it likely to last, and what is the best treatment?
3. What precautions can be taken against further attacks?

REPLY.

1. The usual cause is milk, or milk products, from infected cows. Meat is a common source—even handling contaminated carcasses may be responsible for the infection.
2. The duration is indefinite. On the average four to six weeks will be needed for recovery. In some instances the malady persists for many months. Vaccine therapy and, recently, sulfanilamide are most effective.
3. Avoid unpasteurized milk and milk products, and shun contact with diseased animals. If you are obliged to touch fresh meat from an unknown source, protect the hands with rubber gloves.

PROBABLY NO DANGER.

L. B. L. writes: Is there any danger in an office where all the workers use the same telephone? I ask this because one of our employés has just returned to work after a three year absence with tuberculosis of the lungs.

REPLY.

Probably not. The chances are that the patient would not be allowed to return to work unless the disease were arrested. This implies that she is not now a source of tubercle bacilli. In any case, ordinary rules of good hygiene should be observed. The telephone mouthpiece never should be placed against the lips, and should be cleaned frequently with alcohol or a solution of formalin.

COMBATING COLON INFECTIONS.

Anxious writes: What can be done to combat a streptococcic infection within the colon?

REPLY.

Special diets are helpful, particularly those which contain large quantities of lactic acid bacilli [buttermilk]. Sometimes rectal irrigations are of value. The physician also should consider the use of a vaccine or serum. A certain amount of outdoor activity and sunlight is beneficial. Everything that will build resistance should be the objective

EATING CORN OFF THE COB.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—I note that an etiquet authority is giving directions for eating green corn off the cob. Isn't that amazing? To think that there are folks who need instructions for that well known and pleasant all-American custom. Surely no real red, white, and blue American, after 300 years of experience from generation to generation, should need to be told how to eat green corn off the cob.

This teacher of etiquet tells the reader to break the ears up into short lengths, then mince around with them in one hand. Think of that! I dare any one to eat corn off the cob that way daintily, or with comfort and satisfaction. Or even break the ears up gracefully.

Nope, that's not the way to eat green corn off the cob. Here is one way: First, the eater must have a few strong, sharp front teeth and some fairly good back grinders.

Now, with a good sized ear, take a firm hold on each end of it. Place both elbows firmly on the table and go to it. There are two correct ways of going to it. One way is to start at the left end and mow a swath around the cob. Keep mowing swaths until you get to the right hand end. The other way is to mow swaths the long way of the ear from left to right, taking about three or four rows of corn at a swath. Keep up this left to right mowing until all the corn is off. If you are out in company, don't eat more than four ears unless you want to be talked about. If you are at home, make a pig of yourself and eat all you want.

The Indians gave us corn and tobacco. I guess we know how to use both of them. C. AMRINE.

ONE WAY TO AVIATION.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—A TRIBUNE reader asks how a poor boy will ever have a chance to become an aviator. Here is the way: A boy I have known personally came from out of town to Chicago in 1931. He needed only one year to finish his high school, but in order to help his parents off the relief roll he took a job in a factory [hard and tiresome work] and started to attend night school. He was in the night school six years. Before he finished high school he started at the Aeronautical university, Michigan avenue, and finished there in about three years, the last year in day school, as his brothers at that time could help along. Today he holds a position with the Douglas Aeroplane company.

Had it not been for a severe illness, two years before he finished his course, he would have been in the army corps now. He passed the examination at Rantoul field, but Washington turned him down, even if he now is in good health.

Now, your son is able to finish high school without having to support a whole family on a small pay, working hard by day and hurrying to school at night.

The achievement of getting to be an aviator is possible, but only by privation and perseverance. R.

AN EARLY VISIT TO COMEAU.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Your excellent article on Baie Comeau yesterday brings to mind a cool, sunny morning in August, 1936, when all of us on the passenger-freighter Gaspesia crowded the foredeck as our little boat swung into the dark blue water of Comeau bay—the first stop a boat had ever made at the town THE TRIBUNE was carving out of a virgin forestland.

Across the water came a sound perhaps unheard in the rest of the world that year—the rat-tat of drills, the detonation of dynamite, the chatter of welding machines. When our boat docked at the unfinished wharf workmen were busy laying railroad tracks on the rock-fill. As we clambered over the freshly-cut ties our progress was frequently halted by smiling French-Canadian workers, who would hold us back until a blast went off and huge chunks of granite came sliding down the hills. Other workmen strung electric wires between newly-erected poles. On shore the houses were being prepared for wooden siding, and the red steel frame of the gigantic paper mill reared against the sky.

Here, we felt, was human progress. Regardless of what mental despair and warlike preparations might fill the rest of the world civilization was marching ahead in the heart of the Quebec wilderness. STEPHEN G. COHN.

MAN'S FRIENDS, THE SONG BIRDS.

Chicago, Aug. 3. — Some one asked a while back where the robins went in the winter. They, like others of our beautiful song birds, go way down south, where, I understand, the states have no laws to protect them, and are slaughtered in countless thousands.

That is why there are fewer to come back each spring. It seems to me this would be a fine cause for the southern women's clubs to take up and fight for the preservation of the song birds of the nation. This cause is universal. We all love the birds for their priceless beauty and charm and dauntless courage in the face of storms and natural enemies. Man should be their stanch friend for his own sake, if for no other.

A mother wren in the little house in the rose arbor brought to her brood five worms in five minutes. She knew right where they were. A robin rested a moment on her way to the nest, her bill packed with hairy caterpillars.

So with all these friends of man, whether they nest on the ground or in the trees. Unaware, but given a chance to live and multiply, they could solve the insect problem that millions spent for research and spraying can never solve. C. W.

DRINKING FOUNTAINS GONE.

Chicago, July 30.—There used to be many public drinking fountains in and around the loop, where thirsty people could get cool, refreshing water to drink on hot days.

All those fountains are gone. Why? The latest one to disappear was the one at North avenue and Clark street. A red hydrant, where no one can get a drink, replaces it. J. L. H.

ESTATE SETTLEMENT.

Chicago, July 27 [Legal Friend of the People].—My husband died in May, 1938. The estate is about to be settled. My attorney tells me it will not be necessary for me to be present at the closing of the estate. I am 78 years old and not able to get out much. My daughter is one of the heirs of the estate after my death.

1. Could the estate be closed as he said without us being present, and [2] would it be advisable?
3. What takes place at the time of closing the estate?
4. Does the lawyer present his final account to the judge, and [5] who decides what fee the lawyer gets?
6. What is a lawyer's fee for handling an estate?
7. Should he give me a copy of any report he gives the judge?
8. Would you explain this to me? M. C.

1. Yes.
2. Yes, if you are satisfied with the final account and report.
3. The assistant judge checks over the final account and report.
4. Yes.
5. If this has not been agreed upon this would be a reason for the heirs to be represented and to submit the question to the probate judge.
6. It varies in wide limits.
7. There is no law requiring this, but if he refuses then you can refuse to sign an appearance and can insist on an opportunity to examine the court files.
8. Your attorney is in a better position to explain the procedure to you than we are.

DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.

Chicago, July 26 [Legal Friend of the People].—My mother wishes to arrange her affairs so her estate can be disposed of before her death or after without the trouble of probate.

She has a small amount of cash and a small mortgage note for which the local bank acts as agent and also has it recorded in its name. She wants to know whether she can endorse the note and [1] turn it over to me to execute after her death and divide the income with the other heirs. She wishes to save expenses and bother this way.

2. She will put it in writing and outline her wishes in this respect. The note is [3] now under contract, drawn by the bank, on monthly payment and interest.

4. What should she do to fix up this matter? She wishes me to be the executrix of her estate. L. F.

1. If you can get possession of it after her death, then it is possible that no other person would raise any question, but in general probate would be necessary in order to force a third party to give you possession.
2. In general a will is the proper method of making a gift that is not to be effective until after death.
3. This wording is inconsistent with your statement above that it is a mortgage. You leave us uncertain as to whether the deal is in the contract stage or the property has been conveyed to the purchaser and he has given back a purchase mortgage.
4. Employ an attorney for the drafting and execution of the will.

PROPERTY PURCHASE.

Chicago, July 28 [Legal Friend of the People].—Must a person having a vacant lot all paid for [1] get a policy for it, at least some sort of guaranty, as it was explained to me?

2. And is $50 the price of getting one?
3. My real estate broker said that I have to have one before I am able to sell my lot.
4. This because he doesn't sell vacant property now only in connection with the FHA.
5. Before one can build on the lot they must have that policy. Is that true?
6. If so, would I still need it if I trade my lot in for a home, and can it be paid for in small payments or must it be cash? M. R. T.

1. When you wish to sell the purchaser will insist on some showing that your title is good. Presumably it would be just as wise to prepare now.
2. The title might be evidenced by a guaranty policy, Torrens certificate, or abstract. You could get an estimate for the Torrens certificate at the office of the recorder in the County building; estimates for the other two from the title company.
3. Your broker is in a better position to explain matters than we are.
4. We doubt if he assigned this as a reason.
5. What he means is that before you can borrow you must have some evidence of title.
6. Yes.

THREE DISEASES DARKEN STATE'S HEALTH HORIZON

Cancer, Diabetes, Heart Disease Near Record.

Alarming increases in deaths from cancer, diabetes, and heart disease were reported yesterday in a statistical review of recent mortality trends in Illinois compiled and issued by the state department of health. It covers the period between 1925 and 1939 and was released by Dr. A. C. Baxter, director of health.

Despite the increase in deaths from the three diseases the report had many encouraging aspects. The state's birth rate is rising and the death rate falling. Infectious diseases are yielding. Infant and maternal mortality show marked declines. Deaths from tuberculosis reached their lowest point in 1938, which was also notable because only one death from smallpox was reported.

Infant Deaths Decline.

The Illinois statistics, it is believed, indicate national health trends. Of outstanding significance in this connection is the fall in infant mortality. Many observers, the report says, accept infant mortality as an index of prevailing health conditions and the efficacy of public health service. The Illinois rate fell more than one-third in the last ten years, from 64 deaths per 1,000 births in 1927 to 41 in 1938.

In the United States the rate was 71.7 in 1925 and 54.4 in 1937. Only nine other states had a lower infant death rate than Illinois in the latter year.

Heart disease showed the greatest rate of increase among the three major causes of death which are now on the rise in Illinois.

In 1925 there were 13,256 deaths from heart disease, or a rate of 186.9 per 100,000 population. In 1938, 24,810 deaths were reported, or a rate of 313.5.

Greater Longevity a Factor.

"The fact that an increasingly greater proportion of the population reaches the upper age levels, 50 years or more," the report said, "is probably the most important factor in the upward trend of mortality from heart disease. Indeed there were fewer deaths from heart disease among people under 35 years old in 1937 than in 1922—totals of 977 and 1,007, respectively—in spite of a considerable increase in population.

"On the other hand, there were 19,157 deaths among people more than 54 years of age attributed to heart disease in 1937, against 8,401 in 1922. Heart disease is far and away the most common cause of death. From one-fourth to nearly one-third of all deaths in a year are attributed to it. More than two-thirds of these deaths occur among people of 60 years or more, while 60 per cent are among people of 65 and up."

The national heart death rate for 1937 was 286 per 100,000 population. State rates ranged from 124 in Arkansas to 384 in New Hampshire.

Cancer Prevalent After 40.

Cancer, the survey found, is largely a disease of people past 40. It is rare among those under 30. In Illinois, deaths rose from 7,249 in 1925, a rate of 102.2 per 100,000 population, to 10,746 in 1938, a rate of 136.4.

"The mortality rate from cancer has risen steadily," according to the report. "There has been no increase, however, among people under 40. This implies that the rising age level of the population has been an important factor in the mounting death rate. Cancer is probably not much if any more frequent among people past 40 than formerly—there are simply more people in that age bracket and consequently more cancer.

"Mortality from cancer has been climbing steadily in all parts of the United States, although the rate varies widely from state to state. In 1937, for instance, South Carolina reported a death rate of only 51.6 per 100,000, while New Hampshire reported a rate of 151.8, these being the lowest and highest respectively. The rate for 1937 in the United States was 112, having climbed there from 95.9 in 1929."

Diabetes Offers Paradox.

Diabetes deaths in Illinois mounted in Illinois from 1,394 in 1925—a rate of 19.7 per 100,000 population—to 2,175 in 1938—a rate of 27.6. Discussing the disease, the report said:

"Diabetes presents the paradox of being a disease subject, at least theoretically, to almost perfect control and yet responsible for an increasing death rate.

"The trend of diabetes mortality in Illinois has been almost steadily upward for two decades or more, having risen from 16.8 per 100,000 in 1918 to 29.2 in 1936. Since then a slightly lower rate has prevailed. In 1922 insulin was discovered, a substance which if used judiciously along with a modified diet and habits of exercise will keep diabetes under control."

Birth Rate Increases.

The mortality rate from diabetes is considerable higher in Illinois than in the nation at large, where it was 23.7 per 100,000 in 1937.

Although the state birth rate of 15.4 per 1,000 population in 1938 was lower than the 1925 figure of 19.6, a steady increase has been noted since 1933, when the rate reached 13.9 per 1,000 population, the lowest point of the period.

The general death rate in Illinois was 11.5 per 1,000 population in 1925 and 10.7 in 1938. Maternal mortality fell from 5.5 per 1,000 births in 1925 to 3.1 in 1938.

Illinois Death Trends

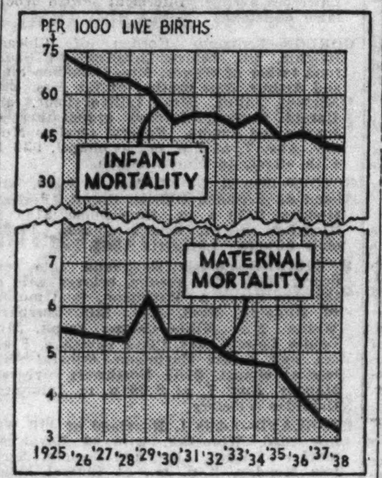
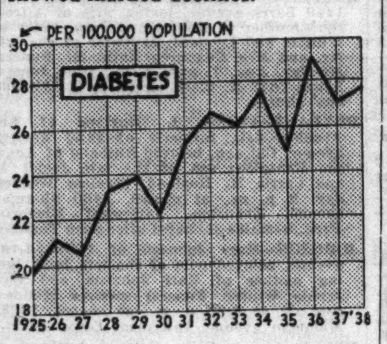
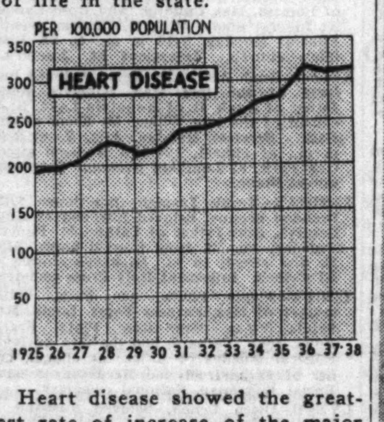
After dropping steadily for eight years, the birth rate in Illinois has been rising since 1933. The general death rate, which has fluctuated several times in the last fourteen years, declined in 1937 and 1938.



Deaths of infants and of mothers showed marked declines.



Diabetes takes an increasing toll of life in the state.



Heart disease showed the greatest rate of increase of the major causes of death.

PAY, PROPOSES PIPER, IN PLOT ON PIGEON PLAGUE

David Offers to Rid Loop of 25,000 Birds.

Just like the Pied Piper of Hamelin, David Raysby popped in yesterday to say he can charm the loop pigeons away. He wants $250 for the job. And remembering the Pied Piper's experience, he wants his money in advance.

David Raysby.

Mr. Raysby left a terse note stating his terms with Assistant Corporation Counsel Ruth Nelson. He suggested that the money be raised by the 107 loop business men who asked the city last Tuesday to get rid of the pigeons. Then he went back to his home at 2556 Marwood street, River Grove, without even hinting how he'd charm the pigeons.

He'd Egg Them Along.

But he told a reporter who found him there last night amid his bees, his goats, his canaries, and his pigeons. He'll charm the pigeons with a delicacy they'll like better than the peanuts that people on the elevated railway stations feed them—hard boiled egg in grain meal. Pigeons will risk double chins for that, he says.

Mr. Raysby estimates there are 25,000 pigeons in the loop. In six months, he says, he can trap all the pigeons while they're making pigs of themselves and take them out to his pigeon cote, if——

Chicagoans will just stop feeding them peanuts.

Pigeons are somewhat lazy, he explains. Much as they may like his dish, he's afraid some of them will remain where the peanuts are plentiful rather than fly a block for something better.

If he gets the job, he said, he'll lure the birds into big wire traps and take them away.

Doubts He Could Board Them.

Mr. Raysby, a pleasant young man of 21, didn't say what he'd do with 25,000 pigeons. He nodded rather glumly when asked if they wouldn't crowd the twenty-four birds he owns. He wasn't so sure, either, that his bees would like them, or his canaries, or his goats.

The Pied Piper only asked, "Is that so?" when reminded that pigeons are tasty and that they bring as much as 10 cents each on the market. He's no pigeon admirer, though.

"Do you know what!" he exclaimed. "Pigeons are bums. I shouldn't be surprised if 2,500 of those loop pigeons are homing pigeons who'd rather live the life of Riley eating free peanuts than earn an honest living carrying messages. They stopped off one day for a peanut and never went back home."

CZECHO-SLOVAKS INVITED TO RITES FOR LEAP VICTIMS

The Czech and Slovak peoples in Chicago were urged yesterday to attend the funeral tomorrow of Mrs. Adele Langer and her two small sons, Karel Tommy and Jan Misha. Their deaths Thursday were blamed indirectly on the Nazi occupation of Czecho-Slovakia.

Mrs. Langer, wife of a Czecho-Slovakian refugee, threw her two sons from a thirteenth story window of the Congress hotel, then followed them in a death leap.

In a message to countrymen in Chicago the Czecho-Slovakian National alliance urged them to meet at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in front of the Bohemian Old People's Home and Orphan asylum to join in the funeral procession into the Bohemian National cemetery.

SOCIETY WOMAN WHO WED LOVE CULTIST IS DEAD

New York, Aug. 5 [Special].—Mrs. Barbara Rutherfurd, whose adoption of the so-called love cult of Oom the Omnipotent and marriage to one of Oom's lieutenants astonished social circles, died today in Cannes, France. She was a daughter of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and her first husband, the late Lewis M. Rutherfurd.

Mrs. Rutherfurd had used the Rutherfurd name after she was divorced by Winfield J. Nichols in 1930. Nicholls, the cultist who married her in 1924, tried to have the marriage annulled in 1928, saying his wife was insane when he married her. He won a Reno divorce in 1930.

Mrs. Rutherfurd was married to Cyril Hatch, sportsman and clubman, in 1916. A Paris divorce was granted in 1921.

FAIR WILL SHOW CROWN POINT IS A BEAUTY SPOT

Garden Clubs to Set Up Elaborate Displays.

The notoriety of Crown Point, Ind., as a former Gretna Green is a familiar story, but beyond the shadows of courthouse square there spreads another side of the city which townspeople like to believe is the garden spot of Indiana.

For too long, Crown Point's landscaped beauty has been taken for granted, the local garden club believes. Now it has set out to advertise an event that usually is unheralded outside the county.

The event is the annual county fair, to be held Aug. 15 to 19, in the Fine Arts building, a mile southwest of Crown Point. The exposition, in its 79th year, has lost none of the rural flavor that is homespun Indiana.

Proud of Rural Beauty.

"Crown Point is proud of her floral beauty," said Mayor W. Vincent Youkey. "We are just waking up to the fact that we've got the most beautiful city in the middle west. And to advertise that fact we've created a planning commission.

"Our population [now about 5,000] has grown over a thousand since the last census. People from the crowded industrial section of the county are finding Crown Point the most desirable residential place they could choose.

Courthouse square, framing an ancient building with catacombed basement archives, is typically American. Beyond the stores that front the square is a transition from urbanity to quiet, peaceful homesteads that nestle beneath maple and elm trees

Gardening Is Town Hobby.

Many of these homesteads are landmarks. They have been buffeted by time and the elements, have been repaired or added to, but for the most part are still occupied by descendants of the pioneers who built them.

"Gardening is a hobby in Crown Point," said Mrs. Joseph E. Brown, president of the garden club. "Every yard is rich with carefully trimmed shrubbery, vines, trees, cultured flowers, rock and bog gardens.

"Our privilege in contributing lilacs to THE TRIBUNE's annual shut-in campaign last spring really awakened our civic pride and demonstrated to our own amazement that we have an abundance of flowers."

As they did at the depot on lilac day last spring, Crown Point garden enthusiasts are expected to come to the county fair with myriad offerings of the town's plants—dahlias, sweet briar roses, peonies, geraniums, gladioli.

Hammond, Gary, and Lowell garden clubs will coöperate in a period garden display. Seven water colored facades will depict period homesteads, dating from early Lake county cabin days to the modern era of architecture.

3D WIFE JAILS ELECTRICIAN ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Raymond Clapper, an electrician, was arrested yesterday in Woodstock on a charge of bigamy and was locked up last night in the Central police station. Police said he was married and divorced twice and married a third time bigamously.

Raymond Clapper.

The bigamy warant was sworn out by his third wife, the former Ella Marcinkiewicz, 5521 Drexel avenue. Her lawyer, Clarence W. Shaver, said Clapper's matrimonial ventures began in 1928 when he married a woman whose first name—Marie—only is known. She divorced him in 1933.

In February, 1934, Clapper married his second wife, Emily Mulcarek of 6151 South Sacramento avenue. In February, 1937, Clapper allegedly married Miss Marcinkiewicz, while still married to Emily. Emily obtained a divorce in March, 1938, at which time Ella, not knowing Clapper already was married, also had started divorce proceedings.

Clapper said his alleged bigamous marriage to Miss Marcinkiewicz was a mistake, because he believed he already had been divorced by Emily.

Jap Plane Dives Into Sea; American NavyAids Rescue

TSINGTAO, China, Aug. 5 [U. P.].—A Japanese naval plane dived into the sea on Thursday and its crew was rescued with the aid of the American navy, it was learned today. Launches from the warships Marblehead, Canopus, and Pigeon raced to the scene and helped the Japanese.

3,000 MORE WPA WORKERS TO GET DISMISSAL SLIPS

Go Out Tomorrow to Men on Rolls 18 Mos.

Notices of dismissal from rolls of the Works Projects administration will be mailed tomorrow to 3,000 persons in Illinois, Charles E. Miner, state WPA administrator, said yesterday. This action will be in accordance with final action by congress on the 1939 relief act whereby all WPA workers on the rolls eighteen months must be laid off.

Notices were sent previously to 4,000 such workers, but their dismissal was ordered delayed last week pending final action by congress.

In Effect Wednesday.

Miner said yesterday these 4,000 dismissals and the 3,000 new dismissals will go into effect Wednesday. Altogether 54,000 of the 166,000 WPA workers in Illinois will be laid off under the act.

Miner said he is holding up the notices until tomorrow pending official orders from the Washington WPA offices.

There are now 183,000 workers either on WPA or certified by the Illinois emergency relief commission as in need and eligible for jobs. With the dismissal of 54,000 workers, 129,000 will remain eligible for work in Illinois.

Expect to Hire More.

Miner said the September WPA work quota for Illinois will permit employment of 141,500 persons. As a result, 12,500 more men will be needed. Last month Miner requested the IERC to resume certification of relief clients for WPA work. He said he hopes to be able to draw from those lists in September.

Miner also announced that the reduction in WPA state administrative rolls, started Thursday, has now been completed. He said 320 persons have been laid off and that the state administrative costs have been reduced from $202,000 to $153,000 per month.

LOYOLA U. GRADS TOLD KNOWLEGE IS WORLD'S CURE

Seventy-five graduates received degrees yesterday at Loyola university. The annual summer convocation was conducted in St. Ignatius auditorium, where an address was made by the Rev. Stewart E. Dollard, S. J., of West Baden college.

"In politics, ignorance is at the root of most wrongs today," said the Rev. Mr. Dollard. "In dictatorships, people are ignorant of where they are being led and often the dictator himself is ignorant of the direction he takes. In communistic society, theoretically at least, the sovereign power should be the will of the masses, but they are doomed to failure because the masses are ignorant of statemanship."

Knowledge and wisdom are the only remedies for these ills, he said.

TESTIFIES MATE TOSSED HER OUT OF CAR; DIVORCED

Mrs. Daryl Marsh Turner won an uncontested divorce yesterday from Foster Turner. Mrs. Turner, who is 26 years old, is the daughter of Pearce Marsh of the interstate commerce commission staff. She told Judge Joseph Sabath her husband threw her out of their car because she said he had been drinking, that he twisted her arm on another occasion, and that on July 22 he threw a flower pot at her in the home of her parents at 4940 East End avenue, where she is living. Mrs. Turner was represented by Henry E. Ayers, attorney. The Turners were married in 1935. Turner, an accountant living at the Southmoor hotel, is the former husband of Janet Good Turner.

WOMAN ROBBED OF PURSE.

Mrs. Irene Tieman, 5470 Greenwood avenue, a clothing store employé, was robbed of her purse containing her pay check for $24 last night by a Negro as she approached her home.

Use Little Gasoline

Riding homemade motor scooters, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holtz of Rudd, Ia., arrived yesterday for a visit with his brother and her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Holtz of 262 South Clifton avenue, Elgin. The visitors used seven gallons of gasoline on their 340 mile journey. Mrs. Holtz's scooter has three wheels because her husband was afraid she'd have trouble balancing a two wheel model like his own. She's glad now; the three wheel model has some extra room so that she can carry a radio set.

RAVINIA THRONG HAILS RODZINSKI AND ORCHESTRA

Crispness and Clarity Mark Direction.

BY CECIL SMITH.

A throng poured through the gates of Ravinia park last evening intent upon hearing Artur Rodzinski conduct the Chicago Symphony orchestra in the season's penultimate concert. Parking facilities were all but taxed to capacity, and the audience in the free area outside the pavilion looked every bit as large as that at last week's gala concert.

Mr. Rodzinski opened the program with an eighteenth century Concerto Grosso by Vivaldi, rescored by Alexander Siloti in a fuller sonority than the composer ever dreamed of. The visiting conductor directed the music with crispness, clarity, and simplicity.

Sibelius Work Is Climax.

The first half of the concert reached its climax with the Fifth Symphony of Sibelius, a work not heard at Ravinia since Sir Ernest MacMillan conducted it at the opening symphony program of the 1937 season. This symphony is the most dramatic, not to say the most theatrical, of all the Finnish composer's seven essays in symphonic form.

When the stringed instruments are not trembling excitedly they are likely to plucking away in portentous pizzicati. The brasses declaim broad motives almost as bombastic as those of Bruckner, and the woodwinds insert biting, dissonant comments.

Orchestra Players on Toes.

With so virile and so exciting a score at his command, Mr. Rodzinski was in his element. His dynamic, driving force and his fiery zeal kept all the orchestra players on their toes. The performance was magnificent—so magnificent, indeed, as to reveal a hollowness in the music that we had not quite suspected was there.

A brace of excerpts of the four music dramas of Wagner's "Ring" constituted the post-intermission half of the program.

The Ravinia festival ends tomorrow afternoon. "Chmiel," a Polish dance by Wiechowicz, has been withdrawn by Dr. Rodzinski, and Debussy's prelude to "The Afternoon of a Faun" and Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" have been substituted.

GALENA'S SHIPS COME IN AFTER A CENTURY WAIT

River Reopened; Town Celebrates.

Galena, Ill., Aug. 5 [Special.].—The stream that brought world commerce to Galena about a century ago when it was a boom town far bigger than Chicago, is again open to trafic. After years of disuse, the Galena river is sufficiently navigable to permit pleasure boats to come up from the Mississippi.

Arrow locates dam No. 12, closing of which has restored navigation on Galena river.

In celebration of its revival, tomorrow has been proclaimed Galena River day. Under the sponsorship of the Galena Lions club a historical pageant will be presented on the water.

The restoration of the river to a semblance of its old glory resulted from the closing of dam No. 12 on the Mississippi at Bellevue, Ia. The confluence of the Mississippi and the Galena rivers is only four miles from here.

Cabin Cruisers Ply Stream.

The smaller stream had filled up with silt until it was difficult even to paddle a canoe over its surface. After the dam was closed the river climbed to a stage that permits even cabin cruisers from Dubuque, Ia., to come here.

It is now possible to come here by boat from Chicago, 164 miles away, by way of the Illinois canal, the Mississippi river, and the restored stream.

The trip up the narrow, winding Galena river is one of beauty. After passing through the old Galena locks, through which big packets once passed, the four mile route to Galena is lined with historical sites. From the river can be seen numerous Indian mounds and the Marine hospital built here by the federal government during the civil war. Boats may dock at the foot of the hill near beautiful Grant park, a picnic spot within a stone's throw of the Grant Memorial Home.

A Town With a Past.

Galena, nestling against steep hills, is the oldest city of northern Illinois. In 1826, while Chicago was a swamp village, Galena swarmed with miners, gamblers, traders, rivermen, and trappers. Just before the civil war railroads diverted its river trafic, foreign competition killed its lead and zinc enterprises, and the Galena river became unnavigable. Today the town has only 2,878 inhabitants.

One of the midwest's earliest boom towns, by the late 1840s Galena was the wealthiest city in Illinois. It was a city of 10,000 when Chicago was still called Fort Dearborn. Most of the craft that plied the Mississippi river then were built here.

Incorporated as a city 112 years ago, it was a terminal of the first railroad in Illinois, the Galena-Chicago road.

As the first center of a great mining rush, the community was America's first Klondike. Valuable lead mines were discovered in the hills around Galena by French adventurers nearly 300 years ago.

1,000 Attend Polish Legion Session in North Chicago

More than 1,000 persons attended the opening sessions yesterday in North Chicago of the tenth annual convention of the Polish Legion of American Veterans. The convention will end today with a parade and a meeting in Foss park, Sheridan road and 17th street. Speakers will include Edward Clamage, state commander of the American Legion; Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to Poland; County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, and Circuit Judge Ralph Dady of Lake county.

ARMY COMMAND MOVES DESKS TO NEW QUARTERS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—The war department high command today moved out of the 50 year old State, War and Navy building, vacating offices in favor of the budget bureau and the new presidential assistants.

After more than a half century in the highly decorated granite structure across the street from the White House, heads of the army moved to new quarters in the Munitions building, half a mile away. They will occupy offices there until a new war department building is constructed.

THE distribution of free anti-syphilitic drugs and chemicals to all physicians, clinics and other medical agencies treating syphilis was instituted by the United States Public Health Service in co-operation with State and City Health Departments. Its purpose was to establish a control over venereal diseases by making good treatment available to more people throughout the period necessary to affect a cure. It also makes possible further reductions in the cost of treatment, especially to those who could and would rather pay a nominal fee. A UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE, which is operated by Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz and Medical Associates, is taking full advantage of every opportunity to co-operate fully with the nation's "Syphilis Control Program." It was Dr. Berkowitz who in 1920 originated and put into operation the country's first low cost medical effort to control the spread of syphilis and gonorrhea in Chicago. Competent medical care is assured . . . for among the physicians who comprise the staff of a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE are men who were associated with him in that original effort. Their years of training and experience in this highly specialized field of medicine are available to you through fees which are perhaps the lowest ever offered to the public. There are other advantages too. Here at a United Medical Service syphilis and gonorrhea are treated in strict privacy under conditions that do not call attention to these ailments. Infected persons need not divulge the fact to their friends, business associates or employers, if they do not wish to do so. With many different kinds of diseases diagnosed and treated, no one but the attending physicians know the exact nature of any ailment under treatment. As a result fear of discovery, subsequent embarrassment or loss of position is practically eliminated.

Syphilis is still a grave menace to the nation's health, for notwithstanding present activities, health authorities declare there are still almost 7,000,000 persons in this country who have syphilis . . . and that over 500,000 new cases sought medical care last year . . . and that 60,000 babies are born with it yearly. Early diagnosis and proper treatment are of the utmost importance in new cases . . . and persistent treatment and observation in all old cases. The dreadful consequences of these diseases can be avoided . . . for syphilis can be cured.

Nervous, Ankles Swollen, Backache, Kidneys Strained?

If you're feeling out o' sorts, Get Up Nights, or suffer from Dizziness, Nervousness, Backache, Leg Pains, Swollen Ankles, Burning Passages, Excess Acidity, or Loss of Energy and feel old before your time, non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles may be the true cause.

Wrong foods and drinks, worry, colds or overwork may create an excess of acids and place a heavy strain on your kidneys so that they function poorly and need help to properly purify your blood and maintain health and energy.

Help Kidneys Doctor's Way

Many Doctors have discovered by scientific clinical tests and in actual practice that in many cases the best way to help the Kidneys clean out excess poisons and acids is with a scientifically prepared prescription called Cystex. Hundreds and hundreds of Doctors' records prove this. All Cystex active ingredients are listed on each package.

Money Back Guarantee

Often the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping your Kidneys flush out Excess Acids. This action plus the palliative work of Cystex in many non-organic and non-systemic cases of Kidney and Bladder troubles may easily make you feel like a new person in just a few days. Try Cystex under the guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfied. Cystex (Siss-tex) costs only 3c a dose at druggists and the guarantee protects you so start your test today.

MIDYEAR DEBTS OF COUNTY UNITS CUT 25 MILLION

Credit Is Given Better Tax Collections.

Debts of the six major governments in Cook county were reduced approximately 25 million dollars in the year ended June 30, an analysis of midyear financial statements showed yesterday. The six governments are the city, school board, park district, sanitary district, county and forest preserve district.

Each of the governments decreased its total obligations for the year. The general reduction was a reflection of the gradual increase in tax collections which made possible the retirement of outstanding bonds and tax warants. The largest cut was made by the school board which reduced its debts more than 10 per cent.

The six county governments on June 30 owed a total of $477,438,710, compared with $502,011,703 a year earlier. The aggregate of bonded indebtedness and of tax warants was reduced, but floating debts increased more than a million dollars.

The net bonded debt of all the governments was reduced by 23 millions to $368,242,428 on June 30. Net bonded debt means bonds outstanding plus accrued interest minus the amount held in sinking funds for retirement of the bonds.

The increase in floating debts was largely incurred by the city of Chicago. Its unpaid bills and pay rolls rose more than $900,000 in the year, and judgments against it increased more than $600,000.

In the second quarter of this year debts of the six governments were cut more than 31 millions from the total of $509,127,000 on March 31. This was mainly the result of a rush to pay tax bills before the June 1 penalty date. That was the deadline for 1938 personal property taxes and the first instalment of real estate taxes.

Comparison of Debts.

The following tabulation compares total debts of each of the six governments on June 30, 1939, with their debts a year earlier:

TOTAL DEBTS.

	June 30, 1939.	June 30, 1938.
City	$152,308,574	$159,262,688

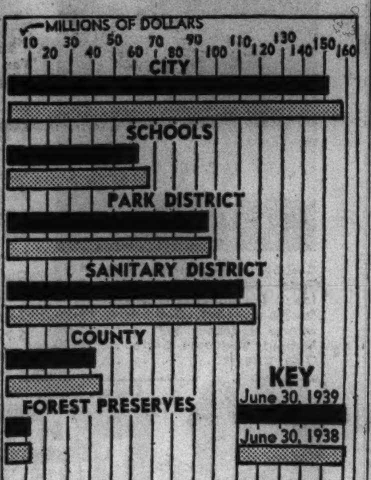
County Debt Reduced

(Story in adjoining column.)



Bars represent the total debts of the six major governments in Cook county on June 30 this year, compared with the total debts on June 30 last year. The total reduction is about $25,000,000.

PENSION BOOST UPSET BLAMED ON DEMOCRATS

Horner Misguided on Veto, Says G. O. P.

Republican members of the state legislature said yesterday that Illinois Democrats must suffer the political consequences for fumbling a bill passed at Springfield to raise maximum old age assistance from $30 to $40 a month.

Gov. Horner vetoed the measure Thursday after he was misinformed by United States Senator James M. Slattery that congress would not provide federal matching funds to meet the $40 figure. Less than twenty-four hours after Slattery's report to the governor congress did pass a bill increasing the maximum federal share of pension payments from $15 to $20.

Passed by Big Majority.

In his veto message, Horner said that he would have permitted the bill to become law had he believed the federal government would increase its share of the costs. The bill passed almost unanimously by both houses of the general assembly, with almost every Democrat voting for it.

State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, prominent Republican leader in the house, asserted that the incident illustrates the need for a better informed Illinois delegation in congress.

"As a result of this blunder Illinois won't share in the increased federal payments toward which it contributes so heavily in taxes," he said. "The lack of teamwork among the Democratic leaders was astounding."

The senior woman member of the house, Representative Lottie Holman O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], said the pensioners will find it difficult to understand why they can't get the higher maximum payments.

"Many of them told me how glad they were that the bill was passed," Mrs. O'Neill said. "It will be small satisfaction to them to hear me explain how it was vetoed because of an inexcusable mistake by the Democrats."

Questions Democrat Sincerity.

Among others taking this view was Representative Lew Wallace [R., Mattoon], another member of the house committee on public welfare which introduced the $40 bill at Springfield.

"The mishandling of the bill shows that the Democrats could not have been entirely sincere in their expressed concern for the aged," he said.

Democrats in the state legislature had lititle comment.

"The legislature did what it could by passing the bill," said Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago], majority leader of the state senate. "If Gov. Horner calls a special session of the legislature on relief this year, the $40 a month maximum award should be included in his call."

Because payments would continue to be made on the basis of individual need, the additional cost to the state if the bill had become law is estimated at less than $1,000,000 a year. The appropriation for the two year period which began July 1 is $52,000,000.

Pre-Consolidation Furniture Clearance

We have purchased the leasehold and furniture inventory of the Scholle Furniture Co. Our two sales forces are being combined and we aim to run in our new location a store that will combine the best features of both these famous old houses. Almost half of the combined stocks must be eliminated . . . and at the same time August Sales Selection maintained.

Never perhaps in the history of Chicago has such an occasion arisen. It's impossible to offer all the bargains at once, and many of them cannot be duplicated. So, when you find what you want . . . buy at once. And remember: Further reductions are being made and new things coming over from Scholle's daily.

Two of America's Largest Fine Furniture Stocks Must be Cut in Half.

The First Great Clearance Approaches Its Climax.

These are a few typical bargains from the hundreds. Many are necessarily one-of-a-kind.

LAYDEN KEEPS LEAD IN ALL-STAR COACHES POLL

VOTES POUR IN AS BALLOTING DRAWS TO CLOSE

Stuhldreher Second on Total Points.

BY ARCH WARD.

Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, who took the lead in the coast to coast coaches' poll a few days after the voting started, was still in front when the contest ended last night.

The fans' work is through. The job of determining the personnel of the staff of gridiron leaders who will handle the All Stars for their game with the New York Giants Aug. 30 is up to the boys in the counting room.

Judging from the avalanche of votes that descended upon THE TRIBUNE and 334 associated newspapers and radio stations yesterday, it will take another day or two to decide the winners. Hundreds of thousands of ballots poured into this department before the polls closed at midnight last night. Reports from all sections of the country indicated the vote was proportionately heavy elsewhere.

Layden Appears Winner.

It appeared almost a certainty at a late hour last night that Layden had won the poll. He had 3,354,098 points. His nearest rival was a former teammate, Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, who led the Big Ten division with 1,633,527. Stuhldreher's margin wasn't large enough to guarantee him a place on the coaching board. Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern and Mal Elward of Purdue were close behind.

Carl Snavely of Cornell has a comfortable lead in the eastern area, although his margin over Jimmy Crowley of Fordham was reduced by the great number of second place votes Crowley received in Wisconsin, his home state. Maj. Bob Neyland of Tennessee is a sure winner in the south. He has an overwhelming lead of nearly 750,000 points. Edward Madigan of St. Mary's has moved to the front in the far western division, which has been a three way race from the start among Madigan, Tiny Thornhill of Stanford and Buck Shaw of Santa Clara.

The coach with the greatest number of total points will have charge of the squad. His assistants will be the winners in each of the other sections.

Coaches Will Go on Air.

The five coaches who will comprise the board will appear on a coast to coast radio program over the Mutual Broadcasting system Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock Chicago time. The program will originate in the studio of W-G-N and will shift to the east, south, far west and back to the middle west.

All votes from outlying newspapers and radio stations must be reported to THE TRIBUNE by noon tomorrow.

The Wisconsin State Journal at Madison turned in 46,401 first place votes yesterday for Stuhldreher. The Janesville Gazette added 6,458. The Chippewa Falls Herald-Telegram, which collected votes from a wide area, reported 63,243. The Oshkosh Northwestern filed 2,136. These and several other Wisconsin voting centers predicted their final reports would comprise the heaviest last day's return in the history of the All Star game.

Layden Scoring Heavily.

Layden was scoring heavily all over the country in yesterday's reports, but Detroit's 65,492 first place votes led the parade. Elward of Purdue was second choice. The Notre Dame and Purdue clubs of Detroit, supported by Station WJR, sponsored the drive for Layden and Elward.

The Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph turned in 11,109 votes for Layden and the Gary Post Tribune rolled up 10,582. Elward got 1,631 firsts in Gary and 10,582 second place votes. The South Bend Tribune added 18,499

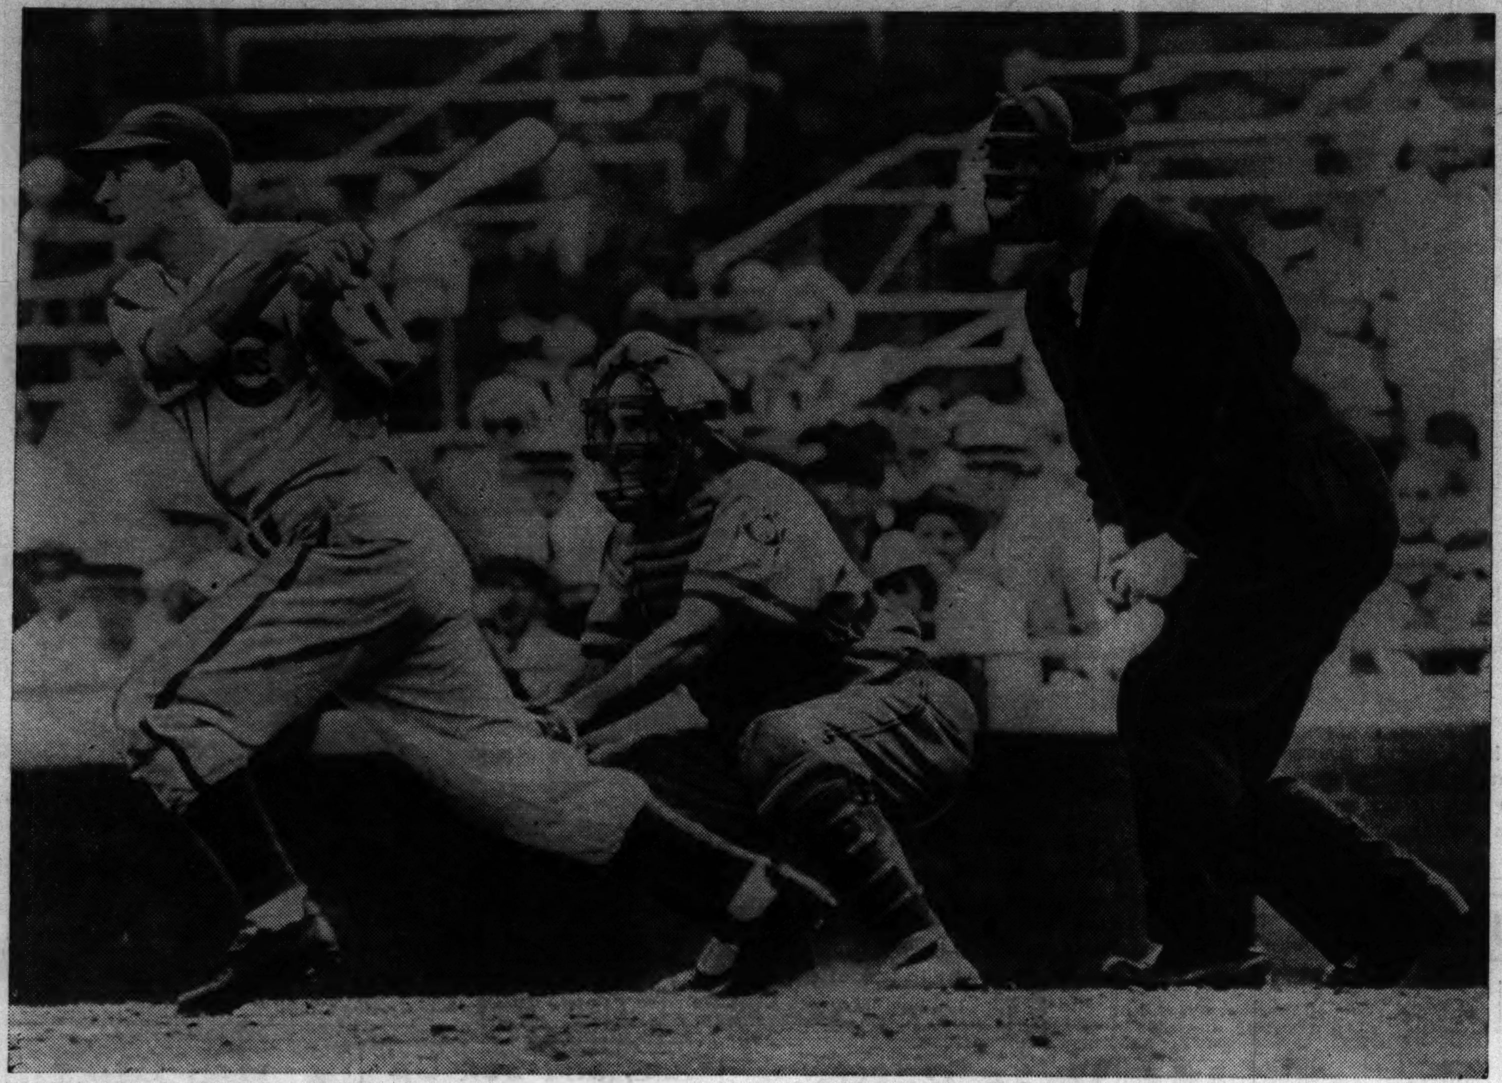
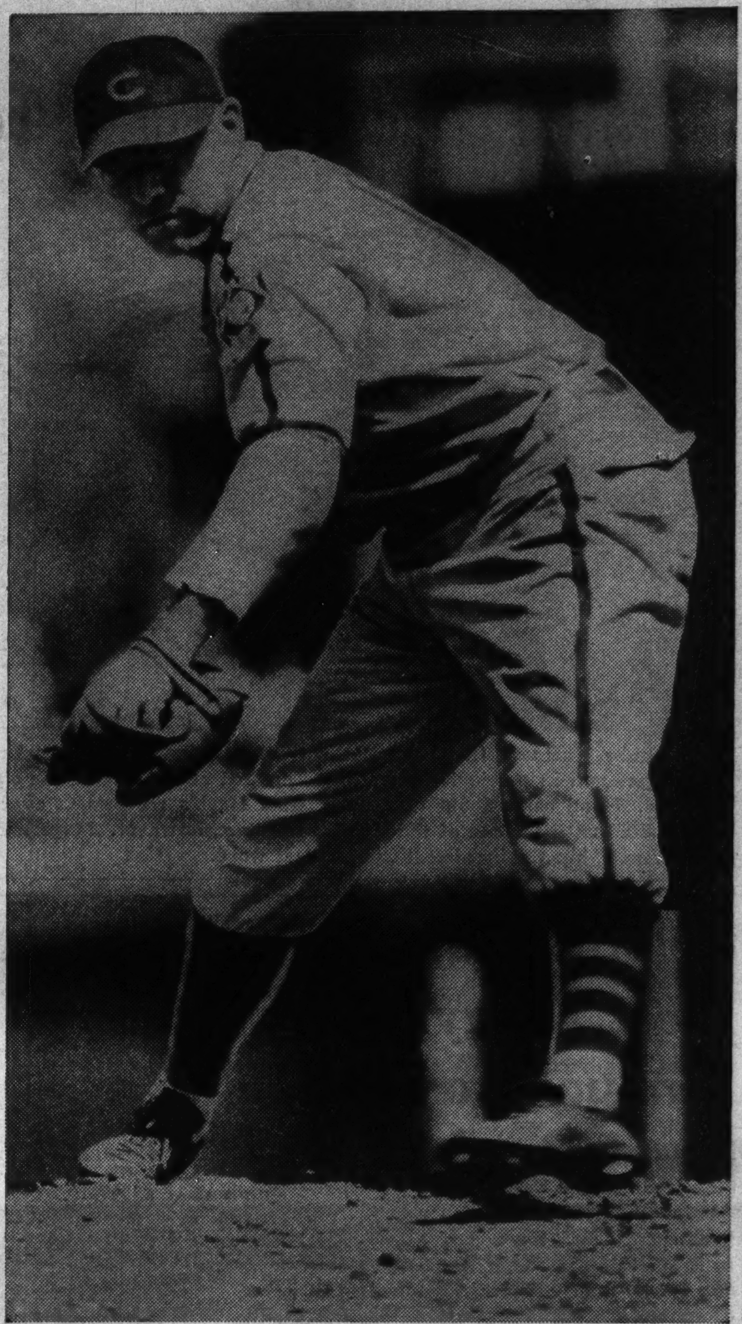
ROOKIES HELP CHARLEY ROOT TAKE A CLOSE ONE



Bobby Mattick, Cubs' new shortstop obtained from Milwaukee, smacks a double in the fifth inning of yesterday's game with the Bees. It was the first time in the game a Cub had progressed that far, but there he stayed. The Cubs, however, won the game, 3 to 2. Al Lopez is the catcher. The umpire is George Magerkurth. [TRIBUNE Photo.]



Nine innings of toil bring 40 year old Charley Root a well deserved victory. Root yielded the Bees only four hits and struck out five yesterday.

NICHOLSON WINS FOR ROOT WITH SINGLE IN EIGHTH

Umpire Ousts Hack and Hartnett.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Bill Nicholson, the newest member of the Cub ensemble, proved of great aid yesterday to the 40 years old Charles Root, dean of the mound staff. The freshman from Chattanooga shattered a tie with an eighth inning single to clinch a 3 to 2 struggle, which was enlivened by the summary dismissal from the arena of Manager Gabby Hartnett and Stanley Hack, whose language grated on the ears of Umpire in Chief George Magerkurth. A called third strike on the Cub third baseman was the cause of it all.

The venerable Root, properly supported by his fielders most of the time, held the Bees to four hits and sprinkled five strikeouts through his fifth victory of the season. Two of this skimpy total of safeties were paired in the sixth to fashion the enemy's only runs of the afternoon. But with the Bees in front, Root switched his talents from those of a defender to an attacker. He ripped loose with a double in the same inning and the blow led him back into a tie, from which he eventually was extricated by Nicholson.

Umpire Goes to Work.

The strike Hack resented ended the seventh inning but he confined himself to glowering until Boston's eighth was completed. Then he dispatched a verbal message to Magerkurth and the latter promptly pointed to the dog house. Manager Hartnett went to the plate to assure Magerkurth he was mistaken, Hack all the time barking over the umpire's shoulder. Gabby overstayed the limit, so he was included in the march to the clubhouse. It was Gabby's first ouster since he became boss. The banishment of Hack meant that Dick Bartell had to play third, but he had no fielding chances.

The winning surge in the eighth against Lefty Joe Sullivan was successfully launched by Billy Herman, who bunted. He beat out the tap and was sacrificed to second by Carl Reynolds. Hank Leiber was purposely passed to bring up Nicholson and the kid, who hadn't looked very impressive against southpaws, was burdened with two strikes before he boomed a single into center. Herman scored the winning run and Leiber went to third. Hank tried to score on Glen Russell's fly and was nailed at the plate, but one run proved sufficient for Root, who didn't yield a hit after the sixth.

Charley Remains Calm.

The pleasure of making the first hit of the game fell to Simmons, who singled to right with one gone in the opening inning, but Root wasn't annoyed much by the next two batters. He fanned both. Reynolds was the first Cub to cash in on Sullivan. He singled to left with two out in the home half for the only Cub hit in the first three innings. Only one other Cub reached base during this stretch. Mancuso walked to start the third, but in attempting to sacrifice Root missed the ball and Gus was out on his way to second.

Sullivan broke loose as a hitter in the third. He singled to center with one out but made no headway. The Bees had another man on base in the fourth but this was due to a slight bobble of a grounder by Bobby Mattick. The Cubs' portion of the inning was marked by Reynolds' second single. There was only one out, but Leiber fanned and Reynolds was doubled trying to steal second. The fifth was noteworthy because it marked the initial appearance of a

Joe Schenck, Viscounty Win $2,500 Races

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Emerson F. Woodward's Viscounty, coming from last place under Nunzio Pariso's judicious rating, won the Sheridan handicap yesterday at Washington Park, beating C. E. Hagyard's Rude Awakening by a length, while Morris Vehon's Smart Trick was taking third place, a neck back.

Half an hour earlier Herbert M. Woolf's Joe Schenck had won the Chicago handicap, the other $2,500 stake on the afternoon's program. Going to the front at the head of the stretch and withstanding a sustained drive, he beat John Marsch's Lightspur by a head. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Prairie Dog was five lengths back in third place.

Both horses won in brilliant time, Viscounty running the mile and seventy yards in 1:41, which was only a fifth of a second slower than the track record, and Joe Schenck covering the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5, the fastest three-quarter mile race of the meeting.

Both Winners Are Favorites.

Both were favorites, Viscounty paying $6.40, $4.20, and $3.40, and Joe Schenck returning $5.20, $2.80, and $2.40.

A crowd of 25,000 bet $547,136 on the eight race program, last year's handle on the first Saturday having been $473,015. They cast 57,602 ballots in the handicapping contest, $5,000 being at stake. The candidate picking the most winners in the first seven races will get the prize. The tabulation will be completed today.

Yesterday's victory was the first for Viscounty since he beat Technician in the Derby trial at Churchill Downs. After running fourth in the Kentucky Derby he was given a vacation and then shipped out to California for an attempt at the Hollywood Derby. He was unsuccessful.

Longshot Players Get Thrill.

Viscounty lined up with eight rivals in the Sheridan. C. H. Cleary's Calexico was second choice in the betting at 3 to 1, Dixiana's Star Boarder being held at 9 to 2, while Smart Trick

BUDD RALLIES AFTER POOR START; DEFEATS BONE FOR CITY TITLE, 4-2

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chunky Gene Budd, who sells insurance when he isn't pounding a golf ball, yesterday won the thirty-fifth city amateur golf championship, grandpappy of all local competition, by defeating Bob Bone, 4 and 2, in the 36 hole final match in Jackson park.

The 27 year old Budd, who registers from the Lake Hills Golf and Country club of St. John's Ind., proved by his victory that it is possible to win, or at least share in, the qualifying medal, and then go on to win the championship. There was a suspicion all through the week that Gene's consistent golf, following Monday's medal play 70, would carry him far.

Yesterday, Budd bore out that hunch by coming back from a three hole deficit on the fourth tee to shoot the 34 holes of the match in five over par. He was one up on his lean rival at the ninth and eighteenth, and three to the good on the 28th tee. He had a 72, two over par, at the noon day intermission, against Bone's 75.

Bone Hangs on Grimly.

Bone, who was master of events for the tournament and who was playing in his 22d city tournament in the last twenty-four years, put on a good show. The 45 year old steel inspector, who had never gone beyond the quarter finals in his preceding appearances, never let Budd get too far away from him, which is proven by the fact that he carried the match to the 34th green when another golfer might have gone out four or five holes back, in the face of Budd's steady play. The morning cards:

Par out	444	443	434—34
Par in	444	355	434—36—70
Budd out	555	453	324—36
Bone out	444	553	536—39
Budd leads, 1 up.
Budd in	444	363	453—36—72
Bone in	354	354	543—36—75
Budd leads, 1 up.

The afternoon cards:

Budd, out	454	443	435—36
Bone, out	555	354	335—38
Budd leads, 3 up.
Budd, in	453	454	4
Budd wins, 4 and 2.

Budd found himself 3 down on the fourth tee. Both took three shots to reach the first green, but Bone holed an eleven foot putt for a winning par. Gene then was in the rough at the second and missed the third green. Bone surrendered a hole by three-putting the fourth. Budd then buckled down and won three holes in a row, two with birdies and another with a par, for a 1 up advantage, and then brought down a deuce on the short eighth with a fifteen footer. He won the ninth with a par.

Budd Regains Lead.

Budd hit a tree at the tenth, and his par wasn't enough to beat Bone's six foot birdie putt. Both were bunkered on the eleventh, but Budd dropped a six footer for a par that won, and sent him 1 up again. It was even again after the fourteenth, where Gene missed the green with his third shot, but he came back with an eagle at the 475 yard fifteenth, holing a twenty-five foot putt after getting on in two.

Bone found the rough in the sixteenth, but Budd returned that to him on the seventeenth, where he was over the green. Each birdied the eighteenth, Bob holing one from ten feet, while Budd's chip was less than a yard from the cup.

The nineteenth hole appeared to be a half in bogey fives. the way it began, but Budd won it. Gene was wide of the green with his second, and 25 feet short of the pin on his pitch, while Bob, trapped on his drive, had a fine out and put his third five feet from the pin. Budd then holed out for a winning par, while Bone missed his putt.

Bone was three down after the 21st, which he three putted, but regained that with a 16 foot birdie putt on the next green. Then the Jackson park golfer three putted the next two holes and sank a 40 footer on the 25th. Budd yielded one at the 29th by three putting, but retrieved that immediately by holing a 7 footer for a bird on the 30th. Both three putted the short 31st, and the rest were halved until the 34th, where Bone's second spilled into a trap and he failed to get it out with his next.

Three Aces

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—Three women golfers sank holes in one today while practicing for the Women's Western Golf tournament, which opens Monday. Edith Estabrooks, 18 year old Dubuque, Ia., star, sank her tee shot on the 136 yard thirteenth. The same hole was aced by Dorothy Foster of Springfield, Ill., who followed Miss Estabrooks around a few minutes later with Ellamae Williams of Chicago. Not to be outdone, Miss Williams, Illinois champion, sank her drive on the 195 yard seventeenth.

Reds Pay Blues $40,000 to Get V. DiMaggio

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 5 [U. P.].—The Kansas City Blues of the American association tonight sold Vince DiMaggio, leading American association home run hitter, to the Cincinnati Reds of the National league for approximately $40,000 in cash and two players, to be selected later.

DiMaggio, brother of Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees, will remain with the Blues until the close of the 1939 season and will join the Reds next year in spring training.

DiMaggio was sent down from the Boston Bees last season, because of a batting fault. He set a new National league record by striking out 134 times. Manager Bill Meyer of Kansas City, who corrected Vince's batting stance, said DiMaggio still had a hitch which caused him to miss inside pitches, but believes that it can be remedied.

The outfielder, oldest of the three DiMaggio brothers, has hit 38 home runs this season and is leading the league with runs batted in with 110.

Phillies Buy Hafey from Reds for Waiver Price

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP)—The Phillies today bought Daniel [Bud] Hafey, rookie outfielder, from the Cincinnati Reds for the walver price of $7,500. In addition, President Gerry Nugent said, the Phils agreed to option Legrant Scott, rookie outfielder, to Indianapolis of the American association to whom the Reds owe an outfielder. Hafey, nephew of Chick Hafey, former National league batting champion, will report to the Phils Sunday in St. Louis.

WHITE SOX SUCCUMB TO A WILD SOUTHPAW; SENATORS WIN, 10-1

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—Kendall Chase, a wild left handed gent who has lost thirteen games this season, found the sometimes potent White Sox the softest of touches today as his Washington associates routed the Chicagoans for a 10 to 1 victory.

The White Sox made four hits, two being doubles which Larry Rosenthal combined with two of Chase's eight passes for a perfect day at bat. Obviously Larry was about all there was to the Chicago offense.

The Senators, in achieving their sixth straight victory—the Browns and Sox have been their victims—made six hits off Jack Knott in three innings and seven off Johnny Marcum the rest of the way.

Lewis Outhits the Sox!

Buddy Lewis exceeded the Chicago hit total all by himself. He had five straight singles and scored three runs. The biggest hit of the day was a triple by Sam West which drove in two runs and bloomed into another marker in the eighth inning.

The Sox, who seemed out of their heads yesterday, seemed merely drowsy today. Yesterday they did things and did them the wrong way. Today they didn't do anything. Or not much, anyhow.

The Sox, despite their startling inadequacy here, held on to third place but instead of eyeing the Cleveland Indians, must now worry about the Detroit Tigers who passed the Indians today to take fourth place. The Chicagoans, who raised their trip percentage to .500 in Philadelphia, now have plunked two games below that mark, and at the hands of a team they had whipped eleven times in fourteen games prior to yesterday.

Senators Go Right to Work.

Case opened the Washington three run first inning with a single to left and went to third on Lewis' single to right. Lewis reached second on a passed ball, then West walked, loading the bases. Wright bounced to Kuhel, Case scoring. Travis was given an intentional pass, again loading the bases, after which Bloodworth singled off McNair's glove, scoring Lewis. Walker made a barehand catch of Vernon's sacrifice fly, West scoring.

The striking out of Ferrell to end the distressing first inning gave Knott a laudable idea. He struck out Chase and Case in the second. Lewis then singled to center and took second on a wild pitch but Knott threw out West.

Sox Threats Fail.

Wright opened the home third with a double to right center, took third on Travis' sacrifice, and scored on Bloodworth's sacrifice fly to Rosenthal. Vernon beat out a smash off Knott's glove but was forced by Ferrell.

The Sox developed two threats in the first four innings but both of them came after two were out. McNair singled and Rosenthal walked in the second inning but Tresh's fly to Case ended the inning. Appling walked at the start of the fourth and was forced by Radcliff, who was then forced by McNair. Rosenthal doubled to right, McNair stopping at third and Tresh walked, filling the bases. Bejma batted for Knott and flied to West.

Marcum went in to pitch at the start of the fourth. Chase flied to Walker and Case was safe on McNair's fumble. Case stole second, his 38th theft of the season. Lewis singled to left, his third straight hit, scoring Case and reached third when the ball got past Walker. West singled to right, scoring Lewis.

Sox Have a Mental Lapse.

Marcum failed to cover first on Bloodworth's bunt to Kuhel at the start of the fifth. Vernon forced Bloodworth, then Ferrell shot a double play ball to Hayes, but Appling, after taking the throw to force Vernon, started for the bench. He was advised there were only two out.

YANKS HAVE BIG INNING TO BEAT INDIANS, 6 TO 1

DiMaggio Hits Three Run Homer in Seventh.

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—With Joe Di Maggio getting his third home run in three days to climax a five run seventh inning, the world champion Yankees took just 1 hour and 37 minutes today to defeat the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 1, for Red Ruffing's fifteenth victory of the year. Ruffing scattered seven hits and scored New York's first run himself with a home run in the fifth. It was the Yankees' second straight victory over Cleveland and their fourteenth in sixteen games with the Indians.

DETROIT, 16; BOSTON, 4.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 5 (AP).—Detroit's Tigers scored 12 runs in two big innings to beat the Red Sox, 16 to 4, and give Tommy Bridges his fourteenth victory today. The victory gave the Tigers fourth place in the American league. Jimmy Foxx hit his twenty-seventh homer in the sixth inning—a powerful blow which sent the ball onto a roof across the street from the left field fence.

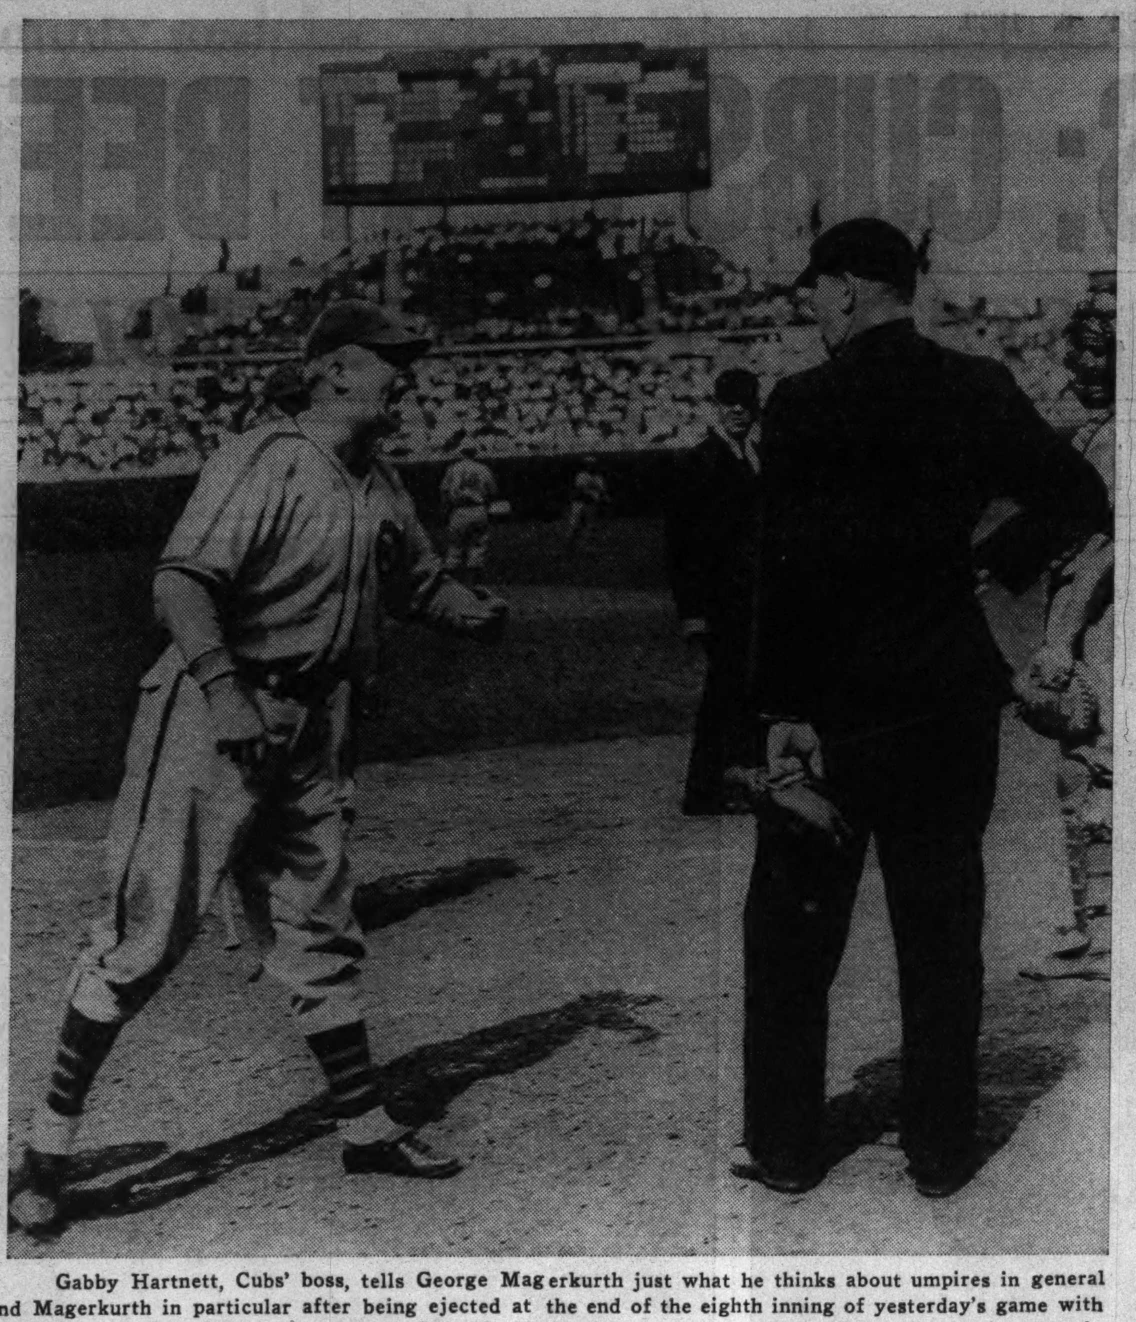
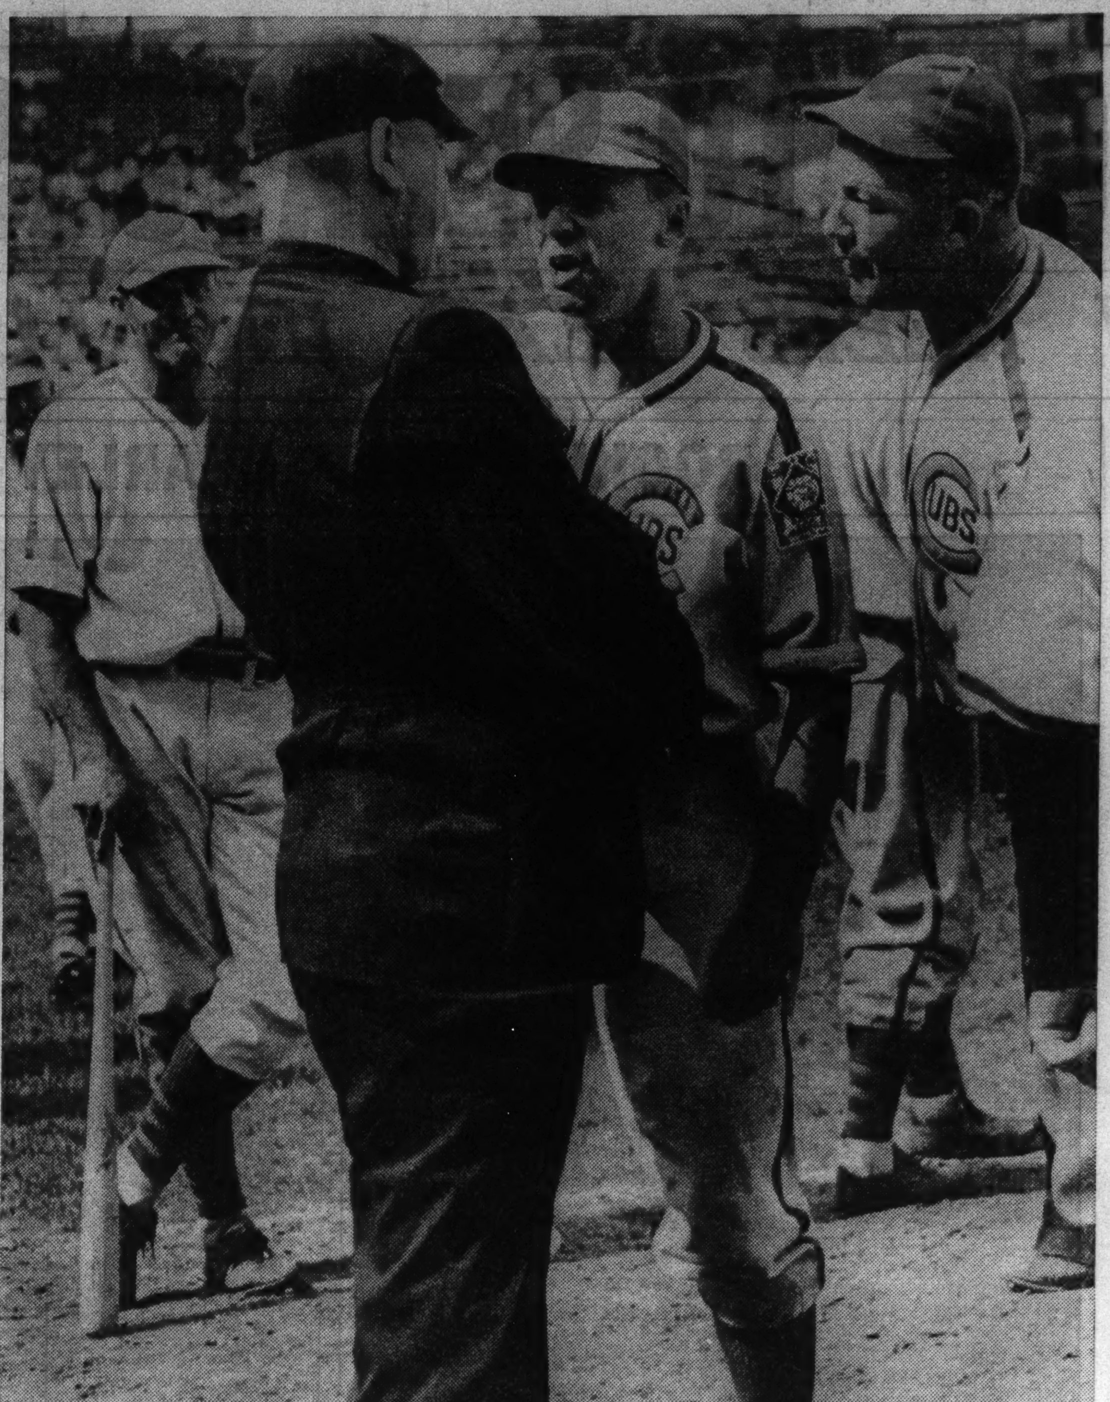
EVERYBODY IS VERY UNHAPPY ABOUT THE WHOLE THING!



Gabby Hartnett, Cubs' boss, tells George Magerkurth just what he thinks about umpires in general and Magerkurth in particular after being ejected at the end of the eighth inning of yesterday's game with the Bees. It all came about because of Stan Hack's resentment over a called third strike in the seventh. Hack waited until the end of the eighth to protest, however. Magerkurth won, as usual, ejecting both Hack and Hartnett, but Gabby almost had the last word. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



This is how it began. Carl Reynolds (left) appears to enjoy Hack's (center) mastery of English as he warms up to task of telling Umpire Magerkurth. Hartnett (right) gets in on the battle just in time to be sent to clubhouse. The Cubs won the game, 3 to 2.

Colored Stars Meet Today in Annual Game

Colored baseball stars will meet in the seventh annual East-West series in Comiskey park this afternoon before a crowd expected to exceed 30,000. Bringing together the topnotch performers of the Negro National and American leagues, representing the East and West, respectively, and selected in a nation-wide poll, these games in previous years have produced thrills. The game starts at 3 o'clock.

The teams will be fighting to break the 3 and 3 deadlock in victories brought about last year when Neil Robinson of Memphis hit a home run inside the park to win for the West, 5 to 4.

East Has Sluggers.

This time the East is bringing an array of sluggers, led by Home Run Hitters Mule Suttles, Josh Gibson, and Buck Leonard. The West, however, has a fine array of pitchers, hitters, and fielders in its 21 man squad selected by the fans from the Chicago American Giants, Kansas City Monarchs, Memphis Red Sox, Cleveland Bears, St. Louis Stars, and Toledo Crawfords.

The East players come from the New York Black Yankees, New York Cubans, Newark Eagles, Pittsburgh Homestead Grays, Baltimore Elites, and Philadelphia Stars. George Scales of the Black Yankees is the East's manager this year, and George Mitchell of the St. Louis Stars will handle the West.

Four Chicagoans with West.

Four Chicago American Giants players won places on the West squad in the voting, and three of them are expected to start by virtue of topping their positions in the poll, including Third Baseman Alec Radcliffe, the only man to appear in all seven of the all-star games. Pepper Bassett led the catchers and Billie Horne the second basemen. Jeff Houston placed high among the pitchers, but the starting mound assignment has been given to Hilton Smith of the Kansas City Monarchs, who was high man in the poll.

Sam Byrd of the Baltimore Elites will open for the East, with Gibson behind the plate. Gibson has hit 42 home runs this year, a mark exceeded only by the 48 of Suttles of Newark, who will be in right field for the East. The probable lineups:

Root Baffles Bees as Cubs Triumph, 3-2

Cub at second base. Mattick reached there by doubling to center with two out. He stayed there.

Boston's two run uprising in the sixth began with a double to right by Sisti. Simmons and Hasset were retired on healthy flies to center, but, just as it looked as if he was going to escape, Root handed a pass to West. Then Cuccinello doubled into the left field corner, sending Sisti and West across the plate. Leiber snared Garms' dangerous liner to conclude the inning.

The Cubs actually earned only one run in the sixth, but didn't mind getting another at bargain rates. Root oiled up the scoring machinery by leading off with his two bagger into right. Hack was thrown out but Herman doubled down the left field line and Root sauntered home. Herman went to third on a wild pitch. Reynolds was called out on strikes. Capt. Billy scored the tying run when Warstler fumbled Leiber's grounder.

Vance Page, who owns a modest record of four victories and six defeats for the season, will pitch for the Cubs in the final with the Bees this afternoon. The Bees will start bespectacled Danny MacFayden.

Charley Root was the winning Cub in a radio popularity contest, so will be awarded a watch. He nosed out Augie Galan by a few votes. A similar contest conducted for the White Sox was won by Ted Lyons.

Augie Galan was hit on the side of the head by a thrown ball during batting practice yesterday and instead of spending the afternoon in left field he retired to the clubhouse for ice pack applications. He expects to return to the lineup today.

KNOXVILLE STAR BANNED; OPPOSED BARRED PLAYERS

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 5 [U. P.]—L. D. [Dutch] Meyer, star Knoxville second baseman, today was declared ineligible to play professional baseball.

Judge W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, announced that the Southern association player made himself ineligible for at least twelve months by playing against men who had been barred from professional baseball in the Houston, Tex., semi-professional baseball tournament last year.

Secretary Edgar Allen of Knoxville said that Meyer immediately was removed from Knoxville's active list.

Meyer claimed he was unaware he had violated any rule that would make him ineligible. He said the tournament was held in a professional league park in Houston and that he presumed all the players in the tournament were eligible or else would not have been allowed to participate in the tournament.

MILLS TO PLAY MICHIGAN CITY 2 GAMES TODAY

The Michigan City Cubs of Michigan City, Ind., and the Madison Blues of Madison, Wis., will be visiting semi-pro attractions this afternoon. The Michigan City Cubs will play the Mills in a double-header in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, and the Spencer Coals will oppose the Madison Blues in two games in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue.

Three former members of the Mills will be in the Michigan City lineup. The players are Walter Laskey, manager and catcher; Zeke Barbero, first baseman, and Pitcher Al Nusser.

The Mills, leaders in the Tri-State league, will start Gregory Lippold in the first game. Lippold's record thus far is nine victories and one defeat. Al Nusser probably will pitch for Michigan City. Lefty Hautekamer will work the second game for the Mills.

Ralph Blatz, former member of the Milwaukee Brewers, will pitch the first game for the Madison Blues against the Spencer Coals. The Coals will start Bill [Lefty] Stevens. Irwin [Butch] Krueger, golf professional and one of the leading pitchers in the Tri-State league, will pitch the second game for the Madison team. William Hearn or Mike Yarros will work for the Coals.

Vanderbilt's Vim Wins Again in Cowes Regatta

COWES, England, Aug. 5 (AP). — Harold S. Vanderbilt's Vim continued her sweep of the Solent today by posting her fourth straight victory of the Cowes regatta over a field of four. Vim was clocked in 1:56:29 for the 27 mile course.

A Wild Lefty Beats Sox, 10-1, for Senators

Nothing came of the doze, however, for Chase struck out.

Marcum and Hayes drew Chase's seventh and eighth passes at the start of the seventh but Kuhel fanned and Walker bounced into a double play. Appling beat out an infield single at the start of the eighth, the third Chicago hit. After Radcliff and McNair failed, Rosenthal came through with his second double, sending Appling home for the only Chicago run.

Appling's error on Chase, Case's safe bunt, Lewis' fifth straight single, a triple by West, and Wright's infield out, gave the Senators four unnecessary runs in the eighth.

LYONS PITCHES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5.—Ted Lyons of the White Sox will accept his regular Sunday pitching chore tomorrow. When he goes against the Senators in the final of the series he will be seeking his eleventh victory of the season. He lost his third of the year last Sunday. Dutch Leonard will pitch for the Senators. He has eleven victories to his credit.

Gee Walker returned to the starting Sox lineup today. He pulled a leg muscle in Yankee stadium a week ago today and at the time Trainer Ad Schacht said he feared the effervescent Mississippian would be out for at least two weeks.

Mike Kreevich, who was involved as a victim in four double plays yesterday, was given a rest today. It is figured that Mike has been handicapped by returning to work too soon after his crash into the center field wall in Boston ten days ago.

The Sox will leave for Detroit tomorrow immediately after the game here. They will have Monday off, then play the Tigers Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and the Indians Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. They will open their new lights at Comiskey park against the St. Louis Browns Aug. 14.

LEGION TO DECIDE BERWYN PLAYER CASE TOMORROW

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 5 (AP).—P. N. Martin of Evanston, Ill., chairman of the American Legion's state athletic committee, said tonight a decision would be handed down Monday in the eligibility case of Raymond Lunte, member of Belleville's championship junior baseball team. The committee held an all day hearing in the case today.

Belleville won the state junior title, defeating Berwyn in the finals. Coach Gil Larimer of Berwyn charged Lunte was more than 17 years old, age limit for competition. His protest was carried to the state committee.

Chicago Girl Wins in Traverse City Tennis

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 5 [Special].—Ann Perrine of Chicago defeated Helen Goodrich of Traverse City, 6-0, 6-1, and Bob Loomis of Traverse City defeated Dave Gilman of Ames, Ia., 2-6, 6-2, 9-7, in the finals of the Traverse City junior tennis tournament today.

DODGERS POUND RED PITCHERS TO WIN EASILY, 10-4

Durocher Chased Off Field as His Team Wins.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 5 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers put together two four-run innings today in a seventeen hit assault which overwhelmed Cincinnati's National league leaders 10 to 4 and avenged last night's setback in their series opener. The Dodgers pounded Whitey Moore out of the box in the first inning with their first outburst and were never headed as they continued their clubbing against three other pitchers.

Young Ira Hutchinson, who made his first start of the season for the Dodgers, was forced out in the fourth. Vito Tamulis, who then took over and held the Reds scoreless except for a homer by Bill Werber in the fifth, was credited with his fifth victory.

Brooklyn played half the game without Manager Leo [Lippy] Durocher, who was banished when he protested to Umpire Bill Stewart against a ruling that Dolph Camilli had left third base before a fly was caught in the fifth inning.

GIANTS, 4; PIRATES, 3.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—Mel Ott and Carl Hubbell collaborated today to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 3, with a crucial home run and some steady southpaw pitching. With the score tied in the eighth, Ott hit his fifth homer of the last ten games and twenty-first of the season to settle the issue. It was Hubbell's fifth victory against five defeats. Mace Brown was charged with the loss.

GIANTS' COACH WORRIED; TWO STARS UNSIGNED

Widseth, Falaschi, 44 Others Due Saturday.

New York, Aug. 5 [Special].—Preparations for the getaway for their Superior, Wis., training camp next Thursday struck a snag today when the world champion New York Giants checked up to find Ed Widseth, All-National league tackle, had not signed his contract. Nello Falaschi, former Santa Clara quarter back, also is unsigned.

Both players are considered key men in the Giants' attack and were expected to be doubly important in Coach Steve Owens' plans for the Chicago All-Star game in Soldiers' field on Aug. 30, since they have participated in the contest as All-Stars. Tuffy Leemans, veteran back, is the other former All-Star on the Giants' roster.

Owen evinced considerable alarm over the announcement that Widseth and Falaschi have not accepted contracts. Neither has communicated with the Giants' office in recent weeks and it was not known whether they had decided to retire from football or were dissatisfied with terms.

Neilsen Giants' Prize Rookie.

Owen expected to have forty-six men, twenty-six veterans including Widseth and Falaschi, and twenty rookies in camp in Superior for the first workout a week from today. Only three members of the squad which defeated Green Bay twice and Washington in consecutive weeks at the close of last season will be missing, provided Falaschi and Widseth show up. They are John Gildea, veteran punter, who retired, and Ray Hanken, end, and Hugh Wolff, full back, who were traded to Washington.

Foremost among the rookies is Art Neilsen of Arizona, a 220 pound full back, who is expected to be in the starting lineup when the Giants face the Collegians in Chicago. Neilsen, according to coaches who saw him play last year, is one of the best running backs in football. He is described as having been Arizona's team, although he was ignored in the nation wide poll in which his teammate, Bronko Smilanich, was elected to the All-Star squad. Neilsen was the Giants' first choice in the draft.

Widseth an Important Cog.

The presence of Neilsen will not compensate for the loss of Widseth, however, if the former Minnesota star is not available for the All-Star game. Widseth has become the backbone of the Giants' attack on offense and their chief defensive bulwark. He is responsible for most of the Giants' superb down the field blocking, the leading factor in their march to the championship last year. Widseth's ability and willingness down the field inspired all the Giants to excell in this essential fundamental and resulted in numerous long run back of punts and intercepted passes.

Owen will leave for Superior early next week to prepare for the arrival of the players on Friday.

Layden Keeps Wide Lead in Coaches' Poll

firsts for Layden and 17,868 seconds for Elward.

The "Boost Hoosier Football" drive produced 18,556 first place ballots for Elward and the same number of seconds for Layden in the Lafayette Journal and Courier poll.

The Evanston News Index, sponsor of Waldorf's campaign, reported 29,916 votes. Snavely was second choice and Neyland third. The drive for Waldorf has been as enthusiastic as any other in the country, but it doesn't have the vast territory supporting some of his rivals.

The Daily Iowan received 18,887 votes yesterday for Eddie Anderson. They came from Oelwein, Muscatine, Chariton, Iowa City, Cedar Rapids, Dubuque, Oskaloosa, Clinton, Davenport, Sioux City, Rockwell City, Grinnell, Sac City, Des Moines, Monticello, and Oxford.

Three of the leading back field men will arrive within the next two days. Marshall Goldberg of Pittsburgh and Sid Luckman of Columbia will be here tomorrow and Bronco Smilanich of Arizona will arrive Tuesday.

GREENVIEW AND NILES CENTER TO PLAY TWO GAMES

Sixteen straight victories will be the goal of the Chicago Greenview baseball team when it meets the Niles Center Red Sox in a double-header this afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock in Oakton park at Niles Center, in the chief attraction of the Midwest league's eleven game schedule.

Greenview has won its last fourteen games, including a 6 to 4 triumph over the Red Sox, since losing the season's opener, May 7.

Berger Larson, former Toledo Mud Hens' pitcher and former University of Michigan star, who pitched the Wolverines to a Western Conference baseball title in 1936, will hurl one of the games for Greenview.

All other league games begin at 3 o'clock. The schedule:

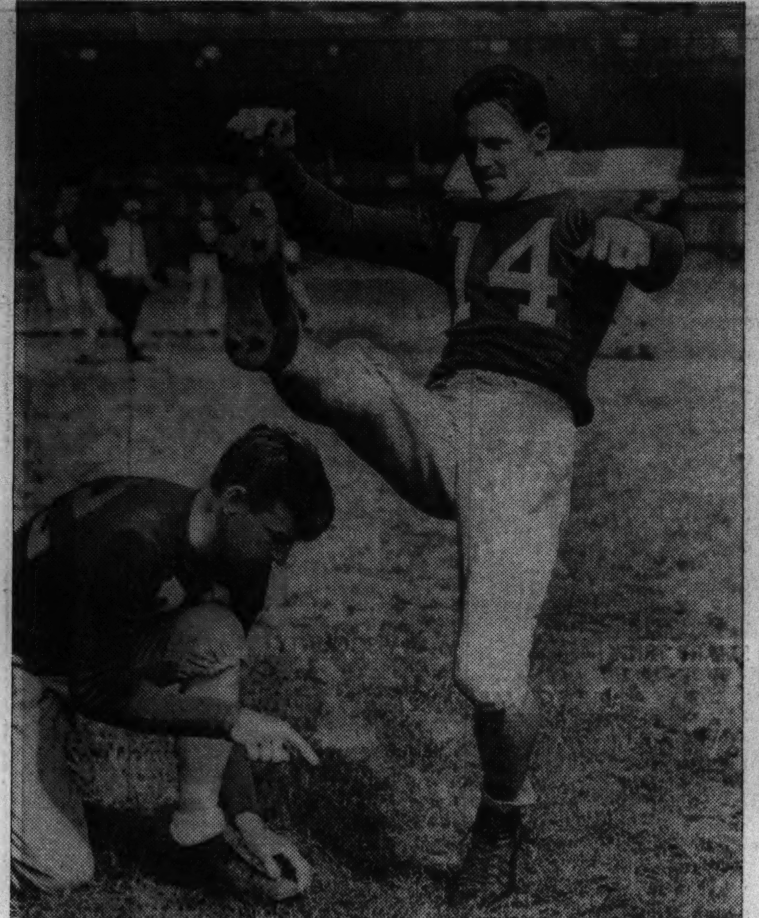
Chicago Firemen at Albion, Wis.
Toman A. C. vs. Cragin A. A. at Long and Fullerton avenue.
Northwest Motors at Lemont, Ill.
Waukegan, Ill., at Glen Ellyn.
St. Peter and Paul vs. Golden Clothes Shop at 59th street and Damen avenue.
Chicago Heights Arrows at Mason park, Evanston.
Fernwood A. A. at Chicago Heights.
Maciejewski Congressmen vs. Marel Boosters at 52d street and Ogden avenue.
Greenview S. A. C. at Niles Center [two games].
Capot Furniture vs. 12th Ward Democrats at Cornell square.

FALLS DEAD AT RACE TRACK.

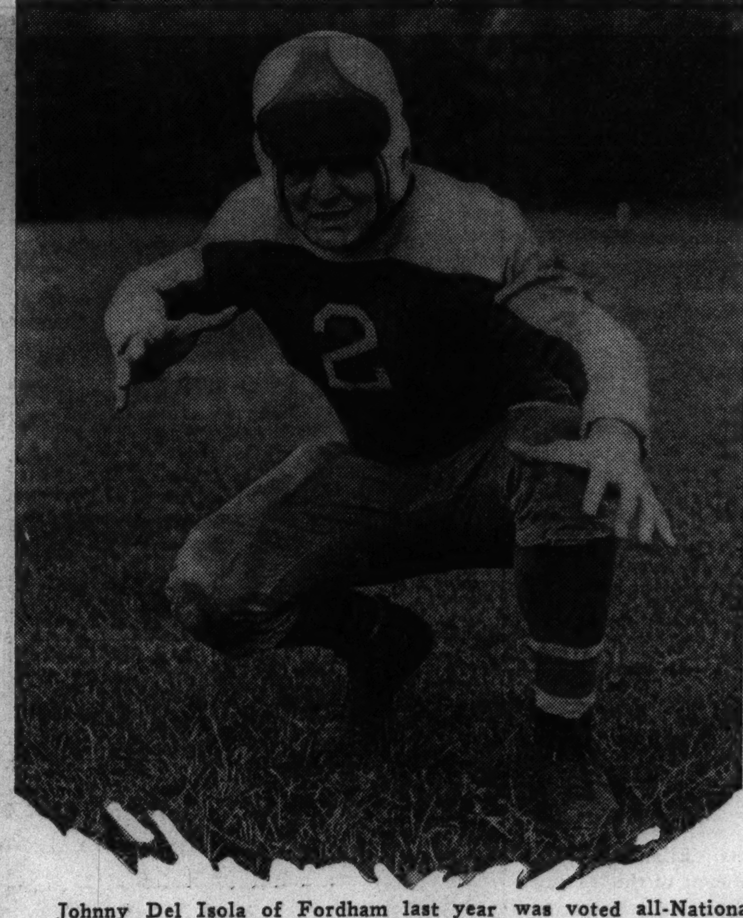
A man tentatively identified as James H. Beith, 41 years old, 2151 West Eighth avenue, Gary, died of a heart attack at the Washington Park race track yesterday.

A FEW FELLOWS FOR COLLEGE ALL-AMERICANS TO WORRY ABOUT!

When the College All-Americans meet the New York Giants, professional football champions, on Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 30 in the sixth annual game sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., they'll be up against the toughest sort of competition. One of the Giants' stalwarts is John (Bull) Karcis, pro veteran from Carnegie Tech. Karcis is the fellow who takes the ball when the Giants want two yards through the middle.



Ward Cuff of Marquette, one of the leading place kickers in pro football, boots one as Ed Danowski holds the ball. Cuff also is the man ahead of the ball in the Giants' running attack. Danowski is the leading passer in pro football. He has an average of .497 in completed passes in his pro career.



Johnny Del Isola of Fordham last year was voted all-National Professional league guard. He is an excellent line backer-up. Del Isola turned down an offer to coach at Brown this year to play in the All-Star game.

HELEN JACOBS' ENTRY IS LATE; MISSES TOURNEY

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Helen Jacobs' entry for the eastern grass court tennis tournament was refused by the Eastern Lawn Tennis association, it became known today. Miss Jacobs' entry came too late to be included in the draw, officials explained. The opening of the meet, scheduled today, was deferred until tomorrow because of rain soaked courts.

With the former national champion absent, the women's division will miss the possibility of an attractive final between Alice Marble, seeded first, and Miss Jacobs. Miss Jacobs will play in the doubles.

Ed Widseth of Minnesota stood out in the All-Star game of 1937 and was an all-league tackle last year for the Giants. He is one of two players who have competed in All-Star games now with the Giants. The other is Tuffy Leemans.

Alice Marble Winner Over Helen Jacobs

East Hampton, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Alice Marble, American and Wimbledon champion, kept her 1939 tournament record unblemished today when she defeated Helen Jacobs, 7-9, 6-4, 6-0, to win the Maidstone club invitation tennis tourney. For the second time in the tournament, however, Alice lost a set. Miss Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, Cal., achieved the feat first in a quarter-final engagement and Miss Jacobs won the first set today.

Neither of the following sets carried any of the appeal or excitement generated in the first. In the second session there were seven service breaks in all, plus much erratic stroking by both players. Alice forced Helen into a straightaway hitting game in the final set, and Helen was an easy victim. The change of pace so upset her that she drove her returns far over the baseline or else smacked them into the center of the net.

Miss Jacobs could try no angle shots in this set. She played strictly on the defensive and seemed to have lost all her form in the dressing room during intermission. The entire set consumed only ten minutes.

The champion team of Miss Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., defeated Miss Jacobs and her partner, Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, in the doubles final, 6-4, 6-2.

BEARS SIGN UP THREE ROOKIES, TWO VETERANS

Two linemen and a back were added to the rookie roster of the Chicago Bears yesterday when Owner George Halas received the contracts of Ray Bray, Karl Schuelke Jr., and William Raizik. Halas said the veterans Jack Manders and Bernie Masterson also had accepted terms and will go into training at the St. Johns Military academy, Delafield, Wis., Aug. 14. Raizik and Bray are guards and Schuelke a hlaf back who also can play full back.

Two Californians Capture Singles in Culver Tourney

Culver, Ind., Aug. 5 [Special].—Ted Schroeder of Glendale and Budge Patty of Los Angeles won the national junior and boys' singles titles, respectively, in the all California finals of the annual tournament at the Culver Military academy today.

Schroeder defeated Larry Dee of San Francisco, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2, and Patty won from Harry E. Likas, also of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-0. Patty was seeded first and Likas second in their division.

Patty and Likas teamed together to win the boys' doubles championship from E. Blair Hawley of New York and Ted Myers of San Francisco, 6-4, 6-4.

In the junior doubles final Jack Kramer of Los Angeles and Ted Olewine of Santa Monica, Cal., won from Dee and Emery Neale of Portland, Ore., 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

AMERICAN TRACK STARS FAVORED IN MEET AT LONDON

LONDON, Aug. 6 [U. P.].—A dress rehearsal of the Olympics will be held in White City stadium Monday and, just like the big show to be held next year in Finland, American track stars are favored to win most of the prizes. Sixteen nations have sent 95 athletes to England for this annual international meet sponsored by the British Amateur Athletic association and most of the performers will be on their respective Olympic teams in 1940.

A crowd of 90,000, taking advantage of a national bank holiday, is expected to watch the show. The Americans, with a squad of ten men—largest of the invading teams—are favored to win at least 13 of the 14 events on the program.

The feature attraction was to have been a return meeting between Sydney Wooderson of England, holder of the outdoor mile record, and Blaine Rideout of Texas, who bumped Wooderson in the recent mile of the century at Princeton. Wooderson sprained a muscle in his leg several weeks ago and decided not to run again this season.

College All-Americans Face Pro Football's Best Defense

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The question mark at the start of each practice period for the college All-Americans concerns the caliber of the tackles and guards. This familiar problem will be the first considered when the college players report to prepare for the game with the New York Giants in Soldiers' field Aug. 30.

The ball carriers, the forward passers, and the ends who receive passes may be better known to the fans. That is natural, for spectators follow the ball even as does the defense. But the offensive blocking of the guards and tackles is all important. If they are overpowered so that the runner is not protected at least as far as the line of scrimmage there is slight chance that the running game will succeed consistently.

These linemen frequently are acclaimed only on the basis of defensive play. This is easily explained since a guard or tackle who breaks through to get the ball carrier automatically enters the focus of spectator interest.

Pros Score Only Three Touchdowns.

Defensively, the All-Star coaches never have been particularly concerned over the ability of their linemen. In five games the professional teams have scored only three touchdowns, one by the Detroit Lions which tied the 1936 game, 7 to 7, and two last year when Washington was beaten, 28 to 16.

On offense, however, there have been at least two All-Star teams whose guards, tackles, and other linemen left much to be desired by their coaches. This year's squad may boast of some splendid linemen. Six of the nine tackles are from the Big Ten, and of these, Joe Mihal, Purdue, and Bob Haak, Indiana, will start the game against the Giants. Bob Voigts, Northwestern; Fred Janke and Don Siegel of Michigan, and Alex Schoenbaum of Ohio State are the other conference tackles.

List of Guards Impressive.

Then there's Ed Beinor of Notre Dame whose peak pefrormance leaves nothing more to be desired. I. B. Hale of Texas Christian and Al Wolff of Santa Clara, reputed to be one of the finest tackles ever developed on the coast, complete the list. Three of these men played the so-called Notre Dame system; the others were taught offensive football from an unbalanced line with a wing back.

The list of guards is equally impressive. Ralph Heikkinen of Michigan and Francis Twedell of Minnesota will start the game. Thus the Big Ten will dominate the line at the kickoff. Lynn Hovland, Wisconsin; Ed Bock, Iowa State; Jim McGoldrick, Notre Dame; Horace Bell, Minnesota; Art Means, Washington; Mike Kochel, Fordham; Charles Gross, Bradley, and Bob Tyrrell, St. Ambrose, complete the list.

Since offensive strength bears a direct relation to the opponents' defense, it must now be pointed out that the All-Star line, from tackle to tackle, will face two of the finest players of all time in Ed Widseth, Giants' left tackle, and Mel Hein, the Giants' center, chosen for five years as the greatest of professionals at this position.

These men keyed the Giants' defense which smothered Washington by a score of 36 to 0 to win the eastern title and then stopped Green Bay, 23 to 17, in the championship game.

The type of defense taught the Giants by Steve Owen, their coach, also will be highly important in preparations by the All-Stars. The Giants have had the most success among professional teams with the five man line defense. It proved exceptionally effective in stopping forward passes by Washington's Sammy Baugh, and by Cecil Isbell and Arnie Herber of Green Bay. In the battles with these teams New York did not fear a smashing game as much as forward passes, and while ground was yielded, the goal line was amply protected.

Best Shown in First Game.

This was best shown in the first game between New York and Green Bay, which the Giants won, 15 to 3, although the Packers made twenty first downs to New York's six. That afternoon Green Bay completed only nine passes in twenty-nine attempts, proof of the efficiency of the Giants' secondary.

The Giants also rushed the passers hard. The ends, Jim Poole and Jim Lee Howell, played a smashing game. They were supported on the inside by the fine work of Widseth and Ox Parry, the tackles, and on the outside by the flanking men in the three line secondary. The accompanying diagram shows the position of the Giants' players on defense.

Backing up the five man line were Leland Shaffer, full back, on the left; John Del Isola, guard, at center, and Mel Hein, the center, on the right flank. The crux of the defense is how these men shift to protect on running and line smashing plays and also cover passes.

Burden Placed on Hinkle.

Behind them are two men, Ward Cuff, half back, and Ed Danowski, quarter back, who serve as the defensive half backs. Tuffy Leemans, or Hank Soar, offensive half backs, were used as safety men.

In theory, this type of defense is more vulnerable to plays from tackle to tackle. That Green Bay didn't succeed probably was due to the excessive burden placed on Clark Hinkle and the tendency to keep trying the pass attack which had succeeded heretofore.

All of which will bring the All-Stars' coaches back to the problem of developing an offensive line. Hard charging tackles and guards are a primary requirement to open up for such running and plunging backs as Marshall Goldberg, Bob MacLeod, and Howie Weiss.

RIGGS CAPTURES MEADOW TENNIS TITLE THIRD TIME

Defeats Sidney Wood in Straight Sets.

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—Bobby Riggs of Chicago felt like playing tennis today instead of clowning so he won the men's singles title of the annual Meadow club invitation tournament for the third consecutive time and virtually clinched the No. 1 spot on the American Davis cup team.

Riggs, Wimbledon champion, won the big silver trophy the same as he did last year—by defeating Sidney B. Wood of New York in the finals. And when Bobby hammered home the last winning point for a 10-8, 6-4, 6-4 triumph the club's $1,000 trophy was retired from competition by Riggs.

Riggs, whose loafing yesterday forced him to go five sets before eliminating Bob Kamrath in the semifinals, played like a different man today. In the gallery were Davis Cup Captain Walter Pate and Holcombe Ward, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Riggs Impresses Pate.

And when it was over Pate, who had been disgusted with Riggs' showing yesterday, said: "Was he that good all week? There was some pretty fine tennis in there."

So it appears that when the United States starts its Davis cup defense next month, undoubtedly against Australia, Riggs will hold down the top singles job.

Davis cup officials have had several huddles during the tournament. It is generally believed they have decided to let Riggs and Frankie Parker of California carry the singles burden. Parker last week won the Seabright invitational tournament. He played only in doubles at Southampton.

Announcement of the team is expected to come next week during the eastern grass court championships which start tomorrow at Rye, N. Y. The doubles situation still is up in the air, and there is a possibility that Riggs and Parker may handle that job, too. Riggs has been playing with Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., and Parker with Don McNeill of Oklahoma City.

Riggs' Hand Blistered.

Meanwhile Gene Mako, who played Davis cup doubles the last four years with Don Budge, virtually counted himself out of the running for a place on the team. Mako has had four different partners this year and said he didn't think he had a chance to make the squad.

At the finish of the one hour and thirty-seven minute match Riggs' right hand was cut and blistered, the result of a rough handle on his racket.

Riggs and Cooke later finished out their semi-finals doubles match which was halted yesterday. They defeated Chester and William Murphy of Chicago, 11-13, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-0. Tomorrow they will play McNeill and Parker for the championship.

AUSTRALIAN CUP TEAM APPROVES FUZZLESS BALL

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 5 [U. P.].—Members of Australia's Davis cup tennis team today approved a new and speedier tennis ball to replace the heavily fuzzed one in use this season for the first time.

A dozen of the new balls—similar to those used up until this year—were delivered today and the Australian players, practicing for the American zone finals Aug. 10-12 against Cuba, said they were all right.

The fuzzy ball was criticized by American players during the recent Seabright invitation tournament, but American officials did not want to change back to the faster ball until the Australians approved, inasmuch as these countries undoubtedly will clash in the Davis cup challenge round.

Adrian Quist, who complained that the ball in use before became too heavy as it absorbed moisture from the ground, said "this new ball is definitly an improvement over that furry thing we had to use in the last two weeks. This is a real grass court ball."

The winner of the Australia-Cuba series plays Jugo-Slavia, the European zone winner, in the inter-zone finals, and that winner meets the United States in the challenge round.

FULLERTON WINS IN TENNIS FROM HAMILTON PARK

The Fullerton B team defeated Hamilton park eight matches to one yesterday in the Chicago Tennis association inter-club tournament at Hamilton park. It was the fourth victory for the north siders. The only Hamilton park player to win was Les Nitchie who defeated George Smith, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4. Other results:

Eino Macklin beat Joe Shostrom, 6-2, 6-3; Ed Fox beat N. V. Kellogg, 6-0, 10-8; I. L. Kovitz beat Lemon, 6-1, 8-6; Frank Grossman beat W. H. Fason, 6-1, 6-2; Harold Berglund beat Gerald Sweet, 6-3, 6-2; Macklin and Berglund beat Clark and Shostrom, 3-6, 6-4, 8-6; Fox and Kovitz beat Kellogg and Fason, 6-2, 6-3, and Smith and Grossman beat Sweet and Nitchie, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4.

WOMEN START PLAY TOMORROW IN DETROIT GOLF

Patty Berg Is Missing in Western Closed.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The thirty-ninth battle for the closed championship of the Women's Western Golf association, one of the oldest and most valuable prizes in the game, will open tomorrow morning at the Oakland Hills Country club, near Detroit, Mich.

The W. W. G. A., one of the most active and forward looking organizations in golf, is proud of the record of this tournament, for the roster of former champions reveals several golfers who have distinguished themselves in national and international competition. Among the former winners are Patty Berg, Marion Miley, Mrs. Opal S. Hill, Miriam Burns, Mrs. L. D. Cheney, Mrs. F. C. Letts, and Edith Cummings.

This Event Is Closed.

This particular event is a closed one, restricted to amateurs belonging to member clubs of the U. S. G. A. But the Women's Western has not neglected others, for its annual open championship admits business women golfers, such as Helen Hicks Harb, Mrs. Hill, Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, and Helen Dettweiller, who won this year's crown at St. Louis.

The western closed at Detroit will miss one golfer considerably. She is a redhead from Minneapolis named Patricia Berg. You can make a wager that it isn't because Patty isn't willing to defend the title she won last year at Olympia Fields. Following her victory in the trans-Mississippi, Patty was laid a stymie by an appendectomy which appears not only to have blocked her appearance in the western, but also her defense of the national championship later in the month in Noroton, Conn.

One of Best Fields.

Even though Miss Berg will be missing, the field beginning play with a qualifying round of eighteen holes over the course where Ralph Guldahl won the 1937 national open, will still be one of the finest in the history of the tournament.

Among those expected to compete are Edith Estabrooks of Dubuque, Ia., who went twenty-three holes in a semi-finals to earn the right to meet Miss Berg in the thirty-six hole championship, where she lost, 4 and 3.

Other contenders include Marion Miley, the Lexington, Ky., professional's daughter who won the 1935 and 1937 titles; Beatrice Barrett, Minneapolis friend and rival of Miss Berg, and Ellamae Williams of Chicago, who has vindicated earlier promise already by winning the Illinois and Chicago district titles.

32 Will Qualify Tomorrow.

The thirty-two low scorers in tomorrow's qualifying round will qualify for match play in the championship bracket, continuing from Tuesday through Saturday's thirty-six hole championship match. The winner will have her name engraved on the W. A. Alexander trophy, which will remain in the custody of her home club as long as she remains champion.

Any club having four players entered in the tournament, which registers them before they leave the tee, are eligible to compete for the Maschmeyer cup. The net scores of these players during the qualifying round will be used for this competition. The team having the lowest net foursome total will have their names engraved on the trophy, which their club may hold until the 1940 tournament.

RISING SUN AND TWIN CITIES WILL CLASH IN POLO

The Twin Cities polo team of St. Paul and Minneapolis will meet Rising Sun Ranch of Hinsdale in the second game of their intercity series this afternoon on the Oak Brook Polo club's stadium field at York road and 22d street. Rising Sun Ranch won the first game, 8 to 6. Today's contest starts at 4 o'clock.

Rising Sun Ranch will stick to its lineup of Harry Owen Jr., Capt. Roy D. Keehn Jr., Paul Butler, team captain, and Chuck Aaberg, riding in that order. The placement of players represents a shift from the one used earlier in the season, with Capt. Keehn moving from defense to No. 2, Butler from No. 2 to No. 3, and Aaberg from No. 3 to back.

The chief problem of Rising Sun will be the checking of Bud Tyler, who will be at No. 3 for Twin Cities. He carries a four goal rating. Tyler's brother Toby will be at defense, while the father and son combination of Tom and John Daniels will line up in front of him.

38 TO COMPETE IN MIDGET AUTO RACES TONIGHT

Thirty-eight drivers will compete in the second series of the mid-season championship midget auto races tonight on the Riverview speedway. Among the competitors are Wally Zale, Ray Richards, Lyle Dickey, Ted Duncan, Bert Knight, Marshall Lewis, Ted Tetterton, Ted Johnson, Mike O'Halloran, Bob Muhlke, Al Sprang, Chuck Niesel, and Christ Willey.

An eight race program topped by a forty lap feature will be held.

Wagner Will Try Again to Make Two Holes-in-One

Cyril Wagner, pro at the Tam o' Shanter Golf club, who recently made a wager that he could make two holes in one within twenty-four hours—and lost when he made only one—will try it again, starting tonight at 7:30 on the seventeenth tee at the Elmgate Golf club, Glenview. There is no time limit this time, and Wagner expects to keep shooting until he has scored two aces. It required 805 shots for him to get his first one in his recent effort.

PAR IS IN DANGER ON ANY COURSE WHEN THEY MEET!

Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., who has become one of the sensations of women's golf this year, will compete. Miss Cline is only 15 years old, but is expected to give her older rivals plenty of competition.

Edith Estabrooks of Dubuque, Ia., went twenty-three holes in a semi-final last year in this tournament for the right to meet Miss Berg. Miss Estabrooks lost, 4 and 3.

Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., professional's daughter, will compete. She won western closed title in 1933 and 1937.

Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, Minn., a friend and rival of Miss Berg who comes from the same city, will attempt to carry on for the Gopher state in competition in Detroit.

Beetham Sets British Record in 1,000 Yards

GLASGOW, Scotland, Aug. 5 (AP)—America's invading track and field forces, headed by Charles Beetham, took their first European meet in stride today, but used the races only as time trials for Monday's international competition in London.

The United States performers had only one individual winner, Clyde Jeffrey of San Francisco, in the 120 yard dash, in the Glasgow Football club's meet. This, however, was largely because they were given scratch assignments in virtually every event of the handicap competition.

Blaine Rideout Sixth.

Beetham, former middle distance star at Ohio State, ran the 1,000 yards from scratch in 2:11 for a new British record, although finishing second to E. A. Sears, who started with a 16 yard edge. Blaine Rideout, one of North Texas' running twins, was sixth, but seemed to be using the race as a workout for his mile effort in the international meet.

Jeffrey, in taking the 120 yards, went out to an early lead and finished two yards in front of Roy Cochran of Indiana in 11.8 seconds. Cochran and Joe Batiste, the Tucson, Ariz., schoolboy ace, both passed up their usual hurdles competition for the dashes.

Batiste finished second by inches in the 100 yard dash, just failing to overtake Frank Watson of Glasgow, despite Watson's original ten yard handicap. The time was 9.8 seconds.

They Win—but Don't.

Erwin Miller of Southern California ran the 440 yards from scratch in 48.3, and Les Steers of San Francisco high jumped 6 feet 4 inches, but each had to be content with second place finishers behind rivals who had big handicaps.

Taisto Maki of Finland set the second British record of the meet when he covered the three miles in 14:03.4. He finished second, however, to M. Bingham of Great Britain, who had a 190 yard handicap. The veteran Finn, Volmari Iso Hollo, won the 3,000 meter steeplechase handicap, finishing in 10:22.4 from scratch.

CHICAGO CRICKET CLUB SEEKS 9TH IN ROW TODAY

The Chicago Cricket club, still undefeated in league competition, will attempt to make it nine straight when it meets the Lake Shore team at Wilson avenue and the outer drive this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Lake Shore is the only opponent that has not suffered defeat at the hands of the Chicago team, the first meeting of these teams resulting in a tie game because of rain.

Other games, all starting at 1:30 p. m., follow:

Oak Park vs. Winnetka at Oak Park.
River Forest vs. Lake Forest at 1st avenue and Lake street, Maywood.
Milwaukee vs. South Park at Milwaukee.
Hyde Park vs. Washington Park at 48th street and the outer drive.

Aron, Meleski Battle Heads Week's Fights

Milt Aron, former Dubuque, Ia., sectional Golden Gloves winner, and Eddie Meleski of the Catholic Youth organization, will top this week's boxing program. They meet in Marigold gardens tomorrow.

Aron is rated eighth leading welterweight contender and Meleski No. 10 middleweight challenger by the National Boxing association.

The agreed poundage is 152 pounds, which is two pounds less than Aron weighed in his last appearance and three more than Eddie carried in his latest.

Meleski May Be Weakened.

This means Aron will be at his best while Meleski may be weakened by making weight.

As a result Aron, having defeated five of his six opponents this year, can see no reason why he shouldn't continue his good work against the C. Y. O. standard bearer.

Meleski hasn't fought since June 12 when he scored a knockout in five rounds over Dick Kist of Danville. It was his second triumph over Kist in this manner. Eddie came from behind in each instance.

What makes the Aron-Meleski match interesting is the fact that each lad's defense is an unresting offense.

Five Supporting Matches Listed.

Promoter Irving Schoenwald has scheduled five supporting matches, one of which will be between wrestlers.

Nick Castiglione and Earl Gibbs, Chicago lightweight rivals, are principals in the five round semi-windup.

Jimmy Reeves, 1939 international Golden Gloves middleweight champion, will make his Chicago debut as a professional in a four rounder against John Trotter, south side star. Additional contests of four rounds bring together Wilbur Dunn, La Crosse, Wis., middleweight, and Tony Sopko, and Charley Young and Marion Mosley, Chicago heavyweights.

There also will be shows in Savoy arena Tuesday, White City Wednesday, and Northwest stadium and Madison-Cicero outdoor arena Friday. . . . An overflow crowd of 14,750 attended the amateur boxing show presented under the auspices of the 47th Ward club in Marigold gardens open air arena Wednesday, it was estimated by Andy Frain's ushers.—F. JACOBS BEATS LARDNER; WINS WISCONSIN GOLF

Appleton, Wis., Aug. 5 (AP).—Burleigh Jacobs Jr. of Milwaukee wrested the state amateur golf championship from Lyn Lardner Jr. of Oconomowoc, with a 3 and 1 victory in the 36 hole finals of the state tournament today.

By his victory, Jacobs reversed the result of the tourney finals last year when Lardner defeated him, 3 and 2.

Lardner held a 1 up lead at the end of the first eighteen holes, when he shot a 72 to Jacobs' 73 over the par 70 Butte Des Morts layout. This afternoon Jacobs, University of Wisconsin sophomore, fired a par 35 on the outgoing nine to Lardner's 37, and was one under par for the final eight holes.

Jacobs' 15 foot putt for a birdie two ended the match at the 35th hole.

ESCOBAR TO GIVE UP TITLE RATHER THAN FIGHT PACE

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—Lou Brix, manager of Bantamweight Champion Sixto Escobar, announced today the little Porto Rican may vacate the 118 pound throne if various boxing bodies insist on his meeting Georgie Pace of Cleveland for the title.

Somewhat put out over Pace's recent demands for a title shot, Brix termed the Cleveland boxer a practically unknown battler and told him to get a reputation.

Pace recently announced he was going to take his campaign for a title bout to the National Boxing association. A year ago, he posted a $1,000 challenge check with the New York state athletic commission, which ordered Escobar to go through with the fight, but which has not pressed that demand.

DRAFTS MEET RAYLS.

Kay Stefani of the Detroit Rayls and Annie Goldstein of the Chicago Down Drafts will be the opposing hurlers tonight when the girls' teams meet in Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue.

MALONEYS FACE ACACIA.

The Maloney Girls and Acacia Storage, two girls fast pitching teams, will play tonight at 7 o'clock in Austin Bears athletic field, Harlem and North avenues. The winner will meet the Whalen Boosters in another game at 9 o'clock.

LANSINGS MEET HYDROX.

The Lansing, Mich. Vans will meet the Hydrox Beverage girls in Shewbridge field tonight in a girls' softball game.

WEEDLESS LURE INDISPENSABLE FOR LATE FISHING

Hook, Spinner Combination Handy in Vegetation.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although fresh water fishermen may be far from agreement on their choices of spoons, plugs, and other lures for catching bass, pike, and muskies, there is one weedless outfit which a majority usually carry in the tackle boxes. This particular accessory which pleases so many late season bait fishermen and casters is a combination of a long shanked hook, a small spinner, and an effective weed guard which enables the fisherman to get among logs, snags, and weeds when after bass, northern pike [pickerel], and wall-eyes or muskies.

When it's necessary to troll live bait among logs to get wall-eyes, a method that many fishermen follow in the big Chippewa, Flambeau, and Wisconsin river flowages of Wisconsin, or when a fishermen wants to cast a green and white pork chunk among the lily pads or rushes for black bass and pickerel, this weedless hook and spinner combination is just about tops.

Indispensable on Chippewa Flowage.

While fishing for wall-eyes on the Chippewa flowage, a body of water that has many a wagon load of old timber scattered around on the bottom, we have found this weedless hook and spinner outfit indispensable. If it hits an old tree top or snag there usually is no trouble at all. Whereas the common open hook would catch on to a branch, this well guarded hook of the weedless outfit slides right over the obstacle.

This weedless hook and spinner outfit is one of a number of similar combinations of that type pictured in THE TRIBUNE'S handy little fishing guide entitled "Which Lures and Where." This practical eighty-four page pocket handbook on lures which may be used for bass, pickerel, muskies, wall-eyes, crappies, and trout fishing is sold through the Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago, for 30 cents by mail or 25 cents over the counter.

Describes Other Bucktail Lures.

In addition to the popular weedless hook and spinner outfit which has been a great favorite of the pork chunk casters, "Which Lures and Where" describes and pictures a number of other effective bucktail lures which easily travel through the weeds with their small spinners flashing.

If there ever is a time when the fresh water fisherman needs a variety of weedless lures for casting it's during the month of August, for weed beds in both rivers and lakes reach their peak this month. Although some of these underwater gardens are so thick that they hinder the casting of almost any kind of lures, the one type of fish fooler which usually will keep going in heavy aquatic vegetation is one of these weedless lures. One weedless silver spoon pictured in "Which Lures and Where" should not be overlooked by the muskie fisherman. This particular lure has been fooling some big ones among the weed beds of northern lakes, especially when rigged with a pork rind.

Rich enough in Havana taste to please a Cuban, this brand new Blended-with-Havana cigar

YOU CAN BET that down in Havana smokers really know the taste of Havana tobacco. That's why we took the new Blended-with-Havana White Owl down there to test it. We selected prominent Cubans—real connoisseurs of cigars—gave them some of the new White Owls to smoke. Without exception, they all praised the rich Havana flavor of this new cigar.

Honestly, we're excited about the Havana tobacco that goes into our new White Owl. It's really a good grade. Perhaps that sounds unbelievable for a cigar costing only 5¢. But we are America's largest buyers of Havana tobacco, and we know what we are talking about. Fact is, it's the same type of Havana tobacco used in popular cigars costing 10¢ and more. And there's a generous helping of this fine Havana in each new White Owl, too. Why not try a new White Owl today?

GOSHEN STIRS ITSELF FOR 13TH HAMBLETONIAN

Peter Astra Favorite in $40,000 Trot Wednesday

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 5 (AP).—This drowsy village of 3,500, steeped in the lore of the trotting horse, once more is ready for the ten-fold increase in its population which always takes place when the pick of the nation's 3 year old trotters match strides in the $40,000 Hambletonian.

Already Goshen's winding, elm shaded main street is bustling with activity. All of the rooms in the town's rambling hostelries long since have been reserved. Housewives have dusted off the furniture in the spare room to help take care of the overflow crowd that for one day makes Goshen the capital of the sports world.

That one day for 1939 will be Wednesday.

Park is Spick and Span.

Bill Cane, sponsor of the buggy whip Derby since 1930, has Good Time park spick and span. Over a large section of the bleacher seats has been stretched a canvas to break the rays of the sun. The big betting tent has been pitched behind the grandstand, next door to the Ladies' Aid society's refreshment tent.

Along the Midway, leading from the newly painted barns to the stands, other concessionaires are ready to bark their wares while here and there are scattered little booths housing bookmakers, who offer 2 to 1 on a 6 to 1 shot.

For a week now horsemen, who on the smallest excuse reel off the breeding and racing record of horses that raced way back when, have been leaning over the whitewashed fence, watching the horses go through their paces, or lounging on hotel porches discussing the merits of Hambletonian candidates and such great champions as Greyhound and Billy Direct.

Everybody Is Happy.

All of which would tend to indicate that Goshen's hospitality might be taxed. But somehow the little Orange county capital manages to make all happy, even though it does bulge a little at the seams.

Perhaps it is the county fair atmosphere and annually surround the trotting classic. Or maybe it is because the natives have not learned how to charge 50 cents for a 25 cent drink.

The Grand Circuit meeting at Cane's flat iron shaped track actually starts Monday, but it is toward the Hambletonian that both townfolk and horsemen are looking. Even then the setting almost overshadows the race itself. Thousands come to Goshen because they love trotters but thousands more make their annual pilgrimage just to soak up some of the atmosphere.

Previous Winners to Drive.

The only two reinsmen ever to win the Hambletonian twice both have entries this year. They are Ben White, winner in 1933 with Mary Reynolds and in 1936 with Rosalind, and Henry Thomas, who scored with Lawrence Sheppard's Shirley Hanover in 1937 and McLin last year.

But the betting is odds-on that Dr. H. M. Parshall of Urbana, O., will join the pair in their dual record niche on Wednesday. The Ohio veterinarian, winner with Lord Jim in 1934, will be in the bike behind Peter Astra, top money winning 2 year old of 1938, unbeaten in four starts this season.

Peter Astra is owned by a country doctor, Dr. L. M. Guilinger of Andover, O., who hopes his patients will stay in good health while he follows the fortunes of the son of Peter Volo. Peter Astra trotted a mile in 2:02¼ his last time out at Old Orchard Beach, Me. Some horsemen are predicting he'll travel around Cane's track in two minutes or better.

Two Strong Rivals.

Chief among Peter Astra's rivals are Gauntlet, owned by C. W. Phellis of New York City, and Bagpiper, a consistent money winner from E. Roland Harriman's Arden homestead.

If any dark horse upsets the thirteenth edition of the race it's expected to be Ned Abbey, owned by Aaron Williams of Corning, N. Y., and controlled by Walter [Long Shot] Cox. Ned Abbey did not start as a juvenile and has not shown much this year except in workouts. But, experts point out, neither did McLin and he won last year in straight heats after Cane and Cox sold him to Sheppard for $20,000 a week before the race.

The other starters are expected to come from a field that consists of The Abbott, owned jointly by Bill Strang of New York, Ben White of Lexington, Ky., and J. J. Mooney of Fremont, O.; Homer D. Biery's Belmont Hanover of Butler, Pa.; I. O. Blake's Brittanic of New York; Sheppard's Cherry Hanover; Christine, property of Dunbar Bostwick and his sister, Mrs. Ogden Phipps of Old Westbury, N. Y.; J. J. McIntyre's Lyrmite of Cleveland; Harriman's Spud Hanover, and Voltina from Jacob G. Lang's Buffalo, N. Y., stable.

MONTE CARLO, Aug. 5.—The duke and duchess of Windsor joined a brilliant crowd of Riviera social leaders to witness the inauguration of prize fights in Monte Carlo's new 18,000,000 franc [about $477,000] stadium tonight. Peter Kane, European flyweight champion, knocked out the French bantamweight champion, Pierre Louis, in the third round of the scheduled ten round bout.

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 5 [U.P.].—The Richmond American Legion post, Harry Ray No. 165, won its first state Legion baseball championship tonight [illegible] the finals four times [illegible] winning 3 to 2. The [illegible] in the four state tournament involving Indiana, Missouri, Kentucky, and Tennessee champions Saturday and Sunday.

Time, :22 4-5, :46 3-5, 1:13 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: My Luck, $16.20 straight, $6.80 place, $5.40 show; Rhett, $3.60 place, $3.20 show; Tomye, $6.00 show. Winner trained by W. H. Brown. Went to post at 2:51. At post 4 minutes. Start fair from Bahr gate. Won driving, place same.

MY LUCK, well ridden and saving ground throughout, was steadied while unable to get through on the turn, responded well when called upon after reaching the final quarter and, greatly assisted by strong handling in the closing stages, got up when making the last stride. RHETT, raced a trifle wide and always clear, forced the pace under restraint to the stretch, hung on stubbornly after getting to the front but was not good enough. TOMYE made the early pace under a light hold, gave way very slowly in the drive and swerved near the end.

Time, :23 1-5, :47, 1:13 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Goodandslick, $43.20 straight, $15.80 place, $8.60 show; Zuni, $11.80 place, $8.00 show; Jokester, $5.80 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:23. At post 3 minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving, place same.

GOODANDSLICK had good speed from the beginning, made the pace without the need of strong urging, drew away on the turn and, standing a sharp drive gamely, stalled off ZUNI. ZUNI, well up and in hand to the stretch, saved ground, came out for the drive and finished gamely but could not wear down the winner. JOKESTER, a sharp factor from the beginning, was hard ridden after a half mile and held on fairly well.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :22 3-5, :45 4-5, 1:12 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Finance, $5.40 straight, $3.80 place, $3.00 show; Double B., $6.60 place, $3.80 show; Ginocchio, $3.40 show. Winner trained by L. D. Glasser. Went to post at 3:54. At post 1½ minutes. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily, place driving.

FINANCE, away fast but taken in hand when unable to race with the early leaders, saver ground to the final three-eighths, swung very wide entering the stretch and, closing with a rush, got up in the last fifty yards. DOUBLE B., taken to the inside after a quarter, moved up along the rail after reaching the stretch and went evenly the finale eighth. GINOCCHIO had speed from the start, drew out steadily on the turn, continued strongly to the final eighth, where he weakened.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Three year olds and up. Purse, $2,500, added. Net value to winner, $2,210; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $100.

†Woolford Farm entry.

Time, :22 4-5, :46 1-5, 1:11 1-5. Two dollar mutuals paid: Joe Schenck $5.20 straight, $2.80 place, $2.40 show; Lightspur $5.20 place, $4.20 show; Prairie Dog $3.80 show. Winner trained by R. O. Higdon. Went to post at 4:24½. At post 4 minutes. Start good from Bard gate. Won driving; place same.

JOE SCHENCK, well up from the start, slightly improved his position when saving ground on the turn, came around DORA MAY soon after reaching the stretch, stood a hard drive gamely and outfinished LIGHTSPUR in the final strides. LIGHTSPUR, raced wide throughout, raced to the lead gradually after a quarter, held on with good courage in the drive, but could not hold the winner. PRAIRIE DOG, also forced to lose some ground, bettered his position when approaching the stretch, held on well to the last sixteenth where he weakened.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Sheridan handicap. Three year olds. Purse, $2,500, added. Net value to winner, $2,150; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $100.

Time, :23, :46 3-5, 1:11 3-5, 1:37 1-5, 1:41. Two dollar mutuels paid: Viscounty $6.40 straight, $4.20 place, $3.40 show; Rude Awakening $24.00 place, $10.00 show; Smart Trick $5.60 show. Winner trained by J. J. Flanigan. Went to post at 4:57½. At post ½ minute. Start good from Bahr gate. Won handily; place driving.

VISCOUNTY, difficult to handle, but receiving an excellent ride, was restrained far out of it for a half mile, began to move up on the outside on the turn, was straightened up several times as he swerved while closing strongly throughout the stretch, drew clear in the last fifty yards and won with something left. RUDE AWAKENING forced a fast pace from the start, slowly wore down STAR BOARDER when ready after reaching the final quarter and held on courageously to the end, although she could not withstand the winner. SMART TRICK, taken back repeatedly under a timid ride, came to the extreme outside in the stretch and responding with much energy, closed an immense gap in the last three-sixteenths.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and a half. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse, $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third $100; fourth, $50.

Winner trained by R. McIlvain. Went to post at 5:26. At post 1 minute. Start good from Bahr gate. Won easily, place driving.

FOR ROMANCE, rated along under good restraint to the last three-eighths, responded strongly to only light pressure; quickly shook off CORKER after reaching the last quarter, drew out in the final eighth and had something left. CORKER, strongly restrained for a mile, moved up fast on the final turn, could not get to the winner under strong pressure entering the final quarter but held on well to the end. OUR TEDDY, raced under stout reserve for a mile, was shaken up on the final turn, weakened under stronger pressure the last quarter but outstayed PANALONG.

and Bob Ramsey's Risenfly were next in public fancy at 7 to 1 each. Rude Awakening was the most lightly regarded of all, being quoted at 40 to 1.

For a time it seemed as if the longshot players had a good chance to cash in. Rude Awakening forced Star Boarder's pace down the backstretch, while Viscounty, under snug restraint, was taken back until he was running in last place. As they went onto the far turn Pariso began to move with Viscounty, picking up his rivals one by one.

Heading into the stretch Rude Awakening ran neck and neck with Star Boarder, then took the lead at the eighth pole. But now Viscounty, racing wide, was coming right down the middle of the track. He caught Rude Awakening and drew clear easily in the last fifty yards.

In scoring his victory in the Chicago handicap Joe Schenck returned to his best form after having performed indifferently on opening day, when he ran third to Prairie Dog and Kings Blue. Prairie Dog's impost was increased from 102 to 110 for yesterday's race, Joe Schenck carrying 118, the same as before.

35 to 1 Shot Has Early Speed.

A field of nine went to the post, Joe Schenck being coupled in the betting with his stablemate, Rifted Clouds. Next to the Woolford entry Lightspur had the most backing, his odds being 9 to 2, while Prairie Dog was held at 5 to 1 and the Shady Brook Farm's Grass Cutter at 6 to 1.

Dora May, a 35 to 1 shot, had the most early speed, Rifted Clouds going up with a brief challenge. Lightspur and Joe Schenck worked their way toward the front on the turn and from the head of the stretch home they dominated the race, going neck and neck all the way. At the eighth pole Lightspur was still in front with Pariso driving hard. Then Joe Schenck forged ahead under Warren Yarberry's powerful urging and maintained his margin to the finish.

ROONEY WANDERS OFF SIDE IN HIS POLITICAL FIGHT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 5 (AP).—Art Rooney, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, professional football team, was caught off-side.

He is running for the Republican nomination for register of wills in his home county, and he offered his card to a voter in a nearby town with a request for the voter's support.

"But," protested the voter, "I'm the register of wills in Westmoreland county."

"Westmoreland county!" Rooney exclaimed. "Why, I'm not running in Westmoreland county. Here I am, doing all this work in the wrong place."

EIGHT-THIRTY AND ANDY K. WIN, BUT ANDY K. DOESN'T

Disqualify Millsdale Colt at Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug 5 [Special].—Eight-Thirty won the Saratoga handicap today and Andy K. was disqualified in the United States Hotel stakes in favor of Flight Command in one of the most exciting days in Saratoga's history.

George D. Widener's chestnut 3 year old made short work of a field of older horses and left them floundering to win by three lengths. The victory completed a double for Widener, as his Jamestown filly, Thorn Apple, won the first race at 11 to 20. Eight-Thirty was nearly as short a price in the $10,750 handicap, going to the post at 4 to 5. He ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 3-5 over a fast track.

Sickle T. Second.

Don Meade handled Eight-Thirty, who now points for the Travers and Johnstown. In meeting and beating older horses over a distance Eight-Thirty has brought off what Johnstown and Challedon both failed to do. In his opening race at Jamaica, in the Paumonok handicap, Johnstown made older horses look pretty bad, but that was in a sprint. When Challedon essayed the task in the Massachusetts handicap he came to grief.

Sickle T. was second today, five lengths ahead of Masked General. The order after that was Strabo, Handcuff, The Chief, Heelfly, Nedayr, Jolly Tar, and Shangay Lily. By the victory, which was his fifth in eight starts this year, Eight-Thirty earned $8,200, bringing his total in two years to $39,175.

Hotel Stakes Richer.

Flight Command's owner, C. V. Whitney, received slightly more in the United States Hotel stakes, the winner's share of the purse there being $9,625 out of a gross total of $11,375. Flight Command was one of sixteen 2 year olds that went to the post and he was held at 8 to 1.

Andy K., owned by the Millsdale stable of Anthony Pelletieri, was fresh from the west and his victory there in the rich Arlington Futurity at Chicago. The story was told before the races that "Andy K. bears out." There always are tall stories at Saratoga, most of which have to be taken lightly, but this one, plus the occurrences in the race, resulted in Andy K.'s number being taken down.

He Bears Out.

The stewards announced that Andy K. had borne out from his No. 13 post position at the break and had carried Rollo and Flight Command wide. Those two were in positions No. 14 and 15. The stewards added also that the patrol judges had reported Andy K. had continued to go wide in the backstretch, also interferring with other horses.

Approaching the top of the stretch the Millsdale Stable color bearer came around all the leaders and swung into the home lane on the head end. The Jack High colt did not bear out rounding the turn, but in his run down the final straightaway he did go wide.

Hope Captures Columbia Club Handicap Race

William Wachsman's Q class sloop Hope, twice winner of the Mackinac cruise, won the Columbia Yacht club's third handicap race off Grant park harbor yesterday on elapsed and collected time. Hope's time was 1 hour 47 minutes and 31 seconds. Ernest Carlson was the skipper. Kid Sister, B. J. Myren's cruising cutter, was runnerup with a corrected time of 2:00:48. Hope is leading the series with 29 points, followed by Louis Ainbinder's Baccarat, with 20 points, and Louis Emerman's Devship V. with 17.

Seventy-two sailing craft competed in various events between Wilmette on the north shore and 74th street on the south. A fair south to southeast breeze favored the sailers.

Ed Schnabel sailed his R class sloop Yankee to victory in the Chicago Yacht club's seventh season championship race off Belmont harbor. Nine R boats started.

Dick Otter, former winner of the Lake Michigan junior yachting championship, now a Dartmouth undergraduate, took the Sheridan Shore Yacht club's series race for Star class sloops off Wilmette. With his brother William and crew the entry, Step-N-Fetchit, won in 1:55:09.

Savoy Plaza, sailed by Bert Billheimer of Jackson Park Yacht club's dinghy team, won the opening round of Frostbite dinghy races held off 47th street near the Beach and Tennis club of Chicago. Skipper Billheimer accumulated 60 points in six races.

SNIPES RACE TODAY

Twelve of the Chicago snipe class fleet's fastest sloops arrived off Wilmette harbor last night after a cruise up the north shore from the anchorage at Montrose harbor. Yachtsmen of the Wilmette snipe fleet and North Shore Boat club made way for the visiting skippers and crews along the harbor seawall to secure the boats last night. This morning the snipe sloops from Montrose harbor will race the north shore fleet on the latter's course for the interfleet perpetual trophy. Last month the Wilmette harbor snipe sailors cruised to Montrose harbor and defeated the Chicago yachtsmen.

Nearly twenty-five snipe sloops are expected to participate in today's events. Following the races the Montrose harbor yachtsmen will cruise to their home moorings this afternoon.

ELAINE VICTOR, CAMERON WIN IN HORSE SHOW

Delavan, Wis., Aug. 5 [Special].—A. B. Cameron of the Forest View stables, Morton Grove, Ill., guided his Chief of Forest View to the five gaited open class championship in the first annual Lake Lawn hotel horse show which attracted a representative field of over 100 horses today.

Elaine Victor, young star from Wilmette, Ill., took the day's individual honors with first place ribbons in the children's horsemanship class, three gaited open class and ladies three gaited event.

Cameron drove Mountain Ace, owned by Mrs. Froelich of Appleton, Wis., to victory in the fine harness event.

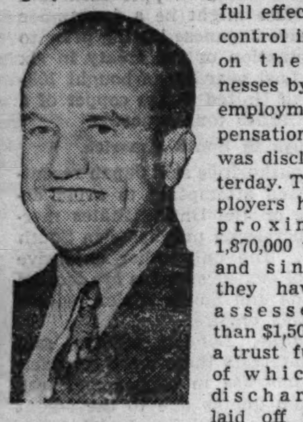
BUSINESS FEELS PINCH IN PAYING JOBLESS WAGES

38,000 Employers of State Carry Load.

Thirty-eight thousand Illinois employers are now beginning to feel the full effects of the control imposed on their businesses by the unemployment compensation act, it was disclosed yesterday. These employers have approximately 1,870,000 workers, and since 1937 they have been assessed more than $1,500,000 for a trust fund out of which their discharged or laid off workers will receive weekly benefits ranging from $7 to $16.



J. H. Wooton. Praises Tribune's reports.

The department of labor reported that a total of $477,061 in unemployment checks had been sent out from July 24 through July 31. The first check was mailed July 24. The total number of checks mailed or in process by the end of the month was 36,823. Workers without jobs who are eligible for this state aid must have earned a total of $225 in 1938. From July 1, the effective date for benefit payments, through July 31 nearly 125,000 persons submitted claims to the unemployment compensation division of the department of labor. By Jan. 1 it is expected the total will be between 300,000 and 400,000.

Tribune Auditors Trained.

To keep abreast of the increasingly complex laws affecting employers, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE assigned certain members of its auditing department staff to obtain special instruction in problems relating to the social security laws.

THE TRIBUNE, like other large employers, has found such training for employés necessary to assure proper handling of the bookkeeping and auditing problems created by the legislation and the numerous regulations that have been issued by the agencies administering the laws.

A member of the auditing department staff of THE TRIBUNE has just completed a six weeks' course of study dealing with the amendments that have been made to the Illinois unemployment compensation act. Earlier two staff members took similar study courses dealing with the original act.

Commended for Coöperation.

THE TRIBUNE was commended for the coöperation it gave to the administrative agencies by J. H. Wootton, until recently manager of the Chicago field office of the federal bureau of old age insurance.

"While I have experienced very intelligent coöperation from the employers of Chicago," Wootton wrote to a member of THE TRIBUNE auditing staff, "it has been very seldom that I have had the pleasure of contacting an employer who has had the grasp of the entire social security legislation that you have. You are to be complimented on the completeness with which your wage reports are prepared."

Before July 1 the employers had to make out quarterly—in some cases annual—reports listing the persons on their pay rolls and their compensation.

Accounting Costs Soar.

Now the employer must make out reports every time he hires or lays off a worker—even a temporary worker taken on during a holiday or rush period. Some of the larger companies, which have a sizable labor turnover, have to keep filling out as many as ten different reports. Some of these reports have to be made every time an employé is discharged or laid off. Companies with a light labor turnover will not have to make so many reports.

Officials of some companies report that their paper work already is becoming a burden. Some may have to hire extra clerks to handle it, and these clerks will have to have a specialized knowledge of the law. In the huge quarters of the department of labor in the Merchandise Mart 1,600 state employés now are working on claims for benefits and other unemployment compensation matters. And they are working a double shift!

It's a Job Filling These Out!

Here is a list of ten reports or statements a company with a sizable labor turnover must make out:

1. A quarterly report accompanying a quarterly pay roll assessment payment.

2. A quarterly and in some cases an annual list of all employés and their compensation.

3. A folder—known as Form 39—which must be given to every discharged employé, regardless of the reason for his dismissal. This folder contains the name of the employer and his address, and the name of the worker and his social security number. It advises the employé as to his rights.

4. Form No. 22. This is a notice that must be mailed within forty-eight hours to the department of labor giving the reason for the severance of each employé from the pay roll. When an employé is discharged for cause the reason must be given.

Must Warn of Mass Layoffs.

5. Form No. 20. This is a notice that is to be submitted when mass layoffs are contemplated. In such cases the employer must give advance

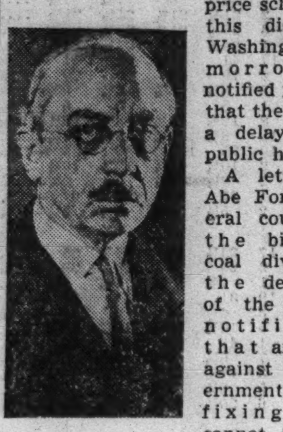
Delay Hearing on Coal Prices Until Aug. 15

Chicago coal interests who were prepared to protest the proposed coal price schedule for this district in Washington tomorrow were notified yesterday that there will be a delay in the public hearings.



Howard A. Gray. Directs coal control.

A letter from Abe Fortas, general counsel for the bituminous coal division of the department of the interior, notified them that arguments against the government's price fixing program cannot be heard until Aug. 15.

Unexpectedly numerous protests against a schedule proposed for the eastern district have prolonged current hearings in Washington and forced postponement of arguments for and against prices to apply to Chicago area consumers, coal men said.

One Deadline Tomorrow.

The letter stated that the original deadline, tomorrow, must be adhered to in the filing of written protests against this district's schedule. However, it added that no oral testimony could be taken prior to Aug. 15.

At the Washington hearing yesterday, Fortas charged counsel for the Carter Coal company with "badgering" a government witness, and was upheld in his contention by Thurlow Lewis, chief examiner for the coal division. Addressing Herbert Jacobi, the coal company's attorney, Lewis said he [Jacobi] was "assuming the entire case can be destroyed by cross-examination."

Jacobi, who was questioning Dr. Charles J. Potter, a government marketing expert, replied he was trying to find out what information Dr. Potter used in determining prices. Specific information, he said, might furnish the basis for invalidation of the entire proceedings.

Ickes Wants Early Action.

Secretary Ickes, who took over the burden of regulating the much harassed industry, is already on record as favoring expedition of the problem of establishing coal prices in various parts of the country. He assumed this task when the old bituminous coal commission was abolished and its duties turned over to a division of the interior department under the direction of Howard A. Gray.

Terming this problem much of "a headache," Ickles declared he would countenance no delay in settling it. Coal men recalled that delay was a common occurrence when previous attempts to regulate the industry were undertaken originally by the national recovery administration under Gen. Hugh Johnson, and then by the bituminous coal commission. None of the attempts succeeded.

Boost Prices in Chicago.

Coal men already on record in the fight contend Chicago consumers will be charged 25 to 50 cents a ton more for the same types of coal which consumers in nearby areas will obtain at lower prices. The benefits of cheap waterway transportation are eliminated, they assert, by the establishment of prices at the mines which are higher for shipment by water than by rail or motor truck.

There is no unanimity in sentiment, however, for some of the coal operators, including many of the largest, favor governmental regulation of the price structure, as they did under the NRA. Coal retailers of the Chicago district who do business with both camps have been reluctant to discuss the issue publicly, but many of them have said privately that they are opposed to governmental control.

Fight for Lake Business.

A separate fight, not involved with the current interior department hearings which began recently, is being waged by Illinois coal mine owners who would like to obtain a slice of the big business in supplying coal to ports on the Great Lakes. At present the Illinois operators have virtually none of this business, and ascribe this to what they term favorable railroad rates from eastern mines to Lake Erie ports. Interstate commerce commission action on a new rate schedule proposed by Illinois railroads is pending.

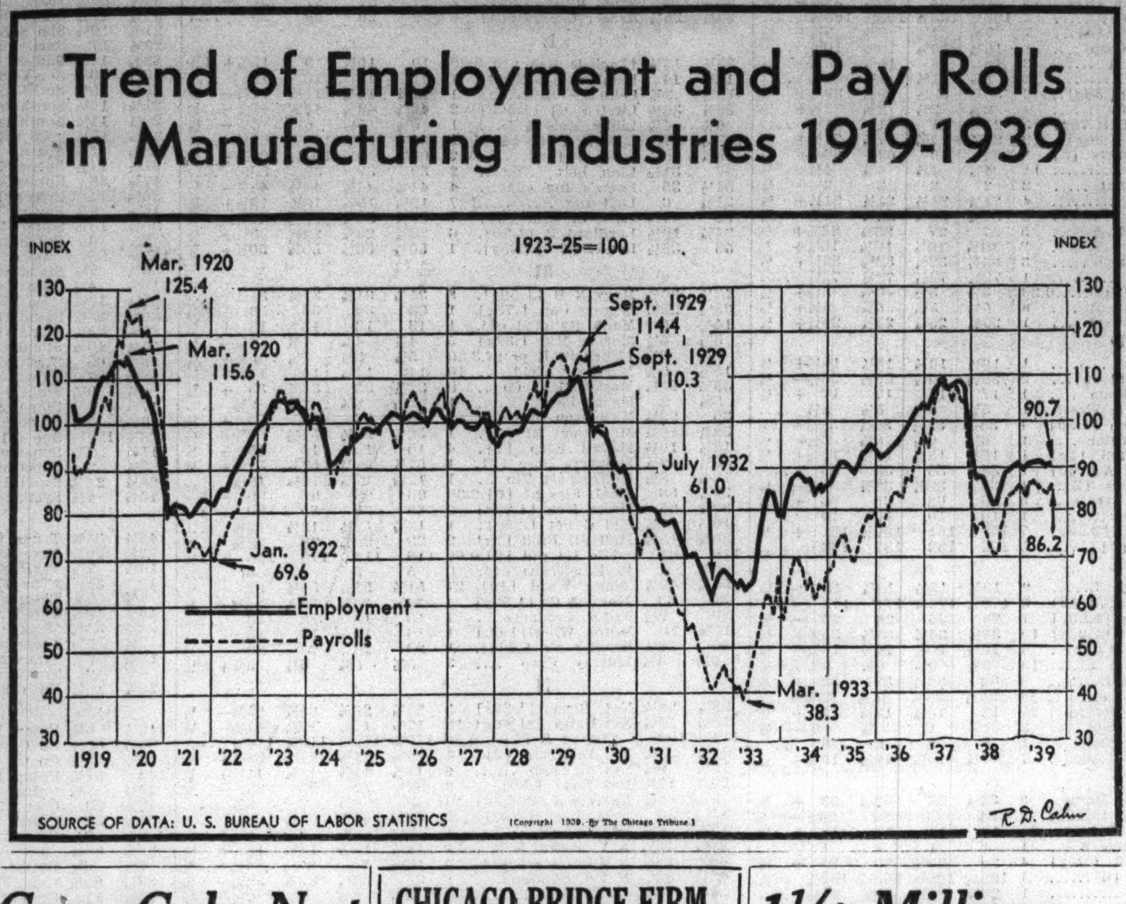
Many of the companies operating lake freighters which come into Chicago and other nearby ports in this industrial area are prepared to handle the lake business if it becomes available, and railroads are prepared to build necessary docking facilities.

JAPANESE OFFER TO BUY AMERICAN MINES IN ORIENT

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The Oriental Consolidated Mining company, said to be the oldest American controled gold mining enterprise in the far east, has been offered $8,174,500 for sale of its operating properties in northern Korea to Japanese interests. The American concern was incorporated in West Virginia in 1897.

A meeting of shareholders, it was announced today, has been called for Aug. 29 at the company's headquarters in New York to vote on the proposal. Many of the stockholders, totaling more than 800, live in England and France. The stock has been traded on the London stock exchange.

A mining concession was obtained by a group of Americans from the emperor of Korea before Japan became master of that country. The company's ten mines now feel economic conditions arising out of the Japanese conquests on the Asiatic continent for development of natural resources and trade. Japan has sought to stimulate gold production to obtain foreign exchange for purchase of machinery and other supplies abroad.



Coca-Cola Net Profits Larger Than Year Ago

The Coca-Cola company yesterday announced that its profit in the three months ended June 30 increased to $8,254,421 from $7,226,719 in the second quarter of 1938. Net income for the first six months of 1939 also was larger than a year earlier, amounting to $13,072,185, against $11,640,914.

Directors of the company met at Wilmington, Del., and elected three vice presidents. The three are W. N. Cochran, production manager; George T. Adams, secretary, and Harold Sharp, regional manager.

Directors of Coca-Cola declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on the company's common stock. It will be payable Oct. 2 to stockholders of record Sept. 12. A dividend of 75 cents was paid July 1, 50 cents was paid April 1, and a total of $4.50 was paid in 1938.

Hudson Motor Cuts Loss.

The Hudson Motor Car company yesterday reported losses in the June quarter and the first half of 1939 which were smaller than the losses in the corresponding 1938 periods.

Net loss in the three months ended June 30 was $876,891, compared with $1,229,051 a year earlier. The six months' loss was reduced to $1,751,675 from $2,759,532.

Waco Aircraft company, builder of planes, also reported a smaller loss in its latest nine month period than a year earlier. The loss was $8,355 in the nine months ended June 30, against loss of $23,305 in the nine months ended June 30, 1938. The company's sales in the period increased to $620,742 from $594,573.

Noranda Mines, Ltd., large Canadian producer of copper, increased its June quarter profit to $2,475,844, or $1.11 a share, from $1,976,893, equal to 88 cents a share, in the 1938 period. Six month profit rose to $5,330,654, or $2.38 a share, from $4,748,188, or $2.12 a share, in the first half of last year.

Copper Concern Earns More.

Sharp & Dohme, Inc., maker of pharmaceutical products, had a June quarter profit of $188,402, compared with $27,597 in the second quarter of 1938. Profit in the first six months of 1939 was $370,428, against $201,532 for the 1938 period.

Sparks-Withington company, manufacturer of radio receiving sets and automobile appliances, issued a report for the fiscal year ended June 30. It showed a net loss of $232,547, against loss of $60,581 in the preceding year.

BANK DIRECTOR BILL IS VETOED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 [U. P.].—President Roosevelt today vetoed a bill which would have granted another four years in which banks could terminate interlocking directorates. The banking act of 1935 contained an amendment to the Clayton act ending interlocking bank directorates. It gave the affected institutions four years in which to comply with the provision.

"If it was in the public interest in 1935 for the congress to decide to terminate these relationships," Roosevelt said, "it is in the public interest to terminate them now. Affected banks and affected directorates have had over four years to make adjustments. That would seem to be a liberal time."

CHICAGO BRIDGE FIRM IS OBSERVING ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Chicago Bridge and Iron company, which operates throughout the world from headquarters at 1305 West 105th street, is being observed this week. The company, which was established Aug. 8, 1889, by Horace E. Horton, has issued a booklet outlining a half century of progress in the construction of bridges and other steel structures.

George T. Horten, president.

Engineers of the company originated the designs of a number of types of bridges, water tanks, and other steel structures. Workmen for the company have gone to all parts of the world to erect the structures.

George T. and Horace B. Horton, sons of the founder, are president and treasurer, respectively. Merle J. Trees is vice president, C. S. Pillsbury, manager of operations; H. C. Brown, director, and S. A. Poyer, secretary. Three to four hundred employés are at work at each of the three principal plants in the United States—Chicago, Greenville, Pa., and Birmingham, Ala.

NEW APPAREL SALE INCREASES ARE PREDICTED

Sales of apparel and gifts will increase steadily during the remainder of the year, Percy Wilson, managing director of the Merchandise Mart, predicted yesterday at the close of the first week of current trade showings.

"Results in the apparel field were reported by exhibitors to be the best since 1936 in many instances," Wilson said. "Dollar volume of sales showed an improvement of 14 per cent over the corresponding week of the August, 1938 market."

Sales made at the showing of gifts, china, pottery, and glassware averaged 26 per cent above last year's total, and made the market the most active since the building was erected, he said.

More than 150 manufacturers from nearly every section of the country are expected to have exhibits at the National Food Distributors' association convention, which will be held Aug. 23 to 26 at the Hotel Sherman.

AMERICAN POLICY ON RAW COTTON DRAWS CRITICISM

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

ZURICH, Switzerland, Aug. 5.—Strong criticism of the United States government's cotton policy, especially on barter agreements with other nations, was reported to have been expressed today at the international cotton committee meeting. Thirty representatives of thirteen countries are here for the conference.

The United States is not a member of the International Cotton Federation and was not officially represented, but Fred Taylor of the agriculture department's foreign section attended as an unofficial observer.

Before adjourning, the committee approved the draft of a cablegram that was sent to Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, tonight. Neither Taylor nor committee members would reveal its contents beyond the fact that it dealt with the American raw cotton policy. It is believed to be a protest.

Labor Federation Reports Large Growth Since 1936

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 [Special].—The American Federation of Labor's paid up membership of individuals in its affiliated organizations has increased by 1,462,929 since 1936 to a grand total of 3,902,979 on Aug. 1 of this year, Frank Morrison, federation secretary, announced today. He said that there are 105 national and international unions, 48 state groups, and 800 central bodies included in the federation's membership.

1¼ Millions Come to City for Meetings

Chicago will have 1¼ million convention visitors in 1939 despite the county-influence of the two coastal world fairs, the Chicago Association of Commerce disclosed yesterday. Attendance will be boosted by an expected throng of 250,000 legionnaires and their families for the American Legion convention here Sept. 25 through Sept. 28.

The Legion convention will be the largest this year and will bring about $10,000,000 in trade to the city's hotels, merchants, and entertainment enterprises, the association said.

Attendance in 1938 totaled 902,600 for 801 different conventions. This year, the association estimated, the number of meetings will drop to 775, the lowest since 694 were held in 1932.

Bring Business to City.

The association estimated that the amount of business brought to Chicago this year will be about $62,500,000, compared with $50,000,000 in 1938.

The return of the legionnaires this fall marks their second appearance in Chicago since the 1933 convention This makes Chicago the first city to which the Legion has come a second time.

Augury of increased conventions and attendance in the next few years was voiced by William J Hennessy, director of the convention bureau of the association He has just returned from the west coast after canvassing sixty-five conventions held there in June and July.

"The reaction to my invitations to convention chairmen that they bring their associations to Chicago next year has been gratifying," Hennessy said. "They were all impressed with Chicago's aggressive campaign to make it the convention city of the nation.

Expect Increase in Meetings.

"We expect a decided upturn in the number of meetings and attending delegates in 1940, 1941, and 1942."

The Association of Commerce now has a permanent representative in New York to retain continuous contact with trade and other associations in the east, Hennessy said.

Large meetings which will come to Chicago in the last third of this year are the Automotive Industries show, the American Society for Metals, National Live Stock exposition, National Automobile show, National Automobile Accessories show, National Motor Truck show, National Restaurant association, and the Edison 5lectric institute.

Already held this year were the National Canners association meeting, the National Shoe fair, the National Home Furnishings show, and the American Furniture Mart show.

GENERAL MOTORS TO RUSH OUTPUT; STRIKE SETTLED

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP).—General Motors corporation, a month behind schedule because of a C. I. O.-United Auto Workers' strike, today prepared to swing into accelerated production of 1940 models. Observers predicted the industry would have a 4,000,000 unit year.

With the strike settlement ratified, William S. Knudsen, General Motors president, announced preparations would be made for a year "at least as great" as the 1939 production year.

Industrial analysts were inclined to put an optimistic interpretation on Knudsen's statement and forecast a fatter year than the one just closing for the industry. Two factors figured in the predictions. First, there has been a steady uptrend in consumer demand, and it is believed that the replacement needs still are far ahead of production. Secondly, General Motors' settlement with the union carries a promise of no "wildcat" strikes during the 1940 model production season.

TWO UTILITIES AGAIN MAY CALL CHICAGO 'HOME'

New Law Removes Tax Handicap.

The return to Chicago of headquarters of two large public utility holding companies not incorporated in Illinois became a matter of immediate consideration yesterday as a result of amendments to Illinois tax laws removing what were termed inequalities which drove them from the city.

Bernard W. Lynch, president of the 916 million dollar Standard Gas and Electric company, which shifted its headquarters to New York last March, said the removal of the heavy tax burden through enactment of Illinois house bill 460 paves the way for a return of the utility concern to Chicago.

Purcell L. Smith, president of the 448 million dollar Middle West corporation, which moved its headquarters from Chicago in April, 1938, said his company is considering moving back to Chicago.

Personal Property Tax Limited.

House bill 460, which became a law at midnight Thursday without Gov. Horner's signature, limits assessments on intangible personal property of non-Illinois companies. Under the measure, sponsored by Edward J. McCabe, chief deputy tax assessor of Cook county and a representative of the 21st [Chicago] district, only that amount used in doing business in this state is assessed.

"Our officials, and executives of other public utility holding companies, were highly pleased over enactment of this legislation," Lynch said. "I will urge the return of Standard Gas headquarters to Chicago at the next meeting of our directors, scheduled for Aug. 17 in New York. While I cannot speak for the board, I will strongly advise resuming operations from Chicago, which is a far more convenient location. The tax situation was the only reason for our move to New York."

Consider Return to Chicago.

"We have considered returning to Chicago at various times since we moved to Wilmington, Del.," said Smith. "We would much prefer to have our headquarters close to the center of our operations. I intend to consult lawyers of the company, and if my study of this new tax situation proves satisfactory, I shall advocate a return to Chicago. We could not act officially on this until our next meeting of directors next month."

Standard Gas and Electric had maintained an extensive staff at headquarters in Chicago since its organization in 1910. Middle West had been located here from the time the original company was established in 1912. Both companies are incorporated under Delaware laws.

Oppose Subsidiary Stock Tax.

Under the Illinois law prior to the recent amendment, these and other holding companies were forced to pay personal property taxes on stocks of companies which did not operate in Illinois, but which stocks were held in this state.

The old law did not levy personal property taxes on companies incorporated in Illinois, and this provision has not been changed. When his company left the city, Lynch termed the personal property tax burden "prohibitive."

Maintenance of corporation headquarters at the center of operations has been advocated by THE TRIBUNE for years.

The railraods, which formerly were directed largely from New York, are gradually breaking away from this influence.

The latest step in this direction was the action of the Southern Pacific in shifting its headquarters from New York to San Francisco.

Previously, two Chicago railroads had taken similar action. The Illinois Central named several middle western and southern men as company directors and now holds its board meetings in Chicago instead of New York. The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway also moved its directors' meetings to this city.

BENJAMIN L. F. WINCHELL.

Rail Veteran Gets His Fun in Industry

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—If the arbitrary rule of retirement at 65 or 70 had been applied to Benjamin La Fon Winchell—the chances are he'd have gone to the dark continent and built a new system of railroads for the natives.

As it is, the 81 year old chairman of the executive committee of Remington Rand, Inc., is still holding up his end in the management of the big office equipment concern and looking forward to more years of active service.

"Two Career" Man.

Winchell is an outstanding "two career man" of industry. He spent forty-seven years in the railroad business, holding down about every sort of job from shopworker to president of three or four big western systems. Then at 62—an age at which most men with nearly half a century of hard work behind them are tired enough to welcome retirement—Winchell decided there was no more "fun" in running a railroad, and started a new business life in industrial management.

"Railroading was fun before government regulation began to pile up so many restrictions on management," he said. "It crowded out enterprise and ingenuity and smothered good talent. I decided to quit after finishing my term as regional director of southern roads. That was in 1920, just before the government gave all the roads back to the private owners after the period of war time control.

View on Management.

"I have always believed that a good railroad management could be trusted to do justice to the property, the stockholders and the public if not hampered too much by regulation.

"Consider what Harriman was able to do with the Union Pacific, which in my opinion stands now as a monument to his great ability as a builder. He took it over as a decrepit obsolete line, poured millions into it, and made it one of the finest systems in the country. It would be hard to do that now because of the red tape of regulation."

SEARS, ROEBUCK VOTES REGULAR 75 CENT DIVIDEND

Directors of Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday announced the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share will be paid Sept. 11 to common stock holders of record Aug. 15.

Hancock Oil company of California declared extra dividends of 25 cents on both the A and B common, in addition to the regular quarterly payments of 50 cents on both classes. All the dividends are payable Sept. 1 to stockholders of record Aug. 15. Similar extras were paid in each of the previous quarters this year.

UTILITIES

Has 9-year down trend been reversed?

Are utilities ready to assume market leadership?

FEW stock groups will benefit more from the trend towards conservatism in Washington than the long depressed Utilities. Many of these stocks, once prime investments, are still selling at extremely low levels.

A careful study of earnings trends reveals many attractive profit opportunities particularly among the lower priced issues. A new UNITED OPINION survey of this basic industry points out 25 of the best situated stocks, including 12 attractive speculations selling from $6 to $38; 7 dividend-paying undervalued investment issues, and 6 speculative preferreds for appreciation.

INDUSTRY STEPS OUT; ONLY STEEL AND AUTOS LAG

Chief Indices Show Upward Trend.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Business held mainly to an upward course last week. Of the principal indices of industrial activity only steel and automobile production fell out of step and dropped behind.

Improvement was reported in electric power production, railroad freight loadings, engineering construction awards, bank clearings, public offerings of new securities, cotton textile manufacturing, and residential construction.

Retail and wholesale trade observers said merchants were showing increased confidence in their preparations for the fall season. Dun & Bradstreet reported that the week's volume of buying by consumers and merchants alike maintained the preceding week's gains over year ago levels.

Chicago Shows Draw Buyers.

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced that the trade show and market events, sponsored by its Interstate Merchants' council, are attracting larger crowds of buyers and merchants than a year ago. The events opened last week and will continue to mid-August.

Association officials said the visiting merchants, from eighteen states, are more anxious to buy than last year. This was attributed in part to smaller stocks on retailers' shelves. Orders for women's wear, millinery, linens, and household furnishings were reported to be showing the largest gains. Purchases for Christmas were described as unusually heavy.

Approve Congress Economy Moves.

Meantime, business observers studied the probable effects of the sudden swing toward economy in congress. Some were of the opinion that the defeat of the administration's spending and lending program will give private enterprise new courage to go ahead and thus do more for recovery than the intended spending of government billions.

In this connection it was observed that most of the money which President Roosevelt proposed to spend would not have been available until next year anyway. Congress refused to act on what was left of the 3 billion 200 million dollar spending bill or the 800 million dollar housing bill.

Rely On Private Enterprise.

Observers took the view that 3 billions would be an insignificant amount as compared with the benefits which might result if private enterprise, encouraged by the action of congress, took new heart and began expanding and investing.

STOCKS CREEP AHEAD; TRADING AT SNAIL'S PACE

Business News Meager, but Mostly Cheerful.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 5.—Most stocks had a range of less than a point today, but prices at the close were fractionally higher. A small batch of issues managed to show gains of a point or more.

The turnover amounted to 236,980 shares, the smallest for a Saturday since July 15, when sales totaled 205,760. Last Saturday 245,360 shares changed hands. Attendance in the financial district was the smallest since the market picked up in mid-July.

Business news was not particularly plentiful but that which came to hand was appraised as favoring the up side.

Wait for Congress to Adjourn.

Adjournment of congress was listed on the favorable side but observers saw a disposition on the part of many traders to wait until the session actually ends before making an appraisal of the political and business outlook.

Stocks opened fractionally lower, continuing the downward movement of Friday, but the steels and most of the coppers moved against the current to make small advances.

Less activity took place in the second hour and price movements narrowed. Closing trades were firm with quotations generally a shade below the best of the day. United States Steel finished with a large fractional gain after standing 1⅛ points higher at one time. Bethlehem likewise picked up a good fraction.

Other Groups Firmer.

Coppers, motors, farm equipments, and a number of specialties along with the steels turned in the best performances. Loft again took volume honors, stepping up a half point on a turnover of 14,700 shares. General Motors had the same gain. Kennecott advanced ⅞ point in the coppers.

Chemicals, utilities, aviations, rails, oils, rubbers, building shares, and electrical equipment were mixed. Gains of a point or more in varying degrees of activity were scored by Union Carbide, American Can, J. I. Case, Coca Cola, Western Electrical, Worthington Pump, and United States Pipe and Foundry.

CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE RISES TO THIRD RANK

Sales on the Chicago Stock exchange topped those of the Boston exchange during June for the first time since March, 1937, the Securities and Exchange commission disclosed yesterday. Returning to third position among the various exchanges of the country, the Chicago market's sales totaled $11,430,512, against $10,924,973 for Boston.

Chicago exchange officials interpreted the figures as indicating the success of a new campaign to improve the city's status as a securities trading center. The city for many years prior to Boston's advance had been bested only by the New York Stock exchange and the New York curb. As part of its recent campaign, the Chicago exchange has advertised its advantages in the newspapers.

Prices of shares moved narrowly yesterday. Of fifty-nine issues traded, twenty-five closed higher, twenty-one lower, and thirteen unchanged.

REPORT JAPAN ENTERS COPPER MARKET AGAIN

Additional Heavy Buying Is Indicated.

Copper interests yesterday disclosed that Japan was reported to have bought 2,000 to 3,000 tons of copper in the United States, Friday. The price range was between 10.70 and 10.75 cents a pound, or about ¼ cent over the domestic quotation, it was said.

This was the first sizable purchase by that nation, a principal customer of American copper sellers, since abrogation of the American-Japanese commercial treaty. Copper men said the purchase might be a forerunner of extensive Japanese buying prior to the termination of the treaty in six months. Last year Japan bought 108,940 tons of United States copper of a total of 370,545 tons exported.

Buys in South America.

Metal authorities said Japan recently has been attempting to avoid dependence on the United States market by increasing purchases in South America. The only other extensive sources of copper supplies are located in Canada and South Africa, within the British empire.

Meanwhile, London advices said copper interests there were considering an increase in copper and lead production quotas due to the recent heavy buying which has depleted supplies and boosted prices.

American copper sales in July amounted to 182,576 tons, the largest month's total on record. Last week's domestic lead market sales amounted to 11,174 tons, the best of the year.

No Official Parleys.

Metal circles said no formal discussions on copper quota increases had been held abroad. Quotas at present are at 95 per cent of standard tonnages, having been lowered from 100 per cent in February. Late last year there were no restrictions on production. In London lead markets, however, a shortage for spot deliveries is apparent. United States sellers at one time last week were forced to resort to a waiting list for buyers.

New York commodity futures markets were closed yesterday for the usual Saturday holiday. No definite trend was discernible in the last week. Rubber, copper, lead, tin, and wool tops finished higher than on Monday. Cocoa, cottonseed oil, coffee, sugar, hides, and silk were lower.

Prices follow:

COTTON

Trading in American cotton markets yesterday was light, and prices held within narrow limits. Liverpool was closed and will not reopen until Tuesday. Good rains were reported over southern Texas but had little effect on the market. There was scattered mill and commission house buying in evidence. Closing trades on futures were .02 cent higher to 01 cent a pound lower.

The department of agriculture will issue an estimate on the domestic cotton crop on Aug. 8. Five private estimates issued the past week showed an average of 11,511,000 bales, compared with 11,943,000 bales harvested in 1938.

Spot cotton closed unchanged with New York, 9.55 cents; New Orleans, 9.21 cents; Houston, 9.05 cents, and Galveston at 9.03 cents a pound. Prices follow:

POLAND'S PORT OF GDYNIA FAR EXCELS DANZIG

Issue Is Military Rather than Commercial.

Danzig, apparently destined to be the center of Europe's scheduled crises late this summer or early next autumn, is not Poland's major outlet to the sea.

If Danzig did not exist, Poland would not be a land locked nation. It would have a sea outlet in the most active of all Baltic ports, Gdynia [pronounced like "gardenia" without the "r."]

In the welter of European oratory this commercial supremacy of Gdynia over Danzig has been to a considerable extent forgotten. Poland—and more pointedly, England—do not want Danzig to remain a free city only for commercial reasons. They are interested in it because, fortified by Germany, it would have military importance.

Old Order Changed.

For many centuries the Polish people depended upon Danzig, with its overwhelmingly Germanic population, for their international sea trade. Without Danzig, Poland was locked in the center of Europe without a sea outlet. That dependence no longer exists.

Much European history has evolved, and still is evolving, around Poland's desire for a seaport. The Polish corridor, created by the Versailles treaty, was conceived in recognition of this desire. The corridor cut Germany in two pieces, East Prussia and greater Germany.

The city of Danzig, situated next to the corridor, was given an autonomous status. It is a sovereign republic, nominally under the "protection" of the league of nations. But, despite the international political turmoil now going on over it, Danzig is today second in importance to Gdynia as a shipping center for Poland.

Larger Port than Marseilles.

Gdynia, normally ice free the year round, lies about twelve miles northwest of Danzig in the corridor. In the last twenty years it has been built out of nothing by Poland. Where in 1920 it was an insignificant fishing village with about 500 people, it is today the fourth largest port in continental Europe. It has a population in excess of 100,000.

It is a larger shipping center than is France's famed Marseilles. With the exception of the maritime cities of the United Kingdom, the only European ports which have a larger tonnage turnover than Gdynia are Rotterdam, Hamburg, and Antwerp. Each of these is centuries old.

Poland built Gdynia to divert traffic from Danzig. In 1924 the total tonnage handled by Gdynia was 10,167. Today that tonnage runs into millions. The following figures of total traffic, in millions of tons, show how Gdynia has outstripped Danzig:

Danzig	5.30	7.13	7.20
Gdynia	7.74	9.01	9.17

Drive Traffic from Poland.

Most of the traffic of both cities is derived from Poland. The following tables of Polish traffic through Danzig and Gdynia, in millions of tons, illustrate the manner in which Poland has diverted its growing sea commerce from the old to the new city:

	—Exports—		—Imports—
	Danzig.	Gdynia.	Danzig.	Gdynia.
1928	6.7	1.6	1.6	0.1
1929	5.9	2.5	1.6	0.4
1933	4.6	5.0	0.6	0.7
1934	5.0	5.9	0.8	0.8
1935	4.5	5.8	0.8	1.0
1936	4.4	6.3	0.5	1.2
1937	5.5	7.0	1.4	1.9
1938	5.3	7.4	1.6	1.7

The value of this Polish traffic, in millions of zlotys [zloty currently about 19 cents], entering the two ports has been as follows:

	—Exports—		—Imports—
	Danzig.	Gdynia.	Danzig.	Gdynia.
1928	588	45	888	34
1929	609	71	793	64
1933	334	124	297	123
1934	328	270	84	385
1935	278	311	77	451
1936	266	377	71	578
1937	316	477	100	714
1938	306	464	98	898

[Figures from "The Economist," London.]

While Gdynia has shown a remarkable growth in recent years, Polish trade must still place some reliance on Danzig. This is because the maximum capacity today of either Gdynia or Danzig is six million tons short of their combined turnover. But, if Germany were to control Danzig, Poland could not enlarge Gdynia.

Old Port Needs Hinterland.

The chief articles of Polish export are coal, food products, timber, metals, and textile goods. They are shipped mainly to England, Germany, and France.

Imports come chiefly from the United Kingdom, the United States, and Germany. The major commodities imported are textile raw materials, machinery, and chemical products.

The relationship between Danzig and Poland, at least so far as the matter of commerce is concerned, is reciprocal. If Poland places a reliance upon Danzig as an exporting center, so does Danzig rely upon the Polish hinterland for the sources of her trade. In recent years the Polish reliance upon Danzig has grown less, but the Danzig reliance upon Poland has not.

Business Is Just Ignored.

Germany's conquesting march throughout Europe has not benefited Danzig. The city lost transit traffic after the Austrian-Germany anschluss and after the peace of Munich. Hitler's defiance of the Munich pact terms, and conquest of nearly all that remained of Czecho-Slovakia, has lost the trade of that territory, worth nearly 15 million tons, to Danzig.

If Germany were to take over Danzig, it is a reasonable assumption that Poland, even if it did trade through Gdynia and less through Danzig. This would mean disaster to Danzig as a tradeless center.

Nazis in the Danzig government, all in the pay of the German Nazi party, show little interest in this fact. The Danzig businessman, if he had the right to speak, might hold to a different opinion than the Nazi.

If incorporating Danzig in the German reich would be disastrous rather than helpful to Danzig, why does Germany want to do it? Because Germany could then fortify Danzig. And a fortified Danzig would be a military threat to neighboring Gdynia, thus blocking Poland's sea outlet and sterilizing that country as an effective member of the English-France alliance.

And that is why England is so interested in Danzig's status. The English government is no more interested in the welfare of the Polish people than it was in the welfare of the Czech people.

Its interest is selfish. A fortified Danzig nullifies Poland's importance as an ally. The talk about Poland's complete dependence on Danzig as a trading center is fiction.

Business at Poland's Two Ports

Twelve miles apart are the ancient port of Danzig and the new port of Gdynia [see map below]. From nothing, Poland has built Europe's seaport, in point of traffic volume, in the territory which it acquired from Germany after the world war. Ten years ago, exports from Danzig were ten times those of Poland's baby. Last year, Gdynia's exports were not far short of double those of Danzig, and not far short of the volume the Teutonic city carried when it handled virtually the whole trade from the Slavic republic. A zloty approximates 19 cents.

Imports, over whose routing Poles presumably have more control than they do over exports, have shifted in ten years in favor of Gdynia even more sharply than have exports. A railroad through the Polish corridor [see map at left], takes goods around the Free City of Danzig, which controls the mouth of the Vistula river. Nazi forts in Danzig would control the narrow strip of land linking Poland to the sea. The Germans have sought a right of way across this corridor to join East Prussia to Germany proper.

BRITISH BUYING DOLLAR BONDS TO GUARD FUNDS

Lloyds Investing Big Sums in America.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The recent selling wave in London's gilt edged market and the steady decline in British war loan issues, which now are nearing the lowest level of the year, have centered attention on the significant change in investment policies of individuals and companies.

As a precautionary measure, in view of the turbulent European situation, many holders of gilt edged stocks are switching into new investment channels which they believe will provide better safeguards for their funds.

Lloyds Buys Dollar Bonds.

Lloyds underwriters, it was revealed this week, are investing up to half, or, according to unofficial estimates, approximately 50 million dollars yearly, of their premium income in American dollar bonds. The decision to put part of the income from premiums in dollar bonds, however, does not automatically imply doubt about the future of sterling, it is emphasized here, but is a necessary precaution against possible outbreak of hostilities.

L. D. Williams, financial writer of the Daily Mail, in disclosing the underwriters' decision to put their money in dollar bonds, said that Lloyds has widespread international obligations extending throughout the world.

Explains British View.

"It is conceivable," he said, "that under present arrangements conditions might arise which in time of war would make it difficult to meet claims arising abroad. If half the investments of underwriters are in dollars it would give added confidence. It is thus in the national interest that a substantial proportion of the resources of Lloyds should be invested in United States dollar securities."

Although Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, recently sought to discourage British investors from buying foreign owned securities, it seems likely that Lloyds decision received the sanction of the British treasury. The purchase of dollar bonds by underwriters, it is said, will be regarded as transactions made in the ordinary course of business and will not come under the ban on investments abroad, which was designed to relieve pressure on sterling exchange.

GRAIN TRADING LIGHT; PRICES LITTLE CHANGED

Corn Firm on Reports of Rainfall Need.

Trading in grain futures yesterday was restricted. Speculators on both sides of the market were inclined to even up their position for over the week-end. Wheat closed unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel lower and corn was ⅛ to ½ cent higher.

Wheat futures held within a range of about 1 cent a bushel. This was due more to lack of aggressive buying than any material pressure, brokers said. The northwest was a moderate seller on the Board of Trade at times, presumably hedging against the steadily enlarging movement of new spring wheat.

Crop Reports Affect Markets.

Unfavorable crop reports from the Canadian northwest had some effect on American wheat markets at times, but Winnipeg failed to reflect uneasiness. That market closed ¼ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower. Liverpool was closed yesterday and will not reopen until Tuesday. Winnipeg will be closed Monday.

Firmness in corn was the result of increasing reports of moisture shortage for the new crop throughout a large part of the main producing area. The weather bureau long range forecast indicated scattered showers and cooler weather the early part of the week, with generally fair and warmer until near the end of the period.

Illinois Needs Rains.

Crop Expert H. C. Donovan in a report from Princeton, Ill., to Thomson & McKinnon, said throughout northern Illinois rain is now needed in many fields. The leaves of the plant have started to dry up.

Although the dryness has not reached the damaging stage there is a well grounded threat that loss will result with another week or ten days of hot, rainless weather, especially on light soil and sandy areas.

Uruguay Rejects American Loan Because of Its Terms

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Aug. 4 (AP).—The official bank of the republic rejected today a $4,000,000 short term loan offered by the United States Export-Import bank because it considered the conditions unsatisfactory. The offer stipulated that the money should be used exclusively to buy North American products and repaid with free exchange not exclusively obtained from future Uruguayan sales to the United States.

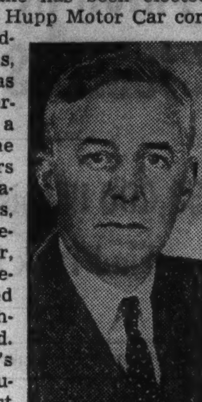
Business Bits

J. Walter Drake has been elected president of the Hupp Motor Car corporation, succeeding S. L. Davis, resigned, it was announced yesterday. Drake is a director and one of the founders of the corporation. Percy Louks, assistant secretary-treasurer, was elected secretary to succeed Edward Rothbart, resigned. Davis, the firm's Chicago distributor, and Rothbart will continue as members of the board.



J. Walter Drake.

Emil Schram, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, announced that Frank M. Murchison, assistant RFC manager in Chicago, had been appointed manager of the agency. Murchison succeeds Fred D. Gallagher.

Joseph Leonard has been elected to the newly created post of chairman of the board of Charis corporation. Leonard, who lives at Allentown, Pa., was secretary and treasurer. He has been a member of the executive staff since 1915, when he was a co-founder of the corporation with the late Louis Margolis, who was head of the firm.

George C. Payne, district manager in Chicago of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, announced that Harold D. Robison, American trade commissioner, will be at the Chicago office of the bureau for trade conference on Aug. 8, 9, and 10. Robison is stationed at Singapore, Straits Settlements.

J. N. Davis of Chicago, for seventeen years commerce counsel for the Milwaukee road, has been appointed general attorney at Seattle, Wash., it was announced yesterday by C. S. Jefferson, general solicitor. Davis will succeed A. N. Whitlock, who recently became general counsel for the railroad, taking the place of O. W. Dynes, who retired. C. L. Taylor, assistant general solicitor, was named commerce counsel. Davis, who entered the road's employ in 1911, is vice president of the Olympia Fields Country club. Promotions were announced for W. L. Hunter and R. W. Spangenberg, now assistant general solicitors.

C. L. Taylor.

Next year's receipts are estimated at 35,000 cattle, 70,000 hogs, and 39,000 sheep compared with 36,624 cattle, 70,562 hogs, and 46,688 sheep a year ago; 37,472 cattle, 43,573 hogs, and 46,341 sheep two years ago, and 51,585 cattle, 60,298 hogs, and 45,384 sheep, three years ago.

UTILITY TO GET BIG CUT IN DEBT AND INTEREST

Through new financing totaling 132 million dollars, the Pennsylvania Power and Light company will effect a reduction of 26 million dollars in its mortgage debt and reduce its interest charges by $1,215,000 the first year, or 20 per cent, compared with the present charges, according to a registration statement on file yesterday.

The $95,000,000 first mortgage 3½ per cent bonds due 1969 and the $28,500,000 of 4½ per cent debentures due 1974 are scheduled for public offering Wednesday by a nation-wide banking group of 125 underwriters headed by the First Boston corporation, Bonbright & Co., and Dillon, Read & Co. In addition, the utility company is selling $8,500,000 of 2⅝ per cent notes to banks.

The proposed issue of debentures which mature in thirty-five years provides for retirement of $850,000 annually, beginning in the eleventh year, sufficient to retire approximately 75 per cent of the total issue by maturity in 1974.

North Western Renewing Inquiry for Freight Cars

With the recent approval of its budget by the federal court, the Chicago and North Western railway has renewed its inquiries for 800 new freight cars, it was learned yesterday. The company had planned to purchase the equipment in the spring, but held up the program pending approval of the budget and appointment of a new trustee.

Principal Indices Show Upward Trend.

index of industrial activity advanced to 92.8 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. It stood at 92.6 per cent a week earlier and at 72.9 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

The magazine Iron Age said the General Motors corporation strike, which ended late in the week, was largely responsible for the decline in steel production. The steel mill operating rate, as estimated by the American Iron and Steel institute, dipped to 59.3 per cent of capacity, from 60.6 per cent in the preceeding week. A year ago production was at the rate of 39.8 per cent of capacity.

Other Statistics Cheerful.

While the increases for the week in most lines of industry were being recorded, additional statistics were made available on earlier periods. As reported by various trade or governmental agencies these showed:

The amount of bituminous coal loaded into Great Lakes vessels at Lake Erie ports in the last week of July was the largest on record for the period. The average number of employés in the steel industry increased in June to 451,000 from 448,000 in May and 425,000 in June, 1938. A private research group's estimate on unemployment in the entire nation indicated the number of jobless declined 424,000 in June, largely as a result of a gradual improvement in private industry. The total number of unemployed was set at 9,552,000, against 10,959,000 in June, 1938.

Chicago's Business Improves.

Business in Chicago in June was better than a year earlier and in most lines showed improvement as compared with May. However, there were declines in live stock processing at the Union Stock Yards, in the volume of transactions on the Chicago Stock exchange and in the amount of money exchanged in Chicago real estate transfers.

An unfavorable showing as compared with a year ago was made by the volume of heavy engineering construction awards in July. The awards totaled $181,469,000, or 19 per cent less than in July, 1938. The volume for the first seven months of 1938 was 18 per cent larger than that of the corresponding 1938 period.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS RISE TO 287 MILLIONS

Bank clearings in Chicago last week rose to $287,400,000, from $274,800,000 in the preceding week and $261,800,000 in the corresponding 1938 week, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. Clearings in July totaled $1,230,000,000, compared with $1,198,800,000 in the 1938 month. The association's report follows:

PRICES OF HOGS AVERAGE LOWEST SINCE JUNE, 1934

Values Slump for Fifth Consecutive Week.

The average price of hogs at the Chicago stock yards last week figured $5.60, the lowest six day average since June, 1934. It was the fifth consecutive week during which prices showed a loss. It marked the longest uninterrupted decline for this season of the year since 1926, a review of the records disclosed yesterday.

Farmers' returns from hogs per 100 pounds have been reduced 31 per cent compared with the August market last year, and are 54 per cent lower than two years ago. The week's average shows a loss of $2.55 a hundred pounds compared with 1938, amounting to a reduction of more than $7.00 a hog. The price was $6.60 under two years ago, equivalent to a cut of $18.50 a head.

Sharp Two Year Decline.

The decline in the market for hogs during the last twenty-four months has been the sharpest two years' break since the collapse of prices in 1920-'22. The corn-hog price ratio this summer has been the most unfavorable since the late summer of 1937, when grain was scarce and high in price as a result of the 1936 drouth.

At current quotations the top light hogs are paying a better price for the grain than the farmer can get for it on the grain market, but the heaviest hogs show little or no margin. It took 14.7 bushels of corn to equal the price of 100 pounds of top grades of hogs at the close of last week, but only ten to eleven bushels to equal the 100 pound price of many of the heaviest butchers sold.

Consumers Save on Pork.

Chicago consumers were offered a saving in pork as live costs at the stock yards sank to new lows. Butcher shop owners obtained top light loins in wholesale channels at $18.00 a hundred pounds, a reduction of $2.00, or 10 per cent, compared with the close of the preceding week. The various cuts of pork moved out of packing plants at 12 to 16 per cent lower prices than prevailed a month ago.

Final rates last week were lowest, with top grades at $6.65 and the final daily average at $5.45. Losses for the six days ranged from 10 to 35 cents with most loss in the lightest stock and the least decline in "lard hogs." Most sows were down 10 to 15 cents for the week, and butchers over 250 pounds ranged from 10 to 25 cents lower. Lighter stock showed reductions of 25 to 35 cents.

Other Live Stock Lower.

Practically all other classes of live stock also slumped during the week. The six day steer average at $9.15 equaled the lowest weekly price since May, 1938. This price compared with $9.25 for the preceding week, $10.55 a year ago and $13.90 two years ago.

The week's loss in steers ranged from 25 to 50 cents. A few fed yearlings were steady, but others broke 50 cents. Cows declined 25 to 50 cents. Hefers ranged from weak to 50 cents lower. Stockers and feeders were down 25 cents. Calves advanced 25 cents.

The week's lamb average declined 25 cents to $8.70, the lowest six day average since the first week of last November. Final rates were 25 to 35 cents under a week earlier.

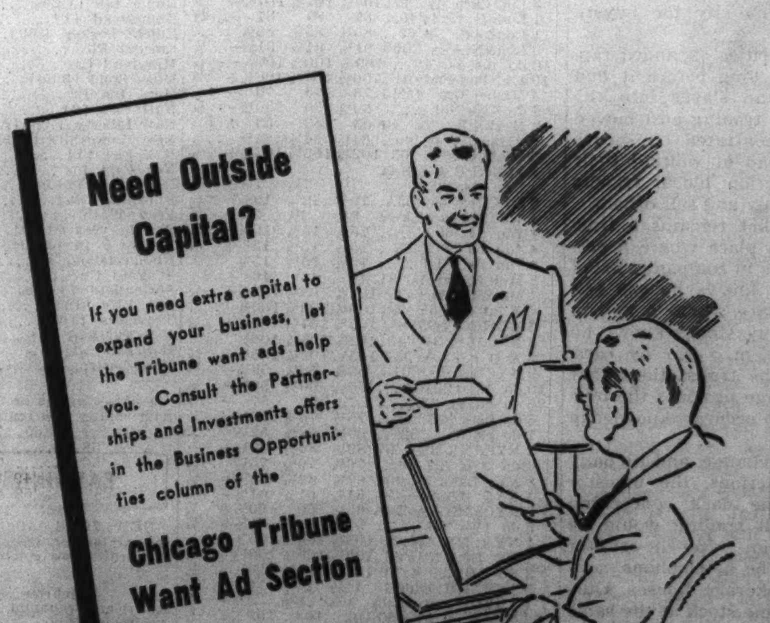
CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT TO MAKE GAIN THIS WEEK

Steel production in the Chicago district is scheduled to start tomorrow at 54.7 per cent of capacity, compared with 54.5 per cent last week. The advance was scored in the face of the temporary shutdown of one independent mill in the area, with virtually all other producers reporting increased activity.

The Chicago rate a month ago was 41.6 per cent, and at this time last year it was 33.6 per cent.

Pittsburgh operations are scheduled for a rise of 2 points to 52 per cent, equaling the high mark of the year.

Youngstown district output will rise 1 point to about 55 per cent of capacity.



WALGREEN JULY SALES 3.7 PCT. ABOVE YEAR AGO

S. S. Kresge Reports Gain; Spiegel a Decline.

July sales of the Walgreen company, totaling $5,657,037, showed an increase of 3.7 per cent over July, 1938, the company reported yesterday. Volume a year ago was $5,456,118. Sales for the seven months ended July 31 were $39,938,776, compared with $37,772,837 in the like period last year, an increase of 5.7 per cent.

S. S. Kresge company reported July sales rose 3.8 per cent to $11,031,221. Sales for the seven months showed a gain of 4.5 per cent, totaling $77,695,111.

Spiegel Reports Decrease.

Spiegel, Inc., sales in July amounted to $2,468,872, a decrease of 9.87 per cent from July last year. Sales for the first seven months of 1939, however, recorded an increase of 5.28 per cent over the 1938 period. The 1939 total was $25,493,116.

Peoples Drug Stores July sales amounted to $1,813,775, a gain of 5.3 per cent over July, 1938. The seven months' sales increased 4.9 per cent to $12,710,228.

TRADE IN BONDS SMALLEST FOR LAST 21 YEARS

New York, Aug. 5 (AP).—The bond market showed little disposition to move in either direction today. Small plus and minus signs throughout the list were relieved only by numerous issues showing no change from Friday's figures. Transfers of $1,388,800, face value, were the smallest in twenty-one years and compared with $1,714,000 last Saturday.

Only six of the thirty-odd government loans crossed the tape during the two hour session. These had a par value of only $40,000 and final prices ranged 5-32 of a point higher to 7-32 lower.

Among foreign dollar issues Panama 5½s gained a point. Milan 6½s lost ⅞.

THE TRADING POST.

We have a letter from a college student in Iowa who states that, in his class on ethics, a slight reference was made to the stock exchange. The reference was not complimentary. Does the stock market do more harm than good, asks our correspondent.

The stock market exists as a clearing house for the transfer of ownership in American corporations. Its function is the same as any other trading center, similar to the general store in a village.

The history of the exchange records the growth of a trading post. This trading post existed underneath a buttonwood tree in front of 68 Wall street, New York. There cereals, tobacco, stocks, wheat, government bonds and slaves were traded.

Goods were sold by auction. When a man had something to sell he mounted the auction block and shouted his wares. Regardless of what they were, slaves, cereals or stocks, they went to the highest bidder. The designation of the buttonwood tree as a trading center was simply a convenience. It was easier than searching the city for buyers and sellers.

Trading in securities expanded rapidly. It was not long before it had pushed cereals and slaves into the background. The trading post moved indoors and concentrated on securities alone. Instead of waiting their turn on the auction block, traders began to match buy and sell orders.

The stock market remains a trading post. It is a place where a person holding stocks in companies listed on the exchange knows he can sell them. It is a place where a person who wishes to buy stocks knows he may purchase them. And by carefully recording the transactions that occur, the exchange provides the buyer and seller with accurate knowledge of prices.

Without the exchange, and its daily record of transactions, the investor would be in the dark concerning stock prices. All trading would be conducted on an over-the-counter basis. It would be a telephone market between brokerage houses. Quotations on the same stock at the same time could be quite widely different, depending upon what telephone wire one got.

The stock market is not something which exists so that people may gamble with their money and call it a "good" thing when they make money and a "harmful" thing when they lose money. It is a trading center which has expanded naturally with the growth of American industry. If it were not there now, the investing public's demand for a liquid, centralized, visible market would undoubtedly create it.

38,000 Illinois Employers Find Task Difficult.

notice as soon as possible. The labor department may then ask for a mass report.

6. A partial employment report. When an employé earns less than 70 per cent of his regular wages [but this must not be more than $16] the employer is required to give the employé a form which advises the employé that he may file a claim for partial benefit compensation.

7. A low earnings report. This is a report which gives the employé valid evidence of his earnings and hours when he is being paid part compensation by his employer. The employé presents this report to the labor department, which may allow him partial unemployment benefit. In depressions companies often try to spread work by giving each employé a day or two of employment. If such compensation is under $16 a week the worker may apply for partial unemployment compensation to make up for what he is losing from his regular pay.

May Demand Sweeping Report.

8. Form No. 61. This is a report on mass partial employment which is made to the labor department. On receipt of such a report the labor department may ask for a mass low earnings report giving in a single statement valid proof as to wages and hours paid part time workers.

9. Form No. 23. This is to be made out in connection with labor disputes. Such forms must be submitted as soon as a strike starts. The department prefers that they be sent when strikes are imminent.

10. In the event of a strike the department may call for a report listing all the employés involved, the causes of the strike, and other information.

The original purpose of the federal legislation which resulted in the enactment of various state compensation acts, including the Illinois law, was said to be a desire to stabilize employment—to level the peaks and fill the valleys of prosperous and dull periods.

Offer Stability Inducements.

In setting up the method for accomplishing this it was decided to reward companies which had stable employment records by reducing the amount of the tax on their pay rolls.

For Illinois the tax on pay rolls is 2.7 per cent. All of it is paid by the employer. The employé contributes nothing. In addition there is a federal tax of 3 per cent. Employers who pay their state pay roll taxes on time, however, get a 2.7 per cent reduction [the amount of the state tax] from the federal government. Thus they pay the government a pay roll tax of only three-tenths of 1 per cent for unemployment compensation. Added to the 2.7 per cent they pay the state, this makes the combined total of a prompt payer 3 per cent. The amount paid the federal government is supposed to be returned to the state to meet administrative costs of the unemployment compensation department.

Get Merit Ratings.

Starting in January, 1943, companies will be given merit ratings on a basis of their record of maintaining stabilized employment. When the merit rating goes into effect the possible minimum state tax on pay rolls would be one-half of 1 per cent. The federal tax of three-tenths of 1 per cent, added to this, would raise the minimum tax to eight-tenths of 1 per cent. The maximum tax would be 3.6 per cent for the state and three-tenths of 1 per cent for the federal government, or a total maximum tax, exclusive of penalty taxes and interest for delinquency, of 3.9 per cent.

The merit rating will be based on employment experience of each company in the three year period 1940, 1941, 1942. Thereafter each merit rating for a given year will be based on the experience of the three preceding years. An actuarial formula devised with the aid of insurance men will be used to arrive at the amount of pay roll tax to be paid.

Tax Penalty Harmful.

Officials of the Illinois labor department said that when the Illinois unemployment compensation act was first considered the imposition of a tax penalty on companies having large labor turnovers was held to be an excellent way to stabilize employment. However, studies disclosed that many companies were forced by the seasonal nature of their business to lay off large number of workers periodically. Therefore, it was found, a tax penalty might even cause insolvency and "dry up" jobs.

Consequently, in fixing tax rates, it was decided that businesses with good labor records must pay more than their records justified in order to help those companies which, through no fault of their own, have what might be called bad labor records.

The officials also said pay roll levies will be computed so that tax rates will be high in years when many persons are laid off and low in years when few are dismissed.

Labor Pool Benefit Seen.

"We feel that the unemployment compensation tax will enable the community to maintain labor pools essential to the conduct of business and industry," an official said. "When employés are laid off they will be able to get state aid to tide them over the period during which they are out of work. We feel industry should consider the maintenance of a labor pool as a proper charge against operations."

Although the idea of levying penalties on companies with large labor turnovers was modified, state officials said companies having stable pay rolls will benefit nevertheless. It will be to the advantage of a company to have as few labor changes as possible. The more stable the pay roll the greater chance there is of paying the minimum pay roll tax.

For this reason company employés charged with keeping records on workers must be alert in complying with all regulations established by the unemployment compensation division of the department of labor.

For example, there is a rule that requires an employer to notify the department by mail within forty-eight hours after a person has been discharged or has quit voluntarily. If this is not done the department assumes that the employé merely has been laid off and therefore is entitled to all unemployment benefits. Thus it will be seen that if an employer discharges a man for drunkenness, and fails to report it, the discharged employé can collect as much as a reliable worker who has been dismissed because economy dictated it. Should the dismissal for drunkenness be reported promptly, however, the discharged employé is disqualified from receiving benefits for a stipulated period. Costly failures in filing these reports naturally would affect the company's tax under its merit rating.

Worker's Task Heavy, Too.

Although the employer has a burden, all is not easy for the laid off worker who must apply for compensation. First of all he must wait two weeks after leaving a position before he is entitled to receive benefit checks. If he gets a job within the two weeks he gets no benefits. And all the emphasis is on getting a job.

Each person receiving benefit checks must report to the department of labor weekly, and he must be ready to take a job if it is offered him. He signs a statement that he is available and ready for work. If he happens to be out fishing when the labor department calls to tell him a job is available his benefit may be canceled.

A worker need not accept a position if he feels that it will impair his morals, if it is too distant from his home, or if it has certain other disadvantages.

The amount of benefit a worker gets is determined by his calender year earnings, whereas the benefit year starts on April 1. The weekly benefit, according to the law, "shall be an amount equal to 5 per cent of his total wages for insured work during that quarter of his base period in which such total wages were the highest, except that if such amount is more than $16 the weekly benefit shall be deemed to be $16."

Minimum Benefit $7 a Week.

The minimum benefit is $7 a week, and this is raised to accord with the wages used as a basis for arriving at the benefit. The maximum benefit period is sixteen weeks in one benefit year.

Persons who leave jobs without good cause are ineligible to collect benefits for the week in which they leave and for at least five weeks thereafter. Persons discharged for cause are ineligible to collect benefits for the week of their discharge and for a period of not more than five weeks thereafter. There are a number of other reasons for ineligibility. After certain periods, however, benefits may be paid.

One point in favor of the employer is that the first week of unemployment compensation is not recorded against him. This means that if an employer has a three week period in which he must keep his plant closed he can lay off his workers for three weeks, including the two weeks in which the compensation does not take effect, and call them back to work at the conclusion of their three weeks of idleness without having any record to impair his merit rating.

Roosevelt Signs Measure for Ship Trade-In Grants

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5 (AP).—President Roosevelt signed into law today a bill permitting shipowners to trade in their obsolescent vessels with the maritime commission, the trade-in value to be applied to new construction. Vessels taken in by the commission will be retired and added to its laid up fleet. The act also reduces the annual charter cost for commission-owned vessels.

MOTORISTS TAKE DETOURS TO GET ON OUTER DRIVE

Park District Makes Study of Distorted Flow.

BY HAL FOUST.

A large portion of the motorists of the south and southwest sides are detouring as much as five miles from a direct route so as to use the Outer drive on their trips between downtown and their homes. From Beverly Hills every morning a throng of cars moves east in 95th street to Stony Island avenue and thence north to reach the safe and fast lake front boulevard in Jackson park. From Englewood, there is a heavy flow east in Garfield boulevard to the lake front.

This distorted trafic flow is shown in origin and destination studies by the Chicago Park district. It was verified by a $477,781 WPA trafic survey completed for the city of Chicago last week.

Trafic Obstructs Direct Routes.

One familiar reason for southsiders' swinging far east from a direct course is that more direct routes are obstructed by heavy truck and street car trafic, by parking, by pedestrian shoppers, and by cross trafic. The WPA survey brought to light a second reason—only a small portion of the trafic entering the central business district is destined for the southwestern section of this district.

The federal government's 12 hour count on the cordon of the central business district tallied only 3,805 vehicles using the South Wells street approach; 5,748 using South Clark street; 2,253 for Polk street; 13,476 for Harrison street [serves postoffice]; 6,694 for Van Buren street; and 13,805 for Jackson boulevard. In contrast, on the northwest approaches, 17,730 was the Washington street count; 9,538 for Randolph street; 14,620 for Lake street; 18,771 for Franklin street; 7,703 for Wells street; and 21,185 for La Salle street.

Enters Via Outer Drive.

The heavy movement from the south side, of course, entered the central business district via the Outer drive. The 12 hour tally there was 43,873. South Michigan avenue was second for the south side with 19,245.

The busiest entrance to downtown was shown to be North Michigan avenue. The tally for both levels of the Michigan avenue bridge was 52,299 as compared with 31,065 for the Outer link bridge.

Aside from the Outer drive and Michigan avenue, the Chicago Motor club yesterday reported that some south siders are using Western avenue and Ashland avenue to reach Ogden avenue and thence via Washington boulevard to enter the loop north of Madison street, the section of the loop that is more common destination. Canal street or State street to connect with widened Archer avenue carries a few south siders and a few others use Canal street to 28th street and thence south in Union avenue.

Lacks Continuous Streets.

"The southwest," said George Barton, engineer for the motor club, "lacks in continuous streets. Many are blocked by railroad yards, parks, stockyards, industrial plants, or the river.

"East and west distributing streets between 22d street and 55th street are almost nil. For example, 31st street is good from Kostner avenue to California avenue, but then it's blocked east to Bishop street. From Bishop street, it's continuous to the Outer drive. The city, county, and state are petitioning the Illinois commerce commission for permission to open this closed section of 31st under railroad yards."

To receive a maximum benefit from a proposed superhighway west from the central business district, Barton urged that one-way trafic streets should be planned as connections. Tentative routes for the superhighway would use the I. and M. canal bed east as far as California avenue or Western avenue and thence continue downtown by way of Archer avenue or Blue Island avenue.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Exhibits of 300 manufacturers will be shown at the sixth annual exposition of the Automobile Accessories association which opens tomorrow at Navy Pier, according to R. Garland Ames, manager. The showing, in addition to automobile accessories, will include bicycles, radios, tools, and other equipment sold in accessory stores. The exposition is not open to the public.

"We expect 4,000 or more buyers to attend the exposition," Ames said. "Last year 2,560 buyers placed orders for $4,000,000 of business, and we expect sales this year to total $5,000,000 or more."

Lynn S. Snow, president of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, announces that the association's membership, already at the highest point since organization, has been augmented by the addition of six dealers. They are Gerry Semmes Motor Sales, A. and D. Motor Sales, M. and C. Motor company, Village Chevrolet, Wilmette, and L. W. Shanesy and Harrington Motors, both of Evanston.

Charles L. Jacobson, vice president of the Chrysler corporation, led a delegation of Chicago Chrysler dealers with high sales records on a recent tour which included both the New York and San Francisco expositions.

Ford, Mercury, Zephyr, and Lincoln owners who encounter unexpected expenses during their travels will be able to solve their problems under a new "emergency credit certificate" plan of the Universal Credit company. Under the plan, the dealer will supply tires or accessories and provide emergency repairs, and the owner will repay the credit company.

In heavy lines, this map as prepared by the Chicago Motor club shows how residents of Englewood and Beverly Hills detour as much as five miles to use the lake front in motoring to and from the loop.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

POSTED SPEEDS UNINFORMATIVE.

Chicago, July 28.—To exhibit my bias at once, I confess to having been arrested for speeding on the outer drive north, twice within the present year. This is admittedly reprehensible and demonstrates, no doubt, a deplorable slackness in the fine discipline that marks the good citizen.

However, in the interests of fair play, I feel strongly that the whole question of speeding on the outer drive needs a bit of clarification. By law, I believe the official limit is 35 m. p. h. If this limit were enforced, particularly for the morning loop bound motorist, his return from his investment in the drive, a truly fine engineering masterpiece, would be depreciated considerably.

As a matter of readily observable fact, the police permit trafic to move from 45 to 50 m. p. h. at 7:30 to 8 a. m. During the evening rush hours it moves just as fast as possible, and certainly in excess of the official limit the greater part of the time.

Now, the unwary individual who essays to get home over the same route in the early morning, say at 1, 2 or 3 a. m., at 50 m. p. h., and with little or no trafic to contend with, is in imminent danger of reading off his vital statistics to a polite but unsympathetic police officer. Admit the right to be up and about at any of the above mentioned hours, and it seems to me that the heinousness of 50 m. p. h. is somewhat mitigated by the foregoing facts.

Certainly to base a fine in such case on a non existent, or rather non observed official limit, smacks strongly of the same type of speed trap psychology THE TRIBUNE has been effective for so many years in combating.

In my own second offense, 54 m. p. h. at 3:25 a. m., I make no complaint—I was well treated. But with five months still to brave the not-too-remote possibility and consequent tragedy of a third speeding charge of 38, 42 or even 45 m. p. h., I earnestly and quite honestly feel that the public attention should be directed toward a round-the-clock enforcement, or modernizing of the present speed limit.

Let the motorist know where he stands—certainly he pays the state for the privilege.

P. N. BALDWIN.

COMPLAINS AGAINST KENOSHA COPS.

Chicago, July 23.—This letter is written to warn the motoring public of a racket being conducted in the city of Kenosha, Wis., which is nothing short of piracy, perpetrated in this instance by officers in the squad detail.

I had entered the city from the northern limits and was traveling on a very rough brick pavement, which is designated as a boulevard, and moving with the rest of the trafic when the squad car pulled beside me with siren shrieking to the heavens [to instill the fear of the law, I suppose] and I was ordered to pull over to the curb, where I was accused of speeding 55 miles per hour. I was escorted to the station where the clerk was told that although I was traveling 55 miles per hour that I should be booked for going 40 m. p. h. When I protested that I was not even going 25 m. p. h. for my gas tank was empty and I was looking for a gas station, I was told that the jail was a hot place to spend the night. The hint was sufficient, but was repeated several times in the ensuing hour that I was detained. When I told the officers that I did not have a sufficient amount of cash for bail they demanded that I allow them to remove the spare tire in addition to all the cash that I had.

When I told the clerk that the other passenger in the car was my aged father, and that he had heart trouble and was being brought to Chicago, he realized the inhuman act that was taking place and returned $2 of the fifteen that had been taken for bail in order that I could buy gas to get home with.

A local gas station attendant told me that I was only one of many victims that had been preyed upon over the holiday, and that one victim had been fined $50 for a minor trafic violation. If this is a sample of the keeping of law and order in Kenosha I think that it is high time that the service organizations joined hands and put a stop to such outlawry.

DOUBLE DECKED SUPERS.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—As an engineer who has spent considerable time in the study of transportation problems in larger cities, I shall ask the privilege to offer a few comments on the superhighway design as suggested by Ralph R. Leffler, chief structural engineer of the sanitary district of Chicago, and published in your article in the SUNDAY TRIBUNE of two weeks ago.

The double deck super highway system as suggested by Mr. Leffler has many advantages over a single deck design, and if constructed will entirely eliminate the present trafic chaos in our city streets. The writer has discussed this particular double deck design with a considerable number of prominent engineers, and he feels that the many favorable comments on this design should be conveyed to yourself and your great newspaper. I may in this connection say that on an average ten to one have favored a double deck design for the following reasons:

1. Economy. A double deck structure with a total width of 27 feet can be built on our existing 66 foot streets with ample room on either side for sidewalk and one trafic lane with two additional such lanes under the structure. There is probably one objection to a double row of columns in the street, but a slight change in the design to Vierendeel transverse trusses probably will allow such columns to be placed at the edge of the sidewalk and thus entirely out of trafic. Realizing that a major part of such a highway system would be built along our 66 foot streets the enormous saving in the cost of right of way and lengthy real estate condemnation proceedings provide one of the strongest factors in the argument for a double deck design.

2. Beauty. The double deck highway lends itself more easily to architectural treatment than does that of a single deck, and its total height is far less than twice that of a one level road. The structural members of a one deck 80 foot span will occupy several feet of dead space, which provides an unsightly appearance from the street level; moreover, the additional width required for a one deck road would darken the street and make ventilation difficult and driving hazardous on the street level.

3. Operation. The feature that the entire one deck can be devoted to trafic in one direction, with trafic on the other deck in the opposite direction, is an important factor and would reduce accidents on a high speed road of this kind. The multistory garages for terminal facilities, so badly needed, are also easily constructed at a comparatively low cost.

I will, in conclusion, congratulate Mr. Leffler on his comprehensive, practical, and economical solution of the trafic problem of our city. Such, or a similar super highway system, would be ample in every respect to meet both present and future transportation needs of Chicago, and would also be within the limits of available funds. The writer earnestly hopes that this, or a similar general design, should be given a fair chance in the study of a super highway system for the city of Chicago.

STOP LIGHT NEEDED.

Chicago, July 29.—As a resident of the west side all my life, living in the district bounded by Pulaski road, Cicero avenue, Madison street and 5th avenue I resent the apparent lack of interest in the safety of those who must cross Jackson boulevard between Pulaski and Cicero.

If you want to cross the street it is necessary to dart out in front of trafic going in one direction and then wait in the middle of the street for another opportunity to cross the rest of the way. Did you ever try to cross the boulevard with a baby buggy? You should try it some time.

Why can't at least one stop light be installed between Pulaski and Cicero? I for one would gladly walk a block or more out of my way just so that I could cross where there was a stop light. On Washington boulevard there are stop lights at each block. Do the people on and near Washington boulevard pay more taxes than those living in the vicinity of Jackson?

How about doing something about the situation before some one is killed or injured for life? I hesitate to let my wife shop on Madison street because of the danger to be faced in crossing the boulevard.

SOUTH SIDE TO JOIN IN MUSIC FETE

ALL'S QUIET FOR REMINISCING IN KUEHNE HOME

Old Settlers Tell of Vivid Memories.

BY PAUL HEALY.

In a way the Kuehnes of 8243 South Halsted street are typical of most of the city's old settlers. They're the thrifty, steady, hard working pioneer type without which the tough, sprawling "hog butcher" that was Chicago sixty years ago probably would not have been able to stride forward to profit and power. You feel that after a few minutes conversation with Emma Kuehne, white haired and 79 years old, who has run the homestead on Halsted street since her marriage to Lewis Kuehne in 1898.

The homestead is a frame cottage, tiny now compared with the great factories and apartment houses that have shot up around it during the twentieth century. It's a nineteenth century house, with three rocking chairs, portraits in massive gilt frames, and a kitchen twice the size of the living room. Thus it's the correct setting for Emma Kuehne when she speaks of lusty young Chicago and whimsically punctuates her conversation with "And how!" and "You said it!"

Prize Winning Family.

Of course, Mrs. Kuehne will be at the sixty-fifth Old Settlers gathering tomorrow in Harms' park at Western and Berteau avenues. She has been attending this annual outing sponsored by the Chicago Turngemeinde almost as long as it has existed.

"We've won prizes, too," she says proudly. "A few years ago Lewis was given the award for working the longest with one company—he retired after working for over fifty years with the Western Indiana railroad. And in 1881 my father got the same prize at the picnic: He was a printer."

Emma and Lewis live alone in the frame cottage now, but it has not always been so quiet. Until recently their son, Charles, who now resides at 2124 Sedgwick street, was with them and before that they raised four of Lewis' sons by an earlier marriage, Hugo, Henry, Herbert, and Lewis Jr.

In those days, hints Mrs. Kuehne, the place often took on the aspects of a menagerie. At various times they have kept chickens, ducks, turkeys, pigeons, and rabbits. This was prudent. During the war, she points out, when prices were so high, she used to make noodles with ducks' eggs.

Many vivid scenes crowd Emma's memories. Most of them revolve around the Chicago fire and her ambitions to be a milliner and to travel.

Sees Flaming Embers.

"At the time of the fire," she recalls, "we were living on Jefferson street between Van Buren and Harrison. I remember it had been dry for so long you'd think the woodwork was going to light up and burn. We awoke when we heard screams and the noise of people running in the street. We rushed out and saw flaming boards hurtling through the air.

"It was a deadly dry, scorching wind—with a peculiar sort of lifting tendency. Luckily it turned west and missed our place, but I'll never forget the sight of children running every which way, calling for their lost parents!"

As far back as she can trace in her mind Mrs. Kuehne says she had the desire to travel. As a girl she knew her only opportunity was to become a nursemaid for a rich family. It was in this capacity that she was subsequently able to tour the southwest, the eastern seaboard, and England.

First Trip at 18.

On her first trip, when she was 18, she went to Galveston, Tex., and found a city that was "nothing but red sand and lawless citizens, but with lots of wholesale houses and everybody seeming to do a good business." She saved her money and took a boat to Key West, then a train to New York.

"People on the boat had told me never to speak to strangers, and I took care of that. When I got to Brooklyn I was stopped first by a man, then by a woman within the first few blocks. I never answered them."

She was born on the near north side on July 27, 1860, the daughter of Rudolph and Henrietta Julius. Her father's people had been china painters in Dresden and her mother's family were linen manufacturers. Both had excellent businesses, she emphasizes, but they came to America, anyway.

"I did not want to get married," she says, "but people talked me into it. They told me Lewis was a good man—and they were right!" The marriage took place on June 26, 1898. Lewis Kuehne had come to America from Germany in 1883.

Today she looks and feels in good health, even though she had to survive what she terms "seventeen complications," including hardening of the arteries, broken legs, a weak heart, neuritis, and a stomach which has "dropped" mysteriously. She can't understand why she has lived so long. The 1,400 page tome, "Health and Longevity," lying on the dining room table she dismisses with a shrug.

"We never read it," she says, "because we can't understand it."

It's Summertime in Boys' Clubs Camps

Three little skippers all in a row
Standing by their sails for the wind to blow.
Little gust of wind caught them like a gale

Bumped IV. and V. before they could sail.
II. came through at a mighty pace
Skipper Gene Murray won the 'squito race!

And this little drama occurred last week at the Chicago Boys' clubs' summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind., where 400 boys are living in the great outdoors. The three skippers, Gene Murray of No. II. and Richard and Robert Abenstein of No. IV. and V., respectively, are members of the Woodlawn Boys' club, located over the police station at 6344 Harper avenue. PARISH TO BUILD SOCIAL CENTER COSTING $150,000

Will Relieve Crowding in Grammar School.

Construction of a $150,000 community center for Visitation parish, 843 West Garfield boulevard, will be started by the end of October, according to present plans, it was announced last week by Msgr. Daniel Byrnes, pastor. The building, which is expected to take about six months to complete, will cover 140 feet by 120 feet at 924 West Garfield boulevard.

The old hall, which formerly had been used for the parish gymnasium, thus will be able to accommodate some of the 1,600 grammar school pupils who will enroll in September. Because of the largest first grade registration in the 54 year history of the parish, plus 730 girls in the Visitation High school, two rooms in the old hall will be made into classrooms.

Will Have Stage.

The new center will include a gymnasium, auditorium, showers, stage, projection booth and sodality rooms. The facilities will encourage more dances and athletic activity, according to Msgr. Byrnes.

Part of the funds to pay for the community center will be provided by a carnival to be held at Peoria street and 54th place from Sept. 15 to 25. The event will be sponsored by committees from the Holy Name society, the Blessed Sacrament society, and the young ladies' sodality.

Holy Name society officers are Robert Harrigan, president; Gene Petit, vice president; Michael Lenihan, financial secretary; Jerry Kearns, secretary, and Andy Jordan, treasurer.

Other Society Officers.

Blessed Sacrament society officers are Helen McDermott, president; Mrs. Ida McGinnis, vice president; Mrs. Sabina O'Malley, treasurer; Mrs. Helen Brennan, financial secretary; Mrs. Catherine Ronquist, recording secretary. The young ladies' sodality's president is Miss Nell Gallagher.

Assisting Msgr. Byrnes are the following curates: The Rev. Cornelius Murray, the Rev. John Murphy, the Rev. George Mulcahy, the Rev. Stephen O'Donnell, and the Rev. Donald Carroll.

HARVEY FIREMEN READY TO OFFER ACCIDENT AID

The opening of a highway emergency first aid station in the Harvey fire station has been announced by James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross. Arrangements for the training and establishment of the chapter's latest unit were made through the coöperation of Fire and Police Commissioner Arthur Turngren and Fire Chief Charles Madsen, who will be in charge.

Twenty-three members of the police, fire, and waterworks departments completed the required course of training in Red Cross first aid. Instruction covered emergency treatment for fractures, cuts, sprains, asphyxiation, and other common afflictions.

When highway accidents occur in the vicinity, volunteer first aid treatment will be available to the victims until the services of a physician can be obtained.

St. Leo Society to Have Benefit Party Tomorrow

The annual pantry shower and card party for the sisters of St. Leo's school will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in Leo High school hall, 79th and Peoria streets. The event is being sponsored by the St. Leo Altar and Rosary society, of which Mrs. P. J. Byrne, 8059 Peoria street, is president.

HAPHAZARD DRIVERS TO RECEIVE LESSON IN A. B. C.'S OF SAFETY

To educate motorists against lane-straddling, weaving, too slow driving and the failure to use proper hand signals, civic and improvement organizations affiliated with the south area council of the Chicago Motor club last week joined in support of the state-wide "Keep-to-the-Right" campaign instituted by Charles M. Hayes, president of the club.

Charles M. Hayes.

Roy F. Healy, chairman of the council, said that delegates from the affiliate groups would enlist their members in distributing pamphlets prepared by the motor club safety bureau containing instructions on safe driving principles. The drive is designed to eliminate the type of trafic accidents which caused more than half the fatalities in the state, according to Mr. Hayes.

James P. Allman, Chicago police commissioner; James B. Kerr, head of the park district police; Lester Laird, chief of the county highway police, and Chief Walter Williams of the state police all assured the motor club that squad car crews and motorcycle men would concentrate efforts on warning motorists of the danger of these practices.

GIRL PREACHER LEADS THOBURN SERVICES TODAY

"In Praise of United Methodism" will be title of the sermon to be delivered by the Rev. Uldine Utley at the Thoburn Methodist church, 64th and Paulina streets, at 11 o'clock this morning. The Rev. Miss Utley was ordained in the Thoburn Methodist church three years ago and has a national reputation as the "girl evangelist." She began preaching when she was 9 years old.

Miss Utley will also preach at 7:30 o'clock, using for her theme, "Religion and the World of Tomorrow." The Thoburn choir of 75 voices will sing and the soloist will be Archer Ballantine, director of the choir. Other musical features will be a piano solo by Hermann Meyer and a cornet solo by Russell Major, accompanied by Mrs. Major.

The Rev. John P. Stafford, pastor of the Julia Gay Memorial Methodist church and former president of the Englewood Ministerial association, will have charge of the morning service and present the speaker. The Rev. John H. DeLacy will have charge of the evening service and E. V. Moorman of Quincy, one of the outstanding laymen of the Illinois Conference of the Methodist church, will present the speaker.

Blue Island Eagles' Lodge Planning for Picnic Sunday

The annual picnic and frolic of Blue Island aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be held next Sunday at Riverdale Gardens, Indiana avenue and the Calumet river. All members of the order, their familes and friends are invited to attend. George Denner, aerie president, and Arleigh Bordner, chairman of the entertainment committee, both of West Pullman, are arranging the event. The committee has planned dancing, games, races, and other attractions. Awards for the contests have been contributed by business men in Blue Island and vicinity.

EXPERT BAKERS TO VIE IN K. OF C. PICNIC CONTEST

Perez Council Gathers for Outing Today.

Old fashioned home baking may be a lost art in many parts of Chicago but it won't look like it today at Sunset park, 138th street and Archer avenue. There votes of picnickers will decide which are the most attractive home made cakes and pies so that awards may be presented to the best bakers. It will be a novel feature in the annual picnic sponsored by Father Perez council of the Knights of Columbus, which is expected to draw nearly 5,000 persons.

Sports and Dancing.

Besides the cake and pie baking contest, which will be held shortly after the noon hour at the exhibit booth in the picnic grove, softball, horseshoes, and dancing will be available for every one all day. Games and races will start at about 2:15 p. m. As in former picnics, each boy and girl entering the first four racing contests will receive a certificate entitling him or her to ice cream.

Patrick A. Barton, 6135 South Paulina street, is general chairman of the committees. Other committee heads are as follows: Games, E. J. Johnson, 1711 West 80th street; prizes, F. J. Kasper, 6541 South Harper street; reception, John S. Reiner, 7158 Crandon avenue; publicity, E. L. Klinger, 7400 South Racine avenue; transportation, Joseph Sherman, 1000 West Marquette road; parking, T. B. Rynam, 5522 Elizabeth street; cake and pie contest, Rudolph Gesswin, 6347 South Hoyne avenue; grounds, John P. Malone, 6428 Justine street; dance, William Fish, 8229 South Justine street; refreshments, Earl Evans, 6447 South Bishop street, and Kenneth Royhl, 1214 West 72d place.

Others on Committees.

Finance, H. F. Henrichs, 1545 West 61st street; ways and means, Frank Froede, 7736 East End avenue; equipment, Alex J. Metzger, 6710 South May street; first aid, Dr. T. A. Klein, 2943 West 63d street, Dr. M. H. Pauly, 1158 West Marquette road, and Dr. Nicholas Pavletic, 6254 South Ashland avenue; booths, John W. Cassidy, 1617 West 58th street, and Harry McCorry, 2053 West 70th place.

BETHANY CHURCH PASTOR TO START ON VACATION

"The Face of Jesus Christ" or "Is Christ a Person to Us?" is the title of the sermon to be given by Dr. Harry J. Hager at 7:30 o'clock this evening at the Bethany Reformed church. It will be Dr. Hager's last sermon before leaving on vacation. At the morning service he will speak on "Can A Christian Lose Salvation?"

The male quartet of the Cicero Bible church will sing at the Bethany Bible broadcast this afternoon from 5 to 5:30 o'clock. The quartet, which is known as the "Four Men of Song" is composed of James Vander List, tenor; Henry Smith, second tenor; Larry Holm, baritone, and George Thomas, bass.

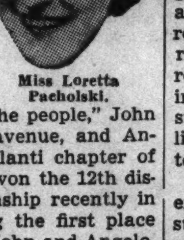
"The Crescent Eight" will sing on the daily Bethany Family Altar program from 7 to 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning over station WHIP.

Fort Dearborn K. of C. to Hold Picnic Today

More than a thousand persons are expected to attend the Fort Dearborn Knights of Columbus picnic today at Frank Simons grove, 117th street and Homan avenue. General chairman for the affair is James O'Connor, and co-chairmen are Joseph Ciambroni and John Engeln. Robert Dumais is grand knight of Fort Dearborn.

OUR TOWN

RECENTLY elected president, Miss Loretta Pacholski, 5718 South Wolcott avenue, has taken over her position as head of the Vel's Girls club. The other new officers are Miss Veronica Welch, vice president; Miss Francis Fox, secretary, and Miss Ella Jean Anderson, treasurer.



Miss Loretta Pacholski.

Painting a forceful negative picture on "Resolved, that democracy as practiced in America today is responsive to the needs of the people," John Kotselas, 3410 Ellis avenue, and Angelo Geocaris of Ypsilanti chapter of the Sons of Pericles won the 12th district debate championship recently in Moline. In capturing the first place trophy Our Towners John and Angelo, both University of Chicago students, defeated the Moline team and earned the right to represent the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Missouri in the national tournament Aug. 21 in Providence, R. I.

Five thousand residents of Slavish descent are expected to attend the second annual picnic of the Eastern Rite Catholic association of the Calumet district today at the Shrine of the Seven Dolors, seven miles southeast of Gary on route 6. The Rev. Sylvester Jankola, father superior in the monastery at the shrine, will be the principal speaker. Fourteen parishes will be represented.

OUR TOWN doffs the hat to George H. Smith, 6524 Stewart avenue, who last week was appointed assistant to the president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway company, as announced by C. T. O'Neal, the president. He has a record of 29 years of service with the company. In 1910 he entered the employ of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad as stenographer to the resident engineer in charge of construction of the line from Herrin to Metropolis.

George H. Smith.

Six months later he joined the staff of the Chicago and Eastern Railway company as stenographer to the division engineer at Salem. He held positions from timekeeper to chief division accountant while at Salem, and in 1916 was transferred to the controler's office in Chicago as traveling accountant. Later he became general accountant, and in 1921 chief clerk to the controler. He was promoted to assistant controler July 1, 1938,

The federated women's auxiliary of the Church of the Messiah, active in behalf of St. Luke's social service, has added a Red Cross surgical dressing class to its activities, under the direction of Mrs. C. S. McAtee, 8045 Kimbark avenue.

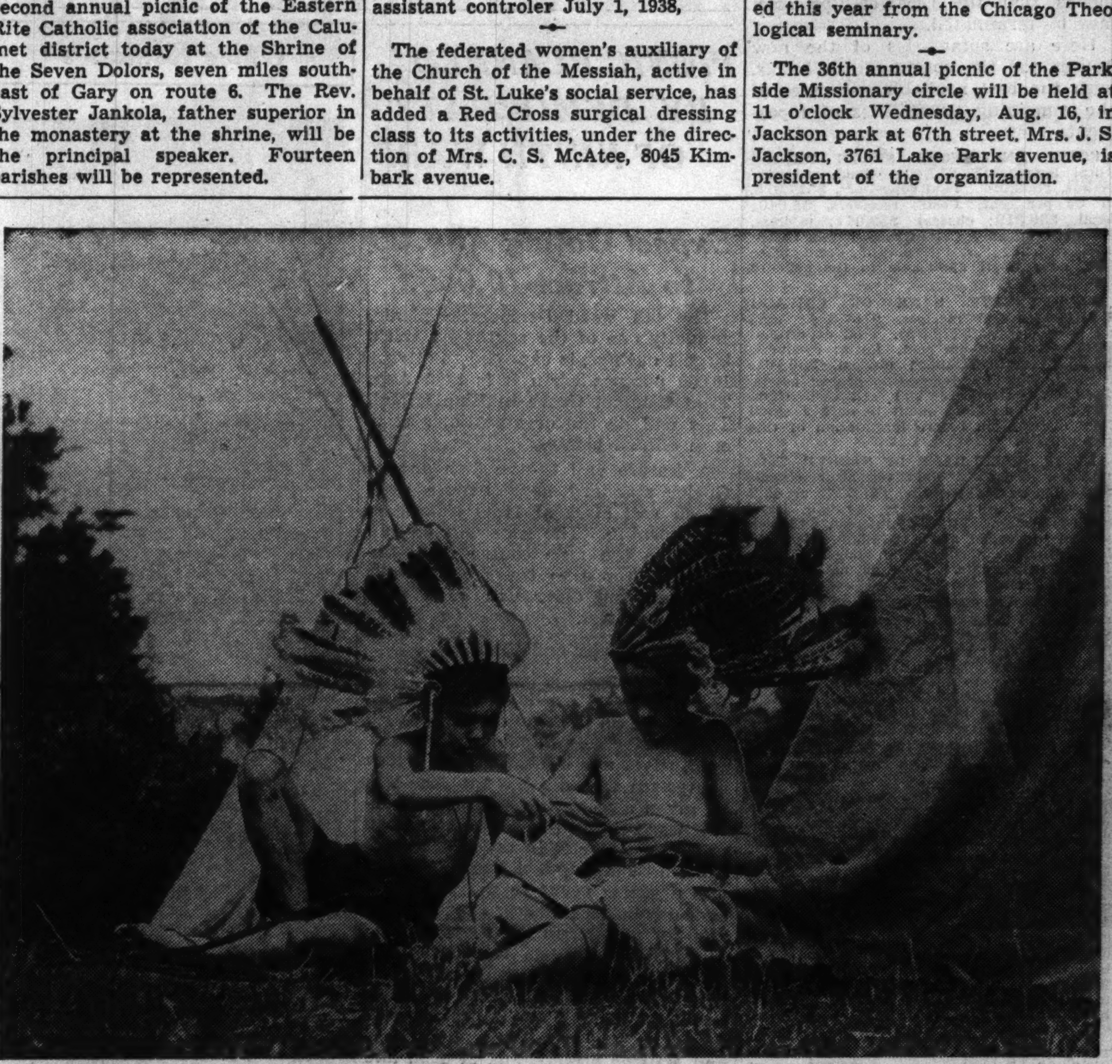
R. E. EVANS, member of the Hyde Park Lions club, is carrying his left arm in a sling and insists he fell off a scaffold on a private yacht tied to the dock and broke his wrist. Amos W. Cole, the secretary of the organization, maintains that it all "sounds fishy," but Mr. Evans sticks to his story.

Vacationing members of the club are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cricks, visiting the east and the fair, and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hurt, enjoying two weeks in Michigan.

"At home at 1934 East 74th street." That is the message for the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Cone, who were married recently. She is the daughter, Ruth Helen, of Mrs. Helen Byrne Dennenberg, 4312 North Ashland avenue, and William C. Dannenberg, 401 Fullerton parkway. Mr. Cone is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt L. Cone, 5401 Cornell avenue. The bride and bridegroom attended the University of Illinois where they were members of Delta Gamma sorority and Kappa Sigma fraternity,

On vacation in Mexico, the Rev. Richard G. Douglas sends word that the guest minister at the South Shore Community church today will be the Rev. Arlan Baillie, who was graduated this year from the Chicago Theological seminary.

The 36th annual picnic of the Parkside Missionary circle will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday, Aug. 16, in Jackson park at 67th street. Mrs. J. S. Jackson, 3761 Lake Park avenue, is president of the organization.



Meanwhile up on Indian hill two would-be braves are concentrating on a beaded belt in preparation for the big powwow which will be held soon. Big Chief Jack Van Stock, 6355 Blackstone avenue (left), is considered an authority because his mother is a full blooded Cherokee Indian. Bob Peteress, another member of the Woodlawn branch, boasts no redskin blood, but his interest is just as great in the job at hand.

HILLINI REUNION TO AID JEWISH REFUGEE FUNDS

Several thousand graduates and students of the University of Illinois will take part in a reunion program Wednesday evening, Aug. 16, at the Edgewater Beach hotel to raise funds for the Jewish student refugee fund.

The program, known as Hillini Reunion night, will include open air dancing on the hotel's boardwalk and a floor show. The reunion has been planned by members of the Hillel foundation at the school and is under the direction of Dr. A. L. Sachar, national head of the foundation. He will be assisted by Al Hollender, of the class of '34, and M. E. Herzog, '33.

Alumni of the university as far back as 1920 have been invited to the reunion. Members of the executive committee in charge of ticket selling and arrangements include Dorothy Cole, Shirley Weil, Shirley Wolfson, Mrs. Ralph Wishneff, Rosalyn Friedlander, and Ruth Metzger.

Others include Bernice Silverstein, June Levine, Milton E. Goodman, Martin Block, Raymond Wallenstein, Robert Adler, Robert Lubliner, Fred Hochberg, Seymour Price, Victor Yaffe, Joseph Steinberg, Jack Rubin, Al Epstein, Robert Silverman, Ralph Silverstein, Macey Gordon, George Blanksten, Paul Simon, Edward Wolf, Norman Trossman, Bernice Swerinsky, Hirsch Evanstein, Leonard Cohen, Robert Brook, Arthur Malkus Heim, and Ann Jarnitsky.

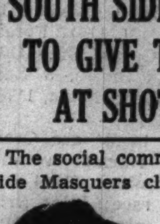
The purpose of the student fund is to afford security, homes and education to Jewish students from Nazi Germany.

St. Anne's Scouts and Cubs Start 'Round Lake Outing

St. Anne's Episcopal choir Boy Scout troop and Cub pack are beginning their first days of camp life this week-end at Round lake. The vacation is a gift of the church Men's club and the camp site was donated by Del Smith of Round Lake. Leaders of the club are Dewey Norman, chairman; Walter Kalas, secretary and treasurer; Joseph Gruner, camp overseer; Harold Swager; George Hahn; Ernest Kresbe; Adam Hoffman; Joseph Bugielski; Sam Green, and Frederick O. Jewell, scoutmaster, cubmsater, and choirmaster. Chaplain of the troop is the Rev. William Reed.

SOUTH SIDE MASQUERS TO GIVE TEA SUNDAY AT SHOTWELL HALL

The social committee of the South Side Masquers club will give a tea next Sunday for members and guests in Shotwell hall, 1442 East 55th street. The club's work program for the fall also has been planned and includes voice diction, expression, body technique, stage technique, play production, readings, choral readings, and personality development.



Donald Keep. [Ray Studios.]

Miss Mayme V. Sims is dramatic teacher and director of the organization. Officers are Donald Keep, 1515 East 65th street, president; Miss Lillian Hare, 7722 Evans avenue, vice president; Miss Helen Louise Carr, 4637 Lake Park avenue, secretary; Eugene Carr, 4637 Lake Park avenue, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are Joseph MacNamara, 4724 Drexel boulevard, house chairman; Dorothy Mazen, 2468 East 72d street, membership; Kathryn Sherman, Western Springs, publicity, and William Cranegie Jr., 11912 Stewart avenue, stage.

CITY SWIMMING TRIALS TO START NEXT SATURDAY

Entries for the park district swimming tournament to be held in Riis park on Aug. 19 will close tomorrow, it was announced by V. F. Hernlund, supervisor of physical activities. Preliminaries for the south and southwest sides will be held in Bessemer and Sherman park pools Saturday, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Winners of first and second place in the eliminations will advance to the finals, which will be held in three age classes. The junior class is for boys and girls from 12 to 14 years old, the intermediate class for those 15 to 17, and the senior class for those 18 and over.

CALUMET CRIER STAFF SELECTED FOR FALL TERM

Members of the fall staff of the "Calumet Crier," official newspaper of Calumet High school, were announced last week by Miss Ruth Russell, sponsor. Neil Glass will be publisher and Marion Denmark and Jean O'Dell editors in chief. Managing editors are Roberta Smead and Jeanne Wacholz. Other assignments are as follows: Virginia Peterson and Charles Zeigenhagen, outside publicity; Leona Lewis, picture editor; Virginia Churchill, feature editor; Mary Vaughan, copy editor; and Jorj Tychsen and James Cunningham, city editors.

Gene Duff and Larry Otsling, first page editors; Jack Shea and Roy Kross, assistant first page editors; George Goebzel and Mary Singer, editors of page 2; Helen Knox and Dorothy Spink, columnists; Larraine Harrington and Genevieve Stocklose, editors of page 3; Jack Bauman and Jack Murphy, page 4 editors; Paul Becker, assistant page 4 editor; and Mary O'Brien and Margaret Earley, advertising managers.

The Crier was one of several Chicago papers which won national rating this year in the contest for high school newspapers sponsored by Northwestern university.

PARKS OUTING CLUB TO HIKE AT LAKE GENEVA

A six mile hike along the old Indian trails near the edge of Lake Geneva is on the schedule for the outing club of the park district next Sunday. The party will board a train leaving the North Western station at Canal and Madison streets at 8:30 a. m. and arrive at Williams Bay at 10:30 a. m. Returning the group will leave at 7:20 p. m. and arrive home at 9:30 p. m.

Christ the King Church Guild to Sponsor Party

Officers and district chairmen of the Women's Altar guild, Church of Christ the King, are sponsoring a summer card party at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the assembly hall at 9240 South Hoyne avenue. Mrs. H. B. Riggs is chairman and Mrs. William Schleicher is president of the guild.

10,000 TO HEAR FIRST PROGRAM NEXT SATURDAY

Pageantry Will Add Jubilee Note.

BY EDWIN STOLL.

Outstanding choruses, singers, and instrumentalists will set a precedent Saturday night at the Jackson park bandshell at 63d street for an expected audience of 10,000 persons. They will present the first annual Great South Side Music festival, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Under the auspices of the newly organized Great South Side Fine Arts association, the event will be expanded and perpetuated each year. The South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Community council are coöperating in the sponsorship this year also. In case of rain it will be held Monday night, Aug. 14.

This festival will serve as a prelude to the Chicagoland Music festival, Aug. 19, in Soldiers' field, under the auspices of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and winners of the south side division will be presented by Philip Maxwell and sing as one of the highlights.

Pageant on Program.

Linking the program Saturday night to the golden jubilee celebration of Woodlawn, an historical pageant will be given also, under the direction of Alma Wilson McMahill.

"The Star Spangled Banner," sung by the audience and led by Catherine McGinley-Promiski, founder of the Irish Choral society, will open the program at 7:30 o'clock. The Fort Dearborn drum and bugle corps, directed by David Gavin, will give an exhibition.

Winners of the vocal and accordion contests, the only two connected with the festival, are scheduled next. They are John Premo, 9, 6920 Chappel avenue, and Rita Callaghan, 16, 7612 Jeffery avenue, singers from 8 to 17 years old; Darline Nussman, 7, 6725 Clyde avenue, singers under 8, and Mary Pucci, 11, 7908 Blackstone avenue, and Arch Pettigrew, 14, 1512 East 69th street, accordionists.

Guitarists to Play.

The jubilee pageant will precede selections by the guitar ensemble, led by John Raleigh. William Skrivan, juvenile champion of the 1938 Chicagoland festival, and Shirley Skrivan, national and state high school champion of 1939, then will give a fire baton twirling exhibition.

The Catherine Manz ensemble will offer "Giannina Mia" [Friml], and "Broken Melody" [Grunfeld Holworth]. Members of this group are Ruth Allen, Audrey Olson, Sally Geisler, and Gladys Young, first sopranos; Pauline Fraser, Grace McMillan, Genevieve Schumacher, and Elsa Drebin, second sopranos, and Florence Cashin and Margaret Bold, altos.

Composed of more than 200 who gather just for the love of singing, the Druid Choral society, with Philip O. Jones, director, and W. Herbert Roberts, announcer, will present "Rachie" [Roberts], "Diadem" [Richards], "Pempark" [Rees], "Ebenezer" [William], and "Avin Rhondda" [Hughes].

To Introduce Guests.

Completing the first portion of the program, Rosemary Gleason, 6625 Ingleside avenue, will interpret a gypsy dance, and the guests will be introduced.

Those who have been invited are Mayor Kelly, Judge John P. McGoorty, Miss Helen Howe, director of music for the board of education; Rabbi Morris Teller; V. K. Brown, Chicago park commissioner; Ald. Paul Douglas [5th], Ald. Patrick Sheridan Smith [6th], Ald. Thomas Daley Jr. [7th], Ald. Roy Olin [8th], Mrs. Clara M. Kelley, chairman of district 1 to 10 of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Mrs. Anna Ranes, pioneer organizer of the Business and Professional Women's clubs, and Dr. Irene Behnke, president of the Amelia Earhart Memorial Civic club.

Emphasizing aviation as one of the motifs of the festival, the Emma Rund ensemble will begin the second portion of the program. A quartet composed of Edna Sweeney, Alice Bottini, Evelyn Clarke, and Gertrude Powell will sing "Eagles of the Air" [Olga and Paul Menn]. Paul O'Toole, winner of the south side division in the 1938 Chicagoland festival, will sing "Courage," with the words written by Amelia Earhart.

Flyer to Take Part.

During the evening an airplane, piloted by Alice A. De Witt, 8401 South Cicero avenue, Girls' Flying club, will circle the field in tribute to Miss Rund, the chairman.

Still stressing the aviation angle, Mrs. Peter Holland, "the flying grandmother" who crossed the ocean at the age of 74 in the Graf Zeppelin, will give a short greeting. The ensemble and audience will join in

TELLS TRAFFIC DANGER.

One of the most dangerous manners in which a street car can travel is against traffic. This happens about five or six times an hour every day at the terminus of the Chicago Surface Lines at 81st and Halsted streets. The cars stop some place east of Halsted street to discharge passengers. They then pull right out into traffic on the northbound track. Then they reverse and go backward about 200 feet against the northbound traffic on Halsted street. Then they make another switch to get back onto 81st street. Ninety per cent of the hazard to motorist and pedestrian could be eliminated by extending the terminus of these cars to 88th and Vincennes, where there are multiple switch tracks and a car barn to hold the cars and keep them out of the way of traffic. The people of this community would also favor a move of this kind because it would save them the trouble of transferring to a Halsted street car to get farther south.

PAUL COLBY,
Gresham Business Men's Assn.

WANTS ALLEY CLEANED.

In these days of so much spending and WPA waste, I wonder what our political friends think of us taxpayers when we have a condition as I have.

In the spring, as all good gardeners do, I rake my yard and throw the rubbish in the alley for the city truck to pick up, but now I am informed by the truck driver to hire a truck of my own. They don't pick up as much as a yard in our place.

I would appreciate it very much if you could give the matter to the right party and possibly I can have our alley cleaned up. LOUIS E. GAWLEY.

IN AGAIN, OUT AGAIN.

After the fine paving job is all completed on Archer avenue they decide to tear it out again. They tore holes in the pavement starting at 35th street and continued east. Instead of repaving the holes, they just take the old paving and place it back. I ride to work along Archer avenue and last night I hit about ten holes in the street. This will sure be a great route for the air line passenger cars to take to the loop after they get through wrecking it. This will be great for the tires. DRIVER.

2 CLOSED BANKS TO PAY $32,300 TO DEPOSITORS

Homewood and Industrial Plan Refunds.

The 3,700 depositors of two closed state banks on the southwest side may have $32,300 of their money returned to them in the next few weeks, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett announced last week. The two banks are the Homewood State and the Industrial State.

Mr. Barrett made his prediction in connection with his release of statements showing the condition of state bank receiverships at the close of the second quarter. The statements are founded mainly on reports made to Barrett by Charles H. Albers, general receiver for all but two of the 135 closed state banks in Cook county.

The Homewood bank is expected to disburse about $10,300 additional among its 1,100 depositors. This bank has returned 30 per cent since it closed in July, 1932.

$22,000 by Industrial.

The Industrial bank's expected new payment will mean about $22,000 to the 2,600 men and women who had money on deposit when the bank suspended in June, 1931. The bank has returned 35 per cent of these deposits.

The state auditor also revealed that the First State Bank of Steger and the Mount Greenwood Trust and Savings bank are among those whose remaining assets were auctioned off during the most recent quarter. This means that the receiverships soon may be terminated.

Here are summaries of the new figures for the southwestern banks, with the best available estimates of the remaining possibilities of repayment:

FIRST ENGLEWOOD STATE BANK—Total receipts, $1,217,404. Paid on prior claims, $309,567. Paid depositors, $344,918, or 60 per cent. Costs: receivers, $5,040; legal, $36,319; clerical, $53,047; interest, $20,960; advanced to protect assets, $152,364, with $148,563 refunded. Cash, $29,591, none of it applicable to the debt to depositors.

FIRST STATE BANK OF CHICAGO HEIGHTS—Total receipts, $767,686. Paid on prior claims, $270,076. Paid depositors, $227,744, or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,263; legal, $18,635; clerical, $56,101; interest, $3,849; advanced to protect assets, $162,587, with $156,200 refunded. Cash, $22,428. Indications point to only a small final distribution before termination of this receivership.

FIRST STATE BANK OF STEGER—Total receipts, $92,258. Paid on prior claims, $18,950. Paid depositors, $35,717, or 43.2 per cent. Costs: receivers, $1,805; legal, $4,509; clerical, $16,370; interest, $43; advanced to protect assets, $14,386, with $4,386 refunded. Cash, $472, none of it for depositors. There is nothing left for depositors.

HALSTED STREET STATE BANK—Total receipts, $1,587,491. Paid on prior claims, $358,238. Paid depositors, $452,181, or 55 per cent. Costs: receivers, $834; legal, $25,533; clerical, $69,312; interest, $20,614; advanced to protect assets, $390,336, with $185,005 refunded. Cash, $38,114. Estimates point to 5 or 10 per cent more eventually.

HOMEWOOD STATE BANK — Total receipts, $317,436. Paid on prior claims, $75,698. Paid depositors, $61,904, or 30 per cent. Costs: receivers, $3,712; legal, $14,718; clerical, $25,926; interest, $4,821; advanced to protect assets, $58,018, with $51,369 refunded. Cash, $24,603. Estimates of the total payout range between 40 and 50 per cent.

INDUSTRIAL STATE BANK—Total receipts, $233,425. Paid on prior claims, $85,455. Paid depositors, $68,637, or 35 per cent. Costs: receivers, $7,626; legal, $5,048; clerical, $38,808; interest, none; advanced to protect assets, $8,979, with $10,401 refunded. Cash, $18,778. Estimates of the total repayments still range in the neighborhood of 50 per cent.

MARQUETTE PARK STATE BANK—Total receipts, $985,117. Paid on prior claims, $130,338. Paid depositors, $336,505, or 35 per cent. Costs: receivers, $6,931; legal, $34,939; clerical, $68,576; interest, $632; advanced to protect assets, $326,807, with $315,985 refunded. Cash, $24,802. Another 5 or 10 per cent remains, estimates show.

MORGAN PARK TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $850,723. Paid on prior claims, $106,540. Paid depositors, $290,291, or 52½ per cent. Costs: receivers, $4,745; legal, $13,598; clerical, $49,633; interest, $7,705; advanced to protect assets, $177,803, with $181,322 refunded. Cash, $17,885, none of it earmarked for the fund to repay depositors, for whom but little remains.

MOUNT GREENWOOD TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $45,414. Paid on prior claims, $11,239. Paid depositors, $14,945, or 33 per cent. Costs: receivers, $1,154; legal, $4,339; clerical, $5,550; interest, $167; advanced to protect assets, $1,164, with $416 refunded. Cash, $3,452. Only a small final repayment can be expected before the close of this receivership.

Similar figures for the remaining group of southwestern banks will appear in these columns soon.

WILSON JUNIOR COLLEGE ALUMNI TO HAVE OUTING

Wilson Junior college alumni will have a reunion and outing today at Green lake, 158th street and Torrence avenue. Baseball games, races, and swimming will be the amusements of the afternoon and during the evening and a camp fire powwow will be held for songs and stories.

Transportation will be furnished by a truck leaving 79th street and Stony Island avenue at 10 o'clock in the morning. To reserve a place on the truck, communication must be made with either Jane Chitwood, 5810 East End avenue, or Roy Jennings, 6446 Yale avenue, co-chairmen of the social committee.

PICNIC PLANNED BY DEMOCRATS OF NINTH WARD

Expect Outing Aug. 20 to Attract 10,000.

The 9th ward Democratic picnic, annually one of the southwest side's largest outings, is expected to attract 10,000 persons when it is held Aug. 20 at Calumet Grove in Blue Island. This will be the organization's eleventh annual picnic.

A feature will be the fifth annual Govier standard boys' bicycle race, which will start at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. The race will be run over the ten mile course from the Hotel Florence to the grove. Boys 16 years and older will be eligible for the contest.

Trophy and Medals.

Congressman Raymond S. McKeough has again donated the team trophy, while the first three to finish will receive the Sheldon W. Govier gold, silver and bronze medals. Every contestant who finishes the race will be given a prize, however. The contest was begun in 1934 by Ward Committeeman Govier in order to revive the old "Pullman Road Race," which was a yearly event in the Independence day celebrations in Greater Pullman for more than twenty-five years.

Half hourly bus service will be provided for picnickers with stops on Michigan avenue at 111th, 113th, 115th and 119th streets, at 113th street and Wentworth avenue, Stewart, Wallace and Halsted streets, and at 123d and Halsted streets.

Members of Committees.

Leslie V. Beck, 10832 Forest avenue, is general chairman, assisted by Ernest Ranstrom, 11317 Forestville avenue; Edward Gemler, 1 East 113th street; Dominic Lupo, 143 East 115th street; Emil Bethig, 6 West 11th place; Joseph Schmiedl, 11417 Forest avenue; Benjamin Govier Sr., 11314 Yale avenue; Frank Smith, 8 East 111th street, and Robert Hoban, 11741 Normal avenue.

Other committee heads are Oreal J. Crepeau, 10643 Normal avenue, sports; Wilfrid Cummings, 11344 Forest avenue, bicycle race; Jules Bristol, 42 West 114th place, and Paul Adducci, 11056 Cottage Grove avenue, concessions, and James Malone, 11437 Indiana avenue, and Walter Moran, 11309 St. Lawrence avenue, sports.

Cousins Ask Aunts, Uncles, Nieces, Nephews to Picnic

The Greene's Cousin club, composed of first cousins affiliated with the Greene family, have invited aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews, and grandchildren to attend the second annual picnic at 10 o'clock today in Indiana Dunes park, Waverly Beach. Walter W. Biedermann, 8230 Calumet avenue, is chairman of the picnic committee.

Lectures at Church.

Dr. A. R. E. Wyant will deliver a lecture entitled "Looking for Good in Others" at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church, 935 East 50th street.

Office Romance

Mr. and Mrs. James Collins' daughter, Lorraine, was married last month to Elmer F. Cellmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Cellmer, 2444 West 54th street. The bride's former address is 6537 South Mozart avenue. Both are graduates of Lindblom High school and Mr. Cellmer was a June graduate of Northwestern university. The marriage was the climax of an "office romance."

SPECIAL PAPER TO HERALD CLUB GOLDEN JUBILEE

Women in Morgan Park Prepare Bulletin.

Preparing for its golden jubilee year, the Morgan Park Woman's club will edit a summer issue of its club bulletin for the first time in the history of the publication. Plans for the jubilee program and a special message by Mrs. John J. Bickel, president, 2269 West 109th street, president, will make up the copy of the bulletin.

Mrs. Edwin L. Cheatle. [Mandel Brothers Studio.]

Mrs. Edwin L. Cheatle, bulletin chairman and editor, was assisted in editing the publication by Mrs. Daniel Johnson, advertising chairman; Mrs. Frank Krishack, Mrs. Carl E. Bofinger, and Mrs. William Gehl.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

Announcement was made last week by Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, past president and scholarship chairman that a fifth name will be added to the list of two boys and two girls who are to receive club scholarships to Morgan Park Junior college. The club has maintained this scholarship fund for several years for the benefit of outstanding graduates of Morgan Park High school. The scholarships are awarded annually.

Students who will receive scholarships are Roger Smith, 11601 Hale avenue; Robert Kerney, 1742 West 95th street; Miss Helen Ruth McCumber, 10757 Hale avenue; Earl Potter, 11347 Church street, and Miss Ruth Schaeder, 11229 Washtenaw avenue. Young Smith, who is 18 years old, attended Morgan Park Junior college for two years on scholarships from the club and has recently been awarded a scholarship to the University of Chicago.

The club will participate in the golden jubilee program of the General Federation of Women's Clubs this coming season. Mrs. J. A. M. Robinson, president, has appointed a jubilee committee from the club composed of Mrs. Arthur Booth, birthday party; Mrs. Henry Heinemen, song contest; Mrs. Ben Buttles, flower contest; Mrs. Paul Grundman, march contest; Mrs. Robinson, pioneer club woman; Mrs. Rennie, publicity; and Mrs. Charles M. Bacon, junior participation.

Hamilton Park Woman's Club.

For the benefit of the club philanthropies, the ways and means committee will sponsor a dessert luncheon and bridge party Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the lounge of the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. H. Lassman, 7047 Union avenue, these parties are being held each month during the summer.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

Mrs. W. A. Hanson, treasurer, has been appointed to fill the office of sponsor for the Chicago Lawn Junior Woman's club, and will represent the juniors on the board of directors of the senior club.

Ridge Art Association.

With the coöperation of Donald and Maxine Stroup of the Beverly Hills unit of the Chicago Conservatory of Music, the association has been able to create a gallery atmosphere in the studios of the unit at 1765 Monterey avenue. The exhibition, which will be changed from time to time, consists of paintings by local artists.

An all members' exhibit, installed in the library of the Ridge park fieldhouse at the last business and social meeting, will remain through September. Following this there will be the usual number of exhibitions at the fieldhouse introduced at Sunday afternoon programs and teas.

Mary H. Brubaker, 2111 West 109th street, chairman of the committee on appointments, announces the following committee chairmen for the coming season's work: Exhibition, Esther Austin, 9563 Prospect avenue; membership, Abel F. GRAND CROSSING CENTER SEEKING USED CLOTHING

The Grand Crossing Community Aid center, 77th street and Ingleside avenue, will remain open throughout the summer months in the Grand Crossing park fieldhouse for the benefit of needy children and adults, it was announced last week by Mrs. Daniel Foreman, director.

It will continue to distribute used clothing, and WPA cobblers will repair shoes for the needy who have a certification from a member of the center or from the pastor of the applicant's church.

Local residents are urged by the committee to contribute used wearable shoes and clothing to the center, especially bathing suits, so that boys and girls may take advantage of the swimming season. Capt. Patrick Brady of the Grand Crossing police has charge of the collection of articles. Local cleaners and laundries will clean the contributions as their coöperation.

PROPERTY GROUP EXPANDS FIELD IN HYDE PARK

Expanding the field of operations to include the territory west of University avenue to Cottage Grove avenue between 55th and 59th streets, the Hyde Park Property Owners, Inc. has invited all property holders of the district to become members of the organization, William J. Wilson, business manager, said last week. This action follows a petition of a group of persons from the area that the organization give service there also.

Mr. Wilson has obtained a list of all property owners in the new district and will communicate with them as soon as possible. Many of the large interests have signified their intention of coöperation, and some have accepted application forms. Representative residents of the territory will become members of the various

Calendar Promises Diversified Season of Activities for Beverly Hills Juniors

Members of the Beverly Hills Junior Woman's club are sure of dates next season. They are certain also that the dates will be the best yet, for plans have been completed by Mrs. W. J. Rannells, program chairman, on one of the most interesting calendars in the club's history.

Mrs. James Mason. [Florence Hartough Studio.]

Miss Herma Clark, TRIBUNE columnist and author of "When Chicago Was Young," will be guest speaker at the opening meeting of the season Oct. 3 in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive.

The Children's Theater, sponsored by the Beverly Juniors, will take the spotlight with a presentation at the Oct. 16 meeting. Miss Doris Clarke is chairman of the group this season. Sharing the program the philanthropy department, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Cyrus Lippman, will introduce a representative of the Park Ridge School for Girls, who will give a short talk. Men's night will be Nov. 6. The house and hospitality committee with Miss Kathleen Church as chairman will present Dr. Charles Copeland Smith who will lecture on "This Adventure, America."

Christmas Time Program.

The annual Christmas buffet will be held on Dec. 3 in the home of Mrs. A. H. Swett, 10560 Longwood drive. Miss Rosalie Reeman and Mrs. David Elling, chairman of the social and refreshment committees, will be in charge. The drama department will present a Christmas play at the Dec. 11 meeting under the direction of Mrs. George L. Cole.

"History of Poetry and Modern Trends" will be the topic discussed by Jessica North MacDonald, associate editor of Poetry magazine, on Jan. 22. Marian Fischer is scheduled to appear before the club on Feb. 5 in an historical recital of songs with musical interpretations. She will be introduced by Miss Ruth Palmer, chairman of the music department.

Mrs. Rannells, program chairman, will have as her guest speaker on Feb. 18 Phillip Yung Lee, who will give an illustrated talk on "Chinese Culture and Her Present Crisis." Mr. Lee is pastor of the Christian Union church of Chinatown. A hobby show, a trip to Hull house, and a lecture on garden herbs are among the additional programs of interest to be given in January and March. The ways and means committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Clifford Markley, first vice president, will conduct a card party in October and a surprise project in April.

Mrs. James Mason will begin her second term as president of the club at the opening meeting. Reëlected also was Mrs. Markley, first vice president and head of the ways and means committee. Other officers elected were Miss Margaret Bird, second vice president; Miss Dorothy Gadsden, recording secretary; Mrs. Earle Combs, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Edward P. Barry, treasurer.

Chairmen of departments and standing committees not mentioned above are Mrs. J. W. Smith, American home and garden; Mrs. J. Gerald Hooper, literature and art, and Mrs. Walter J. Dohren, publicity; Mrs. Herbert J. Bird is sponsor of the club.

Blue Island Juniors.

Under a docket of new officers and chairmen, the club will take part in a new and more active philanthropic program during the season. Extensive plans are also being formed for a celebration and banquet on the 10th anniversary of the club's organization. Miss Dorothy Dohrman was elected president for the new season.

Other officers are Mrs. Irving King, first vice president; Mrs. Robert Withers, second vice president; Mrs. Ray Schroeder, recording secretary; Mrs. Louis La Rotonda, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Howard Alsip, treasurer, and Miss Margaret Groskopf, parliamentarian. Members at large will be Mrs. Erwin Hupe and Mrs. Robert Ostendorf. Miss Helen Stoll and Miss Dorothy Jauchzer will be delegates with Mrs. Justin Boyd and Miss Marjorie Nagel as alternates.

Mrs. Harvey Stadle has been named contact chairman from the Blue Island senior club.

Departmental chairmen who are working on the club program for next season are Miss Mildred Bagge, American citizenship; Mrs. Dale Pryor, American home and garden; Miss Flossie Harvey, art; Miss Virginia Cahill, drama; Mrs. Sylvester King, international relations; Mrs. Clifford Beckman, literature and education; Mrs. John Cahill, pictures and radio; Mrs. George Waldron, music; Mrs. Lowell Frasor and Mrs. Roy Janson, public welfare.

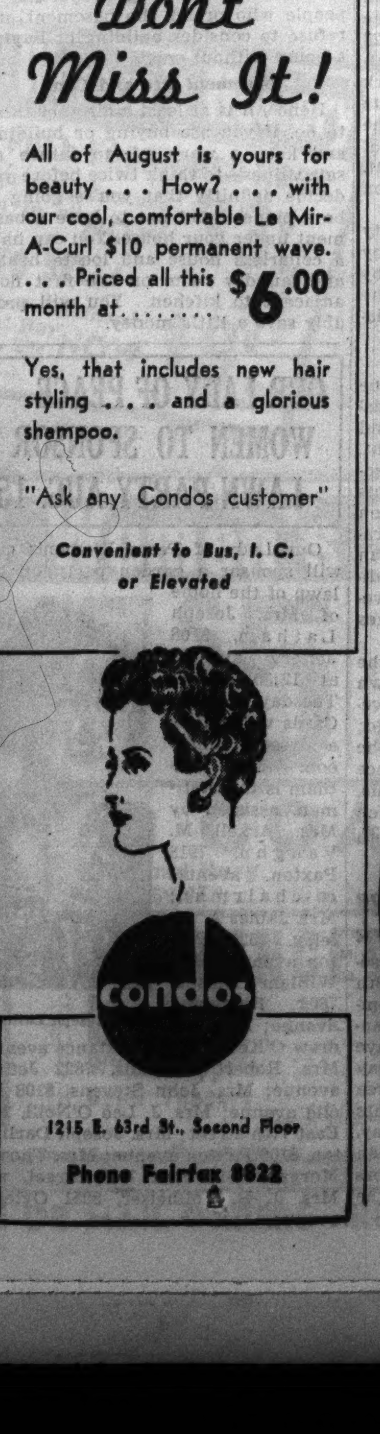
PARK TABLEAUX TO SHOW LEISURE TIME ACTIVITY

From one of the largest books in the world, designed by Charles C. Dawson, Negro artist, and made in the workshops of the park district, human characters will step out, beginning at 8 o'clock Saturday night, at the 55th street entrance of Washington park to depict leisure time activities sponsored by members organizations of the South Central committee of the Chicago Recreation commission.

Hundreds of men, women, and children are engaged in workshops, sewing rooms, gymnasiums, and play lots of the various south side recreational and education centers preparing for this review, planned by the committee to be one of the most unique ever presented in the area. The tableaux will demonstrate how the young and old can profitably spend their leisure time.

Completing the show, amateur vocal soloists, quartets, choral groups, swing and concert bands will present a program of all forms of music from jungle rhythm and modern swing to classics and spirituals.

Centers and organization coöperating in the review, which is open to the public, are Madden park, Washington park, Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., South Side Settlement house, south side recreational project, N. Y. A., Boy Scouts, Chicago Urban league, South Parkway Y. W. C. A., Girl Scouts, Ebenezer Day nursery, Hall branch library, Oakland library, Lincoln center, and the playgrounds.



128 AWAIT FIRST STEP TO MUSIC FESTIVAL FAME

South Area Contest Will Open Thursday.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

One hundred and twenty-eight singers who reside on the south and southwest sides of Chicago and Cook county will participate in the preliminary vocal contest of the Chicagoland Music Festival Thursday and Friday nights, beginning at 7 o'clock, in the Chicago Woman's Club theater, 72 East 11th street. The tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard Thursday and the sopranos, mezzos, and basses on the following night. West and northwest side entrants will compete Tuesday and Wednesday nights in the club theater.

Jessie Sivyer.
[Daguerre Photo.]

Six judges will decide the winners. They are Mrs. Anna Kruetgen, Mrs. Zerlene Muhlman Metzger, and Franklin Hathaway on Thursday night, and Harry Walsh, Frank Bennett, and Mrs. Inez H. Hicks on Friday. Each contestant will be given at least two minutes and all must sing a portion of a selected number.

IT'S CIRCUS TIME FOR BOYS' CLUB; PRICE—TWO PINS

140 Prepare for Roles in Woodlawn Show.

"Right this way, ladies and gentlemen, for one of the biggest boys shows on earth! Clowns, acrobats, performing dogs, birds, and monkeys all for two pins admission at the gate!"

That is the announcement of Sheldon Raben, 14, 6235 Blackstone avenue, ringmaster for the Woodlawn Boys club circus which will be presented at 7:30 o'clock Friday night in grandstand plaza of Jackson park on the lake front north of 63d street.

The circus will be the biggest outdoor entertainment attempted by the club, and 140 performers will take part, working from a manual used by all eight units of the Chicago Boys clubs. Howard Tooley, music and dramatic director, prepared the book.

1,200 Boys Are Members.

Organized only last November, the Woodlawn branch, located over the police station, 6344 Harper avenue, now has a membership of 1,200. It is sponsored by the Woodlawn Business Men's association.

Chester Szypulski has charge of the 30 clowns who will perform antics as only boys can offer, and acrobats under the direction of Edward Englas will demonstrate feats of tumbling, flip flops, cartwheels, and somersaults.

Pamahasika's Performing Pets, which appeared for two years at the Children's theater on the Enchanted Island during the Century of Progress, will be the star attraction of the program. The group includes six performing dogs, the dancing cockatoos, bird kindergarten, and Little Billy, "the bird with the human brain" which adds and subtracts figures better than some boys in arithmetic classes.

In Leading Rôles.

Boys who will have leading parts in the circus are Edward Gasser, 6413 Harper avenue; Robert Allard, 6509 Blackstone avenue; Montell Hartsock, 6456 Dante avenue; Richard Michaelson, 6315 Harper avenue; Douglas Mornin, 6438 Dante avenue; William Perry, 1534 East Marquette boulevard; Don Scott, 6419 Dante avenue; Will Zimmerman, 6154 Rhodes avenue; Tim Daley, 1207 East 72d street, and William Stompe, 7249 Woodlawn avenue.

GIRLS, PIONEERS TAKE TO AIR FOR JUBILEE PARTY

Plane Trip Is Event in Woodlawn Fete.

In the cabin of a 21 passenger flagship of the American Air Lines, bathing beauty girls and pioneers will join in an aerial party over Woodlawn as one of the events in the golden anniversary celebration of its annexation to Chicago at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

After a parade of the girls, in beach attire, and the old settlers in automobiles through Woodlawn streets at 1 o'clock from the jubilee headquarters in the Hayes hotel, the participants will go to the municipal airport for the trip.

78 and 16 to Lead.

Charles C. Fairman, 78, whose father was one of the community's first settlers, will lead the procession to the airport. He will be accompanied by Jane Testerman, 16, who is representing the senior class of Hyde Park High school in the bathing beauty contest.

Then will come Mrs. R. A. Doyle, daughter of Mr. Fairman, and George O'Brien, vice president of McKey & Poague, both of whom were born in Woodlawn in 1889, the annexation year. Following will be James M. Earle, chairman of the jubilee committee, and Virginia Dancik, first bathing girl to enter the contest. The others, in order, will be John Hayes, chairman of the beach queen competition, with Betty Harpold, 16, representing the southeast side Girl Scouts; C. A. Beutel, president of the South East National bank, accompanied by Mary Morgan, 17, cousin of Helen Morgan, famous night club singer, and the party of bathing girls.

Parade of Beauty.

The aerial trip is the first of a series of events to honor the coterie of contestants in the beauty contest. Led by a girl drum major and the 30 piece fife and drum corps of the Sheffield branch of the Chicago Boys club, they will march down East 63d street the evening of Aug. 14 and proceed to the roof garden of the Hayes hotel for a dinner at 8 o'clock.

A board of judges composed of business men and beauty experts will select Woodlawn's Golden Jubilee Beach Queen the evening of Aug. 23 on the Jackson park beach. Coöperating with the committee, the park district will provide a stage and seats for 2,000 persons. Preceding the judging, there will be a program of amateur vaudeville entertainment. John Bathum, supervisor of Jackson park, has charge of the program.

Other activities for the community have been planned for the month by the program committee headed by Homer L. Davenport, president of the Woodlawn Business Men's association.

Amateur Show Saturday.

A two hour amateur show will be presented on the stage in the Wadsworth school grounds, 64th street and University avenue, Saturday night. Similar programs have been scheduled for each Saturday night this month and next under the direction of Alma Wilson McMahill. Registration for participation takes place in the jubilee headquarters, and auditions are conducted each Friday evening in the ballroom of the Hayes hotel.

Other August events will be the circus presented by the Woodlawn Boys club at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening at the Jackson park band stand; a soap box Derby for boys of the community, Aug. 17; a street dance at 64th street and University avenue, Aug. 19, and the Woodlawn golden jubilee picnic at 2 o'clock, Aug. 30, in Jackson park.

Finish Work on Horseshoe Courts in Calumet Park

Rehabilitation of the eight horseshoe courts in Calumet park, 98th street and the lake, has been completed, Ernest Rea, supervisor, announced last week. The pits have been reset with new pins, fresh clay has been added, the surrounding area has been leveled and resodded, lights have been installed for night play, flag stones have been laid between each court, and sheet metal covers have been provided to protect the pits when not in use.

MODERN SQUARE SIX ROOM HOME BUILT FOR $6,500

Has Full Basement and Separate Garage.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It was only a few weeks ago that Mr. and Mrs. Raymond O. Chapin moved into their new six room home at 9310 Vanderpoel avenue, Chicago.

This house, with its cubic content of some 16,000 feet, is a judicious, conservative combination of traditional materials with modern design and insulation. It is a provocative instance of a small restrained modern type; simple of line, quiet throughout, with logical floor plan carefully worked out to yield maximum spaciousness at every point.

We are discovering new approaches to the modern every year. It is here to stay because it is practical, economical and infinitly comfortable to live with. It is honest, straightforward architecture. There are those who like it and would have nothing else; there are those who do not like it, who prefer the traditional, the more picturesque. There will probably always be those who incline to the modern and those who draw away from it.

Square House; Low Roof.

We see in the Chapin house with its exterior walls of salmon toned brick a free plan. It is a square house without pretense, intelligently worked out. Its wall surfaces are unbroken, its roof low pitched. The corner windows and other larger than average windows—a new trend which is fast asserting itself—permit abundant sunlight, air and cross ventilation.

No money has been spent for any extra details. Costs have been carefully figured to keep them down. The approximate cost of house was $6,500. This includes a garage and basement with forced warm air heating system.

There is a small hallway, with a window of glass block at the left. The living room is 12x19 feet, the dining room 10½x12 feet, and the kitchen is 10x11. There has been no attempt made here to combine living room and dining room, or achieve dual purpose rooms. Each room frankly fulfils its own function.

Place for Play Room.

The living room and dining room walls are painted ivory and stippled. In the kitchen there are linoleum counter tops and floor and ivory white cabinets. On the second floor there are three bedrooms and bath, the master bedroom with corner windows. In the bath there is ceramic tile wainscoting and floor, in orchid tone. Throughout the house there are plaster returns, with trim eliminated.

In the basement, which is completely excavated, there is provision for a future recreation room. Outside, a side drive leads to the one car garage. The walk which leads to the entrance door is red cement.

The house stands on a wooded lot and plans are already made for its landscaping. There is much opportunity for outdoor living in this home, which has an open view on all sides.

In Many Materials.

Modern type homes are comparatively newcomers to this country, arriving here from Scandinavia, central Europe, and Germany. Whether they are conservative modern or extreme modern, or in between, we are seeing them built at the present time in almost all of the traditional building materials. We see them in brick, in concrete, in stucco, and in wood.

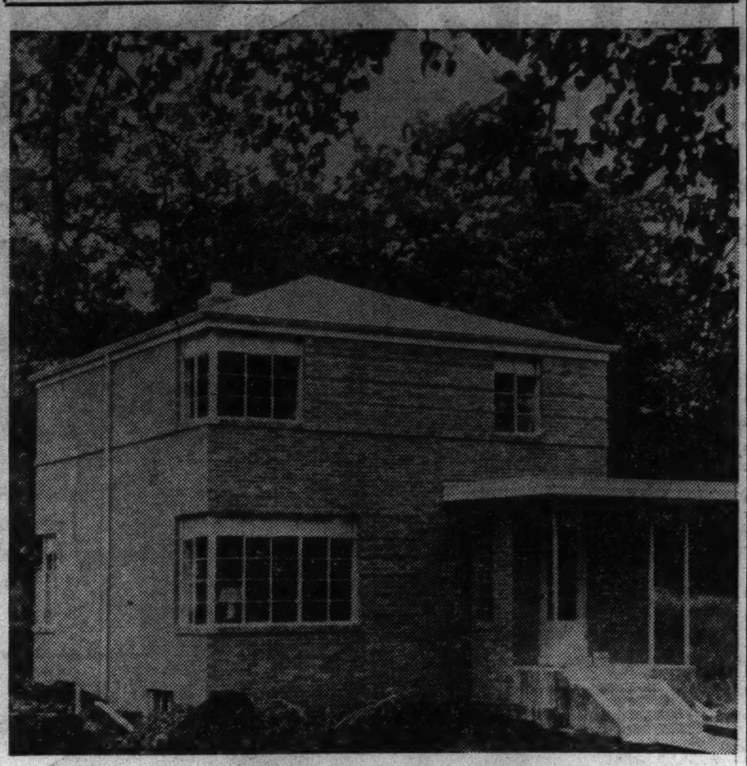
After all is said, the type of modern which makes use of the best in traditional styles and combines it with very simple and very honest architecture for present day American occupancy, is the type of modern which will find increasing adherents to its cause.

Incidentally it is the modern which claims to have discovered the way to construct the basementless house. But, in the last analysis, there are still an overwhelming proportion of people who prefer the basement and refuse to consider building or buying a house without one.

Basement Pro and Con.

Hence, it is at least a discreet thing to do, if you are buying or building, and keep a wary eye to future resale values—to think twice before you decide definitly that you're going to be a pioneer and not to have a basement under your house. You can have a cellarless house and locate heater and laundry room on the first floor adjacent to kitchen. You will probably save a little money.

Framed by Spreading Trees



The new home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond O. Chapin at 9310 Vanderpool avenue. Their house, in the conservative modern manner, is finely framed by spreading trees, and the exterior walls are of salmon toned brick. Note the generous use of corner windows and the window of glass block at left of entrance. Landscaping comes next on the program of things to be done.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Aug. 7.

Snip off the withered flowers of phlox to prevent the forming of seed. If seed is permitted to develop and fall to the ground it will grow and produce flowers that are undesirable. Keep seed from forming and divide the plants about every three years and the original variety will be retained. Test out varieties before planting them in quantity. Hardy chrysanthemums should be kept growing luxuriantly by giving plenty of water and an occasional feeding with a 4-12-4 commercial food. This is an excellent food for most plants. For pot plants simply scatter enough over the surface of the soil in the pot to slightly cover, and then water it in.

Tuesday, Aug. 8.

Grasshoppers can be controled by spraying weeds with arsenate of lead. It also kills leaf eating worms. Start spraying the moment worms appear. Frequently it is necessary to transplant when a plant is in full leaf and it can be done successfully if proper precautions are taken. Soak the ground around the plant and, if possible, transplant on a cloudy day. Lift with as much soil as possible and water well. Cut back the plant. Many plants are best moved in fall. Others should only be moved during early spring. Shrubs are moved either in spring or fall. Fall is an excellent time, but winter protection should always be given.

Wednesday, Aug. 9.

Propagation of plants from cuttings is so interesting that the home gardener will enjoy trying out the various methods. A coldframe filled with sand in a shaded spot and covered with glass is invaluable for carrying on the work. Take the cuttings preferably from the tips of the branch and set them about one inch deep in the sand. After placing the number desired, water well and keep the frame closed until the cuttings start to root. This will take from one to two weeks. When the cuttings are well rooted, which may be easily determined, they should be carefully removed to a place in the garden or in another frame. Many shrubs and perennials can be rooted in this way. When dahlias begin to show bud an application of plant food should be made and repeated at intervals of from two to three weeks until the blooming period is well advanced.

Thursday, Aug. 10.

Give the privet and barberry hedges a trimming if the growth has become unkempt. Trim evenly to give the best appearance, but remember that a good hedge is one that is compact from top to bottom. Ash trees are likely to be attacked by borers. The best way to kill this pest is to take an oil can filled with carbon bisulphide and squirt a little in each hole made by the borer; plug the hole immediately with mud. Plant a calla lily for indoor use. The luxuriant foliage is worth growing for itself and the flowers lend themselves delightfully for house decoration. Give a rich soil and plenty of water when well established.

Friday, Aug. 11.

Examine the under surface of the fern fronds and if any scales are seen spray with fish oil soap and nicotine, which can be bought at supply houses. If in doubt as to whether the brown spot is a scale, gently brush it with the fingers; if it is a scale it will be easily removed. Mealy bugs can be knocked off plants by syringing with water under pressure of the fingers. If water seems to stand in the pot plants, knock the ball of soil from the pots to learn what is causing the trouble. It may be that earthworms have clogged the drainage hole. Remove the worms and replace the plant or gently remove all the soil, repot in new soil, water well, and let stand in a shady spot for a few days until the plant is reëstablished.

Saturday, Aug. 12.

Unless the beds are well mulched continue cultivating or hot weather will cause excessive evaporation. Keep the beds edged with a sharp spade or special edging tool. It takes but a short time to trim up a bed, but if it is neglected the whole yard seems poorly kept. Do a bit of missionary work and cut the weeds alongside your own yard. All kinds of weeds should be cut before they form seed. Weeds also harbor many kinds of insect pests and by removing their breeding grounds they can be gotten under control. Sow delphinium seed while fresh. Do not permit quack grass to gain a roothold in the lawn. About the only way to control it is to dig out the roots by which the pest spreads. Get every piece of root.

WOMEN VOTERS TO HAVE GARDEN PARTY SUNDAY

The Douglas League of Women Voters will hold its sixth annual garden party at 5 o'clock next Sunday in the garden of Poro college, 4415 South Parkway. Maurice Cooper, star of the federal theater production of "The Mikado," will be the guest soloist. Other musical numbers will be presented by the Bethesda Women's Choral group, directed by Mrs. Omega King; Miss Lillian Dove, harpist, and Walter Gossette, pianist.

Department chairmen will present "A Composite Picture of the League." They are Dr. Lillian S. Dove, child welfare; Mrs. U. G. Dailey, education; Mrs. William T. Davis, economic welfare; Mrs. Mayme Edmonson, government and its operation; Mrs. Roscoe C. Giles, foreign policy; Barbara W. Goodall, legal status; Mrs. Dixie B. Brooks, professional and business women; Mrs. William M. Glover, Junior Douglas league, and Mrs. Albert B. George, membership.

Mrs. Wendell E. Green will preside. Mrs. Theodore F. Crawley, program chairman, has arranged the meeting. Mrs. Harvey A. Watkins, chairman of the garden party committee, is assisted by Mrs. Louis D. Jordan, Mrs. Hazel E. Anderson, Mrs. Julia A. Golightly, and Mrs. Brooks, who are preparing a souvenir program for distribution.

OUR LADY OF PEACE WOMEN TO SPONSOR LAWN PARTY AUG. 15

Our Lady of Peace Woman's club will sponsor a garden party on the lawn of the home of Mrs. Joseph Latham, 8108 Jeffery avenue, at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday, Aug. 15. Cards will follow a dessert luncheon. Mrs. Latham is the chairman, assisted by Mrs. Arkell M. Vaughn, 7918 Paxton avenue, co-chairman; Mrs. James A. Alleley, 7620 Paxton avenue; Mrs. William Coulson, 7802 Ridgeland avenue; Mrs. Andrew O'Keefe, 7843 Constance avenue; Mrs. Robert Whipkus, 7822 Jeffery avenue; Mrs. John Stevens, 8108 Euclid avenue; Mrs. J. Leo O'Neill, 2010 East 77th street; Mrs. Joseph Darlington, 8106 Paxton avenue; Mrs. Thomas Morgan, 2014 East 77th street, and Mrs. J. B. Zollheiser, 8051 Oglesby avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Latham.

RELICS TO LINK HYDE PARK TODAY WITH ITS PAST

Exhibits to Be Feature of Golden Jubilee.

Coöperating with the Hyde Park golden jubilee celebration committee, seventy-five civic, business, and church institutions of the neighborhood will display all types of historical relics and works of contemporary community artists in their buildings during the four days from Sept. 14 through 17, Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th], general chairman, said last week.

Plans for a thorough search for these old documents, clothes, pictures, and all kinds of articles to tell the story of Hyde Park from its inception to the present day were discussed at a meeting last week attended by settlers and their descendants. It was also decided to establish a permanent Hyde Park Historical society after Oct. 15.

In Two Divisions.

Mrs. Roy B. Dickey, niece of Paul Cornell, "father of Hyde Park," was selected as the temporary chairman of a committee to conduct the research drive. The exhibits will be divided into two classifications—early settlers' period before the Columbian Exposition and the founding of the University of Chicago and the post Columbian period which includes present days.

The committee in charge of the seventy-five institutional exhibits consists of the Rev. Rolland W. Schloerb, chairman; the Rev. Edward Scribner Ames, Mrs. Arthur Baer, Miss Helen Castle, C. C. Lane, Victor Meyers, Fred Nixon, George Rosenthal, Mrs. Elise Runyan, Msgr. Thomas V. Shannon, the Rev. Von Ogden Vogt, and W. Alvin Pitcher, executive secretary.

"Fundamentally, each exhibit will be an educational panorama of the origin and development of each separate institution in Hyde Park. There will be about seventy-five such exhibits for the public," Ald. Douglas said.

Plan for Headquarters.

Permanent headquarters for the Hyde Park Historical society will be established in a fireproof building, and the organization will be maintained as similar professional groups.

Since many of the old settlers have moved to other parts of the city, Mrs. Dickey explained, those interested in the formation of the society have been asked to notify them of the plans and to request them to register at the headquarters of the golden jubilee committee, 1464 East 57th street, through Nick John Matsoukas, managing director. The phone number is Dorchester 9420.

GIRLS OF 111TH STREET 'Y' TO HAVE OUTINGS

Four recreational trips are on the schedule for girls 4 to 13 years old at the 111th street Y. M. C. A. at 4 East 111th street this month. They will go to Riverview park on Wednesday, to the Field museum on Aug. 16, to Milwaukee by boat Aug. 23, and to Establishment day at their summer home plan camp at the "Y" headquarters on Aug. 30. Daily activities of the girls include singing, games, lunch, rest hour, swimming, gymnastics, handicraft, dramatics, and competitive sport skills. In charge of the daily schedule is Miss Ann Youstra, women's and girls' director.

Laundry NEWS
"But Mrs. M.... we don't wring your clothes!"
"And where do you wring the clothes?" inquired Mrs. M——. Like so many women who visit our laundry she had a natural curiosity on that point. She knows that wringing takes the life out of clothes.
But we explained to her that in our laundry we do not wring clothes. They are removed from the washers and placed in large spinning baskets, where the water is taken out by a rapid whirling process, which makes it almost impossible to damage buttons or fabrics . . . And that is one more sound reason why clothes washed our way are cleaner and last longer.

VALLEE TO END VARIETIES AFTER RUN OF DECADE

Star Maker to Take Rest in South America.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Four days before the great stock market collapse of 1929—and the onset of the depression—Rudy Vallee started crooning "Your Time Is My Time" on the radio. The date was Oct. 24, 1929. A lot of water has passed under the bridge since that time. But every Thursday night except two—once because of the death of Mrs. Vallee and once because he was en route to Europe—Vallee has been at the microphone for his radio hour.

Now his long association with his sponsor and his nation-wide audience is drawing to a close. Last Thursday Rudy presented one of his last programs from Chicago. On Sept. 28 he is leaving the air. He intends to take a vacation in South America before making any other radio plans.

One of Radio's Longest Runs.

At rehearsal the other day Vallee said that it gave him a twinge of sadness to leave his radio show.

"But I think I have earned a rest," he said; "My Time Has Been Your Time for ten solid years. And it will be again, after My Time Has Been My Own Time for a little while.

Vallee started out as a crooner and saxophone player. For a year or two his melodic music was sufficient to interest listeners, mostly feminine. When this novelty wore off Vallee demonstrated his skill along other lines. He developed the Vallee Varieties and became a radio star maker.

Developed Many Headliners.

Rudy was responsible for uncovering the network possibilities of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Bob Burns, Alice Faye, Joe Penner, Frances Langford, Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou, Red Skelton, the Stroud Twins, and many others.

Many stars in other fields of entertainment came to network radio first through the Vallee Varieties. Among these were Grace Moore, Helen Hayes, Fannie Brice, Howard and Shelton, Katherine Hepburn, Joe Cook, Frank Fay, Walter O'Keefe, Victor Moore. And many others in this category.

For years Vallee's program was the most sought after program for artists of all kinds in the entertainment field. And newcomers flocked to him with the hope that he would give them that much needed break.

He Has His Troubles.

Vallee's hour seems to have declined somewhat in the last two or three years. Several factors contributed. In the first place, Vallee had to operate on a budget that was small by comparison with those of some of the latter day Hollywood extravaganzas.

Vallee never received either for himself or for his guests the outlandish fees that went to Hollywood stars for guest appearances or to top radio comedians regularly. In recent years he was not always able to get the guest personalities he wanted. Others bid more.

Also competitors came along. The Kate Smith hour, drafted somewhat along the same lines as Vallee's, has been spotted for several seasons opposite Rudy's hour. Kate also is a skilled radio performer and producer. Vallee felt the pressure of her program.

Vallee Will Be Missed.

On top of it all, Vallee did not always see his own handicaps. He insisted on playing dramatic rôles or singing songs for which he was definitly not qualified. As a master of ceremonies and as a producer he was first rate. In other departments his talents were not unusual. Rudy refused to see that.

Nevertheless, his influence in broadcasting must not be minimized. Starting out as a matinée idol with a feminine following, he proceeded to develop one of radio's programs of widest appeal, one that was much copied, one that through the years has worn exceptionally well.

Millions of persons will miss the Vallee Varieties on Thursday nights.

M. MISCHAKOFF TO BE SOLOIST WITH SYMPHONY

Mischa Mischakoff, concertmaster of the NBC Symphony orchestra, will be the third guest artist to be heard with the Chautauqua Symphony orchestra under the baton of Albert Stoessel during the program from Lake Chautauqua at 2 p. m. over WMAQ. Mischakoff will feature the Symphonie Espagnole for violin and orchestra by Lalo in his solo appearance. Opening with the gala "Roman Carnival" overture by Berlioz, the orchestra will be heard in Debussy's "Fetes" and the Daphnis and Chloe Suite No. 2 by Ravel.

ALL-STAR FOOTBALL GAME TO BE FEATURE ON W-G-N-MBS AUG. 30

When the College All-Stars square off against the New York Giants, champions of the National Professional Football league, on Soldiers' field on Aug. 30 in the sixth annual football game, W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting System network will present a complete broadcast of the contest. Bob Elson, who has participated in each of the previous All-Star-Pro broadcasts, will be at the microphone for W-G-N-Mutual. He will be assisted by a battery of experts and coaches who will be heard at various times during the broadcast.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 8, from [illegible] to 8:15 p. m., a special broadcast will be presented on W-G-N and the Mutual network during which the five coaches who will direct preparation and play of the College All-Stars will be heard along with Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE and the originator of the college all-star-professional game.

Guest on W-G-N

Jean Tennyson, opera star, will make her second guest appearance of the summer on W-G-N and the Mutual network when she sings on the "Friday Promenade," from 9:30 to 10 p. m. next Friday. Miss Tennyson is coming from New York for the broadcast.

Catholic Hour to Broadcast Its 500th Program Today

A new series of Catholic Hour programs will begin with the broadcast at 5 p. m. today, over WMAQ, with Rev. John J. Russell, pastor of St. Ursula's church, Baltimore, in charge. Father Russell's first address, "The Purpose of Life," will be the 500th Catholic Hour program to be broadcast.

MUSIC FESTIVAL TO BE AIRED BY W-G-N MUTUAL

8,000 Performers in Hour Broadcast.

Highlights of the tenth annual Chicagoland Music festival to be held in Soldiers' field in Chicago on Saturday night, Aug. 19, will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of Mutual Broadcasting system. The festival will be aired from 9 to 10 p. m. Eight thousand performers will participate in the big show. Among the features to be heard during the network broadcast will be solos by John Carter, Metropolitan Opera tenor; the great Festival Symphony orchestra of 100 musicians, directed by Henry Weber, W-G-N-Mutual's Chicago musical director; the massed festival chorus of 5,000 voices, conducted by Nobel Cain, and two vocal numbers by a yet to be selected young woman singer who will fly across the Atlantic in a Pan-American Clipper for her special appearance.

The English singer will be chosen during the next week in a contest for women vocalists of Great Britain. This contest is sponsored by the London Sketch in coöperation with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Other features of the broadcast will be the appearance of the two winning vocalists, a man and a woman, winners of the festival's Chicagoland competition, and Carrie Jacobs Bond, beloved song composer, who will be guest of honor of the festival.

More than thirty states and Canada are sending entrants to the many festival contests.

During the last nine years nearly 900,000 spectators have attended the Chicagoland Music Festival which has become the outstanding outdoor musical event of America.

On Your Job!

How a discouraged shoe salesman discovered a new interest in his work and, by exploring the possibilities of his business, became a successful expert, will be revealed during the On Your Job dramatization over WMAQ at 11:30 a. m.

In W-G-N Serial

This romantic scene is from the popular W-G-N drama, "Young Dr. Malone," heard from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. Mondays through Fridays. The doctor is young Jerry Malone, played by Alan Bunce. The pretty and pensive lass is Nurse Ann Richards, who, off the air, is Elizabeth Reller.

LISTENERS FIND MUCH OF BRITISH RADIO FARE DULL

Harold Turner Tells of BBC Music, Comedy.

In last Sunday's TRIBUNE Harold Turner, W-G-N pianist who is studying in London, told of the British Broadcasting company's air raid precautions. Today Mr. Turner discusses music, comedy, and some other aspects of BBC programs.

"The musical standard for broadcasting," he says, "is extremely high over here. To the serious musician that is most gratifying. The figure for the money spent on chamber music, for which the audience is naturally more or less select, is out of all proportion to that spent in the United States.

"This is a part of the accepted program of educating the public taste. The BBC concentrates on giving the public what it feels it should have and ignores that which it considers in bad taste. The result is a popular opinion [and by that I mean the cockney day laborer and the average housewife] that much of the program material is dull.

American Style Popular.

"This accounts for the remarkable success of Radio Normandie and Radio Luxembourg, where light, breezy American commercial programs are directed toward English consumers.

"Popular taste here is just about as it is at home—the popular song is popular because it's sung by the people. [Aside to Peter de Rose: 'Deep Purple' is now a complete success. It's being played by a hurdy-gurdy beneath my window this very minute.]"

Mr. Turner also compared the work of BBC pianists with that of Americans.

"As a staff pianist I've enjoyed meeting and comparing notes," Turner said, "with Ernest Lush and Berkely Mason, two of BBC's staff pianists. Both are fine executants with enormous répertoires of useful classical material, but most of their time is taken up with accompanying, rehearsing, and auditioning.

No Split Second Timing.

"A certain amount of 'standing by' is included in their line of duties, but that is negligible compared to the importance of that necessity in America simply because the BBC apparently regards as unimportant the necessity of keeping something on the air at all times.

"If a program runs short a recording of change-ringing, rung on the traditional Bow Bells, is played if the interval is a long one.

"Many guest pianists are used for special recitals, for, after all, this is a government network and the patronage must be as general as possible.

Last Minute Changes.

"Even in so well oiled an organization as the BBC last minute changes are sometimes necessary. I was sitting in on a piano program not long ago—an all Bach recital played by James Ching, my piano teacher.

"It was to be a half hour recital and was placed between a 6 to 6:30 performance by actors of the Comedie Française and the 7 o'clock news. At 6:30 an official rushed into the studio explaining that the Comedie people had misjudged their timing and were not finished. Fading them out for a Bach recital by a local pianist might result in an international incident. Could he shorten his program? Inasmuch as the one inviolable program time maintained in England is the news broadcast, the pianist must be off at 7 or before. A hasty cutting of the program was the result.

"The BBC orchestra is England's finest. Sir Adrian Boult, who conducted at Ravinia this summer, is the staff conductor as well as musical director of BBC. The winter orchestral broadcasts originate in Queen's hall [the orchestra hall of London], for which the public buys tickets just as they do for any orchestral concert.

Comedy Is Amateurish.

Mr. Turner reported that the comedy and music hall programs seem amateurish. Critics, he said, complain of the "indifferent standards of performance and the deficiency in taste."

"If you've ever listened to the Saturday Music Hall show," said Mr. Turner, "which W-G-N-Mutual carries from time to time, I'm sure you'll understand what is meant.

"Although it is a broadcast program, first of all it's good old British music hall. And the man in the street loves it just as he loves the theatrical show of the vaudeville turns after which it is patterned.

"I enjoyed sitting in on one of those Saturday night broadcasts from St. George's hall not so long ago. While I found most of it dull and their humor old and not funny, still I was royally entertained at the informality of the place.

"As in a bona fide Music Hall much of the humor was local, the jokes were flaxored with double meaning."

"A fat lady song a song about 'What a Lot o' Lovin' When a Fat Girl Loves,' and a drippy ballad about 'Pals, Just Pals,' which stopped the show. Beatrice Lillie followed her with 'Three Little Fishies' and 'I Hate Spring,' and was applauded only enough to indicate they had enjoyed her but not so much as the fat lady."

Woman of Courage

Selena Royle, who plays the title role in "Woman of Courage" on CBS. Miss Royle has been in radio for a decade.

TOBY TAYLOR IS 'SUNDAY DATE' SOLOIST TODAY

Raphael Spiro to Play on Melody Pageant.

Your Sunday Date, with Director Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra, will present Toby Taylor, contralto, as featured guest vocalist, Lawrence Salerno and the Three Graces from 8 to 8:30 tonight on W-G-N.

Miss Taylor, who has been starred in stage and radio shows in St. Louis for two years, will sing "Mad About the Boy" and "Don't Worry 'Bout Me."

Salerno is to sing, "Address Unknown," and will join the chorus in "That's Why Darkies Were Born."

The Three Graces and Their Boy Friends will harmonize in the new novelty number, "Well All Right."

The Pageant of Melody, conducted by Henry Weber, will present Attilio Baggiore, tenor, Raphael Spiro, violinist, and the W-G-N concert orchestra in a program of semi-classical music from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Spiro and Mr. Weber will give a violin and piano presentation of Fritz Kreisler's "Gypsy Caprice."

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," from Amilcare Ponchielli's La Gioconda, and will blend his voice with those of the octet in the songs, "Lassie O' Mine," by Walt, and "Song of Songs," by De Moya.

Music in a lighter vein will be featured on the Concert Revue, conducted by Mr. Weber, with themes from Franz Lehar sung by Kathryn Witwer, Harriet Brewer, William Miller, and Mark Love from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m., Thursday, on W-G-N and Mutual.

Miss Witwer and Miller will join the octet in "Dear Marsovia," "Vilia," and "Merry Widow Waltz," by Lehar. The "Quartette," from Verdi's Rigoletto will be sung by Miss Witwer, Miss Brewer, Miller and Love.

Young Star

Mary Patton, young radio actress who has become the headliner of the new serial, The Trouble with Marriage, on WLS. Stanley Harris plays the male lead.

JOIN THE SWING TO

Cubs

The new popular hit in breakfast foods—made of naturally nourishing whole wheat!

From this day on—whenever you hear the expression "As hungry as a bear"—think of CUBS the new breakfast banquet that makes appetites spring out of nowhere! CUBS are made by a very old friend of yours who makes lots of the good things you love. They are made by National Biscuit Company, and you know what that means in good taste. And best of all . . . CUBS are made of whole wheat . . . and so made that the 7 vital food elements which we've listed on the bottom are retained with their wholesome goodness. So CUBS, when eaten regularly, help you in 7 separate ways. A good reason, if there ever was one, for buying your CUBS right now!

Whole wheat energy to help you in these 7 ways:

1. Proteins . . . to help develop muscle and other tissue.
2. Carbohydrates...contribute abundantly to physical energy.
3. Iron . . . an essential element of the blood stream.
4. Copper. . . enables the system to use food iron effectively.
5. Phosphorus . . . helps develop sturdy bones and teeth.
6. Roughage . . . helps "regularity."
7. Vitamin B_1 . . . stimulates faulty appetite and digestion.

YOU'RE HAPPY?
I'LL SAY I AM. I AND YOUR UNCLE WILLIE QUARRELED BECAUSE I'M GOING TO VISIT MY FOLKS AND HE REFUSED TO CARRY MY BAGGAGE TO THE TRAIN – MY, MY! I NEVER HAD NO IDEA HE CARED FOR ME SO MUCH.
WELL, THERE SHE GOES- ....PERHAPS I HAD OUGHT TO GO TO THE STATION AND SEE THAT SHE GETS ON THE TRAIN ALL RIGHT.
CARRY YOUAH BAGGAGE, LADY?
NO, THE LITTLE BOY WILL CARRY IT.
CARRY DE LIL' BOY?
OH, DEAR! I CAN'T GET THESE FLOWERS AND MYSELF BOTH IN THIS DINKY LITTLE TELEPHONE BOOTH. WOULD YOU MIND HOLDING THEM FOR ME A MINUTE?
MADAM, IT WOULD BE A PLEASURE
WHY, WILLIE!
OH, HELLO, HONEY. I JEST COME TO TELL YOU GOOD-BYE.
AND THESE GORGEOUS FLOWERS!
WHAT DOES THIS CARD SAY?
"TO THE SWEETEST GIRL IN THE WORLD, FROM HER LOVING HUSBAND"– WHY, WILLIE!
WHAT HAPPENED, DIDJA HIT HIM?
HIT HIM? HEAVENS, NO! I JEST KISSED HIM AND HE FAINTED! GET THAT PORTER!
WHOOEE-AH KNOWS YOU FEEL PUTTY BAD 'BOUT DIS, MADAM.
NO, IN FACT IT IS ONE OF THE HAPPIEST DAYS OF MY LIFE– THIS WAY, PLEASE.
WHERE AM I?
ON THE TRAIN GOING TO VISIT MY FOLKS. I WAS SO TOUCHED WHEN YOU BRUNG THIS GORGEOUS BOUQUET THAT I COULDN'T BEAR TO GO AWAY AND LEAVE YOU.
LEMME OFFA HERE!
SIT DOWN, WILLIE, WE'RE PULLING OUT– LOOK, THERE IS A LADY AND A POLICEMAN RUNNING AFTER THE TRAIN AND THEY WON'T EVEN STOP FOR THEM
OH-OH! WELL, BABY I'M GOING TO STAY RIGHT HERE WITH YOU.
MY! MY! I NEVER SEEN SUCH A CHANGE IN A MAN IN MY LIFE SAY, WOTTA YOU BEEN UP TO, ANYWAY?

DICK TRACY
THE BLACK PALL OF MURDER SETTLES HEAVILY OVER THE NUREMOH HOUSEHOLD AS IT IS DISCOVERED THE ELDERLY AUNT MARGOT HAD BEEN SHOT THROUGH THE HEART AS SHE LAY IN HER BED, ON THE WEDDING DAY OF TESS AND EDWARD.
BUT WHAT MAKES YOU THINK, TRACY, THAT THE KILLER WAS LEFT-HANDED?
ORDERED, IN LINE OF DUTY, TO TAKE CHARGE OF THE CASE, DICK TRACY RELUCTANTLY MAKES HIS INVESTIGATION.
LIE DOWN ON THAT BED A MINUTE, MILLIGAN!
THE PEACEFUL POSITION OF THE VICTIM AND THE FACT THAT THERE WERE NO SIGNS OF A STRUGGLE SHOW THAT THE OLD LADY BELIEVED SHE WAS BEING APPROACHED BY A FRIEND.
SINCE POWDER BURNS SHOW THE BULLET WAS FIRED FROM CLOSE RANGE, IT MUST HAVE BEEN FIRED FROM THIS SIDE OF THE BED BECAUSE THE TABLE OVER THERE PREVENTS CLOSE ACCESS FROM THAT SIDE!
THE FACT THAT THE BULLET PASSED STRAIGHT THROUGH THE BODY AND NOT ON AN ANGLE, SHOWS THAT THE GUN MUST HAVE BEEN HELD IN THE LEFT HAND.
HERE HE IS, MR. TRACY.
HELLO, KARL. NOW LISTEN TO ME. THEY FOUND THE MURDER GUN IN YOUR ROOM AND YOU ARE IN A PLENTY TOUGH SPOT.
HEE.. HEE.. THEY THINK I DID IT, DON'T THEY?
YES! BUT I DON'T BELIEVE YOU CAN EVEN SHOOT A GUN. HERE, TAKE THIS AND LET'S SEE.
PURPOSELY, TRACY PLACES THE GUN IN KARL'S LEFT HAND!
IMMEDIATELY, KARL SHIFTS THE WEAPON TO HIS RIGHT HAND AND RAISES HIS ARM.
CLICK
HEE, HEE! YOU MUSTA FORGOT TO PUT A BULLET IN IT—HEH?
THAT'S ALL I WANT TO KNOW! KARL IS NOT LEFT-HANDED AND HE'S NOT OUR MAN!
MEANWHILE.
BUT TO THINK, TESS DEAR, THAT YOUR MARRIAGE TO ME AND YOUR FIRST DAYS AS MRS. NUREMOH SHOULD BE MARRED BY THIS AWFUL TRAGEDY.
EDWARD, DARLING, PLEASE DON'T CARRY ON SO! ALL THAT MATTERS IS THAT I HAVE YOU.
WE MUST LEAVE HERE FOR A FEW DAYS. I WON'T LET YOU STAY IN THIS ATMOSPHERE. PACK OUR THINGS, DEAR, WE'LL GO INTO TOWN.
A CHANGE MIGHT BE BEST FOR YOU. ER---OH, EDWARD DEAR, LOOK AT THIS NEW SUIT OF YOURS! THERE'S A HOLE RIGHT THROUGH THE LEFT POCKET OF THE COAT--- LOOKS LIKE A BURN.

HI, POPSY!
I'VE BEEN AN AWFULLY NICE GIRL.
THAT'S GOOD NEWS, JUDY.
DID YOU BRING ME?
ME? WHY SHOULD I?
I BROUGHT YOU SOMETHING LAST TIME, DIDN'T I?
YOU CAN'T HOLD IT AGAINST A FELLOW IF HE FORGETS SOMETIMES.
I'M A BUSY MAN, JUDY. I'VE GOT MANY THINGS ON MY MIND.
YOU'D BETTER GIVE UP, JUDY. THAT'S THE LAST POCKET.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

Y-O-U-R O-W-N B-U-S-I-N-E-S-S

Would you be interested in starting a business for yourself without 1 cent of investment on your part?

Well, that is exactly what we have done for many men in this territory.

These men are previous storekeepers, doctors, lawyers, shopworkers, mechanics, etc., and are now earning and receiving in percentage as much as $50 in a single day.

We are an old time nationally known manufacturer of electrical units that defy competition and for which there is a constantly increasing demand.

Now, here are the arrangements: You must be between 24 and 54, preferably married, honest, reliable, possess a neat appearance, and possess at least a grammar school education.

At this time we will only interview men living on the South Side and southern Cook county.

Every man answering this advertisement will be given a confidential interview and if selected will be trained at our expense in our methods which are successful.

There are no strings attached to the offer, as we even can pay rent, light, heat, telephone, girl hire, consign your merchandise, and finance your account.

Apply Monday at 11 a. m. sharp. Ask for Mr. Glines.

Suite 400, Maryland building, 841 E. 63d street [1 block east of Cottage Grove].

OPPORTUNITY: For ambitious, experienced salesmen, not over 35 years of age, with one of the largest manufacturers of Daytime Dresses in the country, who is sponsoring a new department, and is seeking the services of salesmen who have a definite following in their respective territories. Prefer men who live in the territories in which they travel, and who own an automobile.
This manufacturer sells exclusively to one account in each city or town. Is now making Junior and Misses' Dresses to retail from $3.98 to $10.98. In the new department will be manufactured Misses' and youthfully styled Half Size Dresses in the same priced brackets, to which will be given nation-wide publicity.
In replying, please furnish adequate information to warrant an interview.

11 NEW HOMES FOR SALE
IN CONNECTICUT VILLAGE
Close to lake on the famous North Shore at a cost-per-month less than a comparable rental.

CONNECTICUT VILLAGE, a restricted residential park adjoining Kenilworth on the south, with smart, interesting homes built along winding lanes and set among evergreens, trees and shrubs, is one block south of Kenilworth station. Six blocks to New Trier High.

6 and 7 room homes, priced from $13,750 to $16,200. Plans for larger homes to $30,000 on display. These homes are built with the same skill and integrity that have won Blietz-built homes three national awards. All homes are exquisitely decorated and landscaped.

Drive Sheridan-road to Woodstock-road., Kenilworth, turn west; or drive Green Bay-road and cross east at Kenilworth station.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Scale Sunflowers.

Aug. 5, 1939.

THE men who work in the sample garden at the Du Page county farm already are running around with step ladders under their arms. They have started their annual search for the tallest sunflower in the garden.

Last fall there was quite a bit of rivalry among northern Illinois farmers and suburbanites to find out who grew the tallest sunflower. The grand champion for the year turned out to be a specimen 15 feet 10 inches high which thrust its big flower skyward above the garden plot at the Du Page county farm. So far this season the men have found one which is more than 12 feet tall and still going strong.

1,150 Visit in July.

The tall sunflowers and the many varieties of vegetables growing in the sample garden are drawing hundreds of visitors to the Du Page county farm. The men who keep a directory of visitors report that 1,150 persons inspected the plots during July. More than five hundred of these were children of school age, many from orphanages, summer schools, and settlement houses.

The little Scottish terrier abandoned on the Du Page county farm more than two weeks ago still is being cared for by one of the farm families. The former owner of this friendly pet drove his car into the farm, put the dog out, and then drove away. The farm residents rescued the dog and have been trying to find a good home for it. The animal obviously was a house pet.

Mrs. E. C. Dow, president of the Chicago Humane Education society, said that if the person who deserted the dog is found he will be subject to prosecution. Abandonment of pets not only is cruel but is a violation of the humane laws of the state and is punishable by a fine of not less than $3 nor more than $200.

Several Get Stung.

The residents of the Du Page county farm are trying to work out some sort of "appeasement policy" for the bees and other stinging insects which are buzzing around the fields. During the last two weeks two men, one farm wife, two mules, two colts, and four horses have been stung by bees or hornets.

The mares and their colts walked right into trouble by sneaking out of their paddock the other day. They went through a gate, left the paddock, and started investigating the green alfalfa in a nearby field. One of the colts poked its nose into a nest of yellow jackets. The colt, bitten on his nose, whinnied, ran to the mare and rubbed his nose on her shoulder. This drew the hornets to her.

During the next few seconds the horde of yellow jackets attacked the other colt and mare and then all four of the harassed horses started on a cross-country dash through the fields. They didn't stop running until they were about half a mile from the scene of battle. Swellings on their noses will be a reminder in the next few weeks that they shouldn't sneak out of their paddock.

Stir Up Field Bees.

Two of the men were telling us that they have stirred up nests of bees while working in the hayfields. One drove a pair of mules over several nests of bumblebees, with mild disaster both for the mules and the worker. The other man was driving a team of horses in the hayfield when he had a similar experience.

One of the farm housewives was picking wild blackberries in the woods when she disturbed some hornets which stung her several times.

Commonwealth's rate is less on all loans than the maximum rate permitted by law. You do not have to be an "executive" or have a "special" credit standing to qualify for OUR reduced rate. Commonwealth's monthly rate of 2½% on loan balances of $150 or less and only 2% on loan balances above, applies to ALL TYPES AND CLASSES OF LOANS. Any one who can make regular payments can qualify; there is no discrimination. EVERYBODY GETS THIS SAME RATE. Of course persons whose incomes are above average can afford to make larger payments and thus make substantial reductions in their loan cost.

No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. Applications received by personal call, letter, or telephone will receive immediate attention.

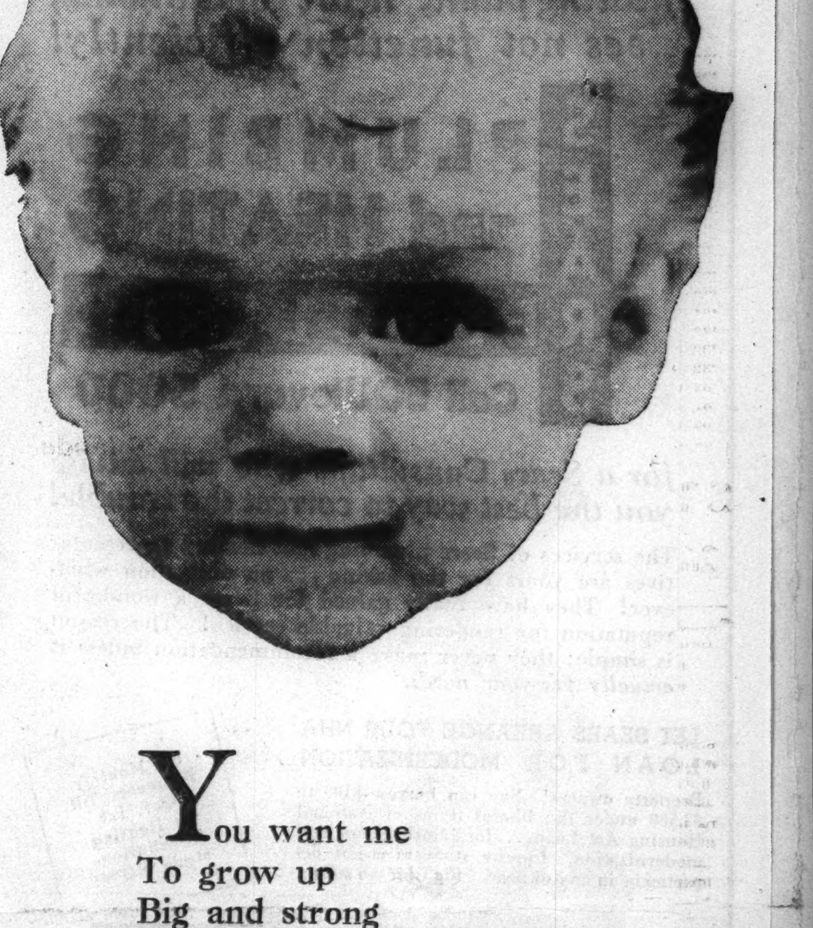
Gimme Air!



You want me
To grow up
Big and strong
Dontcha?
Well, then—
I need air...
Lots of it...
And sunshine.
A room of
My own.
Some place for
All my toys,
Crib and stuff.
Maybe a sunporch
Wouldn't be a bad
Idea either when
You start picking
Our next apartment.
Oh, yes,
When you do
Begin looking,
They say that the Apartments to Rent
Columns in the Tribune want ad section
Have a big selection of Places all over town
To choose from.
Didn't I see that Part of the paper
Around here
Somewhere this morning?
How about Getting it out
Now
And looking over
The apartments
Advertised there
Today?

SERVING CHICAGO FOR 92 YEARS

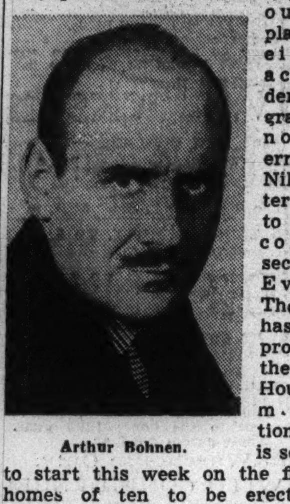
Big Suburban Home Development to Be Started This Week

PLAT 18 ACRES IN MODERN TYPE OF SUBDIVISION

Program Calls for 108 New Residences.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Arthur Bohnen, nationally known city planner and architect, yesterday outlined plans for an eighteen acre residential program in the northeastern tip of Niles Center adjacent to the Lincolnwood section of Evanston. The project has been approved by the Federal Housing administration. Work is scheduled to start this week on the first two homes of ten to be erected this month. Each of the first two units has been sold. According to Bohnen at least twenty homes will be built this season.



Arthur Bohnen.

The eighteen acres, platted into 108 homesites, are bounded on the north by Golf road, on the south by Emerson street, on the west by Lincolnwood drive, on the east by Morgan avenue extended.

"Pay When Delivered."

The land is owned by the Compleat House, Inc., of which Bohnen is president. The corporation takes its name from its program of operation. This includes a "pay when delivered" policy. The purchase price covers all incidentals such as financing charges, appraisal fees, landscaping, grading, and the many other extras, Bohnen said.

"The buyer's down payment will be held in escrow and will not be payable to The Compleat House, Inc., until the buyer has had an opportunity to inspect the home and certify that it has been completed in every way, fully complying with our plans and specifications," Bohnen said.

Screened from Trafic.

The principles of modern neighborhood planning have been put into practice in the new development. With the exception of houses on Lincolnwood drive, all the homes will face on the new roads to be laid out. There will be little except local trafic.

A parkway will run along the entire Golf road frontage, and this will be planted with trees and shrubs so the homes will be screened from the state road trafic.

There will be no alleys in the entire development. Most of the houses will have their living rooms and at least one bedroom facing gardens in the rear. Garages will be made an integral part of the houses and will open on the street

Rooms on Three Levels.

The design of the new homes will be modern with the rooms on three levels. The living room, dining room and kitchen will be on the ground level, opening directly on the lawn. A short rise of seven steps will lead up to the two bedrooms which will be over a basement section which is reached from the kitchen by six steps downward.

All of the houses will be of brick or concrete block and all will be heated by gas. They will occupy lots averaging 50 by 110 feet. All will be financed with Federal Housing administration insured mortgages. FHA applications already have been filed on ten of the properties by the Midwestern Mortgage company, 105 West Adams street.

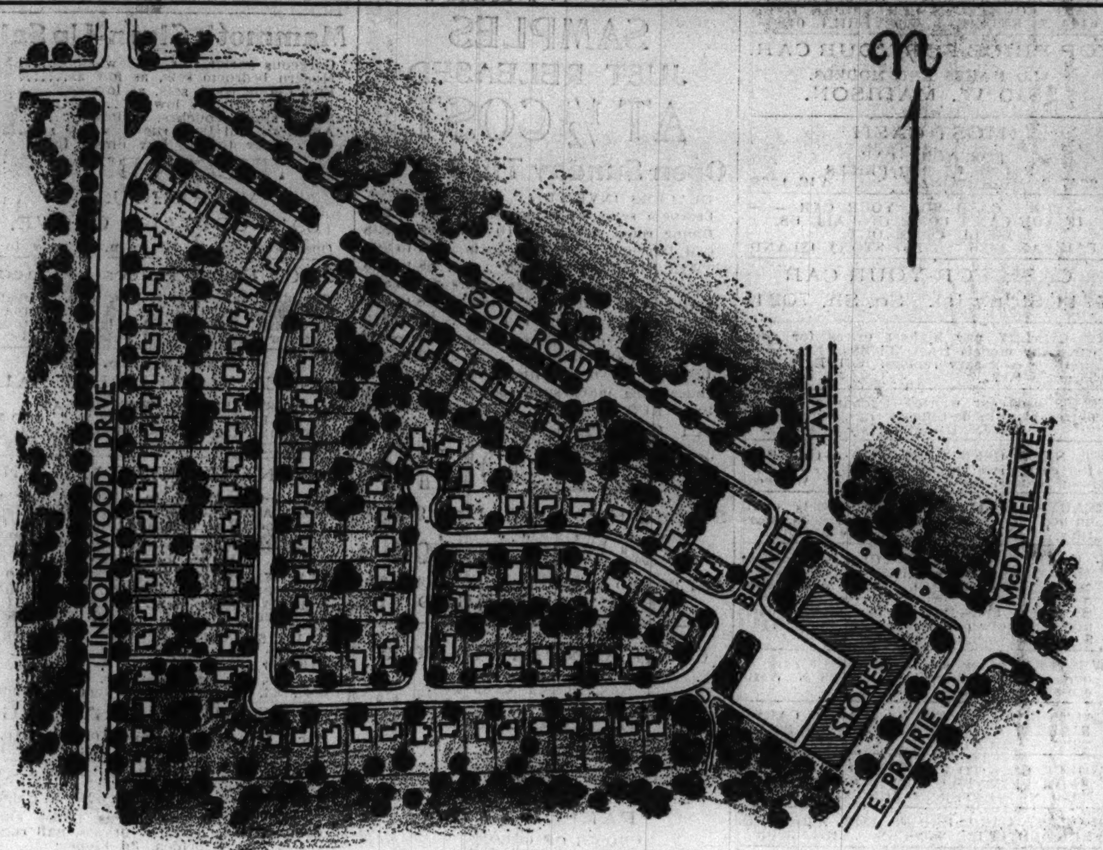
Plan Business Center.

The price range for the complete house, including cost of lot, will be from $5,995 to $8,495. Some homes will have two and some three bedrooms.

If present plans are carried out the irregular shaped three acre tract just east of the eighteen acres to be improved with homes, at the intersection of East Prairie and Golf roads, will be made a business center. The Compleat Homes, Inc., it is expected, will develop this with modern shops.

Although the entire property is just across Golf road from Evanston and actually in Niles Center, it is in the Evanston postoffice district and also in the Evanston school district.

Plat of Chicago's Newest Suburban Development



The above eighteen acre development of The Compleat House, Inc., was platted by that organization, of which Arthur Bohnen is president, in collaboration with the FHA land planning division. A thirty foot parkway lined with trees and shrubbery will screen homes from trafic on Golf road, the northern boundary.

WILMETTE CHURCH BUYS BACK BUILDING IT LOST 3 YEARS AGO

The Wilmette English Lutheran church, at the southwest corner of Seventh street and Greenleaf avenue, Wilmette, has been repurchased by the church organization for $23,500, according to the revenue stamps on the deed.

In October, 1936, the congregation, unable to meet principal and interest payments on a $36,000 mortgage, turned the church over to the mortgagee. L. C. Burgener, of the W. S. Hennessey company, was appointed receiver in May, 1937.

The church, parish house, and manse were built in 1922 at a reported cost of $140,000, from the plans by George H. Buckley, Wilmette architect. The Rev. David Kabele is pastor. The church has been holding services in the Wilmette Masonic temple.

A. & P. Leases New Store in South Side Building

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company has leased for ten years the west seventy feet of the one story stone building being erected at the northwest corner of East 71st street and Bennett avenue. It will be one of the largest A. & P. stores in the Chicago area, with 11,000 square feet of floor space. The Bennett Realty company of Hammond, Ind., owner of the property, already is planning an addition of thirty-four feet frontage to the present structure. Miton J. Krensky of A. M. Krensky Bros., agents for the property, was broker for all parties.

STATE AND ERIE CORNER BOUGHT; OWNER TO BUILD

A new store building is contemplated for the northeast corner of State and Erie streets. John Marsh yesterday bought that property from the Orlando Noble estate, through the Bowes Realty company, for an undisclosed consideration.

According to Frederick M. Bowes the new owner will wreck the old improvements and erect a one or two story building in the fall. Negotiations are being made for tenants, Bowes said. The property fronts 118 feet on State and seventy-five feet on Erie street.

Trade Business Corners for Two Suburban Homes

Two Chicago business corners were exchanged yesterday for two Evanston residences. The North Side Management corporation, of which Fred Becklenberg is head, traded the northeast corner of Devon and Greenview, improved with a one story building containing nine stores, and the southwest corner of Milwaukee avenue and Giddings street, also containing nine stores, for the fourteen and nine room houses at the southwest corner of Judson avenue and Church street, Evanston. John T. Wheeler & Co. and W. G. Ruggles & Co. were brokers.

Decalcomania Company Buys Skilsaw, Inc., Plant

The Chicago Decalcomania company bought from Skilsaw, Inc., the one story factory building at 3310 Elston avenue, lot 125 by 125, for a reported $27,500. Elmer E. Stults, Inc., was broker.

At the Realty Boards

Maxim Hirsch, attorney for the North Side Real Estate board, will speak on "The Corporation in Real Estate" at the next meeting of the North Side Real Estate board, Tuesday noon, Aug. 8, at the Copeland hotel, Sheridan road and Argyle street. Roy S. Knauer will preside.

Brokers' Notes

Roscoe E. Woods and associates of Hammond, Ind., Chandler & Montague, and W. R. Keene were brokers in the purchase of the old National Radiator plant at 1111 East 83d street by G. A. Bell, president of the Marion National bank of Marion, Ind. The plant will be occupied by the newly formed Abell Box corporation.

MAYOR TO BREAK GROUND FOR BIG PRIVATE FLATS

Mayor Kelly, members of the city council, officials of the Federal Housing administration, and a number of men prominent in business and professional circles, will participate in ground breaking ceremonies next Thursday for the 63,443,000 Chatham Park apartment project at Cottage Grove avenue and 83d street. Completion is scheduled for May 1, 1940.

Mayor Kelly.

Names of the principal officers and stockholders in Chatham Park, Inc., the owning corporation, were disclosed yesterday. They are: President, George H. Dovenmuehle, vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc.; vice president, Preston Boyden, senior partner of the law firm of Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden; treasurer, Theodore A. Buenger, president of Dovenmuehle, Inc.; secretary, Harry C. Eigelberner, secretary of Dovenmuehle, Inc.

Robert G. Regan, president of the construction firm of Robert G. Regan company, which has the general contract for the housing project, is a stockholder.

Alfred Shaw, senior partner of the architectural firm of Shaw, Naess & Murphy, which designed Chatham Park, also is a stockholder.

The ground breaking ceremonies will take place at 2 p. m. next Thursday at the southeast corner of Cottage Grove and 83d.

WHY IT'S SO EASY TO OWN AN OPPORTUNITY FARM

WE HAVE LOTS of requests for details on Opportunity Farms. So many people want to know about the easy terms on which these farms can be bought.

It's as simple as this: You make a small down payment. Then figure 6% on the unpaid balance. This is the amount you will have to pay each year—and it covers both interest and principal payments.

The table on the right shows how small the yearly payments per $1,000 of unpaid balance can be.

Already we've helped many people to the ownership of fine farms. And their satisfaction in these farms is shown by the number of their friends they've encouraged to share in this opportunity! Why wait longer to get the facts about the farm you've dreamed of owning?

YEARLY PAYMENTS per $1,000

YEAR	INTEREST ON BALANCE OF PRINCIPAL	PAYMENT ON BALANCE OF PRINCIPAL	TOTAL ANNUAL PAYT.
1	$45.00	$15.00	$60.
2	44.33	15.67	60.
3	43.62	16.38	60.
4	42.88	17.12	60.
5	42.11	17.89	60.
6	41.31	18.69	60.
7	40.47	19.53	60.
8	39.59	20.41	60.
9	38.67	21.33	60.
10	37.71	22.29	60.
11	40.78	19.22	60.
12	39.82	20.18	60.
13	38.81	21.19	60.
14	37.76	22.24	60.

Every farm listed as an Opportunity Farm must have adequate, sound, weather-tight buildings, well-painted; improved soil, with good drainage, and expertly planned crop rotation. Every Opportunity Farm is a going concern.

Good Looking Costumes for Larger Sophisticates Are Distinctive, Handsome and Cut to Slenderize

Summer Wardrobes for the Mature Figures Are Rich in Color

A—Printed sheer outfit for summer daytime and general wear. Dress and coat both have elbow-length sleeves, narrow full-length plaits, and slender silhouette. Narrow dark velvet band trims the coat. ● B—The perfect travel outfit, cool and noncrushable, smart and slenderizing. Material is sturdy sheer in fine crosslined material. Dress is softly tailored to match the belted coat. Both dress and coat may be worn with other wardrobe items. ● C—Dinner or evening gown of flattering lace. Available in light and dark colors. Lace is soft and clinging and not of a large pattern. Gown is designed to be worn with other evening wraps or worn with its matching bolero jacket as a dinner costume. ● D—Another suave, sophisticated evening costume available in dull black lace with lovely patterns in pale beige, a small contrast pattern that does not spread the figure. Bodice is cut with a deep V and softly draped outline. ● E—Smart and streamlined tailored street and daytime dress of coarse, firm net. Slip is of the same shade, and the outfit may be cooled with white, beige, or pale blue accessories. ● F—One of the best tub dresses, available in good variety of shades. Cool eyelet linen lace is the material used, with trim of smooth linen in same shade. Good for summer wear as street, daytime, town, or country model, it boasts an extremely modest price mark and is unquestionably the best buy of the season.

Sizes Up to 52 Assure a Complete Collection from Negligees to Evening Dresses and Wraps

By RHEA SEEGER

SO MANY adjectives and so much fanfare have been spent on the clothes with the mannequin sizes of 12, 14, or 16 that good-looking costumes for the larger sophisticate cause lots of excitement. Shoppers are stunned, just because too little publicity makes such a collection seem rare. However, there always have been fine showings of such beautifully designed and handsome wardrobes. Really distinctive costumes, if you know where to find them, are abundant. Fine fabrics, distinguished designs, flattering figure lines, and lovely colors in street, daytime, and evening clothes are featured in outstanding collections.

Sizes up to 52 assure any demand for any sort of an outfit—suit, two-piece ensemble, coats, fur coats, evening gowns and wraps, together with lingerie and negligees. All the larger sizes, the clothes for the mature woman, lovely, gracious, and flattering, are as easy to find and as easy to wear as they are reasonably priced and beautifully fashioned.

It's a haven for the fastidious and exacting shopper. There are superlative street clothes, simple in streamline, slenderizing in studied detail, cut to assure comfort and made of thin woolens or sturdy but airy silks and sheers. This doesn't mean that all the finds are navy blue or brown, for some of the smartest models are made of fine checks, equally fine stripes, and even small, precise plaids. The travel clothes are perfect. One-piece dresses combined with long coats in the summer travel models are made of strong-textured sheers and tucked transparent nets and georgettes. Sleeves are elbow length, and there are many long-sleeved coats matched with short-sleeved dresses.

Town outfits in suits and duets of long coat and dress stress long, slenderizing lines, exquisitely fine dressmaker details, and flawless comfort in the cut of sleeves and neckline. Dark outfits are knowingly accented with snowy white details such as V neckline edges, narrow cuffs, narrow collars, and small bows of sheer organdy, tucked net, and fine lace. One of the largest collections of simple, slenderizing one-piece dresses ever unpacked features these larger sizes. The materials are cool cable net, tucked sheers, and tub dresses in linen lace and smooth, cool cottons. These all are perfect examples of expertly designed dresses for the mature figure. Long plaits, long lines accentuated with narrow belts where belts are needed, long V necklines, revers that also are narrow, and excellently fitted collars and sleeves, all are fitted for freedom and action.

Nothing is skimpily done. There is plenty of material used in the tucks, plaits, and panels; no pulled-out seams possible. Hems are deep, ample for alterations. Price marks are amazingly modest for the amount of skill lavished on each well designed outfit, for the fine materials and the workmanship. Colors are vivid and alive, no dull, nondescript shades, and the printed patterns all are small, bright, and slenderizing. It's the outstanding collection of the summer season.

Sketched are six important summer finds, all ready for the trying demands of what a good all-purpose wardrobe should be, examples of daytime, travel, street, and evening clothes for the exacting shopper. Similar models in other colors and materials are just as attractively fashioned, just as smart in eye appeal and color.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The three patterns presented today are designed with attention to the needs of business and schoolgirls, and of busy women in all walks of life. They are practical styles, and range from the very tailored to the rather dressy. All of them will serve you well for your busy hours away from home.

At the left, a jacket and skirt ensemble just "born" for tweed. The jacket is best made of this fabric, with the skirt of plain woolen to harmonize or contrast. The jacket's neckline is round and collarless. There are five or more large buttons down the front, and twin pockets on the bustline. In one may be a kerchief. The shoulders are puffed for squareness. The skirt for this ensemble is moderately flared and has absolutely no plaits to be pressed.

If you want a rakish hat in the spirit of fall, try model No. 3165, available for 10 cents extra. One head size only, adaptable to your own needs.

The center frock is a suspender model that has its own frilly blouse. The original is of muslin, with the skirt in plaid, dull surfaced silk. Cottons might be made for wear immediately, and combinations of silk and woolen for the fall and winter.

At the right, a businesslike frock which the "career" girls will like, and at which professors may glance without raising a disapproving brow. It is a shirtwaist dress wtih contrasting collar and cuffs. Buttons to harmonize are used down the front of the bodice. Paneling lends a great deal of smartness to both top and skirt. Both crêpes and woolens make up well in this design.

Style No. 2821 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1½ yards of 54 inch material for the jacket and 1½ yards of 54 inch for the skirt.

Style No. 2744 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19. Size 15 requires 2¼ yards of 54 inch material for the skirt, with 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for the blouse.

Style No. 2156 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ¾ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Let Guide Aid You in Making a Color Scheme

"Color Magic in Your Rooms," a booklet by Miss Winslow, gives simple and effective ways of combining tones and of working out color schemes for any room in the house. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

More women are puzzled about color schemes than about any one problem of interior decoration. I know this because readers not only write in, asking numerous questions about color combinations; they telephone and want advice on this subject.

It is not often possible to advise about painting or papering a series of rooms over the phone. It is a matter that calls for a considerable investment of money on the part of the home owner and no counsel can be efficient unless a good deal is known about the various points of each room: its size, its number of windows and their exposure, as well as the color of the floor covering, the upholsteries, the draperies, and the woodwork. The textures of the various fabrics must be considered, too, as must the type of furniture used.

For these reasons and for several others we ask women who are interested in making their homes more attractive to write in, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. This allows us time for careful consideration of each problem presented.

• • •

The booklet, "Color Magic in Your Rooms," has been prepared to help women in creating their own color schemes. Another helpful booklet is "Color Schemes for the Living Room," in which six complete schemes have been worked out.

As brought out in the first of these leaflets, a guide will greatly lessen the task of color choosing and combining. There are various types of guides any woman can use. One is, for example, a patterned drapery fabric. With a large swatch of the draperies to be hung at the windows the entire color scheme can be worked out, simply matching several of the tones in upholsteries, floor covering, and walls.

Another guide is found in a painting or colored print used in the room. Let the colors in it dictate the colors to appear elsewhere.

Still another is an oriental rug or a rug of any definite pattern which is to be used in the room. No colors should be introduced that will clash with any of the tones in the floor covering.

Or suppose you have chosen a wallpaper with a design that especially appeals to you. Let this pattern serve as your color chart, repeating its several tints in the room's furnishings. Take a large sample with you when you go shopping for draperies, slip covers, etc. With any of the guides we've just named you can't go wrong. And you'll save yourself much time and bother.

• • •

Remember, in planning any room, that you need both pattern and plain, solid colored surfaces. If walls, floors, and draperies are all a plain color or colors and there is no pattern in upholsteries the room will seem deadly dull. A good place to get design is in the window draperies, for these can be changed from time to time, should you tire of them.

If you have a rug with a pattern in a number of colors that's something else, for you never can ignore it. It will last for many years, always dictating the color scheme of the entire room.

In the photograph today skill was used in achieving the pleasing effect that results from the right combining of plain and patterned materials. The walls are done in a pastel toned paper in soft stripes of green and yellow on off-white. The draperies are a printed material having a dusty rose background and a floral design in which some of the yellow and green and off-white of the paper are found.

The good looking mahogany couch is done in a leaf green damask and the floor covering is a room size broadloom rug in a neutral beige tone. The framed flower prints above the couch repeat the various colors in the scheme.

Autumn Coat from Paris Is Smart in Striped Woolens

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS [Special]. — Shadow-striped woolens in a wide range of colors are being shown for fall casual coats and street suits. One particularly lovely model, presented at the midsummer shows, was of rather dark gray striped woolen in the design which I have adapted for this pattern, No. 5306.

This is a youthful coat styled along boxy lines. The wide lapel collar is a welcome fashion after several seasons of infinitesimal collars or none at all. The broad shoulders are emphasized by the squared sleeves, which maintain their width almost to the wrist. A quartet of large buttons closes the coat, which is cut full but without flare. The pockets are mammoth.

An interesting use of the striped fabric was achieved in the original model, as shown in the sketch. Notice that the pattern runs vertically in the body of the coat, slantwise on the collar, and transversely on the sleeves.

Some of the popular fall colors are green [in several shades], browns [ranging from the orange tints to a dark one almost black in effect], the various blues, grays and numerous hues in the red field. And there are variations on the black theme, too.

Style No. 5306 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 2½ yards of 54 inch material for the coat, with 2½ yards of 39 inch fabric for the lining.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Vegetables and Fruits Furnish Motifs on Towels

By Nancy Cabot.

Towels may have as definite personalities as individuals when they are embroidered in an outline stitch in the color of the vegetable or fruit in question. Every kitchen will be a more attractive room if these dainty towels are hanging on a convenient rack. With the wide varieties of toweling on the market, no two articles need be alike.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the fruit and vegetable towels, No. X-533, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Home Owners' Queries

AURORA.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Can registers and grills with a forced warm air furnace be just as effective if they are placed high in the room as if they are around or near the baseboard?—James C.

Answer: Yes, with forced air systems you have more latitude in placing of grills and registers than in gravity systems. You can also use smaller sized grills.

CHICAGO.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—I have heard about back yard showers for children, but I can't seem to locate them. Where should I go?—Harry T.

Answer: Call in your neighborhood plumber and he can put one together for you in short order. It should be portable, so you can move it from spot to spot and no special part of your lawn will suffer too much from the trafic. You'll need shower head, riser pipe, and a base for it to stand on. When it is complete you can attach it to your garden hose and hook it up to a double faucet somewhere in your house for tempered water.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Can you give me a formula for a varnish and paint remover I can make at home?—J. T.

Answer: Use three-quarters cup of trisodium phosphate to one quart of water [trisodium phosphate is sold under various trade names and also under its own]. There are also excellent paint and varnish removers on the market at your local paint store or material supply dealer. You can obtain full directions with these and be sure you "do the work in proper style."

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

Sally Invites Boys and Girls to See Plays

By Sally Joy Brown.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Do you realize, boys and girls, that when your mothers and fathers were young, child actors were almost unheard of? Nowadays, however, so many youngsters have entered the theatrical world that almost every child has an interest in some form of drama. We hear children on the radio, see them on the stage, and where would the movies be if it weren't for Shirley Temple, Jane Withers, Mickey Rooney?

• • •

Modern children are taught to dance and sing, to play musical instruments, and now they're even being taught to act!

Because I know so many of you love plays, we're going to have a theater party as our next treat. On Thursday, Aug. 17, 100 boys and girls will come to a children's theater with me, to see three plays produced for and by children of your own age, the Jack and Jill players.

Many of you can undoubtedly remember the good times we've had in the Jack and Jill theater during previous party seasons, and I know you're counting on a theater party this year.

Well, now you know the date, and all you have to do is to win your invitation. Any boy or girl is eligible to try to be my guest on Aug. 17, even those who have attended previous parties this year. All you have to do is to be able to convince me that you'd have a really enjoyable time if you won an invitation. You must remember, however, to write that letter all by yourself, and to be sure to include your full name—not just Bobby or Mary—your address and your age.

All the letters will be judged next Thursday morning, and the youngsters who win invitations will find their names and addresses listed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

Instead of one long play, we're going to see three brief ones this year, "The Gift," "The Boy George Washington," and "Guki, the Moon Boy." I'll tell you a little more about the plays during the week but, of course, you don't have to wait to write your letter. Get busy on it as soon as you can, and mail it to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

• • •

Three cheers for all the boys and girls who find their names in the following list! You're all invited to come with me to see the Cubs-Cincinnati game on Aug. 10. Individual invitations will be mailed to you, so be on the watch for yours! If your address is not printed correctly—sometimes boys and girls don't make figures as clearly as they should—let me know immediately, so that your invitation won't go astray.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

The inspired way to make your perfume one of your distinctions is to choose and use it wisely and to follow the modern dictate of perfume harmony. When soap, face powder, cologne, and bath salts all are in the same captivating scent, your favorite perfume always hovers subtly about you.

Perfume, if it's right in type for the wearer, has a kind of magic about it that too few women appreciate.

If you choose perfume properly and USE it properly you dramatize yourself in an intangible fashion that has nothing to do with your costumes, your cosmetics, or the color of your eyes. Sensitive persons remember fragrances, and the haunting recollection will recall the occasion, the place, and the person. Maybe you yourself never smell gardenias but that you are reminded of your first corsage and the boy who sent it. The scent of lilac will bring you right straight back to your childhood, when you spent happy days on a lawn fringed with the heavily burdened bushes.

• • •

You can make your perfume one of the distinctions that set you apart from all other women. First, you choose it well. If you like it and others do, and if it never, never seems too sweet, too heavy, or too sharp, and if it expresses your tastes perfectly, it is a scent you can safely make yours.

The idea that a dab of perfume now and then does everything you want it to do, attract admiration and lift your own spirits, is entirely erroneous. That's not making the most of perfume. What you want to do is use your perfume faithfully, not necessarily generously, but cleverly and regularly.

That's one reason why we like the modern idea of having all your beauty aids in the same fragrance. That way you CAN literally breathe your chosen fragrance all day, every day.

Maybe you have an idea that this is an expensive procedure, that it would cost a fortune to use powder, soap, bath salts, sachet, and cologne all in the scent of your favorite perfume. It needn't. Quite recently we examined a "royal family" which has as its nucleus one of the best selling perfumes in the world. The reasonableness with which one may acquire an ensemble of beauty and great charm of fragrance made us rejoice once again that beauty aids no longer are the exclusive possessions of the rich!

The perfume is difficult to describe. It is so subtle, so restrained and it grows on you so steadily that you don't have strong opinions about it at first. First you like it and then you love it, and that probably explains why it has been one of the most popular perfumes in the market for a decade or so. It's a feminine scent rather than a sophisticated one, and it suits the feminine type of women.

Recently the perfume and all of its companion pieces have been repackaged. The motif is the magnet, a perfect symbol for a scent such as this. There's a fascinating parallel between the attraction of the magnet and the captivating perfume, don't you think? On the larger sizes of the perfume you'll find a little gold pendant that deserves a place of honor on your charm bracelet, a heart held within a magnet.

Virtually everything you use is to be found in this scent. Cologne, toilet water, face powder, bath salts, soap, sachet, talc, almost anything you now regard as a luxurious necessity. All are related by fragrance and each is lovely in itself.

The whole ensemble is moderately priced, proving once again that the American woman is one of the luckiest. She can make a great perfume literally a part of her personality, for a small sum. The same idea cost Cleopatra a fortune.

For information about these preparations, telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0200, or write to her in care of the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

Knitted Bolero Is Inexpensive and Attractive

By Jean Macdonald.

Here are two views of an attractive knitted bolero which any one may make at small expense. It may be knitted of lightweight shetland, fine angora, or string. For evening or daytime boleros have no equal, and are ideal in an office where there is such a thing as a draft blowing. Business girls may use them as "career" sweaters.

For instructions in knitting the boleros, No. X-320, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

Fall Fashions Dip Into New "Bright Black"

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The fashions for fall are getting into step with the "white war" that is raging over Europe. They're sympathetically turning black to match the mood of the average citizen over here. After reading their morning paper folks are in no mood to put up with gay and foolish clothes, and the populace is in no state of mind to be amused by such styles, either.

There is a great sobering up, therefore, of the new fashions, although I wouldn't go so far as to call them gloomy. Black dominates the color scheme for the coming months, but it is "bright black," as Mainbocher calls it. That means black with Arabian Nights detail of gold and color. These details, however, are put on with a lack of ostentation. They come in belts, restricted embroideries, and floating gadgets that can be changed.

Silhouettes, too, are subjected to restraint, as I have warned you for some time they would be. The untrammeled skirt that takes yards of goods is pruned down to less size. There is an added length to it, so it seems less childish and frivolous. Skirt fulness usually comes concentrated at the front or the back, or if all around, it is less copious.

There is a remarkable number of furless fall coats, and when fur is used it is employed for decoration in new ways. Dark rich red, in old-fashioned ratine and wool velours, makes some of the handsomest of the fall coats, trimmed with black fur and worn over black dresses. There is a gay note in the coat fashions, supplied by small wraps of scarlet wool or velvet, which can be worn when women need a "lift."

However, color is a here-and-there matter in the styles. Black is the star, particularly for daytime. Black velvet, which is used a lot for dressy clothes, takes the mournful edge off the clothes, and when they're made of wool there are those cheerful, and even dazzling, details to make the styles gay. Evening brings out sumptuous velvet brocaded faille silk, which makes some of the handsomest ensembles that I have seen for a long time.

Among the fashion makers who subscribe to the sobering up of styles there is a "hands-off sports clothes" agreement, judging by the styles shown. Sports suits and coats come in color, as usual, although I must say, even here the colors are less strident, with beige, rich brown, green and dark gold outstanding. Tweeds, which have lost most of their checked, striped and plaid patterns, and have turned plain, are the materials used for sports clothes most of the time.

The whole idea seems to be that no woman, however much she likes to lead the style parade, will be wanting to look conspicuous this fall and, from the top flight women I've been seeing lately, I think the dressmakers have hit on the right theme. There is a savage menace to be met at every turn you make, and everybody, even the most frivolous woman of fashion, feels it. She is toning down her dress to fit the state of affairs.

Mainbocher, the American, who is one of the "big six" dressmakers here, is the one who started this new movement of the Paris fashions in his midseason show.

A fall dress in a very soft, soot black wool, which you'll be seeing in your own shops very soon, has a vivid belt made of gold braid and gold sequins as the only touch of color. The wasplike waistline is made to seem that way by a fan shaped, plaited plastron of the material, ending in scallops at the neck and shoulder line. The skirt has fan tucks at the front of the hipline and is slightly flared.

A stunning evening ensemble in black faille brocaded with black velvet flowers in an all-over pattern has a short jacket buttoned on flower buttons. The modernized bustle flare at the back of the skirt is news.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

An interesting new unit for the home: A gas ironer which is mounted on a small table and weighs only 25 pounds. This ironer is easy to set up and store away when not in use. It reaches the required heat for ironing within 5 minutes and is operated with a lever which can be drawn away with slight effort. This type of press ironer will iron ruffled curtains as well as press suits! And as companion piece to this gas ironer is the new gas clothes dryer which is relatively small in over-all dimensions, but affords the equivalent of 96 feet of clothesline! And will dry an average sized family wash within 2 hours. And since it is enclosed—there's no exposure for clothes to dust or dirt!

* *

There is no worry or upkeep to some of the new type faucets, since there are some now manufactured with "all those parts which are subject to wear" contained in a removable operating unit which can be replaced as easily as you replace an electric bulb.

* *

The Romans had a name for it! They called it a "frigidarium" or "cold room"! We can duplicate such a room in our own domestic basements, on a modest scale, of course. Extra strength thickness insulating panels can separate one part of basement into an area all its own. A spot for comfort when days and nights are hot. And if provision is made for winter warmth, a spot for comfort when the blizzards rage.

[For further information on above items address Louise Bargelt, Chicago Tribune.]

Clotilde Children's Fashions

School days invariably mean wardrobe planning. Mothers with plenty else to do must concentrate on sister's clothes for the opening of term. They must be practical frocks, to be sure, but not too utilitarian in appearance or the clothes-conscious youngsters will rebel. That fashion and common sense can be united in a juvenile frock is exemplified by the pattern today. It presents a princess dress that flatters all types of little girl silhouettes and makes up well in every conceivable material. The original is created in navy crêpe with the collar of white to contrast. The collar is, of course, detachable for laundering, so that it may be kept fresh and clean between the frock's trips to the cleaner.

If you like, embroider daisies along the scalloped front and on the short puffed sleeves. A sash, if you wish one, extends only from the side seams to preserve the princess lines. There's no law against having a complete belt if you want one, however.

Another version of the pattern is shown at the right. It has long, full sleeves, and twin pockets on the skirt. Buttons are used down the front, and the scallops are sacrificed for the sake of a tailored air.

In sheer woolen, velveteen or cotton, this dress, in either style, would be fine for school. Made in silks, it would be grand for party wear.

The latest addition to our menagerie of stuffed animals is the toy lamb, pattern No. E-701, available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2614 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Gas Equipment Is Feature of the Modern Kitchen

The modern minded woman who is planning a beautifully streamlined new kitchen, or is seeking ways by which she can transform the kitchen she has into something-she-has-always-wanted, has a wide variety of fine and handsome gas equipment from which to make her selection. The modern kitchen, with cabinets, work counters, and accessory equipment, scientifically laid out, means decreased work and added pleasure for the home mistress.

In the new gas ranges there's beauty as well as the latest in thrift performance. There are gleaming white table top models with simpilicity of line and handsome design. These ranges have an automatic clock which turns the oven on and off when the housewife is gone, thus permitting her greater freedom in the planning of her time. The heavy insulation of these ranges cuts down fuel consumption and minimizes heat loss, a vast comfort when the days are hot!

The top burners are a radical departure from those of older models for they are smaller and consequently concentrate heat under the pan. Then there is a smaller burner within the regular burner by which a "simmer" stage may be maintained after food has reached the boiling point.

There are also highly efficient gas refrigerators which freeze with heat, odd as this may seem. The luxury of modern refrigeration saves the housewife money, effort, and thought. A well stocked refrigerator means no rushing out at the last minute when that extra guest arrives, or food thrown away because it spoiled before the family could eat it.

And for that constant supply of hot water which is fast becoming standard equipment in so many homes, there is the automatic gas water heater. The storage type heater is very popular at the present time. Under thermostatic control your water can be heated to any designated temperature and a supply of hot water maintained at all times with no effort on the part of the homemaker. The tanks which store the hot water are heavily insulated. These hot water heaters have been perfected in recent years so that they operate efficiently and economically.

The Average Housewife Covers 13 Miles a Day

According to estimates, the average woman working about her own home will cover as much as 13 miles in a single day.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

Steadily decreasing relief budgets are bringing more and more appeals for aid to this department. The mininum for food and rent is the only provision now being made. For all other necessities the poor must turn elsewhere.

Adequate clothing provision has not been allowed for some time. All allowances for that now have been discontinued. Men, women, and children are without decent apparel, and many are almost barefoot. There is no longer provision for electricity, and kerosene lamps and oil must be purchased with the meager food budget.

• • •

Only the extremely ill are permitted special diets. Many children are suffering from malnutrition.

Clothing and household articles, and small comforts for invalids, form the larger part of the requests now pouring in to us.

We can use clothing of all kinds and sizes, and shoes of every size. Household items most in demand include beds and springs, chairs, dishes, cooking utensils, rugs, curtains, baby furniture.

Invalids' requests are mainly for wheel chairs and small radios. The invalid on relief receives the same limited budget an able bodied man is allowed, and there is no allowance for even such small amusements as a shut-in can enjoy. Many invalids who are crippled and unable to leave their rooms must pay for such small services as they need, shopping for food, etc., all of which serves to decrease the already minute amount of money permitted for food.

• • •

Young boys and girls, who are anxious to present a suitable appearance, even if earning small salaries, cannot afford much more than lunch and carfare money, since all earnings are deducted from the budget.

A caseworker sends an appeal in behalf of an invalid on relief.

"Dear Miss Brown: We are anxious to obtain a wheel chair for one of our clients who is badly crippled with arthritis. He is unable to walk at all, and shuffles from wall to wall in order to move about. Although he has crutches, he now is unable to use them.

"Since he lives alone, he is entirely dependent on acquaintances to bring him food and other necessities. However, he usually pays for these services, thereby depriving himself of money necessary for food.

"With the aid of a wheel chair he would be able to do his own shopping. It would also provide a release from his monotonous life as, at the present time, he is unable to leave his home at all.

We shall be grateful if his need can be considered when a wheel chair is available.—MISS B."

This is but one of hundreds of similar requests we have on file, and we feel sure that any person possessing a wheel chair he no longer needs will be happy to pass it on to this needy invalid. Transportation can be arranged.

Safely Lose Ugly Fat

this amazingly simple, pleasant way. No strict diet list—no exercises—no drugs

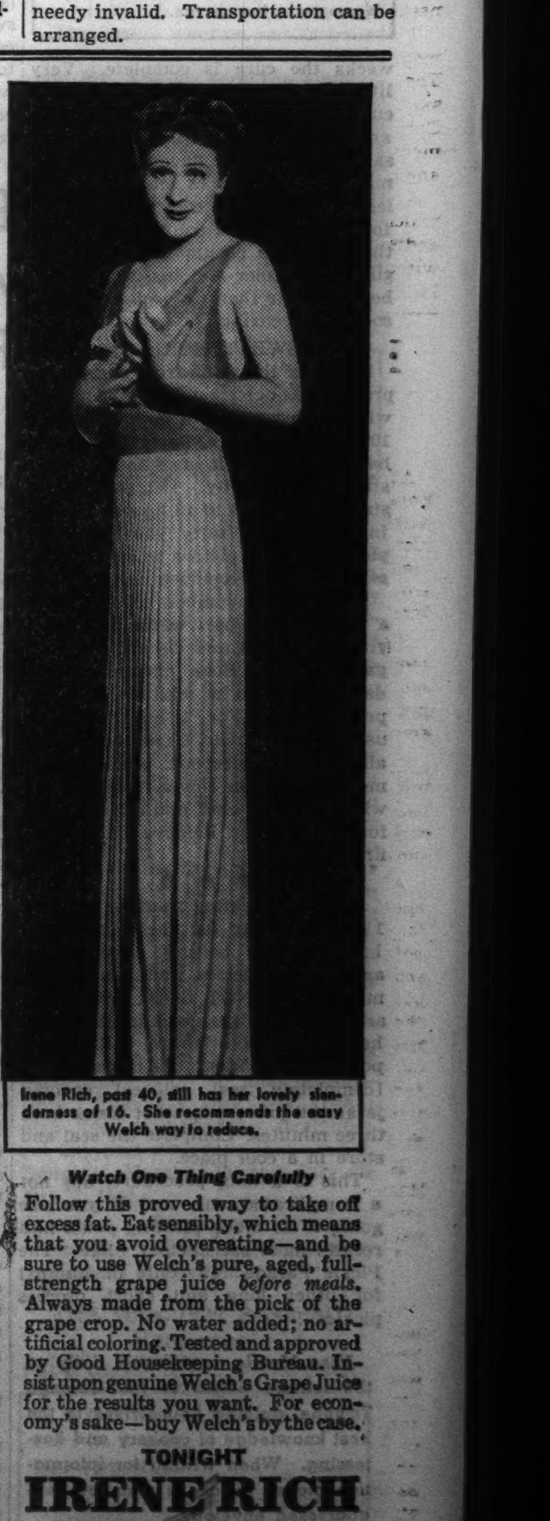
FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.



Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Watch One Thing Carefully

Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅓ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

Longer Brining Used for Most Pickle Types

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There are several kinds of pickles which can be made successfully by short cut methods. Quick dill pickles, bread and butter pickles, and mustard and mixed pickles are among them, but for the majority of fine pickles the long brining method is best.

The drawback to long brining is the bother of having crocks of pickles sitting around the kitchen or basement in homes where there isn't too much room anyhow. But if you have a good supply of cucumbers the end justifies the means. Properly cured pickles have finer flavor and crisper texture than have quickly made pickles.

Cooking salt, not table salt, should be used to make the brine. Cider vinegar is used chiefly for home pickling, except for onions and other white vegetables, which require a white vinegar for preservation of their own whiteness.

• • •

Never use alum in pickle making. The addition of alum to pickles to keep them green is an old practice, but not one to be recommended. Properly cured pickles have good natural color without alum.

Sweet, sour, or any other kind of pickles you like may be made from cucumbers which have been brined according to this method:

FERMENTED CUCUMBER SALT STOCK.
12 pounds [about ¼ bushel] firm, fresh cucumbers.
9 quarts [2½ gallons] soft water.
2 pounds [3¼ cups] cooking salt.

Use a 4 gallon crock or paraffined wooden container. Wash cucumbers if necessary. Use them within 24 hours of picking, if possible. Pack them into the container and cover with the brine made by adding salt to soft water. If hard water must be used, boil and cool it, pour it from sediment, and filter through a closely woven cloth. Then add a half cup of vinegar. Fermentation may be hastened if 3 tablespoons of sugar are added to the brine. Cover cucumbers with a plate or a paraffined board which will just fit inside the container. Top the plate or board with a weight, so that the cucumbers will be held below the surface of the brine. Place a clean cloth over the container and keep it in a fairly warm place, about 80 degrees, for fermentation.

• • •

Remove scum from the top of the pickles every few days, being careful not to mix it into the brine. Place 1⅞ cups salt [1 pound, 3 ounces] on the cover at the end of the first day, and at the end of each week for five weeks, place ½ cup [5 ounces] on the lid. The salt gradually dissolves from this position, keeping the brine at the proper saltiness for curing. When fermentation ceases after about six weeks the cure is complete. Very little scum will be formed and the cucumbers will be dark green, firm, and crisp. They will be strongly salty, with a good flavor. Now they may be freshened to make the pickles, or stored in a cool place, sealed, for use later. If kept too long in the brine the cucumbers deteriorate slightly in color and texture, so it is best to make them into pickles fairly soon after curing.

SWEET PICKLES

Drain off the brine from cucumbers prepared as described, and cover them with fresh water at a temperature of 100 to 120 degrees, fairly hot to the hands, changing it once or twice and stirring frequently. Let the pickles stand in it for 6 to 12 hours, depending upon how salty you like your pickles. Drain pickles when as much salt has been removed as you like.

Now soak cucumbers five days in a mixture of 1 part water to 3 parts vinegar. Drain and discard the vinegar solution. Soak cucumbers five days longer in a mixture of these proportions: For 1 quart vinegar use 1½ cups sugar, 1 teaspoon whole allspice, 1 tablespoon whole cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 tablespoon white mustard seed, and boil together for five minutes. Remove spices after first day.

Drain off pickling solution and add 1¼ cups sugar for each quart and bring to the boiling point. Pour again over pickles and simmer six minutes. DO NOT BOIL. Set pickles aside for two days, pack in glass jars, heat pickle solution to boiling and pour over pickles. Partly seal jars [completely seal self-seal covered jars] and process in a hot water bath three minutes. Complete the seal and store in a cool place.

This is a long procedure, but not a complicated one, and if you are going to do much pickling you'll find results most satisfactory. See "The Pickle Parade" [3 cents in stamps] for other long and short process pickles.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Skeptical though some of us were about the fashion forecast about bustles, that style item has definitly arrived and, whether we like it or not, it is something to be considered. Our personal opinion is that the bustle is all right for the right figures, but that most of us must steer clear of the protuberance because we have our own! However, the bustle may be modified into a line that merely suggests the bustle, and this sort of thing most of us can exhibit in public without qualms.

I've incorporated a slim version of the bustle in this autumn dress of crêpe. It's the narrow-at-the-top, wide-at-the-bottom center back panel that does it, with the bow decking the waistline. The front of the skirt is flared, too, so there's plenty of swirl. The rest of the dress is rather conventional, as is suitable, because too much excitement in one frock would not be modish. I think the campus girls will like the frock because it is designed with design. What I mean is, it's the sort of dress that should win the stag line.

Around the heart-shaped neckline I've put lace, and more of it trims the simple puffed sleeves. The center panel of the bodice has buttons in a row, and there are tucks and shirrings here and there to give the waistline softness.

My own dress is of black crêpe, with white accents, but you can use your own discretion about colors.

Style No. T-8634 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20.

Etiquet Editor Answers Some Reader Queries

When should invitations to bridal showers be sent out? Questions such as this are answered in the booklet, "The Bridal Shower," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

The mail has brought us these questions. They are of quite general interest, so we put them in the column for general consumption. We do hope that any one who has a question, great or small, relating to social behavior will feel free to write us at any time. Or if you live in the city and you find the telephone more convenient, use it instead. Our principal interest is in hearing from you.

Miss M. M writes: "When an invitation contains the names of several hostesses, to whom does one reply in answering the invitation?

Send your response to the hostess whose name appears first on the list. If the party is to be given at the home of one of these hostesses, it should be that woman whose name is the first on the list.

A question from Mrs. K. B. reminds us that the custom of making formal calls and the little engraved calling cards are not completely extinct, by asking if a calling card with a corner turned down has any particular significance.

Different persons place a different meaning on the dog-eared card. One interpretation is that the card is meant for all the ladies in the family. Another school holds that it is to convey that the call was made in person and not sent in an envelope or delivered by the chauffeur. Still other people turn the corner of the card without having any special reason for doing so.

• • •

And another one about calling cards is from Mrs. T. S. She asks this: "When leaving calling cards does one hand them directly to the hostess, and at what stage of the call?"

Calling cards are removed from your little card case and placed on the card tray as you take your leave. They are not handed to the hostess. But if your particular circle of friends observes the formality of making calls and leaving calling cards, there will be in the hallway a little table, and on it a silver tray for the express purpose of receiving the cards. That is where they should be placed. If there is no tray, put them directly on the table.

Mrs. T. M. is puzzled about what variety of hors d'oeuvres is eaten with the fingers.

The answer is any one that may be handled gracefully with the fingers. There are some that are of such a size, shape, and consistency that they do not lend themselves to this technique, in which case a fork is provided.

Camps Will Gladly Answer Parents' Query

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York News.]

How we watch over our children—their food and rest, their companions, their actual safety, their tastes, their spiritual and character tone, the ideas and people they are exposed to!

How alert we are to everything that pertains to the well being of our children! We cannot expect any one else to be quite like that about them. But when for any one of a number of reasons the time comes when we decide to send our child away from us and put him into some one else's hands, we should be infinitely careful as to just who that person is and what the place is like. Whether it is to be school or camp, we should inform ourselves regarding every phase of his care while there.

If camp is on your mind for next year, no time could be better for you to visit the ones you are considering than right now when they are in full swing.

Even if your child is still at camp, and if in addition you may intend to let him or her go next year—an inquiring visit will inform you as to camp conditions and may serve the excellent purpose of reassuring you, or of acting as the basis for constructive criticism on specific points.

• • •

Establishing and conducting a camp for children is a serious responsibility requiring skill and experience. A good camp will welcome your questions, and so most accredited camps of long standing will come out with a high rating on your score card. All camps, however, are not up to standard.

Today's article is not intended to alarm parents but to inform them of the points to look for in estimating the caliber of the camp they are taking under consideration. The standards given today are not of my own gathering, but are from those summarized by the Bureau of Research and Studies of the Boston Council of Social Agencies.

Based on the general physical and personal set-up of a camp, these are the important points for you to scrutinize:

1—Physical equipment.
 A. Site.
 B. Buildings and living quarters.
 C. Program equipment.
2—Health, safety and sanitation.
 A. Health provisions.
 B. Sanitation.
 C. Safety measures.
 D. Waterfront.
 E. Food.
3—Personnel and administration.
 A. Leadership.
 B. Employés.
 C. Staff management.
 D. Relationship with home and parents.
4—Program.
 A. Definition and objectives.
 B. Methods of development.
 C. Activities and events.

• • •

To cover in detail the various standards for camps would take several weeks of this column's space. Since health is surely the basis of benefit from camp life—not that social and character benefits aren't important, too—I am giving below the standard evolved in this study as conducive to a healthful summer for children.

Health Provisions.

1—Adequate medical and nursing service and supplies should be provided. The health program should be guided by a qualified person.

2—Thorough physical examination should be given to campers and staff members not longer than one week before coming to camp. An examination one month before, giving time for remedial work and followed by an examination within twenty-four hours of departure is preferable. Examinations should include securing of health histories and should be used in supervision, care and program direction of individuals.

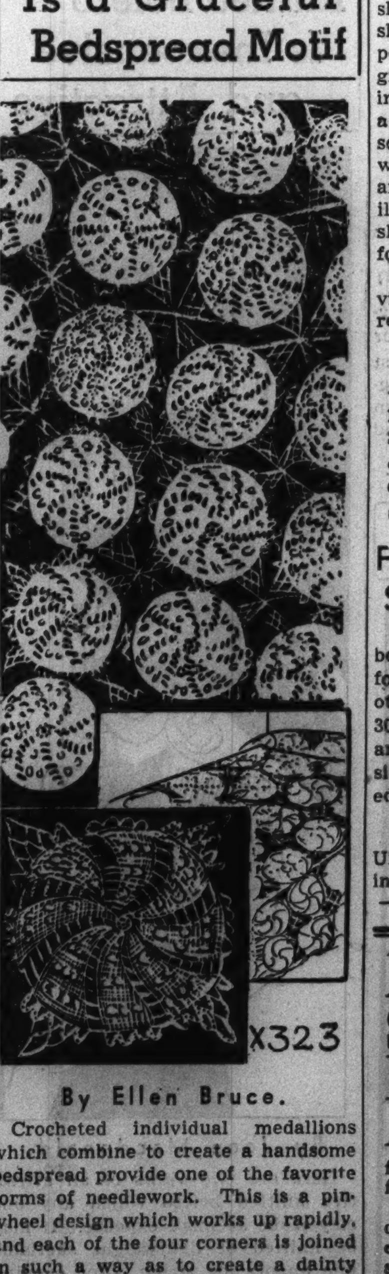
Examination of staff members as well as campers is necessary both to insure fitness for their responsibilities and as protection against communicable disease. Food handlers' examination should include test for typhoid carriers.

3—Daily health inspection of all campers need not be formal, but should be thorough. Counselors should work under guidance of the person in charge of the health program and report unusual conditions immediately. Weekly examinations by a physician are recommended by some authorities. Campers should be weighed at least at the beginning and end of two week sessions. All illnesses, injuries and treatment should be recorded for reference and for protection of the camp.

4—Sufficient rest should be provided according to age and physical requirements of campers.

"Summer Reading for Assorted Ages" is a leaflet of interest to parents, teachers, and children. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Pinwheel Design Is a Graceful Bedspread Motif



By Ellen Bruce.

Crocheted individual medallions which combine to create a handsome bedspread provide one of the favorite forms of needlework. This is a pinwheel design which works up rapidly, and each of the four corners is joined in such a way as to create a dainty spiderweb effect between each medallion. It may be made of heavy white bed cotton, or of fine mercerized cotton in an ecru shade.

For instructions in crocheting the medallion in the pinwheel design, for a bedspread, No. X-323, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

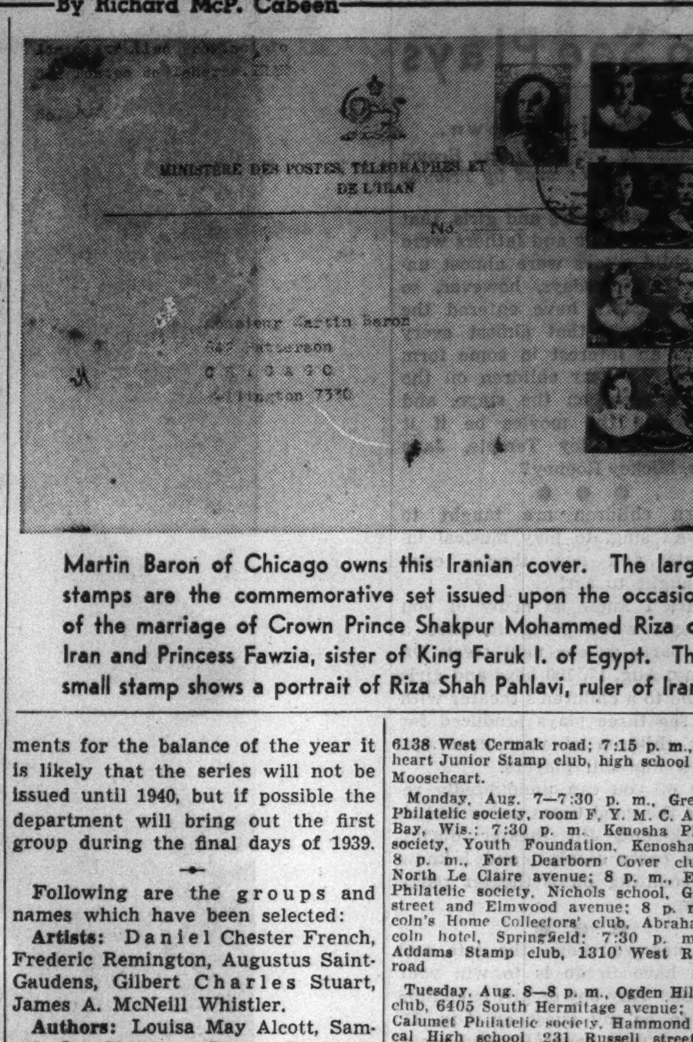
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



Martin Baron of Chicago owns this Iranian cover. The large stamps are the commemorative set issued upon the occasion of the marriage of Crown Prince Shakpur Mohammed Riza of Iran and Princess Fawzia, sister of King Faruk I. of Egypt. The small stamp shows a portrait of Riza Shah Pahlavi, ruler of Iran.

A special series of stamps will be issued to honor famous Americans who have achieved outstanding distinction in the arts and sciences. The postmaster general has made public the list of those to be honored and at the same time has thanked various organizations for their assistance in making the selections. He further states that the list represents the sound judgment and views of the nation at large.

Undoubtedly many persons in this great country will criticize the omission of this or that famous man, for it is manifestly impossible to include all who are worthy of the honor. It is unfortunate that those who selected the groups making up the arts and sciences were not aware of several of the most important groups in this field of human endeavor. Perhaps there have been no architects or engineers in the United States who are worthy of inclusion in a list of the caliber of that which has been announced, or perhaps the famous American series is to include only those arts which can be hung on the walls of museums or filed on the shelves of public libraries.

Sometimes the trees obscure the view of the forest and it may be that the vast array of buildings in Washington has made the postoffice officials contemptuous of all architects and architecture. Painters and sculptors enjoy a small enough place in the famous Americans series, but aside from a little cemetery sculpture their entire work is done for the purpose of embellishing architecture in some manner. A painting is rather a poor step-child unless there is a room in which it may hang. Sculpture does not exist which is free from the work of architects in connection with the setting and surroundings.

So is it also with the various phases of engineering, which surely are branches of science. The works performed by the notable men in this field are so great that they surpass the imagination, but they are utilitarian.

It is understood that each group in the series will be issued in denominations of 1 cent, 1½ cents, 2 cents, 3 cents and 5 cents, and that the names in each group will be arranged alphabetically to avoid criticism over the assignment of names to the various values. Further, it is likely that the groups also will be issued in alphabetical order. On account of the various stamp commitments for the balance of the year it is likely that the series will not be issued until 1940, but if possible the department will bring out the first group during the final days of 1939.

Following are the groups and names which have been selected:

Artists: Daniel Chester French, Frederic Remington, Augustus Saint-Gaudens, Gilbert Charles Stuart, James A. McNeill Whistler.

Authors: Louisa May Alcott, Samuel L. Clemens, James Fenimore Cooper, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Washington Irving.

Composers: Stephen Collins Foster, Victor Herbert, Edward A. McDowell, Ethelbert Nevin, John Philip Sousa.

Educators: Charles W. Eliot, Mark Hopkins, Horace Mann, Booker T. Washington, Frances E. Willard.

Inventors: Alexander Graham Bell, Elias Howe, Cyrus H. McCormick, Samuel F. B. Morse, Eli Whitney.

Poets: Henry W. Longfellow, James Russell Lowell, James Whitcomb Riley, Walt Whitman, John Greenleaf Whittier.

Scientists: Jane Addams, John James Audubon, Luther Burbank, Dr. Crawford W. Long, Dr. Walter Reed.

A special 3 cent purple stamp will be placed on sale on Sept. 25 to commemorate the three hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing into America. On a press imported from England, Stephen Daye, in 1639, in a house of the first president of Harvard college, produced "The Freeman's Oath." This was in the interest of moral independence in voting and other civic duties. The press is now in the museum at Harvard university, but unfortunately not a single copy of the first printing remains.

The place of first day sale will be announced later.

Sedalia, Mo., will be the scene of a large stamp exhibition, Aug. 19 to Aug. 25, in connection with the Missouri State fair. The show will be divided in twenty-five classes in senior and junior groups and cash awards will be made in each class. A grand award will be made for the best in the show, without regard to classification or value. For additional information write to Charles O. Botts, Missouri State fair, Sedalia, Mo.

An exhibit of rocket mail has been installed in the Time and Space building at the New York World's Fair.

The original printing order of fifty million Panama Canal stamps has been increased to sixty million.

The Chicago Philatelic society will celebrate its fifty-third anniversary on Oct. 13, 14, and 15 with a "sensational stamp show and Rajpeepla." No indication has been given which reveals the nature or extent of a rajpeepla, but it is suspected that it may be an oriental variety of what the early Americans called a shindig.

There are seven electric interurban trolley car railway postoffices still in commission in the United States, in addition to one interurban terminal railway postoffice. V. LeYoung Ardiff, 4037 Roscoe street, Chicago, will handle covers and obtain postmarks from all eight sources for those who send him self-addressed covers, stamped and ready to go, and include one cent for each cover for forwarding. Cachets are not promised, but may be included without charge. All covers must be in Mr. Ardiff's hands by Aug. 31, 1939.

The LaSalle County Stamp club, 127 West Monroe street, Ottawa, Ill., will sponsor a cachet on Aug. 22, to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the death of Benjamin Lundy, pioneer editor-publisher and abolitionist, and first publisher of the anti-slavery newspaper which later became THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Send one or more unsealed, stamped and addressed envelopes not later than Aug. 16, and include 1 cent each for forwarding.

Mercolized Wax Cream Skin Bleach Beautifier Lightens the Complexion

A LIGHTER, lovelier complexion can be acquired with the aid of Mercolized Wax Cream. This fragrant, dainty cosmetic contains active ingredients for flaking off the dull, drab surface skin in tiny, almost invisible particles to reveal the fresher, prettier underskin. Freckled or suntanned skin is lightened.

Mercolized Wax Cream has been famous as a complexion lightener for over a quarter century. Get a jar of Mercolized Wax Cream today. Apply it to your skin every night like a cold cream. While you sleep, this delightful cream bleaches your skin to a fairer, more attractive appearance.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT—the Skin Freshener, to help tighten skin tissue and effect a temporary contraction. It aids too, in reducing excess surface oil. Simply dissolve one ounce Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion on the skin daily.

PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Removes Superfluous Hair. Try this quick, easy-to-use facial hair remover. Not a powder. Not a cream. Phelactine Depilatory lifts out the surface hair as well as the part embedded in the follicle below the surface.

RECKLESS ANGEL

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

A Persian Prince's Prediction Comes True and Angel Finds Herself Facing Life with More Confidence

THE STORY TO DATE

● Angela Tindall, penniless young aristocrat, has been given the nickname Reckless Angel because of her daring pranks. Ned Carvill, society jewel thief, is in love with her and hopes to marry her and make her an accomplice in the robberies he and his half-brother, George Adair, plan. But Angela is in love with Lord Bridlington, who also loves her but feels honor bound to the ageing Mrs. Woolryche, an attachment formed in his youth. Brid confesses his love but tells Angel he can't marry. In order to look her rival over, Mrs. Woolryche interviews Angel for a job. Lucy Morton, Angel's roommate, tells Angel of the gigolo with whom Mrs. Woolryche has been deceiving Brid. Angel writes Mrs. Woolryche a warning anonymous note.

INSTALMENT III.

(Copyright: 1939: Marie Belloc Lowndes.)

EVERY old house in which men and women have lived, loved, suffered, and died has about it a special atmosphere. That atmosphere may be serene and breathe a kind of gentle happiness, but more often it has about it something harsh and sinister.

It was this last that was true of the fine eighteenth century mansion where Lady Belinda Sharp now ran her famous dressmaking business.

A shabbily dressed old man opened the big mahogany front door on this sunny afternoon. Then quickly he shuffled away and disappeared. The empty hall struck chill and Angel shivered and clutched Lucy's arm. "What a queer place! I should hate to work here," she murmured.

Lucy laughed her cheerful, spring-like laugh. "It only looks like this because it's a Saturday afternoon! You should see this hall when we're having a big dress show on. Why, one can hardly move, although admission is only by card."

She flung open a door to their left. "Behold the scene of my daily toil——" She touched a switch and a magnificent candelabra lit up the big room. Pushed against the further wall were a row of figures swathed in white sheets.

The two girls hurried up the wide staircase. On the first floor were two doors, and on that giving access to the back room was hung a poster on which was printed in red, "His Highness Prince Hazi."

"Here is my friend, prince. She's looking to consult you. I'll wait for her next door," said Lucy gayly.

The Persian soothsayer was tall and thin and, as his black headdress concealed his hair and ears, there was no clew as to his age. A long silk robe, embroidered in various colors, came down to his sandaled feet.

"Come close up to me," he ordered in a guttural voice and, feeling oddly reluctant, Angel obeyed him, for the peculiar looking figure before her aroused in her a mixture of attraction and repulsion.

He gazed searchingly into her flushed face as he observed: "I am expecting another lady very soon. But what I have to tell you will only take a very little time—as time is measured in the western world. Stay exactly where you are." He held out a thin, bony hand and Angel just touched it. Never had she felt so impersonal a touch.

In a monotonous tone he observed: "You lack what every man and woman wants more than life itself—money. But soon you will have money. To you it will appear much money. It will be handed to you by a dead hand."

Angel had always known that Lady Julia Ling would leave her a legacy. So if she was about to receive money from a dead hand it must mean that her great-aunt was going to die. She shivered inwardly, little as she had any reason to like her worldly, callous-natured great-aunt.

All at once Prince Hazi stopped walking round and round and, opening his eyes, he fixed them on her. "It is not only money that you will receive from that dead hand. With the money will be certain objects. One of these objects is a weapon which has killed, and will kill again, unless you do with it what I advise you to do."

"Is it a dagger?" she asked. She knew that Lady Julia owned an old Italian stiletto.

"All that I may tell you is that there is no place in this great city where such an object can be buried with safety. It should be thrown by you into deep water."

He moved away, and she felt as if he was willing her to leave him. But she looked at him pleadingly. "Can you tell me anything about a man I care for very much?" Her lips quivered. "We love one another and I am longing to know when I shall see him again."

"You will meet him sooner than you believe. I see you in his arms. But together you are to tread a path of scorching fire." He threw a piercing look as he added: "There is another man who is now much closer to you than the man you love."

Surprised and feeling her belief in him shaken by this assertion, she shook her head.

But the Persian soothsayer took no notice of that unspoken denial. "Though he would give his life for you, it is that second lover who will lead your feet straight on to that path of fire, unless you break with him. He is a wolf and so I say beware of that wolf. Beware, and again I say beware!"

The clang of a bell echoed through the empty house. Imperiously Prince Hazi pointed to the door and Angel went quickly into the front room where Lucy was waiting for her. It was there that Lady Belinda ran the millinery side of her business, and two sunken glass topped tables contained costly bejeweled embroidered bags and pieces of Parisian jewelry. Filling up most of the left wall were folding doors, on the other side of which stood the Persian soothsayer awaiting his next client.

Lucy whispered: "Well? What did he tell you?"

"That I'm going to get some money."

"How splendid!"

"It would be if I could believe it. But he said two or three things I knew were not true."

Then all at once they felt startled, for it was Mrs. Woolryche's voice: "Thank you for showing me the way," and there followed the sound of the old porter clip-clopping down the stairs.

Lucy muttered: "I do wonder what he will tell her? If I were the prince I should say, 'Get rid of your gigolo, dear lady!'"

Angel began going toward the door. She felt shaken and bewildered, too, longing to get out of this house.

"Wait just for one second, dear! Lady Belinda gave me a scarf this morning. It was a kind of makeup, as she had been more horrid than usual. I put it aside, in that chest of drawers over there."

She was running across the room when suddenly she stopped, for through the folding doors there came with absolute clearness the angry words, "You refuse to tell me anything? I've never heard of such extraordinary behavior! I put off going away for the week-end to come and see you this afternoon, and now you say calmly that you have nothing to say!" Lucy went up to the folding doors, a look of amusement and mischief on her beautiful face, and Angel came, too. Suddenly they heard the Persian's voice: "You did not stay in London to see me, madam. You did so because you desire to see a man who has just returned from a birdlike voyage."

Mrs. Woolryche took no notice of that assertion. She exclaimed, "If it's a question of money, of course I'll pay your full fee, in spite of what Miss Morton told me."

"That will enrage him." Lucy was giggling now.

Sure enough: "I do not want your money, madam, and, though I cannot predict your future, I will yet do you a service."

There followed a long pause, then the Persian said slowly: "I see a lady standing by you who long ago passed on. I think it is your mother——"

Again there followed a long silence and Angel clutched Lucy's arm.

• • •

AND then on the memory-laden air of that old, old house broke a gentle yet penetrating voice. "Prepare" was the word that voice uttered. And then again came the same counsel, and this time something else was added: "Prepare, for time is on the wing."

Mrs. Woolryche gave a stifled cry of fear and amazement, and her voice shook as she exclaimed: "You're a ventriloquist as well as a fraud! I shall write to the police about you——" and then came the sound of the door giving on to the landing first opening, and then being closed with a bang.

There isn't much doing in London on a Saturday afternoon during the season. Still a lively little gathering was going to be held after a matinée in the apartment of a young society actress, so Angel took Lucy there. But all the time, while fending off questions about her Butterfly adventure, and helping, as was her way, to make the party "go," she was reliving her brief visit to the soothsayer.

She felt both puzzled and disappointed. There was only one man in her life and, as the Persian had declared there were two, he had warned her against a person who did not exist. As to Brid and the pathway of fire they would tread together, she was afraid of nothing that could come to her through her lover. Shame, disgrace, sorrow—she would face them all gladly for him.

When at last she got home she had become convinced that with her, at any rate, the Persian soothsayer had failed in seeing either the present or the future, and her hope of getting money he had foretold was coming to her faded completely away.

Ting-ling-ling went the telephone bell by her bed, the next morning, and Angel sleepily took up the receiver. It was Ned Carvill's voice, eager, imperious, and what in a way unconsciously her sore heart longed for that is utterly devoted.

Carvill? Ned? In a flash she realized that he was the second lover the Persian prince had seen! But though she knew, in a sense all too well, that she was the only girl in the world as far as he was concerned, he was not in any way connected with her life, and she was certain he could in no way influence her future. As to his leading her into danger, the idea was absurd.

"I've just come back to London, and I want to know if you can come out to lunch with me. We might do something together afterwards——"

Idly she asked, "Where have you been?"

There followed a silence so long that she thought they must have been cut off. Then at last came the answer, "I've been in Holland. My French boss wants to open up business there."

"I saw such a splendid trianon yesterday, Ned. It belongs to a Mrs. Woolryche. I hope you sold it to her."

"Yes, I did, but her gigolo blackmailed me into giving him a big slice of my commission." She heard his contemptuous laugh. "That's one thing I could never have been, however big the money!"

"A gigolo? What a horrible idea!" Angel was honestly shocked.

"I'll do almost anything for money," he said coolly. "I'll come and fetch you about one?"

"As it's Sunday, I'll have to see what Lucy is doing."

"Don't throw me over again, Angel."

"How d'you mean—'again'?"

"You threw me over the evening of Lady Iris' cocktail party."

In a rather shamed voice she exclaimed, "We might lunch together, at any rate!"

She was doing without a midday meal just now, unless, that is, some one asked her out. For the first time she knew what it was to be really frightened about money or, rather, the lack of it. Weeks must go by before she could draw on her bank for more. Lucy provided her with a little petty cash each week, but not even Lucy had any idea of the straits to which her housemate was reduced. Even now Angel felt hungry, and it was the kind of hunger the breakfast which would be provided by Lucy in a few minutes would not appease.

"What are you going to do till lunch time?" he asked.

"I'm going for a walk," she said firmly.

"Are you going by yourself?"

"Of course I am." But she was not surprised when, an hour later, she saw Ned Carvill waiting for her at the top of Queen's Close. The way his face lighted up, softened and glowed, as they stood face to face, warmed her sore heart.

They walked off together into Hyde park. "How's everything?" he asked.

"Just as usual. But I've got to get a job at once or I shall starve."

He said roughly: "I'm tired of telling you that I've heaps of money. Let me lend you fifty pounds, as you're too proud to take a gift."

She looked at him quite straight. "That's one thing I've never done, Ned. I've never taken money from any man, and I'm not going to begin now."

"I didn't know you thought of me as 'any man.'"

"Of course I don't." Again she felt touched. Gradually—it had taken some time, for with all her faults Angel was both generous-hearted and unselfish—she had come to know how hard, heartless, and completely absorbed in themselves were the men and girls who composed the world where her reckless exploits had been, and would be again, so delightedly acclaimed. As for the men who made love to her, they became callously indifferent as soon as she showed, to use their own jargon, that she was "not having any."

Ned Carvill was different, and unconsciously she had come in a measure to lean on him and, though she would have denied with anger that he was by now almost indispensable, she would not have denied that she valued his ardent devotion.

"I wonder if it would amuse you to go to a shooting gallery? I've a kind of appointment there at 12 o'clock."

"I'd love to do that," she exclaimed.

"To know how to shoot, and to shoot straight, sometimes comes in handy," he said lightly.

"Yet the clever burglar leaves his gun at home in England," she observed, and saw with surprise a curious flicker come over his face.

She said carelessly, "The life of a burglar must be awfully exciting, Ned."

He looked at her sideways. "You're right. It is a very exciting life, partly because one never knows the kind of haul one is going to make." He went on quickly, "If I lost my job and got desperately hard up I'd rather turn burglar than anything else."

"I might think of doing that now if I were a man, for I'm really desperate," and she laughed. She was beginning to feel better now, out in the air and sunshine, but O! how hungry she felt.

Ned felt suddenly a passionate longing to tell her the truth, at any rate about himself. But dare he disregard his brother's strong warning? On the other hand could he ever hope for a better opportunity? But while he was hesitating, Angel threw him an odd look. "I wonder if I can tell you something rather queer, Ned?"

"You can tell me anything," he said quietly. His heart was beating hard. Had this girl he loved started, even a little way, on the slippery slope down which he longed to lead her?

"I've sometimes wondered"—then she stopped—"and I don't think I ought to tell you—I'm afraid it will make you angry," she said irresolutely.

"Nothing you told me could make me angry or—or shock me."

"I've wondered lately whether George Adair doesn't make his money in some funny kind of way. He leads such a mysterious kind of life and no one seems to know much about him——" and then the girl gave a sudden cry of pain, for the man by her side had turned round and seized her wrist in a viselike grip.

"Look here, Angel. Promise me—give me your word of honor—never again to say anything of that sort, even in joke, about George. It might do him an awful lot of harm," and then he relaxed his cruel grip.

Angel gasped, "That shows how right I was!"

"What d'you mean?"

"I was a fool to tell you——"

"Has any one ever said anything to you against George?"

She waited a moment. "Of course not. But he is mysterious, isn't he?"

"What do people say?"

"Nothing, really. But for one thing he's not like an Englishman, is he?"

"Of course he's an Englishman." He tried to smile. "You're very clever, Angel, but you've never guessed that I'm partly Dutch."

She felt amused. "Are you really? How funny!"

"It is rather funny. By the way, I'd rather you didn't tell anybody."

"Of course I won't. I've forgotten it already."

But that admission of Ned Carvill was already written in indelible characters, though she was quite unaware that it was so, on the tablets of Angel Tindall's memory.

He changed the subject abruptly. "It was awfully good of you to get me and George asked to Tom Crofton's coming-of-age party."

"It ought to be great fun. Longlands Manor is ugly outside, because additions to the old house have been made at all sorts of times. But inside it's full of splendid things. Tom Crofton is a dear, isn't he?"

"That boy likes you a lot, doesn't he?"

"He did like me last year—enough to frighten his people. They asked me down there, to give me a look-over. As if I'd have ever thought of marrying a baby like that!"

He looked at her questioningly. Why did she speak in the past tense? Had Tom Crofton already proposed to her?

"He isn't much older than you are, is he?"

"Six months," she said indifferently. Then she roused herself and said eagerly: "It will be a huge party, with a lot of the old there as well as the young. Tom says his mother has asked all their relations, and that rather bores him, naturally. They're actually putting up a temporary building in the grounds to house the bachelors. That will disappoint some of our friends, won't it?"

How astonished Angel would have been to learn that, of all Tom Crofton's guests, none would feel as disappointed at being so housed, as was already the young man now walking by her side.

"I expect you will have a room in the house, as I made Tom ask you to come on the Friday. The rest of the zoo are arriving on Saturday, the day of the ball. Only the select few are coming on Friday."

He breathed an inward sigh of intense relief.

For a few moments they walked in silence.

Ned Carvill said suddenly, "To go back to George, Angel——"

"Yes, what about him?" She was aching for the good lunch she knew was now within sight.

"I'd far rather you thought bad things about me than about George," Ned muttered.

Again she felt touched, and the more touched when he went on: "No chap living ever had a better pal than George Adair has been to me. I mean that, Angel. I do wish you liked him."

"I'll try and like him, but I don't think he's much smitten with me, is he?"

Ned Carvill observed in a matter of fact tone, "He's jealous." And then when he saw her look of astonishment he made an imprudent admission: "I'll tell you another secret. George and I are half-brothers! He is eight years older than I am and he's been awfully fond of me ever since I was a baby. As I said just now, no chap living ever had a better pal."

Angel stared at the speaker. She was too surprised to speak. But at last she exclaimed, "I don't wonder you were angry just now when I spoke of him as I did!"

"It's an absolute secret. Can I trust you to never tell anybody?" Already he was sorry he had revealed the truth.

"I give you my word of honor, Ned," and she held out her hand.

He took it, and held it tightly. "George knows I'd give anything to marry you. But he doesn't believe in marriage."

"Nor do I, for either you or me."

She spoke in a far more serious way than he had ever heard her speak before. It didn't occur to her till long afterward as strange that these two men should wish to keep their relationship secret.

Ned Carvill took Angel to lunch at Claridge's and, as he watched her covertly, as he always did watch her when they were together, there came into his mind a painful suspicion. This was that the girl he loved with all his soul was dreadfully, unnaturally hungry.

He had taken her out, generally to dinner or supper, on a great many occasions, and always she had been careful to follow with care and intelligence whichever one of the numerous slimming diets happened to be the rage among her friends.

But today she ate through the whole menu of the Sunday luncheon. His suspicion was confirmed when he saw a little color come back into her cheeks, her eyes begin to sparkle, and finally how full of energy she seemed to be when they reached the shooting gallery.

There was no one there, on this fine Sunday afternoon, so the instructor had the more time to devote to the pretty young lady who had been brought by a valued client and, as so often happens with a beginner, Angel hit the bull's-eye twice. Then came the duck walk, followed by a flight of clay pigeons. With them she was less successful. But Ned's shooting aroused her admiration. "You must be an awfully good shot!" she exclaimed.

"I've never been asked to a big shoot in England. But I long to be."

"I'll get Tom to ask you to their Scotch place in August. People know so little about you, Ned. You're much too modest," and she looked at him with a new interest.

• • •

THE next morning the postman brought two letters for Angel, and a tremor ran through her, for she knew the writing on one of the envelopes to be that of Lord Bridlington. She put it down unopened, then she took up the second letter. It had the name of a legal firm printed on the envelope and, as she owed a rather big bill for an evening dress and a day dress bought months ago, she very much feared it must be what some of her friends cheerfully called "a penny-halfpenny frightener."

It was from a lawyer, but the letter was very different from what she had feared it would be, for it ran:

Madam: Our late client, Mr. Bernard Rowley, who died on the eighteenth of December last, has left you a legacy of five thousand pounds, free of legacy duty. The wording of his will runs as follows: "To Angela Mary Tindall, only child of my dear old friend and schoolfellow, Colonel Guy Tindall, I leave the sum of five thousand pounds, free of legacy duty. Also, if she will accept them, various small possessions of mine, some of which actually belonged to her father in his youth."

Mr. Rowley left his affairs in perfect order, your legacy was the first of many he left to various friends, and if you care to call at our office a check for five thousand pounds, and the various objects left to you by our client will be handed over to you.

"Lucy? Come here! That Persian prince is a wonder. He said I should have some money—and here it is. A perfect fortune! Read this letter."

Lucy went over to the window and then she read over the lawyer's letter.

"I hope you'll invest it, dear——"

"We'll see about that! After I've paid up all I owe you can chuck Lady B. and have a proper holiday."

For the first time for weeks Angel looked radiant.

Lucy shook her head. "I shan't touch a cent of that money."

"Indeed you will," and the radiant face clouded and became almost threatening. "For one thing you'll have a fat commission on the frocks I shall get from Lady B. I must try and look decent at Tom Crofton's party."

Lucy said nothing to that, only hurried off to make their breakfast.

Left alone, the color drained off Angel's face. What was it Brid had to say to her? Hesitatingly she drew out the one sheet of paper. It brought a pang, for there was only one sentence written there. Then she saw nine words that meant everything to her. "This is to say again that I love you," was inscribed in the bold handwriting she had not thought to see again.

She rushed across to her writing table and, putting that precious piece of paper into a small envelope, she wrote on the envelope, "In case of my death this envelope to be put in my coffin and laid on my heart." Then she put the small envelope into a larger envelope and on it she wrote: "Lucy Morton, to be opened immediately on the death of Angela Tindall."

The late Mr. Rowley's lawyer was a very important gentleman indeed. He was the president of the British Law society and, ordinarily speaking, the task of handing Miss Angela Mary Tindall her check for five thousand pounds, and the few objects which had been left to her by her father's old friend would have fallen to the youngest partner in the firm.

But as it was, the chief—as he was known in his office—had a great curiosity to see the girl who had been associated with Angus Tarr's now famous practical joke. But when she came into his office, with scarcely any makeup on her striking looking face, quietly dressed in a dark brown suit with a plain little hat, he felt astonished and the strong prejudice he had against her vanished.

Angel felt as if in a dream. She still could hardly believe that such amazing luck had come her way.

"Sit down, Miss Tindall, and allow me to congratulate you on your legacy. Mr. Rowley was a friend of mine, as well as my client. Now here is my firm's check for five thousand pounds."

She took the little slip of paper which, to her, meant comfort and security, and the old lawyer noticed how resolute and highly vitalized was her expression.

"Here are the various objects which Mr. Rowley wished you to keep in memory of him and of your own father."

As he spoke he opened a deep drawer on his side of the table and took out of it a gold cigaret case, a set of fine pearl studs, some sleeve links to match, a heavy hunting watch of an obsolete type, and a very small black leather case which looked almost new. He handed her everything except the leather case.

Then he took up the case and, opening it, he extracted what looked like a toy pistol made of some dull metal.

"In your place I should refuse to accept this deadly little weapon, Miss Tindall. Mr. Rowley was rather eccentric and preferred to be alone in his apartment at night. He bought this automatic, as it is called, comparatively recently. It can never be of any use to you."

She stared at the deadly midget gun. It looked so incongruous, really like a little toy, in the thin white hand of the old lawyer, that she felt an hysterical impulse to burst out laughing. But she pulled herself together and in a steady voice she said firmly: "As Mr. Rowley left me his automatic pistol, I think I will take it away with me. You needn't be afraid that I shall ever be tempted to use it."

"It must, of course, be as you wish. But I beg you to keep it under lock and key, and where no foolish or careless person can get access to it."

"I'll certainly do that."

At once Angel had recalled the warning given by the Persian prince. That wicked looking tiny automatic was obviously what he had seen and what he had declared would bring danger, though not in any way that she could imagine likely, to herself.

The lawyer went on and he smiled now: "In this minute brassbound box Mr. Rowley kept the ammunition for his automatic and if you throw away those nickel jacketed little bullets you will be able to use it as a stamp box. Firearms, under all circumstances, are dangerous and many a man and many a woman has been terrified out of his or her life by simply having an unloaded pistol pointed at them!"

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Aug. 6

The week ahead is extremely active, full of thought and feeling, with a background that is generally more favorable than we've had lately; make it count. Today: Avoid personal clashes; otherwise favorable for planning and thinking.

Weather and Intelligence

Have you ever paused to ponder the effect of only a few degrees in the average temperatures of two places? Of only a couple of inches of rainfall in a year? Both these factors parallel the locations of our most intelligent and civilized people all over the world. Look at the differences between north and south and east and west in our own country. Science says weather causes them.

Your Year Ahead

Your year ahead cautions against hasty changes or too final terminations. Take the long look ahead; plan for permanency; straighten out any past situations that need it. Danger: March 5-16 and July 15-Aug. 3, 1940.

Tomorrow

Tendency to easy irritation; sidestep causes of friction.

Above: Jean Tennyson, young Norwegian-American soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, will sing at Grant park Saturday night. The orchestra accompanying her will be directed by Walter Steindel.

Left: The handsome actor and lovely actress paying such ardent attention to each other are Louis Hayward and Joan Bennett. They're co-starred in "The Man in the Iron Mask" (Roosevelt).

Right: Tim Holt and Steffin Duna are romantically teamed in "The Girl and the Gambler." Leo Carrillo also is prominently featured in the film. It's at the Oriental.

Miss Bankhead Comes Into Her Own After 6 Bad Years

Has a Striking Role in 'The Little Foxes'

By Cecil Smith.

Tallulah Bankhead is one of the most remarkable phenomena of the contemporary American stage. If almost any other actress had been the star in question, "The Little Foxes," which New York has been seeing for some months and which we shall see here in the fall, would have been referred to as a "comeback."

For "The Little Foxes" is the first play in which Miss Bankhead has enjoyed both unanimous public acclaim and adequate box office rewards since her return from London in 1933. To understand the stupendous force of the Bankhead personality, just try to imagine what would have happened to almost any other actress who appeared in an unbroken series of failures over a period of six years.

Since 1933 Helen Hayes has played in "Mary of Scotland" and "Victoria Regina," both tremendous hits of unusual longevity in New York and on the road. In 1933 Katharine Cornell appeared in the successful "Alien Corn." In the fall of the same year she began her famous country-wide tour in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Candida," which occupied her, with subsequent return engagements in New York, until April, 1935. Since that time she has advanced her reputation with "Flowers of the Forest," "The Wingless Victory," a revival of "Candida," and the current "No Time for Comedy."

And all this time Miss Bankhead's successive efforts formed an unbroken line of disasters or mere washouts—a line that dipped lowest on the graph, perhaps, in the curious and spurious piece called "I Am Different," which lighted the Selwyn theater for three and a half weeks last fall.

Through all these disappointments Miss Bankhead managed to retain the full loyalty of her Broadway audience, and even built a following for herself in the rest of the country with a number of very bad movies in which she might have been good if the stories had been better.

Every one always seemed to know that Tallulah Bankhead was a fine actress, that her choice of plays and not her ability was at fault, and that some day she would find a vehicle worthy of her ripe and effective talents. So when Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes" came along, providing her with really strong material to contend with, every one exulted, crying, "Tallulah has got a play at last." It was a foregone conclusion that she would come into her own some day, and now she has.

"The Little Foxes" is one of the grimmest, bitterest plays you are likely to see in a long time. Miss Hellman, one of the clearest headed playwrights now at work, has turned her bright spotlight upon the deep south. No civil war romance or moonlight and honeysuckle appears in its focus, either. With brutal clarity she reveals a family of industrialists in 1900, a rapacious and unscrupulous tribe of money grabbers intent on making millions by reducing to virtual slavery the workers in the newly established southern cotton mills.

Regina Giddens [Miss Bankhead] and her two brothers prove, as the play develops, to be so greedy that they begin cutting each other's throats, each one hungry for more than his share of the spoils. Even though her cupidity hastens the death of her ailing husband, Regina Giddens pushes through her ugly schemes, emerging at the end of the play with the material gains she wanted, but finding herself stripped of family, friends, and every human tie.

Miss Bankhead does not draw any of her punches as she characterizes the decade's most unlovely stage heroine. With richly varied technical detail and with that inescapably thrilling baritone voice of hers, she builds her performance in an extraordinary crescendo. The second act curtain leaves the audience stunned, as she says to her husband, with the venom of a rattlesnake, "I hope you die! I hope you die soon!"

"The Little Foxes" will be one of the big events of our approaching theatrical season. Admittedly it is not for those whose favorite playwright is Sir James M. Barrie, or for those who chief longing is for a revival of "Peter Ibbetson." But for those who are stirred by the fiercest and most concentrated realism of which the stage is capable—even through it is set in a bygone decade—"The Little Foxes" will be unforgettable.

Lloyd Gough, who plays in the John Barrymore comedy, "My Dear Children," the part of the son of a baronet whose many-sided personality cannot be fully complemented by any one woman, started off his career not as an actor, but as a painter. He still spends many spare hours painting, when he is not manipulating his candid camera. He fell into acting through the earnest persuasion of a Brooklyn amateur group, who had originally asked him to paint scenery for them. After a year of amateur status he ventured into the professional theater. He was seen here in J. B. Priestley's "Laburnum Grove" in 1935, and more recently with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in "Shadow and Substance."

STARS IN 'THE LITTLE FOXES'

One of the definite items on next season's list of theatrical importations is "The Little Foxes," Lillian Hellman's successful drama of the south. Tallulah Bankhead is the star.

Summer Theaters

The summer theaters in the surrounding vacation areas schedule the following bills this week:

Lake Zurich playhouse, Lake Zurich, Ill.—"The Rivals" [last time tonight]; "The Importance of Being Earnest" [Friday, Saturday and next Sunday].

Grand Detour players, Grand Detour, Ill.—"A Doll's House" [last time this afternoon]; "Goodbye Again" [Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and next Sunday afternoon].

Valley Summer players, Elgin, Ill.—No production this week; next bill "Mrs. Moonlight" [Aug. 18, 19 and 20].

Port Summer playhouse, Port Washington, Wis.—"Ways and Means," "Still Life," and "Hands Across the Sea" [from "Tonight at 8:30"] [last time tonight]; "Squaring the Circle" [Wednesday through Sunday].

Coach House theater, Oconomowoc, Wis.—"Lady from Texas," world première [Tuesday through Saturday].

Belfry players, Williams Bay, Wis.—"Call It a Day" [last time tonight]; no production next week.

Peninsula players, Fish Creek, Wis.—"The Return of the Barbarians" [Thursday, Friday and Saturday].

Columbus Community theater [opening performance of new summer theater at Rockwood lodge, near Green Bay, Wis.]—"Dear Brutus" [Wednesday and Thursday evenings only].

Theater of the Dunes, Beverly Shores, Ind.—"Mr. Dudley" [world professional première] [last time tonight]; "Aaron Slick from Punkin Creek," a tent show jamboree [Friday, Saturday and next Sunday].

Portage Point players [Fridays and Saturdays at Portage Point inn, Onekama, Mich.; Sundays at Chippewa hotel, Manistee, Mich.]—"Love from a Stranger" [last time tonight, at Manistee]; "The Drunkard" [Friday, Saturday and next Sunday].

Marquette Summer theater, Marquette, Mich.—"Ticket of Leave Man," "gay nineties" melodrama [Thursday and Friday evenings only; last production of the season].

Irene Castle McLaughlin plans to return to the stage this summer. Beginning Aug. 14 she will appear for a week in "Shadow Play," one of the parts of Noel Coward's "Tonight at 8:30," at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Short Hills, N. J. Her part calls for singing. Rex O'Malley will play opposite her and also direct.

Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic are already thinking about next season. Early in the fall, of course, Miss Cornell will tour in "No Time for Comedy," with Francis Lederer as her vis-à-vis. The tour will be short, however—positively limited to twelve weeks, Mr. McClintic says, and he ought to know, being both Miss Cornell's husband and her producer. As "No Time for Comedy" ventures out onto the road, Mr. McClintic will begin rehearsals, on Oct. 2, of Maxwell Anderson's new play, "Key Largo," which he is to produce for the Playwrights. Meanwhile, Miss Cornell has renewed an option on "Frenesie," an adaptation by George Davis of a play by Charles du Perrey-Chappuis, and also retains an option on Gustave Eckstein's "The Ivory Fan." All this in addition to a probably unfounded rumor that she would appear, come January, with Maurice Evans in Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure." And Gertrude Macy, Miss Cornell's manager and an indispensable key figure in the McClintic operations, is going abroad to look at "a certain new play." All of which goes to prove nothing beyond the fact that Miss Cornell expects to keep on acting—in something, and that Mr. McClintic is not tired of producing.

There is a possibility that "I Married an Angel" may be revived for the road next fall. If so, Vivienne Segal will take over her original rôle. Dwight Deere Wiman is reported to be negotiating with Dennis King and to be casting his eye about for a successor to Vera Zorina. At one time, so they say, he was contemplating Marlene Dietrich, but she went and signed another movie contract. Miss Zorina, as every one knows, is fully occupied in Hollywood these days.

According to the grapevine, Judith Anderson will tour in "Family Portrait" next fall after all. The American Theater society in Pittsburgh is promising the play to its clients. This summer Miss Anderson is playing a leading rôle in the filming of Daphne du Maurier's novel, "Rebecca." It is her second motion picture, the other having been something called "Blood Money" back in 1933. Speaking of "Rebecca," John Gielgud will put it on the London stage next season, in a dramatization by the author herself.

Scat Dance to Make Bow at the Blackhawk

The scat dance makes its bow today in the Blackhawk restaurant. At the second weekly meeting of Johnnie Davis' Sunday afternoon Scat club, the new group dance will be demonstrated by Jimmy Byrnes, its originator, and Orrin and Betty Lou, the reformed jitterbugs who made such a hit during Bob Crosby's régime.

Scat dancing stems from the same source that produced the Lambeth walk, Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree, the family version of the Conga, and more recently the Boomps-a-Daisie. It has a simple, repetitious fundamental pattern, that gives the dancers ample opportunity for improvisation. Byrnes is currently the star of the Blackhawk floor show, which features novelty numbers by Scat Davis and his orchestra; Betty Van, the girl vocalist; Orrin and Betty Lou, and Bill Owen, romantic tenor.

The Monday night W-G-N radio show introduced by Davis is a musical screen test, in which six contestants selected from the audience attempt to identify film stars by musical clews played by the band. As an intermission novelty the sextet presents an impromptu playlet.

Tuesday night again is "learn to dance" night at the Blackhawk, with Paul Shahin, the Hoofer Schoolmaster, teaching the latest steps and conducting the contests.

Sylvia Froos, whose songs last summer won her the promise of a return engagement at Bon Air Country club, was booked into the suburban theater-restaurant last Thursday night for the duration of the current show. She replaced Benny Fields, perennial minstrel man. Continuing in Bon Air's show as its unbilled star is Dean Murphy, whose facial and vocal caricatures of famous persons are fast gaining him recognition as one of the country's top flight impersonators. His Ronald Coleman falls behind the pace he sets in other delineations, but his Roosevelt duo is still the show stopper it was last winter at the Drake. Georgie Tapps, Mario and Floria, and the twenty Belles of Bon Air take care of the dancing assignment, and Enric Madriguera's orchestra, with Don Orlando alternating, provides the music.

Sylvia Froos.

Gun jumping department — Fats Waller and the Boogie Woogie trio come into the Panther room of Hotel Sherman's College Inn NEXT Saturday night instead of last night, as announced last week. Bunny Berigan holds the fort the balance of the week with his swaying swing. Betty Robbins, Chicago singer who joined the show recently, holds over for the new program, under the name Gale Robbins. Gale is her middle name. Muggsie Spanier, who really doesn't have a lifetime contract with the Sherman, although he seems to, stays on to add his river boat ragtime to the jive of the Wailing Wallers.

The Novello brothers, mute madmen of the musical world, whose silence is broken only by the plaintive whistling that is part of their love bird routine, provide the highlight of the new Beach Walk show at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Their violin duet is a direct descendant of continental comedy acts, but is paced to the American tempo, with hilarious results. Harriet Smith's Lovely Ladies, Emcee Chuck Apley, and the talented members of Lawrence Welk's Champagne orchestra contribute the rest of the light summer show.

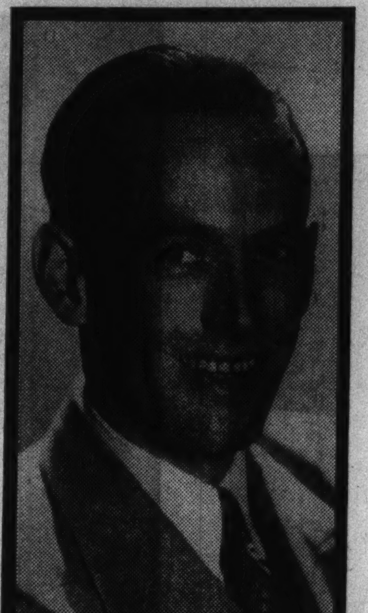
A youthful veteran of Chicago café-dom, Earle Smith, at present is offering his whimsical piano monologs for the entertainment of patrons of the Buttery, in the Ambassador Hotel West. His "Escort Service of the PWA" is a classic known to a wide circle of night fun seekers. Earle, who at one time played for Sally Rand when she was at the old Paramount club, is the other half of the Pliner and Earle orchestra which recently closed a successful run in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel.

Boswelling the Bistros:

When Chick Webb, world famous swing drummer, died recently his orchestra carried on under Ella Fitzgerald with Chick's name in the billing. When the band comes to Chicago's Grand Terrace Sept. 8, however, Webb will not be mentioned. . . . Ennio Bolongini really is back at L'Aiglon now, his intended return having been delayed by some extraordinarily good hunting down in the eastern hills. . . . Sammy Williams, star of the organ and piano, who turned down a chance to go east rather than leave his following at Gibby's restaurant, has a new organ hit arrangement—"Sunrise Serenade." . . . Joe Reichman has St. Vitus-ed his way into another two months at the Empire room, they say. . . . Milt Herth's smash recording of Dipsy Doodle was an accident. What he feared was a sour ending turned out to be the climax that made the record one of the prize sellers of the decade. . . . Add Harry James and Gene Krupa to your list of fall and winter orchestral invaders. . . . Conflicting reports have Wayne King opening the Drake's Gold Coast room next month, and Hal Kemp doing the same early in October. . . . Bob Zurke, piano playing fugitive from Bob Crosby's band, has launched his own "Delta Rhythm" orchestra and is being hailed as a second Zez Confrey.



TRIANON STANDBY

The Trianon ballroom again has Griff Williams as its maestro, the popular orchestra leader having been called back for the umpteenth time after a brief sojourn in other fields.

[Seymour Photo.]

Vaudeville

Three spectacles dominate the stage show at the Chicago theater this week—"Teeter Totter Revels," "By the Old Mill" and "Dude Ranch Time." Performers involved in these numbers are Texas Jim and his cowboy singers, the Evans ballet, Lois Wollner, Paul Gerrits, Sylvia and Clemence, and Catharine Westfield and her puppets. James Cagney and George Raft are the stars of the current film, "Each Dawn I Die."

"La Vie Paree," an A. B. Marcus production, is to be seen at the State-Lake theater, Principals in its cast of eighty are Sparky Kaye, Ben McAtee, the Jig Saws, Dorothy Coudy, the Clymas troupe, Bob White, Ruth Durnell, the Berneys, Les Sechristas, the Hinton sisters, Rudy Mason, Janada, Hotcha San and Art Stanley.

Ernie Young and his "Follies Internationale" show occupy the stage of the Oriental theater. Medley and Dupree, Betty Reed, Bailey and Marr, Maximo, Szita and Anis, Inex Gamble, and the Weber sisters, are the featured acts. The motion pictures are "The Girl and the Gambler" and "Young Mr. Lincoln."

Orchestras in Smaller Cities Gaining Renown

While attention is largely being directed these days to the plans of the major American orchestras for the forthcoming season, schedules of similar organizations in smaller cities are scarcely less important. For the growth of the community orchestra is a healthy symptom. Two such, those from Indianapolis and Seattle, illustrate how well they can serve their cities.

Four soloists will be heard on the ten pairs of subscription concerts which the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra has scheduled for the 1939-'40 season. They are Emanuel Feuermann, cellist; Jascha Heifetz, violinist; Bomar Cramer, pianist, and Maria Koussevitzky, soprano. On two pairs of concerts the Indianapolis Symphonic choir will appear with the orchestra in major choral works, for which additional vocal soloists will be hired.

For a third season the orchestra will be under the direction of Fabien Sevitzky, who revealed he had built up a fine musical organization when he conducted it at the Auditorium theater last winter. Besides offering standard symphonies and miscellaneous works he will continue his policy of presenting at least one American composition on each program. A Lyric Suite by Kletzki will receive its world première at his hands next season also.

Subscription concerts are as before scheduled at fortnightly intervals from Nov. 17, to March 30, 1940. There is in addition a set of "pop" concerts.

The Seattle Symphony orchestra will continue the policy it inaugurated last season during the coming 1939-'40 musical year. In 1938-'39 after several seasons of severe financial losses it found the method of giving only one major series of concerts a successful one both financially and popularly. This year the number of concerts has grown from seven to eight, and at this early date all subscriptions have been sold. They will again be held in the Music Hall theater, and will be conducted by Nikolai Sokoloff, sojourning for a second year with the organization.

Among those to appear as guest artists with the symphony are Jussi Bjoerling, the Swedish tenor, who will be joined by a male chorus in a rendition of the tenor solo from Liszt's "Faust" symphony. Brahms' violin concerto will be played by Efrem Zimbalist. E. Robert Schmitz will be heard as soloist in d'Indy's Symphony for orchestra and piano and César Franck's Symphonic Variations.

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo will, as it did last season, present an evening of ballet accompanied by the Seattle organization.

College Work Hard; Half of Students Fail

[Dr. Evans' booklet, "Higher Education," a guide to students in selecting a college or university, may be purchased for 10 cents at Chicago Tribune Public Service offices. By mail the cost is 15 cents.]

By the Rev. John Evans.

High school students considering a college education seldom ask the question—"What are my chances of a diploma at the end of four years?" If they did so, they might be surprised that the answer is "Fifty-fifty," according to Dean Everett W. Lord of Boston university, and these odds might cause to ponder many thousands of young people who may be scanning this month the various bulletins issued by institutions for higher education.

Reduced to a single arithmetic fact, Dean Lord states that of 214,000 freshmen who registered in 241 of the nation's colleges, 99,644 failed to graduate within the four year period of collegiate work. The full report was published last November in the Diary, official magazine of Alpha Kappa Pi, international commerce fraternity, for which the study, "Student Persistence in American Colleges," was made.

Partially at fault for this student mortality are the colleges, the survey states, since 5,000 freshmen failed in their courses so completely that it is obvious they should never have been admitted to college in the first place. Altogether, about 30,000 students are dropped from college for scholastic deficiencies, and of those that survive for three years one student out of nine will fail to graduate the succeeding June.

From the undergraduate's viewpoint there are no "safe" institutions in Dean Lord's opinion. A freshman, and the first year student accounts for two-thirds of the mortality, is just as likely to fail in a small institution as in a large one. The mortality in colleges which admit up to 200 freshmen annually have a slightly higner mortality, but the difference is insignificant.

For students who fail Dean Lord suggests that colleges provide divisions of remedial education, or Reclamation departments," because the loss to society and the injury to the individual student through failure at college is too serious to be ignored.

"The tragedy which befalls these students," he says, "is not sufficiently appreciated by colleges or society. These students are, in effect, blacklisted by all other colleges and, to a certain extent, by business. They have been definitly labeled as 'failures' and are likely to bear the stigma of their shortcoming in after years."

Technical schools and colleges for women, the survey showed, were the most hesitant about readmitting students previously dropped or suspended for academic shortcomings; but that many men's colleges readmit students who can prove greater earnestness, increased maturity or success in business after a year or more has elapsed since "detachment" from curriculum.

Despite the millions of dollars available in colleges covered by the survey for scholarships, loans, and jobs, about 29 per cent of freshman and 25 per cent of upper class students drop out of college for financial reasons. Also, the report notes, that the National Youth Administration's aid does not change this percentage, although previous to the NYA withdrawals from college for financial difficulties were unquestionably more numerous than they are today.

"It is to be regretted," Dean Lord concludes, "that so many competent students are obliged to withdraw through lack of money to continue; but they have probably benefited from their partial college work, and in any case they never bear the stigma of failure into future career."

Recordings

The Victor company knows that mammoth and highly serious works lose some of their appeal during the summer months and that small, light items have the best chances of success. The feature album for the languorous month of August is a recording of Serge Prokofieff's orchestral fairy tale, "Peter and the Wolf," which was first performed at a children's concert in Moscow three years ago.

What the title promises in the way of novelty and whimsicality is amply fulfilled in the recording itself. The Boston Symphony orchestra, playing under Serge Koussevitzky's direction, proves that it has as much genius for prankishness as its light hearted relative, the Boston "Pops" orchestra.

In "Peter and the Wolf" a narrator tells the story which the music represents. Various instruments take the parts of certain characters in the story—a clarinet is the cat, a bassoon the grandfather, etc. The piece contains much music which is lovely in its own right, and would be perfectly comprehensible as music even without the overly painstaking narration which accompanies it.

Prokofieff has always managed to attract both musical rightists and leftists because of his ability to express himself in the languages of both. In "Peter and the Wolf" is a fund of simple lyricism as well as many original and ingenius rhythmic and harmonic devices. None of these latter is calculated to puzzle the listener—even the most conservative listener—for the significance of everything is explained and its fitness made evident.

"Peter and the Wolf" should delight both children and adults. An incidental but very real value which attaches to it is the knowledge of the timbres of various orchestral instruments which it gives.

Postponement

The third in a series of annual competitions sponsored by the Concours Ysaye was due last May. This was a contest open to orchestral conductors. Since such an event involved unusual complications [the use of four permanent orchestras at one time], it was postponed. Now it is announced for the spring of 1940. The competitions, held in Brussels, Belgium, are international in scope, considerable attention having been attracted by the first and second competitions, for violinists and pianists, respectively. The Concourse Ysaye, named after the great Flemish violinist, is an organization placed under the auspices of the Queen Elizabeth Foundation.

8,000 to Participate in Chicagoland Music Festival

Tenth Annual Songfest to Be Held Aug. 19

By Edward Barry.

There is more to the Chicagoland Music Festival than meets the ear and eye. The mammoth program to be given in Soldiers' field a week from Saturday evening represents, in a very real sense, a handing back of music to the people.

For nonprofessional musicians will constitute a vast majority of the 8,000 participants in the festival. Singers and instrumentalists who make their livings in quite other ways, or who are too young to make a living in any way, are busy now and have been busy for the last several weeks preparing for this one great August evening. The festival, it is true, gives work both in preliminaries and finals to many professional musicians, but its distinctive characteristic is its ability to reach thousands of homes and assembly halls and to provide nonprofessionals with an incentive.

To realize the full importance of this, one must remember that the art of music has been drifting more and more rapidly into professional hands. The average person is content with the radio, the phonograph, and perhaps an occasional trip to the concert hall. That healthy old custom of making music at home or in neighborhood assembly halls has been passing from the American scene. Anything which can retard this movement or even reverse it for a time is of inestimable benefit.

For those who know music only from the listener's standpoint know only one-half of the art. There is a delight in making music quite different from the delight of hearing it. One comes to closer grips with the art, appreciates its fine points far better, and, incidentally, becomes a much more discriminating listener!

Speaking of public participation in music, the figure of 8,000 used above to indicate the number of performers will be multiplied by perhaps ten or twelve at one point in the evening. At this tenth Chicagoland festival, as in all the nine which have preceded it, a period will be devoted to community singing. The whole vast audience will be invited to sing its favorite melodies together and to take the beat from the lighted baton of the leader up front. This type of participation is not, of course, as important as the other, but it is bound to provide ten of the most diverting minutes of the whole evening. Singing with such a group, out under the wide sky, is an experience calculated to knock the reserve out of the shyest persons and make them shout their songs like the rest.

An idea of the wide influence of the Chicagoland Music Festival may be gained from the number of preliminary festivals held in other cities and from the geographical distribution of the registrations. Cedar Rapids, Ia.; St. Joseph, Mich.; Lafayette, Ind.; Racine, Wis., and Urbana-Champaign, Ill., were the scenes of preliminary festivals in June and July. East Moline, Ill., Whiting, Ind., and Kansas City, Mo., have similar events scheduled for this week-end. Each of these festivals draws entrants from surrounding towns, so that the number of communities directly affected runs to 300 or more.

Persons registering for the many contests that are included in the Chicagoland festival live for the most part in the five states surrounding Chicago. However, the influence of the festival is felt far outside these boundaries, and registrations have been received this year from California, Pennsylvania, Texas, and the Province of Ontario.

The great success of the festival has made it possible to raise the standards without endangering the number of entries. This year the music selected for the competitions is better than ever before, a fact which indicates that the festival's influence is not all directed toward quantitative ends.

The details of the program of Aug. 19 are not yet available but will be printed in this section next Sunday. It is certain that there will be large scale choral and band performances, vocal solos and orchestral numbers. The pageantry of other years will be matched or excelled. Vast forces are to maneuver on the field. The lighting engineers are working on plans to make the show more spectacular than it ever has been before.

The Chicagoland Music Festival is sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in coöperation with newspapers and musical organizations.

IN LAST RAVINIA PROGRAM

Wanda Paul, Chicago pianist, will be the featured performer in Szymanowski's Symphonie Concertante which the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play at Ravinia park this afternoon.

Prize Winners

Works printed in the July, 1939, issue of New Music, a quarterly of modern compositions, were selected for publication by the magazine at the Latin-American music festival in Bogotá, Columbia, during August, 1938. Armando Carvajal's "Three Pieces for Children" and Guillermo Uribe-Holguin's three "Preludio" are the prize winners. All are written for the piano. The former composer was born in Santiago, Chile, in 1893, and seems to have spent all his life there. He was educated and became an instructor at the local conservatory, and since 1931 has been conductor of the Asociación Nacional de Conciertos Sinfónicos, situated in the Chilean capital. Señor Uribe-Holguin is a native of Bogotá. He directs the National conservatory and conducts the Orquesta Sinfónica Nacional there. He will be 60 years old next March.

Chamber Music.

Three previous series of eighteenth century chamber music have had great success when they were presented in the ballroom of the restored Governor's palace in Williamsburg, Va. The fourth series, for which plans are well under way, will begin on Oct. 19. Two sets of four programs will be offered by Ralph Kirkpatrick, harpsichordist, and assisting artists.

Jean Tennyson Sings Saturday in Grant Park

By Cecil Smith.

Jean Tennyson, Chicago born operatic soprano, will sing in Grant park Saturday evening as guest soloist with Walter Steindel and his symphony orchestra. This will be the Norwegian-American singer's first local appearance before an audience of any size since the close of last fall's opera season. In May, however, she enjoyed the privilege of singing at a small dinner given in honor of Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha of Norway.

Miss Tennyson made her way into opera from the musical comedy and revue stage. Her first Chicago operatic appearance took place with the Chicago Grand Opera company at the Civic Opera house on Dec. 8, 1934. The rôle of Mimi in Puccini's "La Bohême" was her first assignment. In the fall of 1935 she returned to the opera company, which by then had become the Chicago City Opera company. After an absence of two seasons she once again rejoined the company for the 1938 season. Her operatic rôles here have included Mimi, Nedda in Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," Micaela in Bizet's "Carmen," and the name part of Puccini's "Tosca." She made her Grant park debut last summer.

Members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra fall heir to an impressive number of solo appearances during the Grant park week. With the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under Hans Lange, Joseph Vito, the orchestra's proficient solo harpist, plays Thomé's "Légende" on Monday evening. Robert Quick, who occupies the chair at the left of Concertmaster John Weicher, and who is officially known as "principal violinist," is scheduled to perform Wieniawski's D-minor concerto with the same orchestra and conductor Wednesday evening. On Friday Daniel Saidenberg, conducting the Woman's Symphony orchestra, presents David Moll and Leonard Sorkin, two other gifted young violinists from the Chicago Symphony orchestra, in Bach's great Concerto for Two Violins.

• • •

Tonight's program, provided by Leroy Shield and the NBC orchestra, offers a novelty in the form of Joe Emerson and his Hymns of All Churches choir, well known on the radio. Elizabetta Rosamore, soprano of the Chicago City Opera company, and Ada Belle Files, contralto, sing solo groups with the opera orchestra, Dino Bigalli conducting, on Thursday evening. No soloist is scheduled for Tuesday's concert by Hans Lange and the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Notes of Music and Musicians

The Illinois Symphony orchestra will play the fifth of its weekly outdoor concerts at the Washington park amphitheater, Wilmette, on Wednesday. The same program, played the following night in the University of Chicago's Hutchinson court, will bring the series there to a close.

Albert Goldberg will direct the programs which feature Eric DeLamarter's suite from "The Betrothal," the dream pantomime from Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel," Richard Strauss' tone poem "Don Juan," and the overture to Johann Strauss' "The Bat." Fritz Siegal, young and expert concertmaster of the orchestra, will be the soloist, playing Wieniawski's Concerto in D minor for violin and orchestra.

Izler Solomon, conductor of both the Illinois Symphony and the Woman's Symphony orchestras of this city, will lead the NBC orchestra in its weekly broadcasts tonight and next Sunday. Time and station may be found on the radio page.

Four organists will play half-hour recitals at the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, Woodlawn avenue and 59th street, during the week. They will be Abba Leifer, tonight; Porter Heaps, Tuesday; Frances Biery, Wednesday, and Russell Hayton, Thursday. Programs will start at 7 o'clock.

Milwaukee, like Chicago, is having its summer season of free al fresco concerts. Washington park will be the scene of five more to come: James Melton tenor, with the Wisconsin Symphony orchestra, Dr. Sigfrid Prager conducting, Aug. 9; the Symphonic male chorus of Milwaukee, Aug. 11; a production of "Carmen" by the Milwaukee Grand Opera company, Aug. 16; Jessica Dragonette, soprano, Aug. 23, and Jean Dickenson, soprano, Aug. 30. Two concerts will be held in Humboldt park: Edward Dudley, tenor, will sing with the Civic Concert orchestra on the 8th, and a radio band will play on the 15th.

The Littlefield ballet, which has been rehired by the resident opera company for the 1939 season, gave a highly successful account of itself at the Hollywood bowl one night last month. On the evening's bill were three items, "Aurora's Wedding," "Terminal," and "Barn Dance." Irwin Talbot from the Paramount studios conducted the accompanying orchestra, the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

The first Carmen to sing with a resident opera company—that was back in 1910—was Marguerita Sylva. Since she abandoned the operatic stage she has played in sundry stage attractions. Now it appears that she and her two daughters, Daphne and Marie, will all have speaking parts in the musical version of "Little Women," scheduled to open Aug. 21 at a summer theater in Oakland, Me. Geoffrey O'Hara is the composer.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Voegeli have returned from their extensive tour abroad, which covered most of Europe. They remarked that Europe seemed to be having an off-season as far as music is concerned, and they consequently heard less than they had expected and hoped to. Aside from their encounter in Moscow with Serge Prokofieff, the Russian composer, referred to in these columns last week, the two couples considered outstanding a visit to Jan Sibelius, the great Finn, at his home in Jarvenpää.

July Brings Forth Flock of Good Films

JULY'S BEST PHOTOPLAYS.
"MAISIE" "STOLEN LIFE"
"ORAGE" "SECOND FIDDLE"
"CLOUDS OVER EUROPE"
"DAUGHTERS COURAGEOUS"
"SUSANNAH OF THE MOUNTIES"
Honorable Mention: "Winner Take All," "Missing Daughters," "Tarzan Finds a Son," "The Kid from Kokomo," "Within the Law," "Exile Express," "Gracie Allen Murder Case."

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

The month of July brought forth a number of good movies—and they're all worth seeing:

"Maisie"—Ann Sothern and Robert Young are adept and likable as the romantic leads. Splendid cast all the way through.

"Orage"—It is the sophisticated depiction of an illicit love affair between a business man and a siren. Charles Boyer plays with his customary charm and assurance. . . . It is an adaptation of a play by Henri Bernstein.

"Clouds Over Europe"—You'll love this movie, folks! It tells a new sort of spy story in a new sort of way and introduces a new sort of Scotland Yard sleuth, a guy with a devastatingly droll sense of humor. Laurence Olivier is a swift thinking, strategic acting, immensely appealing Tony McVane. Valerie Hobson you'll like as the peppery, pretty newspaper woman. . . . Dialog is crisp and always pat.

"Stolen Life"—Elisabeth Bergner plays a dual rôle. She portrays twin sisters, Sylvina and Martina. Both fall in love with the same man. You're going to love Miss Bergner as Martina and like her little as Sylvina. As for Michael Redgrave—AH!—there's a man and an actor for you! The two have a richly able supporting cast, and direction, by Miss Bergner's husband, was the quintessence of something or other.

"Second Fiddle"—Sonja Henie is seen as a pretty school teacher from the wilds of Minnesota who is finally selected to play the "girl" in "Girl from the North"—a movie being adapted from a book that has over night become famous. . . . Tyrone Power plays a high pressure press agent who is sent forth to capture the blushing damsel and lug her to Hollywood for her screen test. The film is smartly staged and costumed, brightly dialoged, and effectively directed.

"Susannah of the Mounties"—The naïve little story is staged in Canada in the days when hostile Indians were doing all in their power to interfere with the building of the Canadian Pacific railroad. . . . Shirley Temple is starred.

"Daughters Courageous"—Tells an intensely interesting, exceptionally farsighted story about a mother and four daughters to whom returns at a most unpropitious time the husband and father who had deserted them some twenty years before. . . . The story, which could so easily have been resolved into melodrama, becomes lovely, honest homespun in the hands of the fine cast to whom it was entrusted. . . . There's direction as IS direction in this picture!

Schumann Manuscript.

The Zwickau museum in Germany has acquired the manuscript of Schumann's "Album für die Jugend" ["Album for the Young"] and thirty-eight of the composer's letters to his wife, Clara. They were willed to the museum by Schumann's last surviving daughter, Eugenie, who died some months ago.

Lost Cantata

A cantata for orchestra and male voices by Igor Stravinsky, long thought to be lost, was resurrected not long ago in Belgium. It is "Le Roi des Etoiles" ["The Star King"], written in 1911, the year that saw the composition of "Petrouchka." The score was listed among various items on sale in a Brussels second hand bookstore. M. C. van den Borren, curator of the library at the Brussels conservatory, immediately purchased the music. However, the notice was also seen by Paul Collaer, director of the Flemish section of the National Broadcasting institute, and he promptly borrowed the score for purposes of performance on the radio. The broadcasting company's orchestra and chorus, under Franz André, were the performers.

"Young Mr. Lincoln," starring Henry Fonda; Oriental, Esquire, Belmont, Century, Nortown, Norshore, Congress, Gateway, Paradise, Tower, Pantheon, Regal, Lamar, Piccadilly, Lido, Mont Clare.

COMING:

"Stanley and Livingstone," starring Spencer Tracy; Chicago; Aug. 11.

"Career," starring Anne Shirley and Edward Ellis; Palace; Aug. 11.

"Lady Into Fox."

David Garnett's famous short novel, "Lady Into Fox," was used as the basis of a ballet, newly created by the Ballet Rambert and being shown currently in London with great success. Music for the dance consists of an arrangement of pieces by Arthur Honegger.

Unknown Works Found.

Moscow has brought to light some unknown works of Scriabin and Beethoven. The nature of the former's music is unstipulated. That by Beethoven consists of the incidental music to "Tarpeja," a tragedy by Kuffner.

Chopin's Works

The complete works of Chopin are now in the process of being edited and published by the Frederick Chopin institute in Warsaw, Poland. Under the supervision of Ignace Jan Paderewski, Prof. Jozef Turczynski, Dr. Ludwik Bronarski, and Prof. Mieczyslaw Kotarbinski of the Warsaw Academy of Arts are preparing this new publication from the original manuscripts and first editions. In an effort to obtain the latter the committee asks that all institutions and individuals in possession of Chopin early editions, manuscripts, letters, and other matter communicate with the Instytut Fryderyka Chopina, P. K. O. 28830, Boduena 4, Warsaw, Poland. Critical commentary in four languages—Polish, French, English, and German—will be printed with the music.

This Is News: Broadway Learns That Yokels Have Vanished

Theatergoers Demanding Top Entertainment

By Robert Sylvester.

New York [Special].—Whatever the early cost may have been in nearly deserted theaters and tobogganing box office figures, the World's Fair is at last showing the boys who run the show business a thing or two about theater audiences outside New York.

The tastes and the habits, the preferences and the prejudices of the ticket buyer whose playgoing must be planned on a different schedule from the one here in the hub of things are teaching producers and managers a lesson which, it may be fervently hoped, they will take to heart in the future when road shows and touring productions are sent out.

Probably never before in the history of the drama have New York theaters played to such an overwhelming percentage of amusement seekers from the hinterlands. A careful check on all the eleven attractions currently on view reveals that most shows are playing to 85 per cent out-of-towners. At a few shows the percentage is nearer 90.

Virtually every producer has detailed scouts to study the actions and reactions of these novitiate playgoers, and the results are more than interesting. Any potential producers of touring shows who have been laboring under the delusion that the stage is an established art, thoroughly understood all over this great country, can be found any day, any place, worriedly biting at their finger nails and wondering if, after all, the trouble with the road has been with the people who inhabit it.

At "The American Way," one of the most likely targets for the visiting theatergoer, the management has discovered that persons making up more than half of its nightly and daily audience buy single tickets. This alone was enough to scare half the brokers and the management out of their wits. Also the reception and last curtain ovation for the star, Fredric March, have reached almost hysterical proportions.

These two factors have taught the management two things. First, that the out-of-town amusement seeker is more than willing to go to the theater alone and, second, that the "name" draws of today are not exactly the same drawing cards of yesterday.

The management of the six year old "Tobacco Road" has been studying its patrons even longer than its current competitors. This management has been deeply impressed by the fact that its out-of-town audiences seem unfamiliar and suspicious of theater ticket prices—as well they might be. Scarcely a purchaser, in fact, steps up to the box office without a preliminary study of the lobby displays and a corner of the eye examination of the ticket scale.

All theaters report a heavy balcony buy, proving once more—if it needs proving — that tickets are geared too high for the pockets of the greatest number of potential customers. From unofficial and offhand remarks, it seems more than probable that touring shows next season will not ask more than a $2 top.

All of these things, of course, are a reflection on the operators of stage shows rather than the theatergoers. There is, managers are about ready to admit, no such thing as a "yokel" any more. The movies and the radio have educated the potential playgoer in far-off Mountain Creek to the better things in entertainment. And said playgoer isn't going to fork over any $3.30 for a No. 3 company of "Bachelor Wife." For Helen Hayes or Katharine Cornell, yes. But not for a second-rate article.

In checking on theater business about town this reporter again was impressed by the great difference between what's funny and what's successful on opening night, and what's funny, etc., later in a show's run. It has long been the contention of many theatrical writers and actors that a show should not be judged on its first night when the house is jammed with near-sophisticates who are overanxious to laugh at or applaud for anything that's "inside" stuff or especially directed at a familiar character, name, or local situation.

"Streets of Paris" is an excellent example. The heartiest laughs to be heard at this musical these nights come in far different spots from the heartiest laughs of opening night and the first few performances. Apparently the smartest thing a show can have is humor and situations which are universal and down to earth enough to appeal to everybody.

At the moment there are three cast replacements in important stage shows: Richard Gaines, former understudy to Raymond Massey, is giving a new interpretation to "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"; Francis Lederer has replaced Laurence Olivier in Katharine Cornell's "No Time for Comedy," and Milton Watson is singing the songs that Jean Sablon once sang in "Streets of Paris." All are doing fine jobs.

Perhaps the most serious threat to the theater this coming season, and possibly for several seasons thereafter, is the brewing war between the various unions and stagecrafts. This department does not pretend to be a competent arbiter on who is right or who is wrong. But it is impossible to do anything but "view with alarm" the current internal struggle between all the forces which combine to make the theater the important cultural force that it is. A house divided against itself, to paraphrase an overwrought proverb, is scarcely the strongest house that there is. The house of the theater surely has enough trouble from without and needn't look for trouble from within. Or, looking, may find more trouble that any faction or element is prepared to deal with.

The current internecine warfare stems from the recent, rowdy revolution within the actors' unions. The Associated Actors and Artists of America, parent actors' union, called to task the American Federation of Actors, the variety and night club actors' union. After charges and countercharges, the A. A. A. A. has set up a substitute union for the A. F. A., but the latter refuses to recognize it and plans an American Federation of Labor appeal and court action.

So far, the supervising union [A. F. L.] and the law courts have given no indication as to who's right and who's wrong from the labor angle. Regardless of both decisions, it now looks as though the two factions will fight it out along stubborn lines—even if it means the death of the theater. Since all the theatrical unions are aligned on one side or the other, temporary death isn't improbable.

Shakespeare Fete

More than half way through its season the Shakespeare festival at Stratford on Avon announces the third annual conference on the playwright beginning Aug. 27. This series of meetings was added to the festival in 1937 and has proved popular enough to become an integral part of it. During the conference, which lasts till Sept. 8, lectures of general interest about Shakespeare will be given besides a daily talk on the play to be presented that evening. Dr. G. B. Harrison and John Garrett are handling the organization work. They are also on the list of lecturers which includes Harold Child, Allardyce Nicoll, Nugent Monck, Nevill Coghill and John Laurie.

Eight plays were produced for this year's festival, due to close on Sept. 16. Two of them, "The Taming of the Shrew" and "The Comedy of Errors," had their costumes, scenery and staging devised by Komisarjevsky. B. Iden Payne produced "Richard III.," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "Coriolanus." Baliol Holloway was in charge of "As You Like It," Robert Atkins of "Othello" and Irene Hentschel of "Twelfth Night." The plays are staged in the Shakespeare Memorial theater, paid for by contributions from drama lovers all over the world.

Current Music Notes

This afternoon's concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Ravinia Park will bring to a close another Ravinia festival. Although no concrete figures are yet available, the 1939 series of outdoor programs seems to have been unusually well attended, for the weather has been kind and the guest conductors and soloists popular.

Two novelties dominate the program which Artur Rodzinski will conduct today. The more important of these is Szymanowski's Symphonie Concertante for piano and orchestra wherein Wanda Paul will play the solo part. The gifted Chicago pianist has performed this work twice locally with the Illinois Symphony orchestra, but this is the composition's first appearance on a Chicago Symphony program. The other novelty is "Chmiel," a dance based on an ancient Polish nuptial folk tune, by Stanislaw Wiechowicz, a contemporary Polish composer. This is its Chicago première. The complete program is as follows.

"The Moldau"......................Smetana
Symphonie Concertante for Piano and Orchestra ....Szymanowski
Wanda Paul.
[First performance by the orchestra.]
"Chmiel," Polish Wedding Dance. Wiechowicz
[First performance in Chicago.]
Capriccio Espagnol..........Rimsky-Korsakoff

The regular free band concerts in Chicago's parks will be continued tonight and Friday. All begin at 8 o'clock and are played in the park band shells. Ensembles and soloists scheduled to appear are the Harold Bachman band with Freda Draper, contralto, and Vernon Gerhardt, bass-baritone, tonight in Lincoln park; Forcellati Dante and his concert band with Teresa Ferrio, soprano, and Henry Thompson, tenor, tonight in Jackson park, and Friday night in Garfield park.

John Carter, tenor of the Metropolitan opera and creator of a minor sensation when he sang at Grant park last summer, has been reëngaged for another "caravan tour" by the Wisconsin Bankers' association. Early next month he will give recitals in Marshfield, Beloit, and Eau Claire.

It seems fitting that some mention should be made of the passing of Jeanette Vreeland, noted concert and oratorio soprano. After several weeks' illness she died at the home of her parents, in Denver, on July 20. Born forty-three years ago in Los Angeles her family moved to the Colorado capital when she was very small. Her only vocal studies were made there with Percy Rector Stephens, whom she married in 1921. Her career included appearances with all the major choruses and orchestras of the country and concert tours of Europe. She last sang in the vicinity of Chicago at the 1937 North Shore festival in a performance of Bach's B-minor Mass. Her last public appearance was on April 1 of this year with the Indianapolis Symphony orchestra. Recordings of two important works perpetuate her services as the soprano soloist: Schönberg's "Gurre-Lieder" and Bach's "Passion According to St. Matthew" [Boston Symphony orchestra version].

Sailor, Beware!

Next November Laurence Schwab in association with Courtney Burr will produce a musical version of "Sailor, Beware!" The latter, by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson, was a comedy success back in 1933 and '34. At that time it made a star of Audrey Christie, seen here this year in "I Married an Angel." In the new musical her part will be taken by Mary Martin, the girl who made an overnight success with her rendition of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in "Leave It to Me." Music and lyrics for the new show will be written by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin. Schwab is arranging the libretto himself.

New Operetta.

The score for a new operetta, "Gainsborough," has been completed by Albert Coates, the eminent Anglo-Russian symphony conductor. The libretto is by C. Reginald Grundy.

Educational Ballets Add 2 New Dances

Two new spectacles entered the répertoire of the Educational Ballets, Ltd., during its recent season at the Royal Opera house, Covent Garden, London. Significance is attached to these premières since this company is one of the two created by the schism in Col. de Basil's Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo a year ago. The other group, headed by Leonide Massine, appeared here during the winter and spring, but Educational Ballets has not yet visited the United States. Last season it made a long and profitable tour of Australia. This season, however, there is every likelihood that it will visit America, giving local balletomanes a chance to see new works, as well as many old favorites which Massine is prohibited from displaying.

On the opening night of the London season "Le Fils Prodigue" ["The Prodigal Son"] was presented in a new version by David Lichine. [This was not a world première as the ballet had been tried out during the Australian tour.] George Balanchine created the original choreography to music of Serge Prokofieff during Diaghileff's régime ten years ago. At that time Roualt designed the scenery and costumes and these have been retained for the new production. The scenario is, of course, based on the biblical parable, but curiously omits the elder son from the narrative. Anton Dolin and Irina Baronova danced the two principal parts, the son and the siren.

"Paganini," the second new production, was given its first performance on June 30. It is the creation of Michel Fokine, and it appeared on a program with two other Fokine ballets—"Carnival" and "Le Coq d'Or"—resulting in a sort of festival to celebrate the choreographer's fiftieth anniversary in Russian ballet. It was a friend of Fokine's, the composer-pianist Rachmaninoff, who suggested to him that his "Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini" for piano and orchestra might make a worthy ballet concerning the great nineteenth century violinist.

Rachmaninoff's music remains unchanged except for a new ending, furnished for the occasion by the composer. The story shows Paganini in three aspects: on a concert platform, among the cringing people [who believed him to be in league with the devil], and in dying solitude clasping his violin. Dimitri Rostoff was intrusted with the title rôle, chiefly mimed.

The regular répertoire of the company included the usual assortment of classical dances, such as "Aurora's Wedding," several items from the large number of Fokine creations, and two of Balanchine's best works, "Cotillon" and "La Concurrence." Massine is represented on the list by productions which have been missing from our stages for a long time: "Les Présages," "Beach," "Union Pacific," and "Good-Humored Ladies."

Four revivals also joined the list of productions this summer. Two, "Giselle" and "Puppenfée" ["Fairy Doll"] are from the classical school. The others are two numbers which Bronislava Nijinska did for Diaghileff in 1924 and are still considered memorable: "Le Train Bleu" with a scenario by Jean Cocteau and music by Darius Milhaud, and "Les Biches" to music by Francis Poulenc with decor by Marie Laurençin.

In its London engagement the organization was fortunate to have the London Philharmonic orchestra playing for it. The conductor and his associate were Antal Dorati and Vladimir Launitz. Leading dancers included such familiar names as Irina Baronova, Anna Volkova, Vera Nelidova, Tatiana Riabouchinska, Sono Osato, Tamara Grigorieva, Lisa Serova, Vera Verchinina, Lubov Tchernicheva, Anton Dolin, Yura Lazovsky, David Lichine, Dimitri Rostoff, Jean Hoyer, Paul Petroff, H. Algeranoff, Roman Jasinsky, and Marian Ladre.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

When raising partner's trump bids of one, the following must be taken into consideration:

1. Trump length and honors in partner's bid suit.

2. Winners, honors and length, in side suits.

3. Ruffing tricks due to short suits [a void, a singleton, or a doubleton].

Trump Valuation of the Raising Hand: With four or more cards in the dummy, the trumps have an intrinsic "promotional" value in addition to their ruffing value. They decrease the number of guards available to the opponents' honors, and make it easier for declarer to "drop" these honors. Hence, the "concealed" value of about one-half trick for a four card trump length in the dummy.

Trump honors in the prospective dummy are also added tricks, since declarer usually assumes that they are held by the enemy. The J 10, the queen, and the king are valued somewhat differently than usual. The J 10 and the queen are worth one-half trick each; the Q J and the king are worth practically the same as an ace. The total value of any trump suit will, therefore, be made up of its length tricks plus trump honors.

The trump length and honors are valued as follows:

Trumps.	Tricks.
Three cards or less	0
Four cards	½
Five cards	1
Six cards	2
Add for ace	1
Add for king or Q J	1
Add for queen or J 10	½

The queen is one full winner when partner has rebid the suit.

The Count of Honors and Low Cards in Side Suits: Honors and long suits are counted at their full value, just as in declarer's hand.

Valuation of Ruffers: The bidding valuation of ruffers attempts to reproduce as exactly as possible the actual play, presuming the best defensive play by the opponents. It reproduces the subconscious valuation of experts. Assume that the declarer has bid spades and the dummy has spades J 9 8 and a singleton small heart. Even if declarer holds three losers in hearts it is not probable that he will be able to ruff more than one losing heart, since the opponents, unless asleep at the switch, will lead trumps to prevent the second ruff. But, if the dummy holds four spades to the jack and the same singleton heart, the declarer will usually be able to ruff at least two losing hearts, even when the opponents put up the best defense.

The ruffing tricks are valued as follows:

	With 3 of partner's suit.	With 4 or more.
A doubleton	½ trick	1 trick
A singleton	1 trick	2 tricks
A void	2 tricks	3 tricks

♣ J 8 6

South is playing a six spade contract, East having bid diamonds and clubs during the auction. West opens the club seven. Can the contract be fulfilled against the best defense? If so, how?

Answer: Yes, the contract can be fulfilled, as follows: Club ace wins and heart six is led and passed! West wins and can make no better return than a low trump. South's king captures East's jack and the three top hearts permit the discard of dummy's three clubs. Now South ruffs his last heart with the spade seven, then ruffs a diamond with the spade deuce. The club eight is ruffed with the spade eight [if West ruffs dummy overruffs] and another diamond is ruffed with the spade three. Now South's last club is ruffed with the spade ace, and the queen-ten of trumps in declarer's hand provide the fulfilling tricks.

If declarer wins first trick with club ace, draws one round of trumps to take out East's jack, then cashes three top hearts, discarding two clubs from dummy, good defense on West's part can defeat the contract. On next play South will lead a club to take out dummy's remaining club. West should ruff this trick [even though partner can win] and return a trump. Now dummy has only two trumps and cannot ruff South's two losing hearts and one club.

When the hand contains two short suits, only one is counted—the shorter of the two.

Revaluation of the Declarer's Hand: When partner, instead of raising, makes a different bid, the declarer's hand becomes the responding hand in turn and must be revalued accordingly. If partner bids a new suit, the opening hand becomes the supporting hand in turn and may now include ruffing values in support of partner's suit.

Consider the following hand:

♠QJ65 ♥K65 ♦AKJ5 ♣32

[a] Partner opens the bidding with one spade. The hand contains six winners in support of partner's spade suit:

	Honors.	Long cards.	Ruffers.
♠QJ65	1	½
♥K65	½
♦AKJ5	2½	½
♣32			1

[b] You open the bidding with one spade. Your hand contains 5-plus winners at your own spade bid.

	Honors.	Long cards.
♠QJ65	½+	1
♥K65	½
♦AKJ5	2½	½
♣32

[c] You open the bidding with one spade, and your partner takes you out into two hearts. Your hand now contains slightly less than five winners at spades, for your long card in spades cannot be valued as one full winner when partner has failed to support spades. However, you have 5½-plus winners in support of your partner's heart suit:

	Honors.	Long cards.	Ruffers.
♠QJ65	½+	½
♥K65	1
♣32			½

It is necessary for your partner to know about the total number of winners in your hand. If you can somehow signal that your hand is worth, say, six winners with spades as trump, all he will need to do is to count up the winners in his own hand at a spade bid and thus determine mathematically the total number of winners for the combined hands. If he has, say, four winners at spades, the partners control ten winners, and hence a game.

Bidding to show the total number of winners in a player's hand is quantity bidding. The mechanics of quantity bidding is based upon logical assumptions of the total of tricks expected in partner's hand. The starting point is the first bid.

There are thirteen tricks. Before your partner speaks, you can reasonably assume that this average share is about three winners. [This assumption applies only to opening suit-bids of one. In higher contracts, the assumption when partner has made no bid is at the most two tricks if vulnerable.] In order to contract for seven tricks, which is one-odd, the opener must therefore have as his share at least four winners.

Theoretically, therefore, the starting point of the first raise should be also four winners, since it carries the contract from seven to eight tricks, or two-odd. Still speaking theoretically, you will have two raises for five winners [5+4—9] and three raises for six winners [6+4—10].

This is, however, the purely mathematical background of bids, rebids and raises. It is valuable only in so far as it shows the underlying mechanics of quantity bidding, its framework so to speak. In actual practice, although quantity bidding is always present, there are very important modifications and limitations imposed by the bidding strategy.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Hedgerow Theater

Feature attraction of this summer's season at the Hedgerow theater, Moylan-Rose Valley, Pa., is the first complete performance in America of George Bernard Shaw's "Man and Superman." This production of what the late G. K. Chesterton called Shaw's greatest play will be the Hedgerow theater's 135th and is a continuation of its policy, begun in 1934, of adding a new Shaw play to its répertoire on the dramatist's birthday, July 26. Although "Man and Superman" was given its American première in New York on Sept. 5, 1905, and has had numerous productions since then throughout the country, there is none on record that has ever included the famous hell scene. In order to bring the curtain down on the performance at a reasonable hour the play will start at 7:30.

Six more Shaw plays will spot the season at this straw hat theater—"Androcles and the Lion," "Candida," "Arms and the Man," "Heartbreak House," "Too True to Be Good" and "Saint Joan." And since the organization likes to keep its répertoire well rounded it will also present such diverse dramas as McNally's "Beloved Leader," O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," A. A. Milne's "The Romantic Age," Harlan's "The Nüremberg Egg" and Ibsen's "Ghosts."

The season, which began on July 1, will extend through Aug. 19.

Malvern Festival.

Six new plays have been collected for the Malvern Drama festival, opening in England in August. In addition to G. B. Shaw's "In Good King Charles' Golden Days," other premières will include "What Say They?" a comedy of Scottish university life by James Bridie; "The Professor from Pekin," a modern Chinese comedy by S. I. Hsiung; "Dead Heat," by Sir Robert Vansittart, diplomatic adviser to the British government; "Old Master," a comedy by Alexander Knox, and "Big Ben," by Evadne Price and Ruby Miller.

Concerning the Shaw play this much is known: The action is set in a single day, the first scene taking place in Isaac Newton's rooms at Cambridge, the second in the palace at Newmarket. King Charles, who is between 40 and 50 in the play, is more than the libertine he usually is portrayed. There is a good deal about politics of the period, and in one scene Charles has a talk with George Fox, the Quaker in whose views he is interested. Charles will be played by Ernest Thesiger, the duchess of Portsmouth by Yvonne Arnaud, Newton by Cecil Trouncer, Nell Gwynne by Eileen Beldon, and Catherine of Braganza by Irene Vanbrugh.

"Rodelinda."

Handel's opera, "Rodelinda," was revived recently by the Ballets Jooss in coöperation with the musical section of the artists' colony at Dartington hall, Devonshire, England.

Worcester to Open Music Fete Oct. 2

Worcester, Mass., will open the eightieth of its annual music festivals on Oct. 2 of this year. This annual event traces its origins back to a musical convention in 1858, attended by teachers, singers and budding choral societies. The one year lapse which causes the eightieth festival to fall in 1939 came in 1918, when the project was abandoned because of an influenza epidemic. Albert Stoessel will again be the conductor, a position he has held since 1925.

At the opening concert on Monday two English choral works will be sung, "Ode to Music," by Charles Parry, and "A Sea Symphony," by Ralph Vaughan Williams. Helen Jepson, soprano, and Robert Weede, baritone, will be soloists in the latter. The soprano will also offer a group of arias, and the orchestra will play numbers by Debussy and Ravel.

Choral music to be sung on Tuesday night will include Brahms' "Song of Fate" and Harl McDonald's "Songs of Conquest," four new unaccompanied choruses. Simon Barer, pianist, will be heard with the orchestra in an unannounced concerto.

Thursday's program will be American — the concert involving Samuel Barber's "Symphony in One Movement" and Horatio Parker's "Hora Novissima." The latter, a choral work, will have as soloists Agnes Davis, soprano; Viola Sylva, contralto; William Hain, tenor, and Gean Greenwell, bass.

Besides the chorus and orchestra Gladys Swarthout, popular American mezzo-soprano, will be featured in arias and songs on Friday's "artist's night." The following morning a "children's concert" will be played.

An operatic double bill will bring the festival to a close on Saturday. Principals in Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" will be Charles Kullman as Canio, Muriel Dickson as Nedda, and Robert Weede as Tonio. In the second opera, Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi," Julius Huehn will sing the title rôle, Helen Marshall will be Lauretta, and Charles Kullman the Rinuccio. As usual Alfredo Valenti will direct the stage action, and the opera chorus will be drawn from the larger one which participates in the earlier concerts and numbers 450 people. All events will take place in the Worcester Municipal auditorium.

Nearly 2,000,000 Telephone Calls

Fifty-six years ago the Chicago Tribune installed its first telephones. The equipment consisted of two instruments—one for the city editor's desk and one for the counting room.

To handle Tribune phone trafic today requires 614 instruments, three different numbers, and 215 trunk lines connecting with special equipment designed to give readers and advertisers the fastest, most efficient phone service in the world.

Exclusive of business trafic, the Tribune last year received 1,931,334 phone inquiries from readers regarding sports results, the weather, highway conditions, war scares and countless other topics of public interest.

Fifty-six years ago, with the advent of the Tribune's first telephone, this new form of public service was born. Its growth paralleled the growth of the telephone.

By 1905, increasing numbers of Chicagoans were phoning the Tribune for baseball scores, election returns and other information. As the years passed, this trafic grew until last year nearly two million such calls were handled.

To relieve congestion and to provide faster, more complete service for readers and advertisers, the Tribune recently added two new phone numbers, 30 new incoming trunks and specially designed equipment which make it possible for a single operator to answer simultaneously as many as 30 individual calls every 20 seconds.

This aggressive action in advancing the interests of its readers is another reason why the Tribune is Chicago's most widely read newspaper and most productive advertising medium.

Rain Washes Out British Royal Party

By Cousin Eve.

LONDON. The London season usually ends with a royal garden party at Buckingham palace. This year it ended with a washout in the palace gardens. So much rain fell on July 20 that at 3 p. m. the party was officially called off. Such guests as were forehanded and had already reached the monarchs' London residence had their tea in the palace reception rooms, served by royal footmen. Earl Clarendon, lord chamberlain, had issued 8,000 invitations to the garden party in the name of the king and queen of England, but the gardens and woods of Buckingham are so vast that such crowds are quite swallowed up.

Guests pour through the main entrance into the palace, up the grand staircase, and out upon the terrace, then down into the gardens, with their velvet lawns and flowering beds. On the left runs the long tent for nondiplomats. Across the center is a high marquee for the corps diplomatique and visitors of high rank. On the right, well roped off, is the rich red silk Durbar tent where members of the royal family retire with their suites for tea, and here the presentations are made.

The British from all the dominions who swarm to London at this season wear their best to this party: Women in big hats and long, sweeping robes; men in gray toppers, long gray cutaways. The native Indian princes and Sikh officers add gorgeous splashes of color in their magnificent robes, turbans, and uniforms. And, too, the brilliant sari of their women, gauzy, vivid clinging stuffs, with diamonds of great size and fire. It is wonderful. Guests are invited at 3:15 and are all assembled when at 4 o'clock the royal hosts make their entree. With visiting royalties they walk slowly down the lane of visitors, preceded by the lord chamberlain and various dignitaries, who mark the sovereigns' path with important looking canes.

Often the king or queen sees an old friend, or an invalid in a wheel chair, and stops to chat. Well, this year it was too bad! My invitation had the usual ominous phrase, "weather permitting." But one went gayly off to lunch at Claridge's, which was a great whirl of gayety that day, never dreaming of taking the weather seriously. The Aga Khan was having his usual big luncheon at the Ritz, while at Claridge's the outstanding parties were given by Americans, Grace Lady Newborough, Mrs. Jacob Baur of Chicago, and Douglas Fairbanks for Hollywood folk. I knew a few of Lady Newborough's guests: The Hon. Mrs. Henry Coventry, who was Edith Kip of New York; Mrs. Adair, who came in a wheel chair, this charming daughter of the late Mrs. Lorillard Ronalds, also of New York, and Lady Bingham. The women of this large party were all American, and the men British, all fine, ruddy, upstanding types. Fancy getting such a galaxy of men as the nation prepares for war!

Among Mrs. Baur's guests were Lady Lillian Boyd, Mrs. Claude Bennington, a noted beauty; Mrs. John Mitchell of New York, and Dorothy Vicaji, the portrait painter. A tall woman and distinguished, she had just come from painting Brenda Frazer, New York's glamor debutante of last season, only daughter of the late Frank Duff Frazer of Chicago. Brenda's grandpa, Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, came up to wish us the top of the morning.

Lord Castlerosse of Ireland, a famous wit, who has taken up the writing of a weekly column and the squiring of pretty women, was one of the diners. Amusingly fat, like a young captive balloon, Castlerosse is also ruddy and handsome. People who had crossed on the Clipper were also there, including several Americans all set for the garden party: Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, with her son, Cornelius Jr.; Mrs. Walter Dillingham of Honolulu, looking very smart, also her daughter, Betty Lou, still in school. Mrs. Woolley-Hart was also a luncheon giver. The former Countess von Bernstorff, daughter-in-law of the wartime German envoy at Washington, is one of London's great hostesses and noted blonde beauties.

We went lunching soon after that with Mrs. Woolley-Hart at her house in Prince's Gate. This turned out to be a large party including men and again the feeling swept over me, here we are practically on the brink of a world smashup, and a hostess can commandeer all these males!

Mrs. Woolley-Hart's drawing room [they have them still in London] is pale yellow and modernistic, with curious and beautiful set-in paintings by a Tyrolean artist, Hubert Gurschner, the rage in London just now. They are quite Spanish in feeling, almost El Greco, that is, they have character and color.

Vivianne, the hostess, was looking marvelous in navy wool costume, big white hat, and necklace and bracelet so extraordinary as to make me ask at once where she had them done. The collar was large roses made of cabochon aquamarines, with centers of yellow stones, inset of rose quartz, and here and there the flash of gold. All semi-precious but effective and superb. The craftsman who designed it has a shop in Bond street. In his vaults lie the jewels of the ducal Westminsters, Northumberlands and Sutherlands, with those of other ducal and plutocratic families. And to him come lovely ladies who have lost at baccarat on the continent with gorgeous things to liquidate. And to him go women like Vivianne who have magnificent jewel collections and keep adding to them.

At this luncheon, sitting at the host's right, was Vicomtesse Jacques de Sibour, my friend Violette Selfridge, not seen for a lapse of years, and quite unchanged. Violette is rather the Spanish type, with the gentlest manners. Combined with the soft-eyed sweetness of an angel, she has courage and daring without end. She has flown her own plane these many years to places like central Africa and Arabia.

This year Violette and her husband have a new hot spot to fly to, up in the Baltic regions. Just at present they have a cottage outside of London for the benefit of their 5 year old Jacqueline. A young daughter does cramp one's flying style, it seems!

After luncheon the party flowed out upon the terrace at the rear, where were swings, wicker chairs, and small tables, among flower boxes. Prince's gardens, full of beautiful trees, lay in front of us, common to all the great houses surrounding. With coffee, baskets of the darlingest little Pekingese puppies were emptied by footmen upon the terrace. There were a black Peke, a white one, and three beige babies, while some older ones tore about in high glee. Quite a dog show. Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese ambassador at Paris, had had tea on this terrace the day before. When she saw this flock of little Chinese dogs she seemed to want to take them back to France. Mme. Koo is a wonderful go-getter, as shown by her recent successful trip in America for Chinese relief, but she didn't get Vivianne's dogs, for which I was duly thankful, as they are the most delightful little pets and highly decorative.

A few cold, pallid rays of sunshine encouraged me to go down to Greenwich that afternoon, Greenwich where the world's time comes from. Admiral Sir Sydney Bailey said that by river was the most charming way. And he should know, having commanded at the naval station and been quartered there for four years in the royal palace. So, annexing a friend at Claridge's of an adventurous turn, we sought the Thames at Westminster bridge and boarded a river boat.

The trip was a series of Whistler-esque studies in black and gray, for dark clouds gathered as we shot by Scotland Yard on the left, then Cleopatra's needle. What one sees on the Thames is commerce and more commerce. Huge ships from the antipodes line the wharves and over their smokestacks one merely glimpses the dome of St. Paul's cathedral, the Tower of London, Traitor's gate. Farther along there is Limehouse and squalid China Town, and then the famous West India docks and curious murky nooks. Back of them slums and more slums.

Rapidly we darted under London's great bridges, Southwark, London bridge, and Tower bridge, thrilled by their historical values, but of beauty there is none. Up to 1750 London bridge was the sole Thames bridge.

Finally on the right bank came a distant view of Greenwich, massive piles of granite on the river, beautiful gray bubbles floating aloft that are the domes of Sir Christopher Wren, plus the earlier genius of Inito Jones. On the heights is the white dome of Greenwich observatory marking the spot of Henry VI's hunting lodge.

Greenwich is England's Annapolis, and all the glorious palaces, forming four large hollow squares, house Great Britain's naval college, thousands of her fledgling officers and much of the machinery of the navy. Samuel Pepys, famous for his diary, who had an important job in the admiralty in the seventeenth century, lived at Greenwich during the plague.

When we arrived a young sub-officer appeared, saying he had been detailed as a guide, and we duly inspected the "Painted Hall," with its weathered oak and coloring of bronze and brown depicting Greenwich history. At the top table was the king's oaken arm chair. A slight aroma of boiled beef and cabbage hung over the gorgeous hall and statues of the glorious and great in Britannic sea history—Horatio Nelson, Viscount Hood, Rodney, Hamilton, de Saumaurez, and many unknown to me. And I thought how much boiled beef and cabbage had been eaten here in the centuries.

The royal chapel was equally noble and grand. Then I wanted to see the corner of the royal palace where Milly Bromwell [now Lady Bailey, wife of the admiral] had reigned as hostess for some years. They had a view out upon the Thames, across the palace gardens back over the hills, beyond which lies the Dover road, famous in olden times for its holdups. There, too, is Blackheath, haunt of footpads and robbers in the old days. The Baileys' chic apartment had housed many royalties of the long ago, and seen much history go by.

Lady Bailey is an Illinois girl, sister of Scott Bromwell of Lake Forest. In a city like London, full of beauty and distinction, her charm and elegance are outstanding. She is a tall brunette, lovely to see and charming to know.

• • •

Later we wended our way to the "Queen's House," built by Charles I. for beautiful Henriette Marie de France, his queen. It marks the medieval and the modern country house, a lovely small white stone palace. It stands on the place where very young Sir Walter Raleigh cast his superb, expensive velvet coat upon the mud puddle that lay in Queen Elizabeth's path.

The Maritime museum has just opened a Nelson gallery, with many relics through the years of Lord Nelson and Lady Hamilton, who became his wife. Lovers of the sea and lovers of romance will like to study these medals, swords, gifts, paintings, and manuscripts. And the coat worn by Nelson at Trafalgar.

We returned to London by train to Charing Cross; it seemed easier than by river. But not so picturesque.

Toch garden party sounded rather queer, but it was decidedly the thing to go to, even if it were at Hampton court, twenty-five miles southwest of London on the Thames. Every duchess in London was on the committee headed by the Rev. P. B. Clayton.

The great excitement, besides the duchesses, who are all very beautiful and eye filling, was that the queen was to be there. And Queen Elizabeth has such vogue now in England that 4,000 persons paid $5 to journey down to Hampton court for the pleasure of seeing her. I traveled down with some friends in a green bus which landed us at the outer palace gate and we had only to stroll leisurely through the three courtyards that pierce the enormous estate, which today houses many royal pensioners. Widows of generals and royal relatives a-plenty are living there in safe and beautiful surroundings.

At the portal awaiting Queen Elizabeth stood the duchess dowager of Devonshire, a stately vision in gray organza, hat and all, beautiful, pale, wearing pearls and more pearls. The crowd pushed for places of vantage. We merely sat at a small iron table, leaving the British the best places to see the popular idol. There was a beautiful pale blue tent for the queen, carpeted in blue, containing gold chairs, a table with gold service, flowers, and ringed round with red velvet cords. In it were the duchesses of Marlborough, Devonshire, Rutland, Northumberland, Baccleugh, Sutherland, Lady Ribblesdale, Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, the marchioness of Salisbury, and the American ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Kennedy, with some others of the charitable committee. The crowd was so great that we held small hope of seeing the lovely queen, though we stood up when the band played the national anthem and knew she had arrived.

The rush for tea was on behind us, when suddenly another rush came towards our table—it was the queen coming our way, attended by Lady Halifax and Lord Streatfield, a lane forming as she walked. It certainly was a great thrill to see such a charming person, so alive, so gracious, and so beautiful. The queen was wearing a costume of white lace, a turned up white straw hat, and double rows of huge pearls. Her lovely violet eyes sought faces of friends and presently she joined Lord and Lady Stamp and stopped for a long chat with them.

The ceremony of presenting the queen with a purse was held, the days proceeds amounting to $25,000, as there were large gifts outside of the entrance fees.

Massachusetts Colonies Hosts to Midshipmen

BEVERLY, MASS. With the visit of the battleships Texas and Arkansas to the North Shore this week there was added variety to the midsummer gayeties. The Texas was at Marblehead and the Arkansas at Gloucester, and aboard were hundreds of midshipmen from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis.

There was much entertaining during the stay of the ships, with gay parties at the Corinthian and Eastern yacht clubs at Marblehead and more parties at Gloucester, Magnolia, Manchester, and Beverly. A happy carefree week for the future admirals and a joyous round of days for the young crowd on the North Shore. Debutantes, subdebs, and many of the younger matrons were among those who danced or dined with officers and midshipmen. The battleships made their stay here on the return from a cruise to Quebec. The battleship New York was at Portland for the week.

• • •

Other affairs of interest this week included a garden party on Wednesday at the estate of Francis B. Crowninshield at Peach's Point, Marblehead, for the fund for the restoration of the Lee mansion in that town, and the annual fair of St. John's Episcopal church at Beverly farms on Thursday. Summer colonists united in making these events successful.

Miss Alice Thorndike of the Manchester colony was chairman of the fair. There were many novelties and the attendance was the largest in several seasons. The parish house was crowded for the supper and dance.

Race week at Marblehead made that quaint old town the mecca of yachtsmen from all along the North Shore. There are three nationally known clubs there—the Eastern, one of the oldest in the country, the Corinthian, and the Boston. There were races beginning on Wednesday and the program will carry over tomorrow.

All of the clubs put on regattas with classes for all types of craft from stately schooner yachts to sailing dories. Miss Nancy Leiter of Chicago and Edgewater House, Beverly Farms, was among the yachtswomen winning honors.

Glories of North Shore gardens at their midsummer best will be shown at the annual summer show of the North Shore Horticultural society at Manchester, August 15 to 17. One of the largest exhibitions will be from the gardens of Mrs. William H. Moore of Chicago and Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dole of Evanston, Ill., have been at the North Shore for a midsummer visit, staying at the Oceanside in Magnolia. Mrs. William S. Forrest and Mrs. Maulsby Forrest of Chicago have been visiting Mrs. William K. Kenly at her summer home in Manchester.

The Herbert Mason Sears' bowl, emblematic of the national junior yachting championship, will be the trophy sought by young sailors from all along the North Shore in the races off Marblehead the last week in August. There is Chicago interest in the races through the entry of Richard Mechem, son of the John C. Mechems of Lake Forest, Ill., and Annisquam.

Young Mechem skippered the St. Paul's school crew to win the races at Marion last month, and has turned in some sterling victories in the Cape Ann races. He is one of the cleverest of the younger skippers on the North Shore.

Miss Marie Louise Richards of Winnetka has been here for a North Shore stay with Miss Ann Millspaugh at her summer home in Marblehead. Miss Richards and Miss Millspaugh are classmates at Smith college.

• • •

John Clay Jr. of Chicago is adding to his honors in yachting this season. He was among the winners in the Eastern Point races this week.

MARRIED IN NEW YORK

Mrs. Lloyd Holmes Skougor is the former Dorothy Lillian Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Snyder of 6326 North Campbell avenue. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Skougor of New York took place on July 1 in New York.

The Clays are at Gloucester for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago have returned to their Beverly Cove summer home after a trip to New York. They plan to be on the North Shore until the late autumn.

Justice James C. McReynolds of the United States Supreme court is here from Washington for a visit with Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose at Sea Rocks, her summer home at Eastern Point, Gloucester. Justice McReynolds is a frequent visitor to the North Shore and has many friends in the various colonies.

Alan Baldwin of Oak Park has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sawler of Oak Park at their summer home at Eastern Point, Gloucester. Young Baldwin, who is 14, made this trip to the North Shore on his bicycle, coming by the way of Quebec. He was 18 days on the trip.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt [Ann Clarke] arrived in England this week and will spend a month on the continent. They are to return to Nahant for the autumn. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, and mother of John, is expected to be a visitor on the North Shore in the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Childs Frick of Roslyn, Long Island, are visiting Mrs. Frick's sister, Miss Helen C. Frick at Eagle Rock, Pride's Crossing. Mr. Frick for many years summered at Pride's and played polo at the Myopia Hunt club, Hamilton.

Herbert Hines, Rotary International secretary, has been enjoying a North Shore stay. Mr. Hines was a guest of the North Shore clubs at a district meeting held at Salem Willows.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Crane of New York are with Mr. Crane's mother, Mrs. Richard T. Crane of Chicago, for a North Shore stay at Castle Hill, the Crane summer home at Ipswich. Mr. Crane recently returned from a yachting cruise along the Maine coast.

Miss Evelyn Lilly of the Beverly Cove colony, and daughter of Mrs. Frederick C. Bartlett of Chicago, is a volunteer laboratory assistant at the Beverly hospital this summer. A number of the younger colonists are serving at the hospital in various capacities. The hospital now is engaged in a campaign to raise $500,000 for new buildings.

Catherine S. Johnson to Marry Walter MacNeille

Nantucket an Ideal Site for Summer Visit

By India Moffett.

NANTUCKET, MASS.

There may be nicer places in the world than Nantucket, but it's a magic isle, a place where time goes backward instead of forward and where, except for the automobiles, one feels as if we were living a century ago, when Nantucket was one of the important ports of the new world.

The same lovely houses that the rich and sturdy whaling captains and merchants built so long ago are to be seen today. There are some newer houses on the island, but their builders wisely have adhered to the old-time architecture so there are no discordant notes. None, that is, but the smelly motor cars that clutter up the narrow streets of the towns. It was only in 1920 that automobiles were allowed on the island, and although from a business standpoint it may be well to have faster transportation than horses or bicycles provided, no visitor can help but be sorry the selectmen decided to lift the ban on gasoline vehicles.

Nantucket is such a small island—only fourteen miles long and an average of three and one-half miles across—that there were no long distances to traverse. Siasconset, the largest town on the island outside of Nantucket, is only eight miles from the steamer wharf at Nantucket. The sia in Siasconset, for some reason, is silent and the place always is called 'Sconset.

Even a short stay at Nantucket makes one understand perfectly why summer colonists there are so enthusiastic about their island. It is so little spoiled, so entirely different from the cities in which we live and work. There is a potent charm about it, an old world atmosphere that makes one forget the hustle and bustle of modern living. There is no lack of modern conveniences, thank goodness, but there is none of the ugly, unsightly things that progress brings to so many resorts, such as billboards and hotdog stands.

The island is far enough from the mainland, about three or four hours by steamship from Woods Hole, to keep trippers away. The folk who frequent the island are not the ostentatious sort, for ostentation and Nantucket simplicity would not mix. Consequently, it is a place that richly deserves such adjectives as delightful, unspoiled, distinctive and charming.

Nantucket is a sort of women's paradise, perhaps a survival of the time when the whalers' wives and daughters ran the place during the long absences of the men. Today there is a woman judge, a feminine clerk of court, and a postmistress. Three of the largest real estate companies are run by women, the most expensive hotel is the property of a woman, and the most popular and unusual restaurant belongs to a woman.

• • •

There are a number of Chicagoans who call Nantucket, or 'Sconset, home in the summer. The Charles Y. Freemans have a big place on the cliffs at Nantucket overlooking the sea and next door to the Breckenridge Longs' estate. Mrs. John G. Ralston's new white house on Cliff road is an imposing one, almost a small hotel, with a finer view than the one she had last year from a house she rented on Brant point.

Leedsmere, the Leeds Mitchells' place, is on the Point. Col. and Mrs. Robert Stewart have a handsome place, but it is on the moors and not right on the shore. Mrs. Wallace Waken has a house this summer that was occupied last year by some other Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Counselman.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Taylor and Dr. and Mrs. Frank X. Walls have charming old places on Main street, white, with green shutters, shiny brass door knockers, and gardens that are riotous with color. Mrs. Robert B. Harshe's quaint old house is on Quince street. With her is her son's wife, Mrs. William Harshe.

Young Mrs. Harshe's sister, Mrs. Otto Schulz, and her little son and daughter are spending August in a cottage at 'Sconset, not far from where Mrs. William Sennott Jr. and her wee son are visiting her mother, Mrs. Anthony McKinley. Mrs. Schulz's cottage is between the church and Robert Benchley's house. A nice location, we would say.

The Frederick P. Boyntons have a place at 'Sconset, which they call Sankaty lodge, because of its proximity to the Sankaty Head Golf club. Mr. Boynton is an officer of the Siasconset Casino, so is active in the social life of the community.

• • •

We hated to leave Nantucket, but we said au revoir—instead of good-by—to the charming island and to the immaculate, well brushed looking sea gulls that followed the boat when it pulled away from the wharf to take us back to the mainland. Nantucket is a blessed place, its residents must feel, for it suffered not at all in last year's hurricane.

Not so fortunate was Watch Hill in Rhode Island, which suffered tragically, for it lost its beach club and thirty-nine cottages on Napatree point, and fifteen persons who lived there. The club has been rebuilt, and it was being opened the night of the day we were there last week.

The club that was destroyed was a new one, for when we were at Watch Hill just two summers ago we were shown the smart furnishings, just completed by Mrs. Frank Hibbard. The Hibbards have rented their house at Watch Hill this summer, for their stay there was brief, just a short visit to the Misquamicut Golf club.

• • •

Some of the survivors are back at Watch Hill for this summer, but others must feel that they never want to see the place again. Ronald M. Byrnes of New York is one of these, no doubt, for he lost his wife and two daughters, 20 year old Barbara and 17 year old Betty, in the tragedy. The girls knew many Chicagoans, for they had spent several spring vacations at Sea Island, Ga., where numerous Chicagoans go each spring. Mr. Byrnes is married, or is going to be soon, to a former Chicagoan, Sylvia Evans, who was Mrs. Robert Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., until recently.

No Chicagoans who summer at Watch Hill were severely hit by the storm but Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps saw the worst of it from her cottage, the Anchorage, overlooking Little Narragansett Bay, over which the houses from Napatree point were blown. Mrs. Phelps and her younger son, Peter, are enjoying life at the Anchorage again this summer, and her older boy, Hubbard, and his wife are spending the season with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs, in the same resort.

Mrs. Phelps has as her guests now Thomas Prindiville of New York and Joseph Spang of Chicago and Brookline. Mrs. Phelps just has won the women's golf championship of the Misquamicut club.

Mrs. William J. Chalmers is not able to enjoy her stay at Dronley house, her beloved home in Watch Hill, very much this year, for she has been ill ever since she occupied it several weeks ago.

SUMMERING IN THE EAST

Mrs. Martin Elyot Manulis was Miss Katherine Bard, daughter of the Ralph A. Bards of Highland Park, until her marriage in June. Mr. and Mrs. Manulis are spending the summer in Easthampton, N. Y., where he is manager of the John Drew Memorial theater and of its affiliated training school, the Leighton Rollins School of Acting, of which the bride is a graduate.

Snob Situation in Newport Is Social Riddle

By Judith Cass.

NEWPORT, R. I.

"She's such a snob," a woman at a Cape Cod beach club said recently about a neighboring summer colonist, a Chicagoan. The woman added: "She should go to Newport. We should think she would like it better than the Cape."

We remembered the remark when in Newport as we began to try to figure out an answer to the riddle that always besets one here. Why are there no Chicagoans in Newport? It is almost the only resort of any size on the New England coast where there is no representative of the Illinois city. There are a few, but very few, ex-Chicagoans here. Apparently one must move from the middle west before one dares, or cares, to spend the summer at Newport.

Why? It's a riddle that bears considering and any one's answer may be right. Any one who thinks knows all the snobs aren't at Newport and also that every one at Newport isn't a snob. But Chicagoans must be allergic to the place, for they stay away from it as definitly as a hay fever sufferer avoids ragweed.

Newport. The name immediately brings to mind a vision of great marble palaces, mammoth frame atrocities, and other huge mansions, all masquerading under the pseudonym of "cottage." In a way this is unfair to Newport, which isn't just a playground for the wealthy, for it is a place rich in historical interest. Long before the Vanderbilts and Astors, Goelets and Drexels, built summer homes here, Newport was a center of industry and culture.

The Newport of today was chartered as a city about ten years before the civil war, for although it had been granted a charter in 1784 that charter was repealed three years later. Newport had been, however, a place of elegance, of dignity, of munificent entertaining, since before the revolution. It was there that French allies under Rochambeau were quartered, and if old houses could talk, many would be the thrilling tales told of those long ago days.

• • •

Many visitors to Newport forget its past, they are so concerned with its present and with predictions of what the future will hold for this almost fairy tale summer home of the fabulously wealthy. They forget church in their anxiety to catch a glimpse of Bailey's beach. Trinity church has been a place of worship since 1726. It is just as it was when Bishop Samuel Seabury, the first American bishop, preached his ordination sermon in it. No building in Rhode Island can tell more of the history of the state. It is well worth a visit.

So is Bailey's beach. But it is a new Bailey's beach that one sees this summer, for the old one where millionaires took their dips and sat in the shade was destroyed in the hurricane. The new one is a sort of streamlined affair, its buildings gray, with yellow trimmings, much less ostentatious than one might suppose the home of the swankiest beach club in the United States would be.

The old buildings were simple, too, and far less attractive than the new ones, so the great storm of last September did the Bailey's beach members a good turn. The passing motorist or pedestrian gets a better view of the millionaires' beach now than he did before.

This curious reporter met with no remonstrances when she walked through an open gate at one end and calmly walked the length of the beach. Nice, but not extraordinary, she thought, meaning the beach, the cabanas, the people and everything in sight. Not crowded, that is its chief recommendation, was her second thought. There's probably a good reason for that, for undoubtedly an average American family could live comfortably for a year on what it costs to own a Bailey's beach cabana. The C. Matthews Dicks—he is a former Chicagoan—have one.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick, who live in Washington, D. C., in the winters, have a pleasant house in Bellevue avenue. Occasionally one of Mr. Dick's Chicago relatives visits them, but they are not expecting any middlewestern guests this season. Bellevue avenue also is the address of the former Lucille Frost of Chicago, now Mrs. Joseph Worthington Fraser of Detroit, New York, and Newport. The Frasers' daughter, Aerielle, was married recently to the Hon. Michael Strutt. Her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine C. Bartlett of Lake Forest and Hobe Sound, Fla., and their two sons were in Newport for the wedding, but they now are in Prout's Neck, Me., for the rest of the season.

The Strutts' are arriving in Newport this week-end for a brief visit before sailing for England, where they will live. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser have rented their cottage for the rest of the season to Mrs. Madeleine Force Dick.

Art Institute's Print Room Is Amusing Place

By Eleanor Jewett.

If one cannot be in a hundred strange places in the course of a summer, it is fun to receive ravishingly colored postcards from those who, in individual hideaways from the heat of a city summer, are trying out the various resources of seaside, mountain, desert, or lake. At least two of Chicago's well known painters are summering on the Atlantic coast. A card from Louis Kronberg tells us he is back from Paris and spending a number of weeks at Rockport, Mass. Another from Julia Sulzer Griffith let us know that she is back at her favorite sport of painting boats at Gloucester, Mass.

If one does have to be in town an amusing spot early in the morning, before the sun is too high, is the print rooms of the Art institute. Here several most amusing exhibits have been arranged. The sporting prints and drawings on view in gallery 13 belong to the early 19th century and are English in origin. Some of them, particularly the coaching scenes, are vivid souvenirs of an age that has passed forever, while others, such as the hunting pictures, record a sport that is followed with unabated interest today although not always in as comical a way as the wags of a hundred years ago saw fit to see it.

The prints in the current exhibit are in a peculiarly perfect condition. They are lent by Joel Spitz. If it is not too warm to devote a few minutes to the technical side of this exhibit [the surface side—the picture—speaks for itself], you may be interested in a few facts gleaned from the museum about the making of these spirited and delightful pictures.

The English sporting print was the product of collaboration between artist, engraver, and colorist. Sometimes the artist was his own engraver, but more often he only furnished the design which another had to transfer to the copper plate. The most commonly used process was aquatint, which was introduced into England in the late 18th century. In this process particles of some acid-resisting substance are scattered evenly over the plate and affixed to it by heat. The composition is drawn directly upon this ground with chalk, pencil, or by use of transfer paper, to guide the artist in graying his tones. The plate is then placed in the acid bath. The acid eats into the interstices so that a meshwork of cavities to hold the ink is formed.

When the composition is printed it appears in tonal rendering similar to water color—and yet there is a difference noticeable immediately to the conscious eye. The English method of the time was to use two or three colors of ink upon the plate in printing, usually ground tone and sky tone. The colorist added by hand to the sheet so printed the vivid hues which are half the picture's charm.

The "Epsom Races," by Thomas Sutherland, after a design by Henry Alken, shows the print as it was taken from the copper plate, printed in sepia and blue. Other impressions from the same plate received as brilliant coloring by hand as any other of the prints in this gallery. Henry Alken, who was one of the most famous of the several important artists of sporting subjects, sometimes etched his compositions upon the plate—as in the four fox-hunting scenes hanging in the exhibit, though even in this case he left the aquatinting to the experienced George Hunt. You will undoubtedly notice the blue coats in these scenes. That color was not a willful variation on the part of an artist tired of painting "pink." The uniform of the Beaufort Hunt was dark blue, while the hunt servants wore dark green velvet or plush, and for an excellent reason, viz.: "Because it doesn't show the dirt." All of these different colors appear in "Yellowham Wood," etched by Alken and Reeve after a design by W. P. Hodges.

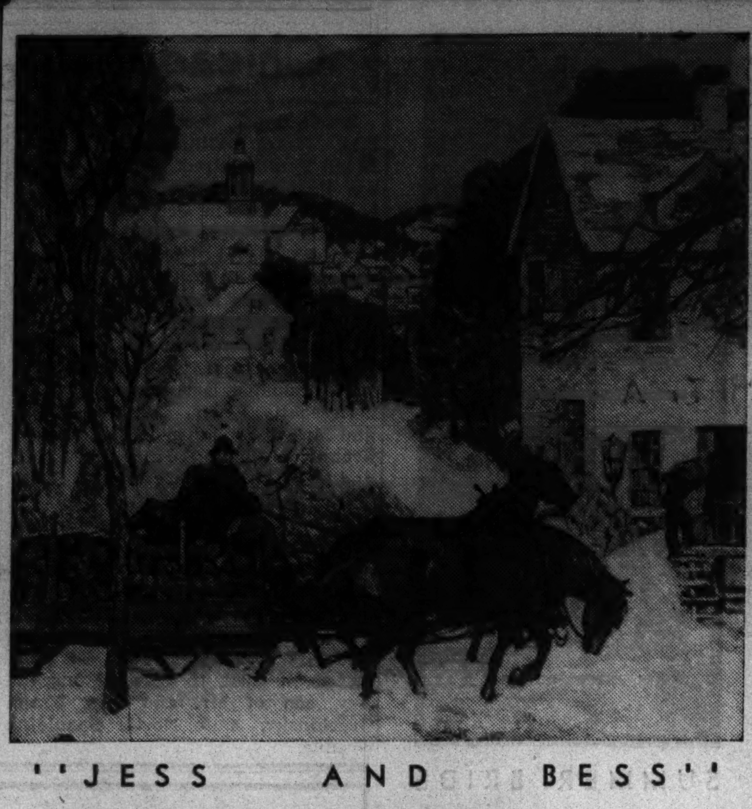
Lithography, invented at the end of the 18th century, was also employed effectively by these artists. George Campion's lithographs after James Pollard of the Devonport and the Louth Mail are almost blood curdling accounts of the incidents in the historic snowstorm of December, 1836.

The story behind the pottery of the American southwest is graphically told by a new exhibit unique in type which was added in July to the Hall of Southwestern Archæology at the Field Museum of Natural History. The exhibit contains selected specimens of varied pottery types of prehistoric peoples; their development and relationships are traced through various phases toward their ultimate flowering in the types characteristic of such modern Indian tribes as the Hopi, Acoma, Zuni, Pima, and Papago.

The pieces of pottery are arranged on horizontal date lines indicating the chronology of various types within the range from A. D. 500 to A. D. 1700. Concurrently the pieces are arranged on vertical lines so labeled as to indicate the different family or culture branches. The final refinement of pottery making lies in the addition of painted decorations and the exhibit mainly concerns itself with the changes and developments in design motifs. The two great prehistoric peoples represented art the Hohokam and the Basket Maker Pueblo Indians.

Dr. Paul S. Martin, chief curator of anthropology of the Field Museum of Natural History, supervised the preparation of the exhibit.

Faber Birren, one of our most important American colorists, is conducting a course on "Color" at Boothbay studios, Boothbay Harbor, Me., this summer. His interesting activity this past spring was to work with the staff of Walt Disney in the application of psychological principles of color to moving picture production.



''JESS AND BESS''

From the memorial exhibition of paintings by Carl R. Krafft, current at the Art institute to Oct. 29. Mr. Krafft was famous for his winter pictures; this is one of his finest.

Harbor Point a Perfect Place for Small Fry

HARBOR POINT, MICH.

"There is no place on earth as perfect for children as Harbor Point" has been said many times and with good reason. Perhaps the biggest reason for that statement is the total absence of the automobile hazard. Preserving the charm of its early days, the Point is serviced by carriages, wagons, and a reliable old water taxi.

Even the harbor itself has its own form of natural protection for wouldbe swimmers and sailors. There is a definite line between the cobalt blue of deep water and the clear transparency of the shallow water. It forms an invisible barrier beyond which small fry and novices are forbidden to go.

On the other hand, mothers have the joy of supervised play for their young. Under the guidance of an experienced athletic director, competition in tennis, baseball, and swimming has been flourishing all summer and will draw to a close some time around Labor day, at which time prizes are to be given to the ablest.

• • •

Last Monday night at the Little Harbor club the youngest of the younger generation participated in one of the club's best entertainments, a masquerade of all nations. Arabs, Russians, Tyroleans, and Indians circled around the lounge in the grand march. In a line three deep around the wall parents and nurses watched.

Little Diane Curtis, Mrs. Robert M. Curtis' daughter, was a picturesque court lady in voluminous black velvet. Mrs. L. Edward Hart Jr., who has the reputation of being the executor of the cleverest ideas for her two daughters' costumes, dressed her elder, Jeanette, as an East Indian princess in a lovely aquamarine blue sari and tucked a vivid pink flower into her hair. Mrs. Hart's younger daughter, Daphne, won a prize for wearing the most original costume. She was dressed as a rhumba dancer, with hundreds of green ruffles on her skirt and a yellow 'kerchief tied around her crimson curls.

Tomi Hamilton, the Howard V. O'Briens' small granddaughter, was too young to go to the costume party, so her mother, Mrs. Fred P. Hamilton Jr., the former Jean O'Brien, gave her an ice cream and cake party last Wednesday.

Up on the bluff behind Harbor Springs the Harbor Point Country club is humming with renewed activity. Richard Reinsma, the new professional, has announced a series of interesting weekly tournaments. The first of these were held last week, a handicap flag tournament and a putting contest. Yesterday the second club party was held with a blind bogey as the main attraction. Late in the afternoon there were contests in driving and approach shots.

Guests from Chicago and the suburbs are visiting in many of the Harbor Point cottages. In cottage thirty-one, that of Miss Margaret Pogue Fisk of Cincinnati, are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Mittlebusher and their young son, Ned Jr., of Wilmette. Miss Fisk's sister, Mrs. Edwin Francis Walker of Hinsdale, spent last week there.

Richard M. Lamport drove up for the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. E. Cummings Parker. Mrs. Parker is planning to remain for a week's visit with Mrs. Lamport and her mother, Mrs. Leroy Kramer. Mrs. Kramer's younger son, Henry, returned from a tour abroad with the Yale Glee club last week and drove up with his parents to spend the remainder of the summer.

• • •

At the Wequetonsing hotel are Mrs. Fred B. Smith, Mrs. John G. Jenks, Mrs. George Meeker, Mrs. Horace W. Armstrong, and her daughter, Miss Mary Armstrong. Mr. and Mrs. Alden H. Little are spending the remainder of the summer at the Roaring Brook inn.

Mrs. Charles C. Fitzmorris and her daughter, Mrs. John Brittingham, are arriving soon to take a cottage on Harbor Point for the month of August. Visiting at the Harbor Point clubhouse is W. O. Wells of Evanston.

The clubhouse reports that its buffet suppers are much better attended this year than last. This popularity is understandable, from one look at the truly "groaning board" laid by the club, festive with magnificent examples of the caterer's art.

JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Eugene LeRoy Todd was formerly Miss Charlotte Bermingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Bermingham of River Forest, and a niece of Federal Judge Otto Kerner. Her marriage to Mr. Todd took place in June at St. Luke's church, in River Forest.

Present Crisis Sobers France in Celebration

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.

Nothing is more curious than the present reactions in France to the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the French revolution. The fact that the world now is in revolution, and that its manifestations are so various, has sobered down the widespread enthusiasm that used to be felt here for what so many Frenchmen regarded as almost the real start of their history. It will be remembered that the early champions of the revolution were persuaded, after the movement had been under way only a few weeks, that the promised reforms would soon be an accomplished fact, and that the nation, with better institutions and a new spirit, would soon be on the way to a new era.

Well, every one knows what happened to those fair prospects. But the impenitent idealists, for generations, drew the sponge over the horrors, and dwelt only on certain reforms that had been effected. Clemenceau, in a phrase that became famous, declared many years ago that the French revolution was a bloc—that is: that it must be accepted as a whole—and that the bad part of it was necessary to the realizing of the good in it. In other words, that it was inevitable, taken as a whole.

But even the so-called liberals of today scarcely go that far. Champions of the revolution, such as Edouard Herriot, now recognize that the good might have been made to triumph if its leaders had refused to concede too much to the relentless levelers. Another well known publicist in France recently attracted attention by speaking of two revolutions, the beneficent one of the early days, and the terrible one of a few years later. Many are the heart-searchings, at the moment, to find the formula which will permit a democracy to enjoy liberty and, at the same time, to avoid those civil commotions that weaken the state and lead it almost over the brink at critical times. In February, 1889, on the eve of the first centenary celebration of the revolution, Renan said to the French academy:

"If, in ten or twenty years, France is forever in a state of crisis, weakened in its foreign policy, given over, at home, to the threats of sects and the enterprises of demagogs, then it must be said that our artistic ways of action have led us to commit a political mistake, and that those bold innovators, toward whom we are so indulgent, were utterly in the wrong. The revolution, in that case, would be submerged for more than a hundred years. In war, a leader who always is beaten cannot be a great captain; and in politics, a formula or principle which, in a hundred years, exhausts a nation, cannot be the right formula."

Ernest Pooles Give a Party at Sugar Hill

WHITE MTS., N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole of the Sugar Hill colony have a house party which includes her sister, the former Katharine Winterbotham, now Princess Jehan Seedosia-Warliker of India and Prince Seedosia-Warliker. Mr. and Mrs. William A. Poole, Nicholas V. Poole, and Miss Bette Poole of New York also are with them this month.

The Pooles were among those attending an evening garden party and buffet supper last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Richard W. Neff, Applefield, Franconia. Members of the White Mountain Garden club and their families and friends were invited. The evening brought a special treat in an address by Alexander Woollcott of New York, who spoke upon his experiences and colorful life in a charming manner.

Last night Mrs. Poole, Mrs. John F. O'Brien, and Mrs. Lowell R. Burch gave a dinner party at Peckett's on Sugar Hill for members of the younger set of Sugar Hill, Littleton, and Franconia. After the dinner Mrs. Poole opened the playhouse of her mother, the late Mrs. John R. Winterbotham of Chicago, for a subscription dance for the benefit of a popular local charity.

Among those present were Mrs. John G. M. Glessner, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Edge, Mr. and Mrs. René Mathey of Paris, who are at the Rocks, Littleton, with Mrs. Glessner and Miss Emily Forsythe Glessner, all of Chicago. Nicky Poole was host last Saturday to a party of twenty young people, including the Edges, at the Moon room, Mount Washington hotel, Brettonwoods, the only night club in the White mountains. Tea and supper dances there are popular with visitors at all the neighboring resorts.

Miss Emily Glessner will be a patroness for the three performances to be given later in August by the Yale Puppeteers, who have an entirely new puppet show for their revue, "It's a Small World." The puppets will be shown at Franconia.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin McK. Tennant of Chicago, who are spending the summer at Peckett's on Sugar Hill, gave a cocktail party recently.

A prominent mountain climber at Inn Unique, Notchland, where he is an annual visitor, is James Flitt of Glenn Ellyn and Chicago. Mr. Flitt is negotiating some of the Appalachian Mountain club trails in the vicinity.

Mrs. Hopkins Dodge and Mrs. W. P. Hammatt of Chicago arrived this week at the Crawford house, Crawford Notch.

Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr. of Chicago has arrived at Whitefield to spend the remainder of the season at the Mountain View house.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Miller will join the Chicago colony at the Mountain View on Aug. 18.

Announce Betrothal of Elaine Claire Brooks

The engagement of Miss Elaine Claire Brooks to Victor Woolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Woolf of 5330 Blackstone avenue, is announced by her mother, Mrs. Henry R. Brooks of 5120 Kenwood avenue. Miss Brooks is a graduate of the Starrett School for Girls. Mr. Woolf attended the University of Illinois.

Green Summer Drinks.

Since green is such a refreshing color, try tinting your rather colorless summer beverages a light green. Or use green colored water for making the ice cubes.

Outings Having Major Role in Club Circles

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman.

Outings take first place on the club calendar this week. Two of these are particularly interesting because they will combine with gay relaxation a serious purpose: To give members of two large philanthropic enterprises a clearer view of their organization's activities.

Tomorrow the Protestant Woman's Protectorate will picnic and spend the afternoon at the Berger Methodist camp at 147th street, near Dolton.

The women's division of the Salvation Army will go to Antioch, Ill., Friday to visit the Army's Wonderland camp, where each summer some 1,600 mothers and children from the city's crowded neighborhoods enjoy vacations. The 4,000 women who took part in last spring's Doughnut day to raise funds for the army are especially invited.

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, president of the protectorate, has invited her board members and others interested to bring picnic luncheons to her cottage on the camp ground at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow. Mrs. Waterman will serve coffee and afterward there will be a program in the tabernacle.

• • •

A skit written by Mrs. Lloyd Hoover, dramatizing the work of the protectorate, will be presented, and Miss Mary Bell Mainland, superintendent of the organization, further will describe its activities. Mr. Hoover, pastor of Christ Methodist Episcopal church, will open the program with devotions. Mrs. Henry Gross will sing and will lead community singing.

At the suggestion of the Travelers' Aid, the Protestant Woman's Protectorate was founded in 1917 by the woman's department of the Chicago Church federation. Fifty women representing the major Protestant denominations constitute its board.

The protectorate helps unattached women and girls to achieve spiritual, economic, and social well-being. Two departments, a free employment service and a case work department, provide assistance ranging from friendly advice to legal, financial, and medical aid.

Mrs. Henry Paschen.

Since the woman's division of the Salvation Army was formed in 1925 members have taken a particular interest in the camp as an army institution maintained for the benefit of women and children.

Visitors on Friday will inspect the camp kitchens, the swimming pool, and the playgrounds of the 75 acre wooded tract on the shore of Camp lake. They will bring their own picnic lunches and the women's division will serve coffee and doughnuts.

Mrs. Henry Paschen, who was chairman of Doughnut day, will be hostess, with other board members assisting. Mrs. William S. Monroe heads the division.

• • •

Beginning the Wednesday following the Fourth of July, mothers and children, aided by the various divisions of the Salvation Army, are sent to the camp. Two hundred come at a time and remain at least a week. Older children are quartered in cottages, with a counselor in charge of each group of fifteen or twenty. Small children share the same quarters with their mothers, but are cared for in a nursery during the day to free their mothers from responsibility.

During a part of each day the children prepare for a program to be given at the close of each camp period. At this time the children receive awards for the progress they have made in campcraft.

When Chicago Was Young:

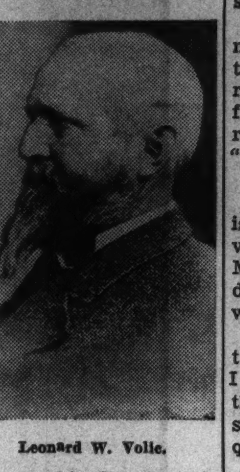
By Herma Clark

Campaign Against Nudity in Art Is Recalled.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, March 24, 1891.

Dear Julia: Is there much discussion in New York about the Nude in Art? It is the chief topic of conversation here in Chicago. Perhaps you may have read that Detroit's Art association was petitioned to drape its plaster casts. Then Omaha was in the spotlight when a visitor to an art exhibit out there ran his fist through a Bougereau valued at ten thousand dollars, claiming that he was destroying an immoral work. Now Philadelphia is concerned about the nude paintings in its gallery. Did you see that news item telling of the address made by five hundred women, who declared themselves outraged by certain pictures admitted to a recent art exhibit?



Leonard W. Volk.

"It is the general sentiment," the address read, "that never before in Philadelphia has modesty been so ruthlessly assailed. As Christian women, as modest women, we feel this to be an offense to womanhood, an attack on the delicacy of our daughters and the morality of our sons." Kenyon Cox, Alexander Harrison, and Will H. Low are three well known artists on the list condemned by the Philadelphia ladies. I have always thought Kenyon Cox particularly good, and Will Low has been considered a delicate and pure artist, so I'm surprised to see their names among those assailed.

Our Chicago artists have been interviewed on the subject of nudity and Leonard W. Volk, one of our fine sculptors, said this: "The form divine, made by the Creator, was nude, made of clay, without a scrap of artificial clothing. Suppose an artist should represent Father Adam in modern fashionable clothes, a 'tile' on his head, swallow tail or Prince Albert coat, standing collar, and the abominable conventional stovepipe pantaloons. And Eve, our revered and honored mother, dressed in the fashionable, gaudy colored dress of the present day, or almost any former period . . . Gainsborough hat, 'Mother Hubbard' gown, bustle, wasp waist, hoop skirt. What would be thought of such an artist?"

He added that Venuses, bacchanales, certain nymphs and the like, whose reputation for chastity is not above suspicion, should not be encouraged as subjects for copying by students and artists.

I am glad he said that. I have never thought much about the matter, but I like my nudes to be the right kind of people. Will, making fun of the Philadelphia ladies, rhymes:

"I ain't what you would call a prude,
But I don't like my statews nude."

Frederick W. Freer, Chicago artist, is sarcastic in his comments, but not very clear and helpful. Mr. William M. R. French, director of our wonderful Art institute, said the best words on the subject:

"Dress appears to me almost entirely a matter of social convention. I cannot think popular discussions of the nude in art are profitable. The spirit of the work of art is the real question."

We are so glad you can come out to be godmother to the new baby which will soon present itself in the home of Sandy and Martha. It will be within a fortnight now, probably. I shall telegraph you at once.

Your loving,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

Kenyon Cox, American artist [1856-1919] is best known for his murals, which may be seen in the library of congress in Washington and in various state capitols and other public buildings.

The Wesley Table.

A request for information about the table used by John Wesley and exhibited at the centennial of Methodism in Chicago in 1891, has brought the following to us:

"The little Wesley table is standing near me, as I write. It was loaned for the Wesley centennial in 1891 by my aunt, Miss Hannah Boot [not Root] and left with us by her when she died ten years ago. My grandmother brought it from England. She had known its history and when the Elliott family put it up for sale, she bought it. Later she took it to Canada, then to Muscatine county, Iowa, in 1866. Aunt Hannah took charge of it after my grandmother's death. It traveled with her to Chicago, then to South Dakota, and finally to Iowa City.

"It is, I might add, not walnut, but English oak, rather crudely made by one of the Elliott family especially for Wesley, when he held meetings in private houses. Its folding top enabled the owned to set it away and keep it solely for Wesley's use when he preached in that house."

ESTELLE M. BOOT,

Mrs. E. L. Fowler, 7209 Harrison avenue, has a piece of the curtain from Wesley's bed.

Charles R. Barrett, veteran Chicago educator, sends in this Eugene Field story, new to us:

"When the Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus was convalescing from a severe illness, Eugene Field wrote him the following letter:

"'Dear Gunsaulus: You have been very sick and I've been playing for you, and God knows that when I get down on these wicked knees of mine, I mean business.'"

Clubs to Give Awards at the C.M.T.C. Camp

Mrs. William F. Conlon.

Three patriotic women's organizations will present awards to outstanding trainees at the final ceremony and review of the Citizens' Military Training camp of the 6th corps area Tuesday morning at Fort Sheridan. Picked men among the "blues," or senior four year men, will conduct the review in place of regular officers.

The Illinois department of the American Legion auxiliary will present four medals, a gold, a silver, and two bronze. The Illinois society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will present a sabre through Miss Helen McMackin, state regent. Miss Eleanor L. Meyer of Chicago, president of the Illinois department of the Daughters of Union Veterans, will present a gold medal on behalf of her organization.

The North Shore chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at Highland Park, also will present a medal. The Wisconsin department of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Civilians' Military Education Fund of Washington, D. C., the National Patriotic council, also of Washington, and American Legion posts Nos. 478 and 678 are other organizations which will make awards.

Mrs. William F. Conlon of Chicago has been appointed chairman of the committee on national defense through patriotic education of the fourth division, Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution. This division includes twenty-nine chapters in the Chicago area. Speakers will discuss problems of internal and external national defense at monthly meetings of this committee, beginning in November, at Carson Pirie Scott & Co.'s tearoom.

Helen Hunt Grove and Peter Alyea Wed July 15

Dr. and Mrs. James Morgan Grove of 1447 Foster avenue announce the marriage on July 15 of their daughter Helen Hunt to Peter Alyea, son of Dr. and Mrs. Abram Alyea of Center Junction, Ia. The ceremony was performed in the chapel of St. Luke's cathedral in Evanston. Both Mr. Alyea and his bride are recent graduates of the Iowa State college at Ames. They will make their home in Chicago.

Federation Is to Celebrate Golden Jubilee

By Betty Browning.

What have clubwomen achieved in the last fifty years? What can they accomplish in the future? The General Federation of Women's clubs, one of the world's largest organizations, will seek answers to those questions during the next two years.

Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin.

In 1868, in New York, the Sorosis club was incorporated. It was proposed that the members should devote their attention to "matters connected with public education, reformatory schools, hygienic, sanitary reform, female labor, the department of domestic economy, dishonesty in public office, and similar things."

At first even the members recoiled from such a revolutionary course of action. The "kitchen-children-church" of the oft-quoted German epigram still marked the boundaries of women's interests. But on further consideration the members decided to model their program on the daring proposition, after all.

• • •

Because they held their stand despite opposition and criticism on every side, the Sorosis club is remembered as the first woman's club in the modern sense.

This year and next the General Federation of Women's Clubs frequently will have occasion to look backward to that group of courageous pioneers. In 1940 and 1941 the 50th anniversary of the federation's founding will be observed throughout its vast membership of more than 2,000,000, representing every state in the union and a score of foreign countries.

The General Federation was organized in 1890, only 22 years after the Sorosis club was formed. Within two decades the concept of a woman's club as an agency for active citizenship had spread across the country. When a few leaders, Julia Ward Howe among them, issued a call to an organization meeting in New York, 63 delegates from 17 states responded.

"Unity in Diversity" was the motto adopted by the delegates. The federation still uses it. As Mrs. Ella Clymer Dietz, one of the founders, explained it 50 years ago: "We look for unity, but unity in diversity. We hope that you will enrich us by your varied experiences, and let us pledge ourselves to work for a common cause, the cause of womanhood throughout the world."

Mrs. George A. Harriman.

Humanitarian objectives, especially those involving women and children, continue to preoccupy the Federation today. "Adjusting Democracy for Human Welfare" is the present administration's way of expressing these objectives.

• • •

It is interesting to note how the federation's present activities have evolved from those first recommendations to the Sorosis club in 1868:

"Matters connected with public education, reformatory schools" fall now in the departments of education, legislation and child welfare. "Hygienics" and "sanitary reform" are embodied in the present public welfare department. "Female labor" would come under the department of legislation. "The department of domestic economy" probably would include today's American home and art departments. "Dishonesty in public office" would be the concern of the legislation, civil service and law enforcement departments.

Leaders in charge of the golden jubilee celebration are eager to emphasize the continuity between today's work and that of the pioneers. They plan to accord recognition to the past and present accomplishments of women in order to inspire this generation of women, and particularly the oncoming generation, to further achievements.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst of Baltimore, Md., first vice president of the federation, is general chairman of the jubilee.

"Acquainting the world with the struggles of our predecessors in their efforts to develop women and to establish woman's position in this country," Mrs. Whitehurst has announced as one purpose of the jubilee. Its corollary will be "to make our women cognizant of the necessity for continued effort to preserve and improve this position."

All plans for publicizing the golden jubilee are in the hands of Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin of Elgin, Ill., the General Federation's press and publicity chairman. Close coöperation with local newspapers on plans for jubilee programs, pageants, and other activities is one of her suggestions.

In order to encourage press chairmen, Mrs. Lufkin has arranged a jubilee scrap book contest, with a prize of $15 for the best state scrapbook, a prize of $10 for the best district book, and a $5 prize for the best club book.

Mrs. George A. Harriman of Chicago, state press and publicity chairman, will have charge of publicity for the jubilee in Illinois. Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will be general chairman for the state, with her three vice presidents, Mrs. Fred M. Tuckerman, Mrs. S. A. McKelvey, and Mrs. Delia Miller, assisting.

Mrs. Truman F. Creager, former vice president, will be secretary. Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, General Federation director from Illinois, will be chairman of birthday parties.

In the last few weeks prominent club leaders have been appointed to head various Illinois committees. Already these chairmen are busy with plans which will materialize after the opening of the club season in the autumn.

Mrs. W. M. Rennie of Chicago is in charge of birthday dinners; Mrs. A. H. Johnson of Chicago, of club extension; Mrs. F. A. Frankenfield of Chicago, of department chairmen; Mrs. John T. Mason of Aurora, of federation leaders; Mrs. E. G. C. Williams of Danville, of flower contests; Mrs. S. A. McKelvey of Sparta, of foreign clubs; Mrs. Grant Houston of Joliet, of historical brochures; Mrs. Albion Headburg of Chicago, of honored guests.

• • •

Mrs. C. R. Challen of Chicago will be chairman of hospitality; Mrs. Alfred L. Jacobs of Oak Park, of junior participation; Mrs. Richard M. McClure of Chicago, of motion pictures; Mrs. George Stevenson of Harvey, of national organizations; Mrs. Fred W. Waterman of Chicago, of pageants, songs and march contests; Mrs. Roy A. Winser of Chicago and Mrs. T. B. Robison of Pesotum, of radio; Mrs. Albert J. Pohlman of Oak Park, of speakers' bureau; Mrs. S. F. Mirabella of Chicago, of state and foreign flags.

Events celebrating the achievements of pioneer clubs and members will be in the hands of a committee of former Illinois Federation presidents. Mrs. William Hart of Benton will be chairman, with Mrs. Clarence G. Goodwin, Mrs. Walter W. Seymour, Mrs. J. Marc Fowler, and Mrs. William F. Farrell, all of Chicago; Miss Jessie I. Spafford of Rockford, Mrs. George Thomas Palmer of Springfield, Mrs. Francis D. Everett of Highland Park, and Mrs. Mary A. Wall of Murphysboro also serving.

WILL BE WED AUG. 13

Lake Geneva's Two Day Flower Show This Week

One of the most popular flower shows of the summer will be held next Friday and Saturday at Horticulture hall in Lake Geneva, Wis. Sponsored by the Lake Geneva Garden club, this annual two day event attracts many summer visitors.

Two new features of the coming show are miniature bouquets and flower arrangements before a screen. Mrs. William F. Petersen is in charge of the new decorative scheme with the screen background. Mrs. Charles Frank and Mrs. Ernest Redeker will supervise the placing of the miniatures. Each member of the club has promised to assemble one of these tiny nosegays.

One of the most discussed divisions of the show is the table setting display in which a number of tables are decorated according to the tastes of some of Lake Geneva's noted hostesses. Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne is in charge of this display, with Mrs. Henry H. Porter as chairman of the companion display, breakfast trays.

Mrs. Perry Ellwood heads a staff that will man the garden accessories booth. Among her assistants will be Mrs. Isaac L. Ellwood, Mrs. Philip A. Starck, Mrs. John R. Reilly, Mrs. Joseph Towle, and Mrs. William MacDonald. Mrs. Earle Zimmerman is in charge of serving tea both afternoons in the charming patio of the hall. Assisting as hostesses will be Mrs. Harry MacDonald, Mrs. C. Gromnes Rehm, and Mrs. Armin Brand.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay will have important functions to perform as always with Mr. Bartholomay serving as treasurer and his wife in charge of tickets and premiums. The Bartholomays are among the oldest members of the club, having come into it from that older and even more famous organization, the Lake Geneva Mid Summer Fair association, whose $10,000 benefits for Holiday home are talked about with awe around the lake.

Stories are told of the fair in 1905, held on the Levi Z. Leiter estate grounds, when $250 was paid by Otto Young for two prize winning bunches of black Hamburg grapes from the Richard T. Crane greenhouse grapery. A tray of fruit from the Simon B. Chapin garden, also prize winners, was purchased by Mr. Crane for $205.

• • •

The food sale in the current show will be superintended by Mrs. Charles S. Peace, Mrs. Frederick Clifford, and Mrs. Philip T. Starck. Mrs. E. N. McDonnell, Mrs. Edward W. White, and Mrs. Allan Lovejoy will be in charge of the fruit displays, and Mrs. Austin Pope, Mrs. A. D. Edwards, Mrs. Alfred W. Craven, Mrs. Louis Schultz, and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti will take charge of the vegetable exhibits.

Another special flower arrangement class using twin containers will be under the jurisdiction of Mrs. Albert F. Madlener. That important part of the show, even though it comes as an anti-climax, the sale of cut flowers after the affair, will be in the hands of Mrs. Harry Wells and Mrs. Frank Porter.

The arrangements and decorations of the main hall will be left to Mrs. Robert Tarrant and George Morse, director of Wychwood. They will be assisted by Miss Edith Kohlsaat, president of the club.

Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley is the general chairman.

Polo enthusiasts will find their way to the Oak Brook Polo club at 4 o'clock this afternoon for a game between the Rising Sun Ranch, captained by Paul Butler, and the Twin Cities Polo club of Minneapolis and St. Paul. There are games every Sunday at the club, near Hinsdale.

The finals of the annual tennis tournament of the Alumnæ of the Sacred Heart of Chicago and Lake Forest will be held today on the convent courts at 6250 Sheridan road. Tea will be served following the presentation of prizes.

Horse racing enthusiasts are to be found every afternoon but Sunday at Washington Park. When the season closed at Arlington Park, attention turned southwards to the track near Homewood, which will be open through Sept. 2.

AT HOME IN SOUTH BEND

Mrs. Robert C. Barr is the former Miss Judith Cunningham, daughter of Robert M. Cunningham of 1321 East 65th street. Her marriage to the son of the Roy E. Barrs took place on June 12 in St. Paul's Episcopal church. Mr. Barr and his bride are at home in South Bend, Ind.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

Ephraim Yacht Club Regatta Is a Popular Event

EPHRAIM, WIS.

The thirty-third annual Ephraim Yacht club regatta captured more than usual attention last Tuesday from both yachtsmen and spectators. Even mother nature proved generous with her gifts, adding a brisk breeze and brilliant sunshine to the matchless Eagle harbor setting. Workmen and yacht club officials coöperated to complete the new pier in time for the event.

The new clubhouse also was officially opened on Tuesday, although additional features will be installed as the summer progresses in accordance with the design planned by Edward M. Tourtelot, young architect of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Tourtelot are spending August in the cottage occupied by the David Corkran family of Winnetka during July. A double-deck porch overlooking the water provides ample lounging space for the "rocking chair fleet," who are being encouraged to enjoy the recreational opportunities offered by the club even though they are not boat owners.

Of the more than thirty-five sail boats which participated in the various races during the day, Hi-Ho, owned and sailed by 12 year old Charles Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Butler of Madison and Ephraim, with Harold Conrad of Chicago aboard, took highest honors by finishing first in the morning race for the Henry S. Vail cup.

Charles further distinguished himself when, during the afternoon, he and Bob Davis, son of Commodore and Mrs. Warren T. Davis of Chicago and Ephraim, representing the Ephraim Yacht club, won all three laps of the Sea Gull race in competition with crews from the Marinette-Menominee and Escanaba clubs for the championship of Green Bay waters.

The memory of the striking beauty of the seventeen larger cruising sail yachts covering the three mile course during the late afternoon race will linger long in the minds of the throng of spectators. Of those which were among the first to cross the finish line were the Revenge, owned and sailed by Blair Walliser of the Chicago and Ephraim Yacht clubs, and the Flight, owned and sailed by Commodore Davis, Robert Stafford, and Elmer Wolford of Glencoe. However, with corrected time, the Jibuge, belonging to Dr. Boren of Marinette, was given first place; the Stephia, owned by H. Eldred Stephenson of Milwaukee and Fish Creek placed second, and the Oslo, owned by John Mitchell Jr. of Escanaba placed third.

The Revenge stopped over at Ephraim for several days on her return from the Chicago to Mackinac Island race last week. A number of the other sailing yachts continued on to Marinette-Menominee Wednesday to complete the final leg of the annual 100 mile race in Green bay waters, sponsored each year by the Escanaba, Marinette-Menominee, and Ephraim Yacht clubs.

Swimming and diving events for the regatta were in charge of Francis Albers of the Adventure Island boys' camp, assisted by Clyde Scanley of Milwaukee and Walker Field of Chicago. The latter is spending the season in Ephraim with his mother, Mrs. James Walker Field. Mrs. George Apfelbach of Chicago and Fish Creek; Charles Ball of Winnetka and Ephraim; Jean Sollitt of Winnetka and Ellison Bay, and Ellamae Wall of Evanston and Ephraim were among the winners in this competition.

Enthusiastic gardeners throughout the peninsula are planning exhibits to be entered in the Peninsula Arts flower show being planned for Aug. 21 in the association's headquarters at the Ephraim village hall. Under the leadership of Mrs. William J. Wilson of Western Springs, a pilgrimage was made on Friday to representative gardens in Ephraim, Fish Creek, and Egg Harbor, giving many summer visitors an opportunity to view a variety of midsummer flowers at the height of their blooming season.

The association members and their guests have been invited to attend a recital at the Ludolph Arens music colony at Idlewild, near Sturgeon Bay, on Aug. 15.

• • •

Beginning tomorrow and continuing through the month of August, Miss Martha Hachmeister, who has studied art at the Chicago Art Institute and the Evanston School of Fine Arts, will conduct a series of free art classes for children at the Ephraim village hall, under the sponsorship of the Peninsula Arts association.

Mrs. John Matter is opening the Matter home, Twin Pines, each Wednesday morning for a series of play readings. Most of them will be given by Mrs. Helen Roesing of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Matter recently had Mr. and Mrs. Graham Patterson of Ardmore, Pa., former Evanstonians as their guests for dinner and the play, "Dr. Knock," the current Peninsula Players' production at the Theater in a Garden. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson have been visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. Thomas Lord, at Deep Woods.

AN AMERICAN SHRINE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—To the Travel Editor: Riding the hairpin turns of the road up Cheyenne mountain in Colorado, one can see the Will Rogers Memorial shrine at most every turn.

On a tour of the west, nothing impressed me quite so much as standing on the top of this memorial and looking across at Pike's peak, with the sun going down behind it. I turned slightly and gazed at the city below, then up to the top of the mountain, 9,300 feet high. All this time the beautiful carillon played "Going Home," a perfect salutation to the memory of this man.

I am enclosing a picture of this shrine. Perhaps you could use it in your "Voice of the Traveler" column, which I have found very interesting.

MISS L. M. HOLLEY.

WESTWARD FROM CHICAGO.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—To the Travel Editor: "Autumn in the hills of South Dakota!" Like reveille these words resounded in ears that had been "dormant" for many months. We were numb and dull and weary of the chaotic city. So, after making some rapid fire decisions, we packed a few things in our bags, added a couple of blankets to keep our clothes from rattling around too much, and were off on a new adventure.

Driving from Chicago, we first crossed the bad lands, an interesting region of multi-colored low hills where erosion has carved the soft rock into intricate and fantastic forms. Vegetation here is scant. Only an occasional stunted and puny tree struggles for life in this huge graveyard of prehistoric animal life. We were amused that Mother Nature [being a woman and enjoying the privilege of indulging in whimsicalities] would set down this barren, desolated land next door to the verdant hills.

If you plan on this trip and travel the road between the bad lands and Rapid City in the late afternoon on a clear day, watch the sunset. The sun's rays will shoot through the dry, clear air like blazing embers. No fence or farm will break the horizon as you watch the sky. Slowly then, as darkness gathers and great clouds of dust roll up behind you like the lonely ghosts of covered wagon trains that have passed this way a century before, your glorious sunset will fade and be lost behind the hills. Singularly consuming will be the solitude of these vast spaces as you realize that here at last you are "out where the west begins."

We spent one day and night at a dude ranch. Being typical Americans, it just didn't seem quite ethical for us to pass that up. That evening for dinner we were introduced to "cabob," a combination of veal and bacon roasted in an open fire. Like all tenderfeet, we had one nearly raw and another almost burned to a cinder before we learned the knack of roasting them just right. We were fascinated by the bunkhouse. There was no lock on the door, but only a latch, and log fires impudently sputtering in the open fireplaces extended wordless invitations of peace and rest to saddle-weary amateurs whose enthusiasm exceeds their good judgment.

The next afternoon we left the ranch and followed the winding road, narrow and tortuous and covered with red dust, to the highway. Here we turned toward the afternoon sun and Spearfish canyon. The sun was lowering as we entered the canyon, its reflection touching off the rim high above us with a flaming glory. It was magnificent, standing there in the darkness and looking up to see a silhouette of the forest against a background of blazing splendor. The shadows thickened rapidly as we drove along, and we regretted we had not arrived a few hours earlier. Our consolation lay, however, in the knowledge that most tourists, traveling by day, had not experienced the thrill of looking up at these great black walls to watch night press down like a heavy blanket.

After touring through Custer State park the following day, we circled downward on several pigtail bridges. The road narrowed to a one-way drive through a silver birch forest. The white, winding road and the slim, white trees with their showers of golden leaves precipitated a mad scramble for the camera. These pictures, taken on a bright afternoon in early October, are prized above all others.

Even our various distant views of Mount Rushmore did not prepare us for the awe that filled us when we stood at its base and realized the greatness of what is being accomplished there. We were fortunate in that they were blasting on the day of our visit. As the sound of rock tumbling down the mountainside reverberated through the hills we felt "like this then, were the rumbling peals of thunder as the dwarfs played at ninepins in the Catskills."

Several days later the outline of the hills had dimmed behind us, when, as if fate wanted our exodus to be accompanied by a last appropriate bit of excitement, we came upon a roundup. With arms and legs flapping frantically and with blood curdling yells, a dozen cowhands bullied these cattle into moving along. We followed them for miles, thoroughly enjoying their violent gestures and wild maneuvering.

In summarizing the practical side of our trip, we found we had covered 2,435 miles. The roads were exceptionally good. Our meals were excellent and not too expensive, which brings to mind a charmingly hospitable habit of the restaurateurs of Rapid City. While waiting for your meal you are offered a copy of the daily paper, a refreshing token of goodwill in this day of brusque manners.

Except for our short stay at the ranch, we spent our nights in private homes with rooms for tourists, a satisfactory arrangement and an economical one. We spent $112.50, including the expense of running the car, meals, and lodging for two, films and incidentals, for which we received an inestimable amount of fun, improved health, education, and, most important of all, we had ten days constituting a complete change of thought, interest, and environment.

Nature Lovers to See Conservation Work in the Field

MINONG, Wis.—Wisconsin is inviting nature lovers to see how wild life conservation operates in the field. The state conservation department, in coöperation with the Indian Head association, will conduct tours through Washburn, Douglas, and Burnett counties in northwestern Wisconsin on Aug. 11 and Aug. 25.

Following demonstration of forest fire fighting apparatus at Minong, the tour will visit the Gordon state forest nursery, the state forestry camp near Gordon, the Gordon Ranger station lookout tower, and the Nancy lake flowage and diversion dam.

The group then will proceed to the Lampson lookout tower, the Spring-Brook county forest, Gillette pond, and the fish hatchery at Spooner.

Personnel of the conservation department are to accompany the visitors and explain the operations in forestry and fish propagation.

You'll never Forget the summer nights in WISCONSIN

When you think of a vacation in Wisconsin, you may think most of glorious summer days, of lakes twinkling in the sun, of daytime sports and pleasures. But no small part of the appeal that makes Wisconsin the nation's favorite vacation state is in the thrilling beauty of summer nights.

It is as impossible to describe as it is to forget the moonlit grandeur of forest rimmed lakes ... silhouette of trees on the shore ... the moon path inviting your canoe ... the quietness that comes when day is done ... a coolness that frequently suggests sweaters and campfires.

Come to Wisconsin and enjoy a memorable vacation. Take your choice of accommodations, hotel, lakeside resort, cabin or camp. Live as you like. Do as you like. We're sure you'll like Wisconsin.

Moonlight on the Nile Casts a Magic Spell

By Frederic Babcock.

CAIRO, EGYPT.

Cairo, like Venice, is best seen at night. By day, the canals on the Adriatic are faintly reminiscent of open sewers. It is only when the colored lights come on, and the gondoliers start singing, that Venice begins casting its spell over the visitor.

So it is with this city. Some of the things on view in the daytime aren't exactly what you would write home about, but when evening arrives, and the moon and the stars come out, there is enough magic and mystery in the air to give the most hardened traveler a sense of enchantment.

This traveler knows of no other moonlight spectacle that can equal that afforded by the Pyramids of Gizeh and the Sphinx. Awesome when seen at noon, they are overpowering when seen at midnight. The Great Pyramid, 451 feet high and 5,000 years old, is rivalled only by the second one, with its top of alabaster. And close by is the Sphinx, still grinning at you as you try to figure out why it was ever built and why you can't penetrate its veil of secrecy. If the moon isn't right for you to get a full view of the grin, your dragoman will light flares for you and the face will be wreathed in the inscrutable smile that has withstood the elements—and the tourists—for some 4,700 years.

The following day you sign up for a sailboat cruise on the Nile. You embark at sunset, and watch the river turn from gold to silver. You hear a muezzin call the faithful to prayer in a nearby mosque. Dusk settles over the scene; then darkness. There are strange noises of the night. A burro brays. From the shore comes the voice of a small boy, singing an Arabic song in a shrill soprano. You drift. You keep on drifting until you come to the point where, you are told, Pharaoh's daughter found the baby Moses in the bullrushes.

Your one-man crew offers to brew you a cup of Arabic tea. You accept—only to discover that the water for the tea is to be taken from the Nile. You recall that people [some of them not overly clean] have been bathing in the Nile for a good many years. You ask for fresh water, and the crew obliges by going ashore to get it.

Far away, on one side of the river, the illuminated Citadel pierces the darkness like a huge shaft of light. Still farther away, on the other side, the Great Pyramid forms a triangle on the horizon. You sit entranced—so much so that you don't even notice that a stone boat, its mast shooting 50 or 60 feet into the air, is almost upon you.

The boat glides by. You reflect that it is just as primitive as those that carried the stones down the Nile for the Pyramids, and that this method of transportation hasn't changed a bit through the centuries. . . . Egypt is like that.

• • •

On a third evening you take a car and drive westward over hard, undulating sand to Gebel Hamid, a barren hill from which the sky appears so immense, and so close, that you have the feeling of never having seen it before. The air is so clear that the "mountains of the moon" take on the appearance of reality. If the moon is full, and you have brought a newspaper or magazine along, you can read the smallest type without much effort.

Continuing westward, you arrive at the dune camp, lying at the base of frozen tempests of sand. The dunes stretch away for a hundred miles, but they are only a few hundred yards wide. This, you find, is where you are to spend the night. Cots are furnished, but they are not needed. Neither are tents. You can keep warmer by scooping out a hole at the foot of a dune. Guides provide the evening's entertainment, and have breakfast ready for you the following morning.

• • •

On still another evening you go to the Muski or native quarter of Cairo and attempt to solve the mystery that is Egypt. You might as well save your steps. Nobody has ever solved it; probably nobody ever will.

Just what is that mystery? We had read about it for years and we had determined that when we reached this meeting place of the world's races, nations, religions, and civilizations we would find out what it was all about. Now, after five days of searching, we're as greatly baffled as ever. We can't even describe what we hoped to discover or what it is that gives us such a feeling of futility.

So we'll let Mason Warner, writer on travel topics in THE TRIBUNE, do the describing.

• • •

"This mystery is something that exists everywhere in Egypt," says Mr. Warner. "It is found in the desert air, in the moonlight that makes the ancient temples look like palaces of silver, in the smooth blueness of the Nile, in the sunsets of Assuan, in the tawny furnace of the Valley of the Dead, in the smile of the Sphinx, in the slow movement of a string of camels, black against the glowing sky, as they pass across a dune into the silence of the desert.

"A person becomes strangely aware of it the first night he spends in Cairo. Just as dusk falls a drum begins to throb in the native quarter. Its pulsing rhythm is so steady that his curiosity will be aroused, and he will go into the moon-bathed night in search of the throbbing. The path will take him past the broad, tree-lined boulevards, and impressive buildings of the modern section of the city into a maze of smelly, winding streets which rise steeply on flights of uneven steps. On his way, weird, hooded figures will brush past him; brown arms, bare and ringed with bangles, will reach out from cell-like windows; dirty fingers will try to seize his coat, and guttural sounds will come to him out of the dark corners. But the solution to the puzzle is not to be found in that quarter. It is only deepened there.

"Nor can the answer be found at the Pyramids, even though the traveler crosses the Nile and plods through the sands to these huge monuments that were antiquities when Moses was still a young student at the Temple of Heliopolis. But the secret is there, just as it is everywhere along the Nile from Alexandria to Luxor. It comes in the early morning, when the river is like a sheet of pale blue glass; at midday, when there is no sound except the creaking of a waterwheel or the lazy cries of the boatmen; at night, when the sun has set in golden glory and boats with tall sails come silently down the river. Then the moon rises, and some one plays a sad air upon a little flute, and the flute gives forth queer, twisted melodies."

• • •

Only the Sphinx seems to know the answer, and, as travelers have been remarking ever since travel began, the Sphinx refuses to talk.

Nov. 9.

I have been told that Minaki, Ont., is a good place in which to seek relief from hay fever. Is that true? Please give a brief description of the region. —C. G.

The district is free from ragweed and is regarded as an excellent hideout for hay fever victims. Minaki, in the Lake of the Woods region of northwestern Ontario, is a heavily forested country, watered by the Winnipeg river and its tributaries.

I noticed, in the travel pages of Wednesday's Tribune, an article setting forth that $5,170,979,579 was spent by tourists in this country last year. What percentage of this went for transportation, and what for the various other phases of tourism? —C. C. M.

The amounts spent and the percentages were: Transportation, $3,014,948,234, or 58 per cent; recreation, $1,122,228,433, or 22 per cent; food, $496,268,835, or approximately 10 per cent; refreshments, $283,013,372, or about 5 per cent, and accommodations, $254,520,705, or the remaining 5 per cent.

Golf the Game of the Season at Watch Hill

WATCH HILL, R. I.

Watch Hill's women golfers enjoy a keenly contested tournament each year with the adjoining summer colonies of Narragansett and Fishers' Island. Mrs. Louise deKoven Phelps of Chicago, who has been the foremost woman player at Watch Hill's Misquamicut Golf club, captained the team which triumphed over the visiting teams on the home course here Tuesday.

Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former national champion, was the captain of the Narragansetts, and made the lowest medal score of 77. Even so, her team from the Point Judith Country club scored only 24 to Watch Hill's 29½ and Fishers' Island's 27½.

• • •

Mrs. Phelps successfully defended her title as women's champion of the Misquamicut Golf club in the annual tournament which was played last week. Winning the medalist honors with an 83, Mrs. Phelps played against Mrs. Clement A. Griscom III., [Olga Lihme] and defeated her handily 6 and 4. Mrs. Griscom's qualifying score had been a 91.

Mrs. George R. Nichols returned from a visit to Chicago to entertain a party of 24 at the opening of the new Beach club which was the major event of the season thus far. Two hundred and fifty came for dinner and dancing, to the smart new clubhouse which affords Watch Hill better bathing facilities and more conveniences than it has ever had before.

The new club is located farther out on Napatree point than the old one, and there is ample space for play on the sands. Ten cabanas have been built and there is a demand for more. Mrs. Nichols is one of the cabana holders.

The invitation to "come as a song" resulted in one of the most amusing costume parties ever given here. Mrs. Ellery Husted of New York in a "Merry Widow" picture hat, black sequin dress, and parasol was awarded the prize for the prettiest costume while the orchestra played the famous waltz. Mrs. Edward Lihme, formerly of Chicago, represented "Powder Puff."

Mrs. Phelps gave a luncheon for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Read of Providence, and Harry Potter.

Next Mardi Gras to Be Earliest in Quarter Century

NEW ORLEANS, La.—Not in the last quarter of a century has Mardi Gras been scheduled for so early a date as in 1940, when it falls on Feb. 6. It takes place each year on the Tuesday [Mardi] before Ash Wednesday, forty days before Easter.

New Orleans' spring begins before February and the plants of the fifty-five mile Floral trail are usually in bloom for the Midwinter Sports carnival, which is climaxed by the Sugar Bowl game on Jan. 1.

There may be a variation of more than a month in the date of Mardi Gras, which sometimes is celebrated as early as Feb. 6, as in 1940, or as late as March 5, which was its date in 1935.

West Michigan Has Full Program for Its Visitors

In the air, on the water, and on land West Michigan will have a full August program of entertainment for visitors.

In the air the spotlight is held by the American open soaring meet, to take place at Frankfort. Gliders and pilots from all over the United States are expected to attend the meet. The dunes along Lake Michigan will see 20 or more of these motorless ships in the air at one time.

On water there is the festival at Pentwater.

On land there are fairs, sportsmen's events, musical events, Indian pow wows and pageants.

The program shows:

Aug. 10 to 13—Rockford, Centennial celebration.

Aug. 11 to 13—Pentwater, Water festival.

Aug. 13—Cross Village, Indian pow wow.

Aug. 14—Petoskey, children's parade.

Aug. 14 to 19—Ionia, Free fair.

Aug. 15 to 18—Bay View, Music week.

Aug. 20 to 26—Petoskey, soft ball tournament.

Aug. 23 to 24—Petoskey, Ottawa Indian pageant.

Aug. 26 to Sept. 5—Frankfort, American open soaring meet.

Aug. 27—Petoskey, annual sportsmen's roundup.

Aug. 31 to Sept. 3—South Haven, Peach festival.

Fishing Near Montreal.

Some of the finest muskie fishing in Canada is in the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers within sight of Montreal.

Planted by Royalty.

Palm and poinciana trees planted by British royalty flourish everywhere in Bermuda. Among the benefactors have been the duke of Windsor, Prince George, Princess Louise, Prince Albert Victor, and Prince William.

SEA BREEZE CRUISES

• Something new in vacation ideas is the Sea Breeze cruise—an inexpensive sample of a transatlantic voyage. You take a regular Atlantic liner from New York. It takes you to one or a combination of the following ports—Bermuda, the West Indies, Halifax, Quebec, Norfolk, New Orleans or even South America and back again to New York in from three days to two weeks. Many of the cruises combine extended motor coach tours through historic country.

• Consult the advertisements in the Travel Directory today, or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you to plan a Sea Breeze Cruise. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours to any part of the world which interests you. Services are free. The Tribune Travel Bureau sells no tickets—gets no commission from the sale of tickets. So feel free to call in person, write or telephone.

His Daily Life Revealed

By JOHN DICKSON

Brussels, Belgium.

FACING CRISES with nerves of iron, or stirring them up when he feels that history is moving too slowly to suit him, Adolf Hitler, Germany's supreme master, has remained a figure of mystery to most of the world, though millions of words have been written about him. His entourage is big. He sees scores of people daily. Nevertheless there is almost none even in his closest entourage who would give you a clear picture of the man Hitler. A study of Hitler's daily routine—if one can speak of such a thing—may help to get a clearer picture of the man at the helm of the German government, who, his followers feel certain, can and will dictate the fate of Europe.

Despite the sudden upheavals, something that resembles a daily routine has developed in Hitler's life when he is in his chancellery in Berlin.

• • •

If there is no major crisis that may have kept him awake most of the night dictating to his secretaries, Hitler arises at about 8 o'clock in the morning. His living quarters are simple compared with the elaborate and costly building he has created and is erecting as "a monument of stone to the greatness of National Socialist Germany."

Hitler's private suite, consisting of library, waiting room, study, dining room, sitting room, dressing room, and sleeping quarters, is on the second floor of the old chancellery, facing the park. A swinging door that can be locked leads into this apartment. Two men of the Sicherheitsdienst, or safety service, in their dark blue suits, always are on duty in the hall leading into it. From this hall Hitler can walk down a few steps into a "winter garden" and into a corridor through which he can reach his huge study in the House of the Leaders, the central building of his new chancellery.

On the routine day we are picking one of Hitler's two valets wakens him at the time he set before retiring. If no orders were left they wait until Hitler calls them. Two men have served for quite a number of years—Valet Krause is a former Schutzstaffel man, while the second valet, Meyer, started in the navy. They shift regularly with other members of the bodyguard, each man taking his turn. The valet on duty keeps things in readiness while Hitler does his daily dozen and dresses quickly. The daily dozen is a new part of Hitler's personal program which he adopted in June. Only when it comes to putting on his high boots does the valet extend his helping hand. The barber rushes in. He is the same man who shaved Hitler when he used to live in the Kaiserhof, before he became the master of Germany. On his way out the barber is quizzed by the attendants, "How is the atmosphere today?" And when he comes back to the Kaiserhof clients besiege him for information. Woman tourists have been known to beg him for a lock of Hitler's hair.

How a Dictator Carries On

Since Hitler sees his valets and Schutzstaffel men on duty daily, he takes a keen interest in their private lives and their families. They speak with glowing eyes of Hitler's understanding for their problems and his generosity to them and their families. He gives the first baby buggy and presents of between $80 and $100 to his boys when they become proud young fathers.

Hitler has his breakfast in his private dining room. It usually is a frugal affair. Milk or fruit juice, a few crackers, possibly some jam, form Hitler's breakfast. His occasional American guests who have seen Hitler enjoy the cake of his Viennese cook believe he would find great relish in American hot breads and pancakes—but his doctor would probably be horrified. The idea of hot bread or hot muffins seems dangerous to your average German doctor, and Hitler does take his doctor seriously. He wants to keep fit and avoid at all cost the middle-age spread, which he considers a danger sign—hence the new daily dozen!

By 10 o'clock the state machinery is under way. Hitler is still in his own private study. His aid and close friend, his press chief, Dr. Otto Dietrich, members of his chancellery staff, his military adjutants, who act as liaison officers with the war ministry, the air office, and the navy, report to him.

Toward noon Hitler walks past the guards on duty through the winter garden to the chancellery proper and his big office (Continued on page four.)

Floating Bombs! England's New Threat to Air Raiders

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE THREAT of unrestricted bombing in England has brought development of a number of weapons designed to fight raiding bombing planes. One of the latest of these to be considered by the air ministry, according to reports, is the sky mine, an aerial counterpart of the sea mine laid to protect shipping and coastlines from enemy vessels.

The sky mine consists of a nine or ten ounce light-gauge rolled steel canister filled with high explosive. This is floated into the air on a six-foot rubber balloon attached by a forty-foot length of fine wire. By regulating the size of the balloon and the amount of gas each one carries these floating mines can be scattered about the sky at varying altitudes between the ground and 35,000 feet.

Total cost of the unit would be about 65 cents, so that enormous quantities of them could be released. Furthermore, they could be released at the rate of about one a minute by one man in any open field.

This floating bomb was invented by Maj. H. J. Muir. It would explode on contact with a plane and would swing against any machine that hit the balloon or the wire. The explosive in any one bomb would not be enough to destroy a plane utterly, but it would shatter a wing or fuselage, so that the terrific air pressures generated by high-speed flight would tear the damaged plane to pieces.

• • •

The bomb has four firing pins arranged so that one or more of them must strike any object that hits the bomb or the balloon wire in the air. Any one of the pins sets off the detonator that explodes the main charge. Also included in the bomb is a simple timing device that sets off the detonator automatically after a predetermined length of time.

This self-destroying device is needed in order to prevent the skies from becoming crowded with these bombs and preventing friendly aircraft from ramming live bombs.

The bombs would be released so that the wind would carry them toward the enemy. They would be scattered by calculation at all levels in a very few minutes after a raid warning was received.

There are many advantages to this defense. It would not be as costly as maintaining a full-sized balloon barrage around an area like London, but probably would be equally effective. It also would not subject the populace to the dangers of falling shell fragments—a very real danger when anti-aircraft guns would be firing at bombers maneuvering over a city.

The bombs are so constructed that their fragments are harmlessly small.

Mine fields of this kind would be laid in all kinds of weather and would protect cities even when interceptor pursuit planes would be unable to operate. Tests of these bombs already are being made by English air authorities, and the sky mine may become the ideal reply to sky raiders.

Cantigny—A Corner of the War

● This is the sixth and final instalment from the book "Cantigny, a Corner of the War," by Captain Evarts, 18th infantry, 1st division, A. E. F., and reprinted by courtesy of the author and Charles Scribner's Sons, the publishers.

By Capt. Jeremiah M. Evarts

(Copyright: 1938: By Captain Evarts.)

[Note.—The 20th corps of the French army was known as the Iron corps. At the beginning of the war it was commanded by General Foch. It was the spearhead of the attack of the 10th French army on July 18, 1918. The divisions assigned to the 20th corps in the Soissons offensive were the 1st Moroccan division (of which the Foreign Legion was one regiment), the 58th French infantry division, the 69th French infantry division, the 1st U. S. division, and the 2d U. S. division. Of these divisions there were three in line—the 1st division on the left, the Moroccan in the center, and the 2d on the right. As a matter of interest, the 18th infantry advanced farther than any unit on its right or left.]

THE SKY was very beautiful with the first streaks of light as the company came to a halt on the plateau above the little town of Cœuvres.

We had marched all night in a single file twenty-seven kilometers on a road filled with tanks, artillery, and ammunition. The single file of infantry weaved its way in and out. Most of the night had been very dark, with practically no bombing of the road so far as we were concerned. It had rained hard during part of the march, and once, I remember, a flash of lightning lit up a long vista at the end of which stood a beautiful château—I think the Château Compiegne. Later on it had cleared off, and now the dawn gave every promise of a great day.

When we halted there was light enough to disclose the most dramatic picture that I ever hope to see. Cœuvres consisted of two streets built on our side of a little, narrow valley. One street ran along fairly level near the bottom of the hill. The other came almost straight up the steep side of the valley, and both were bounded by stone walls. The valley was 150 or 200 yards wide, with a nice brook flowing through it. To the north, on our side of the valley, there were two fairly regular steps on the hillside. On each step and on the plateau above was a row of artillery as far as one could see. The guns were almost wheel to wheel. Both streets of the little town were filled with 155 howitzers. They were French. It was grand and very comforting to see so much artillery. Across the brook under the shelter of the farther side of the valley was a row of tanks. Behind and among the tanks were infantry. The division had been assigned to the Iron corps of the French army. The attack was to start at 4:35.

We move down the hill and halt at the intersection of the streets. I halt at the northwest corner. Standing above me on the stone wall is a French artillery officer—a captain. He is young and extraordinarily handsome. He evidently commands all the 155 howitzers in the town. He must be a great officer, I thought, to be a captain in the Iron corps. He holds a watch in his left hand and in his right a small French flag.

He calls out 4:32 as we halt. I look up at him. His face is absorbing. His blue eyes are cold and determined, but his lips are parted in a semi-smile. He must be greatly excited, but he controls himself well. He calls out 4:32 and 30 seconds, and so on each half minute. I watch him, fascinated, scarcely breathing. At 4:34 he raises his right arm and calls off the seconds. I look around. The eyes of every artilleryman are watching their flag, their faces eager and expectant. At 4:34 and 30 seconds there is the great boom of the warning gun from the rear.

There are ten more seconds—now there are five—he is calling out, "Six—sept—huit—neuf—tirez!" and he drops the tricolor. The ground shakes under the concussion of 2,000 guns. His eyes glisten and he smiles. Something great has really happened. The Iron corps of the French army has commenced the battle of Soissons. It is the beginning of the end of the war!

II.
DIVISION RESERVE

It was the fourth morning of the battle of Soissons. What was left of E company, plus a few stragglers, composed the division reserve. We were in a defiladed position a little in front and to the right of the 2d brigade. Twice within the last hour an attack by that brigade had failed. I was watching them reform for another attack. Things were a mess. The 1st brigade, on our right, had attacked successfully several hours before and had reached its objective about a mile and a half away. Unless the 2d brigade took Berzy-le-Sec the flank of the corps might be turned.

The major and the adjutant called me. We were going to move. The new position was quite far in advance of the 2d brigade. It could be reached by following the contour of the land around a hill or by going across the top of the hill. It was shorter to go across the top. Against our better judgment we chose the shorter route. The major led the column. I followed at about six paces. Next in line came a battalion runner, then the adjutant, then another battalion runner. At the top of the hill there was the droning roar of a very large shell falling from a great height. The blast hit my back before I could duck and blew me on top of the major. We went down together. The shell had landed at the adjutant's feet. Neither he nor the two runners had anything more to worry about.

The new position was in some woods on a steep side hill facing toward Germany. The major sat down with his hands locked around his knees. He was looking down the hill. I was lying flat on my belly about six feet from him, my head almost on a level with his feet. Lieutenant McTague, the only other officer in E company, was about the same distance away on the other side of me. He also was flat on his belly. The machine gun captain was lying in a similar position directly above me, his feet two yards or so from my head. When I say we were flat I mean that our arms were stretched full length above our heads, our heads were turned and pressed against the ground, and our helmets rested on the sides of our heads.

I was looking at the major out of my left eye. He was about all in. He had been very fond of the adjutant. He saw me looking at him. "Go to sleep, Evarts; I'll wake you up." In a second I was asleep.

So it does hurt to be dead! And like the devil! What a terrific noise it makes! You must be dead, though, because everything is dark! My God, how that noise hurts! O, you're crazy! You're not dead! Can't you feel something wet and warm on your face? You couldn't feel if you were dead! Come on, get up!

I looked up and felt the left side of my face. It was wet with blood. (My ear drum had been demolished.) I was shaking very hard all over. McTague was just getting on his feet, blood dripping from his left ear. The machine gun captain had been picked up off the ground and wrapped belly first around a tree forty feet up the hill. No one in the world ever had his wind knocked out any harder. Except for that he was uninjured. I got to my feet. Where the major had been sitting was a form, without head and shoulders, sitting just as I had last seen him, with hands still locked around his knees. About five feet in front of the form, its nearest edge about four feet from where I had been lying, was the shallow hole caused by a shell with an instantaneous fuse.

. . . .

For God's sake, who has command? Have I? O, my head! Quick! Order every one to go up to the very edge of the hill! Quit shaking, Evarts! Where are the orders? But the major had a dispatch case and a message book! O, where is it? Come on and get the hell out! He's dead, and he's lucky. Duck, Evarts, you fool! I told you to get the hell out and join them on the edge of the hill! Quit shaking and go!

. . . .

Two minutes later the major appeared. He had gone to see to the burial of the adjutant's remains. While I was asleep the last battalion runner had sat down in the same spot the major had left.

III.
LEAVING

We were in line near Pont-à-Mousson. I had command of the company and was also acting as adjutant of the battalion. I lived at the battalion P. C. [post of command] with Major Hunt. There were, I think, four officers left in the battalion. There were only ninety men left in the company in spite of replacements. It was the latter part of August.

The arsenic in my stomach was bad. Three weeks later I weighed 115 pounds, which is not much when one is six feet tall. One morning the major asked if I would like to go back and teach tactics or teach in France. I said he would think I was crazy, but that I would rather stay with the company. The major grunted. He said I was too sick, that I coughed all night.

The battalion went out. I was to stay two days with the major of the relieving battalion. He was expected about 9 o'clock in the morning. I went up the path through the woods to the road he would be coming on. I walked away from the junction about forty or fifty feet and lay down in the gutter on the side toward Germany. Well, it looked as if the next two days would be the last. It was silly to feel lost. It was more silly to feel as if I were deserting the company.

I could see the lorry bringing the major coming up the road. The road ran through big woods. When the lorry came within about sixty yards from where I was I stood up and signaled the driver to stop. Then I lay down again in the gutter. A volley of Austrian 90s landed on the road at the junction of the path leading to the battalion P. C. The major had never been in the line before. He asked me how I knew those shells were going to land. I said I didn't know it, that I just thought they might. It certainly would have been a swell ending to have killed a new major and myself in a quiet sector like Pont-à-Mousson.

In two days I went on out. I was to leave that night with several other old officers of the regiment. It was getting dark. The company lined up, walked past, and shook hands. It seemed as if we had lived together forever. I was terribly glad that it was dark.

(THE END.)

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Mae Tinée: As a Northwestern university graduate two years back, and as one who has written scathing editorials on the subject of sororities and fraternities, I feel somewhat qualified to comment on the film "Sorority House," which you recently reviewed.

It is the frequent and inevitable accusation that sororities and fraternities are little more than glorified dating bureaus and that they create distinctions of wealth and social snobbery in general.

There is no doubt that many young men and women, unable to afford membership, keenly resent the social barriers set up against them by those more fortunate. Man is a gregarious creature, given to congenial relationship with his fellows, and he naturally dislikes not being a part of the crowd.

But as for social snobbery, I do not feel the blame rests with the sororities and fraternities. It is true, at Northwestern, as at any other great college, that a few immature boys and girls feel themselves of great significance because of their membership in a fraternity or sorority, and attempt to lord it over nonmembers. But that is a flaw of character inherent in the individual rather than in the organization of the sorority or fraternity. In later life those who look for jobs find that a sorority or fraternity social rating is of little value; it is merit that matters. And merit can be found in members of sororities and fraternities just as much as in nonmembers.

The exhibitionist and the snob are not limited to university social life. For that reason, while "Sorority House" shows the stereotyped figures of selfish and snobbish girls, it should not be taken as an indictment of the entire organization. Sincerely,

PAUL HUGO LITTLE (Summer '37).

Editor's note: Thanks for your interesting letter!

Dear Miss Tinée: I have been waiting very patiently for so long that now I am starting to give up hope of ever seeing Allan Jones in a picture again. Such a fine actor and singer cannot be cast into the rubbish pile and forgotten. If only for his wonderful acting, he should be starred again in a great picture like "Firefly" (which was one of the best movies I have ever seen, because of his acting and singing ability).

He's got such life in him, and he doesn't have to speak to say what he thinks—he says it with his facial expressions. Why don't the Hollywood producers wake up and see what they're losing? Truly,

CELIA.

Editor's note: I reckon you'll be seeing Allan Jones again one of these days. In the meantime, keep a-hoping!

Dear Miss Tinée: Would you be kind enough to let me know how old Al Jolson is? What legitimate shows has he played in? Sincerely yours, F. M. THOMAS.

Editor's note: Al Jolson was born May 26, 1886. Has appeared on the stage in "Bombo," "Big Boy," and "Wonder Bar."

Dear Miss Tinée: I am not trying to attempt to make your Voice of the Movie Fan column, nor do I wish you to "squeeze in" a picture of any one (although I admit I have watched patiently for one of you), but I do feel that credit should be given where it is deserved.

I read all your criticisms with interest and most always agree with you. I particularly want to mention your treatment of the picture "Young Mr. Lincoln," which was just about as fine-grained as the production.

Pictures of that kind are refreshing, and would that there were more of them. As you say, suppose it doesn't follow fact right to the letter—it is entirely plausible and correct in substance. And think how little it cost to produce in comparison to some of the extravaganzas some of the producers force upon us. I thought the cast was superb and the direction smooth as silk.

"Thanks for listenin'." T. AMES.

Editor's note: You see—you can get into the corner without even trying. Thank you, my friend!

Looking at Hollywood with Ed Sullivan

A Queen of the "B's" Who Now Has "A" Fever

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

A "B" PICTURE on the Hollywood schedule is one that costs from $200,000 to $500,000, depending upon the studio where it is made. It is shot in fourteen or fifteen days. Despite the speed with which these "B's" are completed, forcing performers to work at a pace too rapid for best results, these lower-budgeted pictures today offer a training ground for youngsters who need trouping experience. The case of Claire Trevor, once "queen of the B's," who has won co-starring prestige opposite George Raft in Universal's "I Stole a Million," indicates that the apprenticeship she spent in these quickies was not in vain.

Binnie Barnes, Ann Sothern, Wendy Barrie, Marjorie Weaver, Florence Rice, and Rosalind Russell all are graduates cum laude of the "B" school. Currently there is a whole group of youngsters appearing in "B's," and some of them will follow in the footsteps of Miss Trevor. Lynn Bari, Frances Robinson, Jean Rogers, Gloria Stuart, Phyllis Brooks, Jane Wyman, and June Lang at the moment are laboring in the "B" vineyards. I've seen each of these girls in excellent performances, discounted because of the fact that the picture in which they scored was a bad setting. Some day, however, a director will ask for one of these "B" queens and use her in an "A" picture, and overnight another starlet will have found her wings.

Not that "B" pictures offer the finest training in the world. Unless a performer knows exactly what he or she is aiming for these quickies can develop a lot of bad acting habits that are difficult to unshelve. The important item to be noted in the case history of Claire Trevor is that instead of picking up a lot of hammy characterizations she always knew what she was doing in a scene and why.

FLORENCE RICE

It was in "Dead End," as the gangster's girl, that the Trevor youngster indicated how much she had learned of the technique of performance. Again in "Stagecoach" she startled the town by the ground she had covered. In "I Stole a Million" her performance is a prime example of good and intelligent acting. It cinches star billing for Claire unless she has good and sufficient reason for waiving that privilege in some future assignment.

When they dubbed her "queen of the B's" Hollywood wasn't being exactly snooty. There was a grudging admiration in the description, for even in Bagdad-on-the-Pacific a trouper is secretly admired. The town could see that Claire wasn't just walking through those minor-budget films. She was working at 'em. She wasn't always good, but even when she played a scene badly it was obvious she knew what she'd done and why. (There are no retakes in "B's" except for major errors; if you turn in a bad performance it stays a bad performance.)

• • •

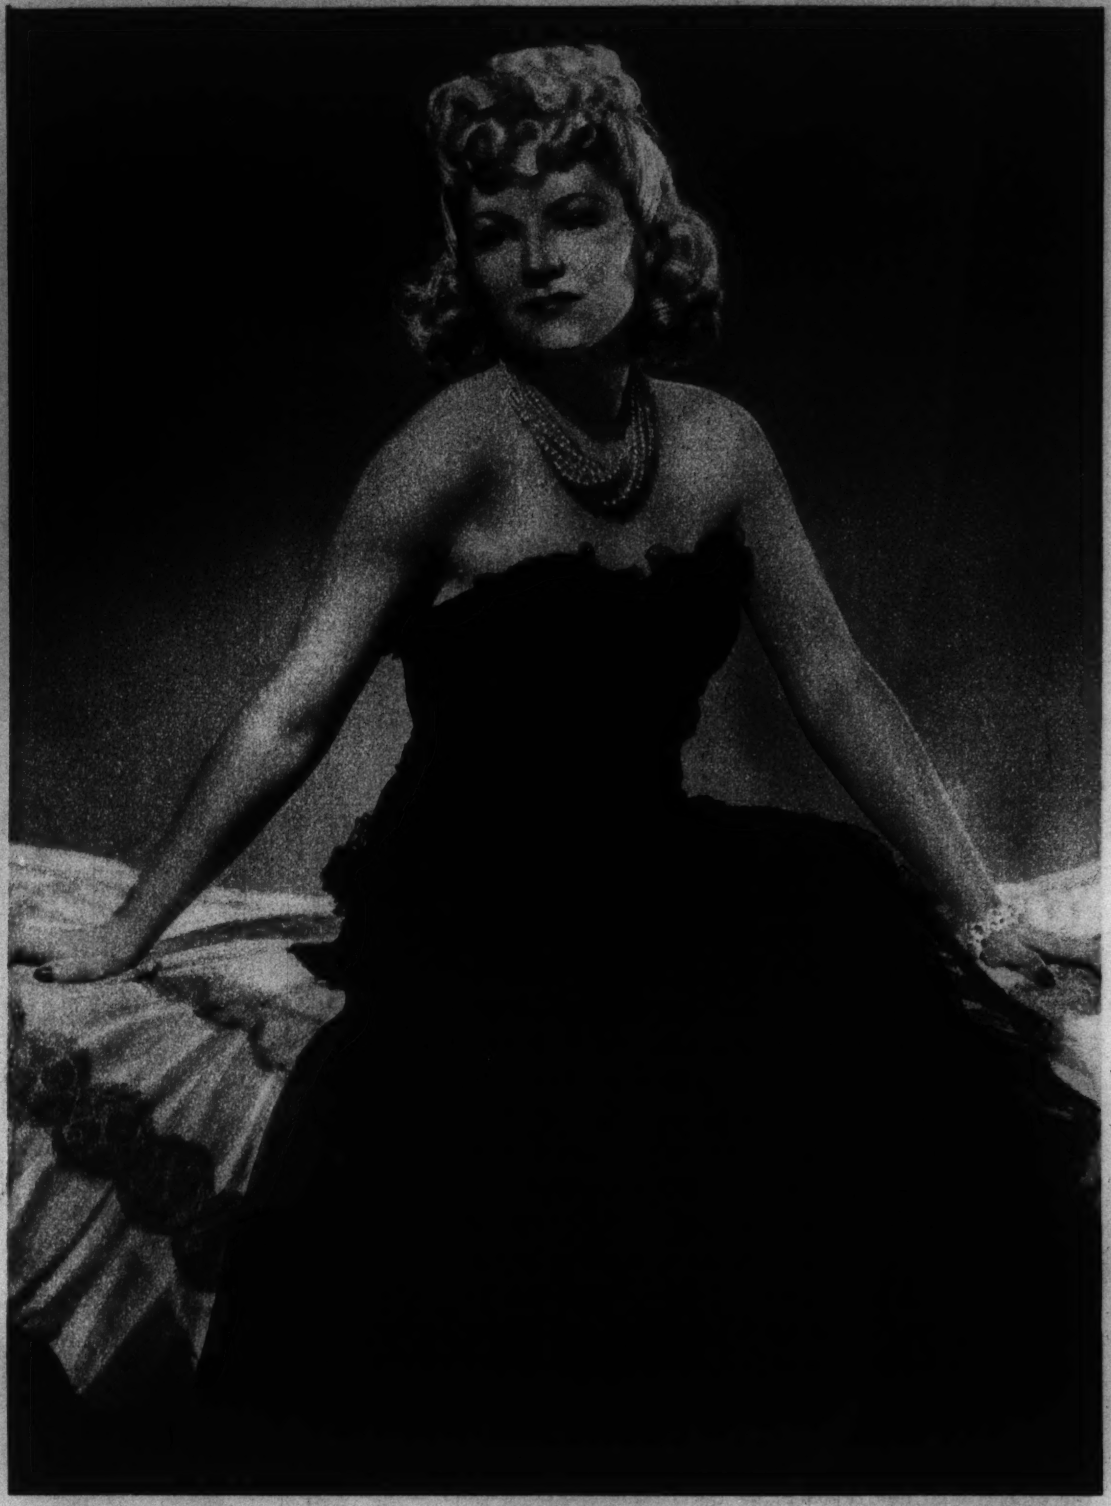
The town could see, too, that it wasn't just a trim figure, warm hazel eyes, or a throaty "mikeproof" voice that was guiding Claire through "B" after "B." Not that those qualities did her any harm. But Claire didn't throw 'em at you.

Whether Hollywood knew it or not, Claire Trevor came from a trouping stock company—and that's a training ground the film moguls should subsidize. An eastern girl, she had enrolled in the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and later joined a stock company at Ann Arbor, Mich. The stage was exciting, and she took the hurdles of stock company days in hilarious manner, thrilling at the idea of trouping on a shoestring, with the players painting their own scenery and making their own costumes. It was one of those stock company experiences which started her toward Hollywood. Alexander McKaig, a New York producer, discovered her among the Hampton Players and gave her the lead with Ernest Truex in the Broadway presentation of "Whistling in the Dark," a hit from the start, which later precipitated a road tour and landed Claire Trevor in Los Angeles.

Here, believe it or not, she rejected three movie offers—because she was tired and wanted a rest! After further Broadway success, however, as the lead in "The Party's Over," she signed a Twentieth Century-Fox contract and arrived in Hollywood on May 5, 1933.

For five years Claire trouped in the "B's," playing anything and everything assigned and doing the chores intelligently and pleasantly. "To B or not to B" is the question that faces any young player after a siege like this. Those who revolt too soon—and without reason—wash themselves out of pictures. Those who stay on too long find themselves mired forever in secondary rôles. Only the smart ones know just when to strike for better jobs—and Claire Trevor is a smart trouper.

Sam Goldwyn borrowed her for the street girl in "Dead End"; Warner Brothers put her in "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse"; and earlier this year she clinched the upswing with her performance in "Stagecoach." The queen of the "B's" had abdicated for the "A's."



CLAIRE TREVOR

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the ninth of the series.

DELIVERED at the request of congress in the German Lutheran church of Philadelphia, Dec. 26, 1799, the funeral oration by Maj. Gen. Henry (Light Horse Harry) Lee, a representative from Virginia, in honor of the memory of George Washington, has been handed down to us in the annals of oratory as one of the most famous and most colorful of obsequial addresses. From it comes the historic utterance, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen . . ." General Lee was above all a soldier, and never attained the fame as a public speaker that fell to his kinsman, the stateman Richard Henry Lee, yet at times he rose to heights as an orator, particularly when he delivered his eulogy to Washington, excerpts from which follow:

HENRY LEE

"The founder of our federate republic—our bulwark in war, our guide in peace—is no more! O, that this were but questionable! Hope, the comforter of the wretched, would pour into our agonizing hearts its balmy dew. But, alas! there is no hope for us; our Washington is removed forever! Possessing the stoutest frame and purest mind, he had passed nearly to his sixty-eighth year in the enjoyment of high health, when, habituated by his care of us to neglect himself, a slight cold, disregarded, became inconvenient on Friday, oppressive on Saturday, and, defying every medical interposition, before the morning of Sunday put an end to the best of men. An end, did I say? His fame survives, bounded only by the limits of the earth and by the extent of the human mind! He survives in our hearts, in the growing knowledge of our children, in the affection of the good throughout the world: and when our monuments shall be done away; when nations now existing shall be no more; when even our young and far-spreading empire shall have perished, still will our Washington's glory unfaded shine, and die not, until love of virtue cease on earth, or earth itself sinks into chaos. . . .

"First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate, and sincere; uniform, dignified, and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting.

"To his equals he was condescending, to his inferiors kind, and to the dear object of his affections exemplarily tender. Correct throughout, vice shuddered in his presence, and virtue always felt his fostering hand; the purity of his private character gave effulgence to his public virtures.

"His last scene comported with the whole tenor of his life: although in extreme pain, not a sigh, not a groan escaped him; and with undisturbed serenity he closed his well-spent life. Such was the man America has lost! Such was the man for whom our nation mourns!

"Methinks I see his august image and hear falling from his venerable lips these deep-sinking words:

"'Cease, sons of America, lamenting our separation; go on and confirm by your wisdom the fruits of our joint counsels, joint efforts, and common dangers. Reverence religion; diffuse knowledge throughout your land; patronize the arts and sciences; let liberty and order be inseparable companions; control party spirit, the bane of free government; observe good faith to and cultivate peace with all nations; shut up every avenue to foreign influence; contract rather than extend national connection; rely on yourselves only; be American in thought and deed. Thus will you give immortality to that Union which was the constant object of my terrestrial labors. Thus will you preserve undisturbed to the latest posterity the felicity of a people to me most dear; and thus will you supply (if my happiness is now aught to you) the only vacancy in the round of pure bliss high heaven bestows.'"

That Henry Lee surely appreciated the sheer beauty and inspiration of ringing words is indicated in the above excerpts from his most famous oration. Here the very first sentence, "The founder of our federate republic—our bulwark in war, our guide in peace—is no more," compels attention by the magic of its words. Never thereafter does the speaker permit this attention to lag. So much "punch" do the lines of "first in war, first peace" contain that they will be remembered so long as there are Americans to remember. When the speaker pretends that he is looking upon the image of Washington and hearing fall from its venerable lips a wealth of wise counsel for his countrymen he is taking advantage of one of the most effective devices of oratory. No doubt Lee's listeners that day fell under the spell of the pretention.

"The Fuehrer is happiest when he can forget his cares of state in the midst of his artists." Hitler receives a group of German movie stars.

in the center of that building. The sentries, the bodyguard men Hitler meets on his way, click their heels loudly and stand at attention as he passes. Extending their arms in the Nazi salute, they try to catch his eye when they call, "Heil mein Fuehrer." To this Hitler replies, "Heil." If he smiles, if he stops to talk with one of his uniformed boys, the word immediately spreads through the chancellery, "Everything is fine today." When Hitler is preoccupied and ignores his men you can notice the reverberations all down the line. If the official who has reported to him emerges frowning or glum, the bodyguards whisper to each other, "Dicke Luft," which means, "The air is thick—watch your step."

Hitler's big office in his new chancellery is in the middle of the big "House of Leaders." Its walls are covered with brown marble and a highly polished German variety of maple which is also dark brown. In one corner is Hitler's big desk, at which he sits with his back to the four big windows leading to his garden and the covered terrace where he can walk in bad weather. If Hitler looks out of these windows he can see the water fountains which he designed himself. Day and night sentinels stand guard at the door to this office, their feet wide apart, their hands resting on their rifles standing upright on the floor. They stand there whether Hitler is in town or not.

In the corner opposite to his desk is a big Chippendale set—a modern copy—with numerous chairs, where Hitler's visitors confer with him. In this corner Czecho-Slovakian Hacha sat on the fateful night when Czecho-Slovakia ceased to exist.

In his main office Hitler receives ambassadors and ministers, delegates from foreign lands, who frequently have been granted an audience because they may prove useful. Here England's Lord Brockett and similar nonofficial and frequently self-appointed men from foreign lands try their hand at coming to terms for their country with Hitler. For formal occasions the ambassadors are received in the sumptuous ambassadors' hall of the new chancellery.

Hitler does not care much for the average run of diplomats, and in Berlin the diplomatic corps finds itself in a kind of vacuum because the few men who decide Germany's actions are almost out of their reach. There was one exception—the former French ambassador, François-Poncet, whom Hitler genuinly liked. François-Poncet could say things to Hitler which many of his aids did not dare say. His barbed witticisms amused Hitler. More than once witnesses of the conversation between Hitler and François-Poncet feared the Fuehrer would resent the Frenchman's sharp tongue. His German—he had been a language teacher in his youth—was flawless, which helped to ease matters. Quite a number of other foreign diplomats speak German well, but somehow or other none got as close to Hitler as François-Poncet. Transferred to Rome with the job of trying to improve his country's relations with Italy, he found it more difficult to establish the same contact with Mussolini as he had with Hitler.

Hitler's own diplomats also had quite a time establishing the desirable good relations with the Fuehrer. He felt that by profession they had to be high-hat, and he met them with a great deal of mistrust. Baron von Neurath, his one-time foreign minister, succeeded in getting close to him, but the former party member Joachim von Ribbentrop took his place. He is closer to Hitler than Neurath ever was. The Württemberg Baron von Neurath was promoted out of his office into the secret cabinet council for foreign relations, and thence to Prague, where as "protector of Bohemia and Moravia" he is bound to be so busy that he won't have time to watch the actions of his successor, eager to handle matters independently in what he tells Hitler is the true National Socialist way.

In between his conferences or dictations Hitler takes a few minutes off for which Germans call the second breakfast—another glass of milk or fruit juice with cracker, or a few apples.

After the first formal callers have been expedited, with Hitler taking their hand in both his hands and looking deeply into their eyes if he likes them or feels that something has been accomplished through the conversations, Hitler goes for his constitutional. He picks one or the other aid from their nearby offices, or he sends word to them to join him in his walk. If the weather is nice they walk in the gardens where Bismarck used to walk with his Great Danes and Hindenburg marched with his shepherd dog or one or the other of his grandchildren. Hitler's two favorite dogs—shepherd dogs—were in Berlin with him for some time, but now they are in the Berghof, where they can roam through field and forest for miles on end. In the Berghof the shepherd dogs met with a serious rival for Hitler's affection—a young dachshund, which, Hitler's aids say, fails to show the proper dictatorial discipline, frequently disregarding the orders of his master in true dachshund fashion.

Discussions continue while Hitler and his men go for their walk. Sometimes when Hitler feels the need for relaxation he does not simply sit down and relax, but he calls in his architect—Professor Dr. Speer—and they talk of vast building projects. As Hitler goes through the corridors of his chancellery he can see the plaster models of the buildings that are being planned and erected under his direction. In his joy in these projects his tension eases and he turns back to face his daily problems with renewed strength.

Frequently while his chancellery was being built Hitler would take his party over to the buildings under construction. He would talk with the workers and foremen. Occasionally the workers would get up their courage to ask him for favors. Recently the workers wanted a bigger canteen where they could enjoy their meals while on the job in daytime or at night. Hitler ordered the construction of a special canteen for them.

When he is through with his tour of the grounds and his work in his study it is time for lunch. Hitler's tailor may have come in between conferences; then the Fuehrer will repair to his dressing room. The tailor is quite well known, and it is amusing to hear foreigners tell you, "I had picked up a grand English remnant, but the tailor phoned and said he can't give it to me because the Fuehrer picked it." To judge by the number of men who think they got the same material for their suits as Hitler he must have a whole houseful of outfits, but that is not the case.

If Hitler has no official guests the lunch takes place in the "small dining room" of his old chancellery. The adjutants on duty, the national press chief (if he is in town), one or the other minister who had a conference with Hitler earlier in the day, are kept for lunch. Only when Hitler is preoccupied with big projects does he leave his official family and retire to his own suite, where the valets and bodyguard men on duty look after him.

The meals at the chancellery are usually frugal. Vegetables and salads are more plentiful than on the average German lunch table. Fish is served frequently. Meat is for Hitler's guests, but he never touches it himself. The drink is "herva," a concoction of herbs mixed with a dash of Moselle, or sometimes a near-beer brewed in Munich specially for Hitler. The cakes and desserts are important, because, like most people who do not drink alcohol, Hitler has a sweet tooth and insists on the pastry served in his house being of the finest.

With the number of guests changing at a moment's notice, and Hitler keeping irregular hours, housekeeping is difficult in the chancellery. That is where Joseph Kannenberg comes in. The son of a formerly famous Berlin restaurant owner, Kannenberg runs the household for Hitler. He lives in the chancellery—in the apartment formerly occupied by Herr Lammers, minister in the chancellery. Herr Lammers and his family moved out after he was assigned a palatial villa near the Berlin park Tiergarten which the Nazis used to point out as the "most luxurious gambling club in Germany, frequented by numerous Jews." Many of those who have been

Hitler's Horoscope

Adolf Hitler, the dictator who is said to consult the stars before making decisions of international importance, here is analyzed by his own methods—astrology. The circular chart is his horoscope, an astrologer's map of the heavens as they presumably appeared at the moment of Hitler's birth on April 20, 1889, at 6:30 p. m. true local time, in Austria at 46° 12′ N., 14° E. It is taken from "Die Statistik in der Astrologie," published long before Hitler's rise to power. The notations and analysis below are by Wynn, who conducts "Your Stars Today" in the daily and Sunday Chicago Tribune.

SATURN—planet of retribution, is here in midheaven, producing qualities of self-pride that bring about a fall from the high place to which it climbs.

MARS—in 90° aspect to Saturn, indicates weakness—a selfishness that blinds him to the rights, motives, and abilities of persons and nations with which he deals.

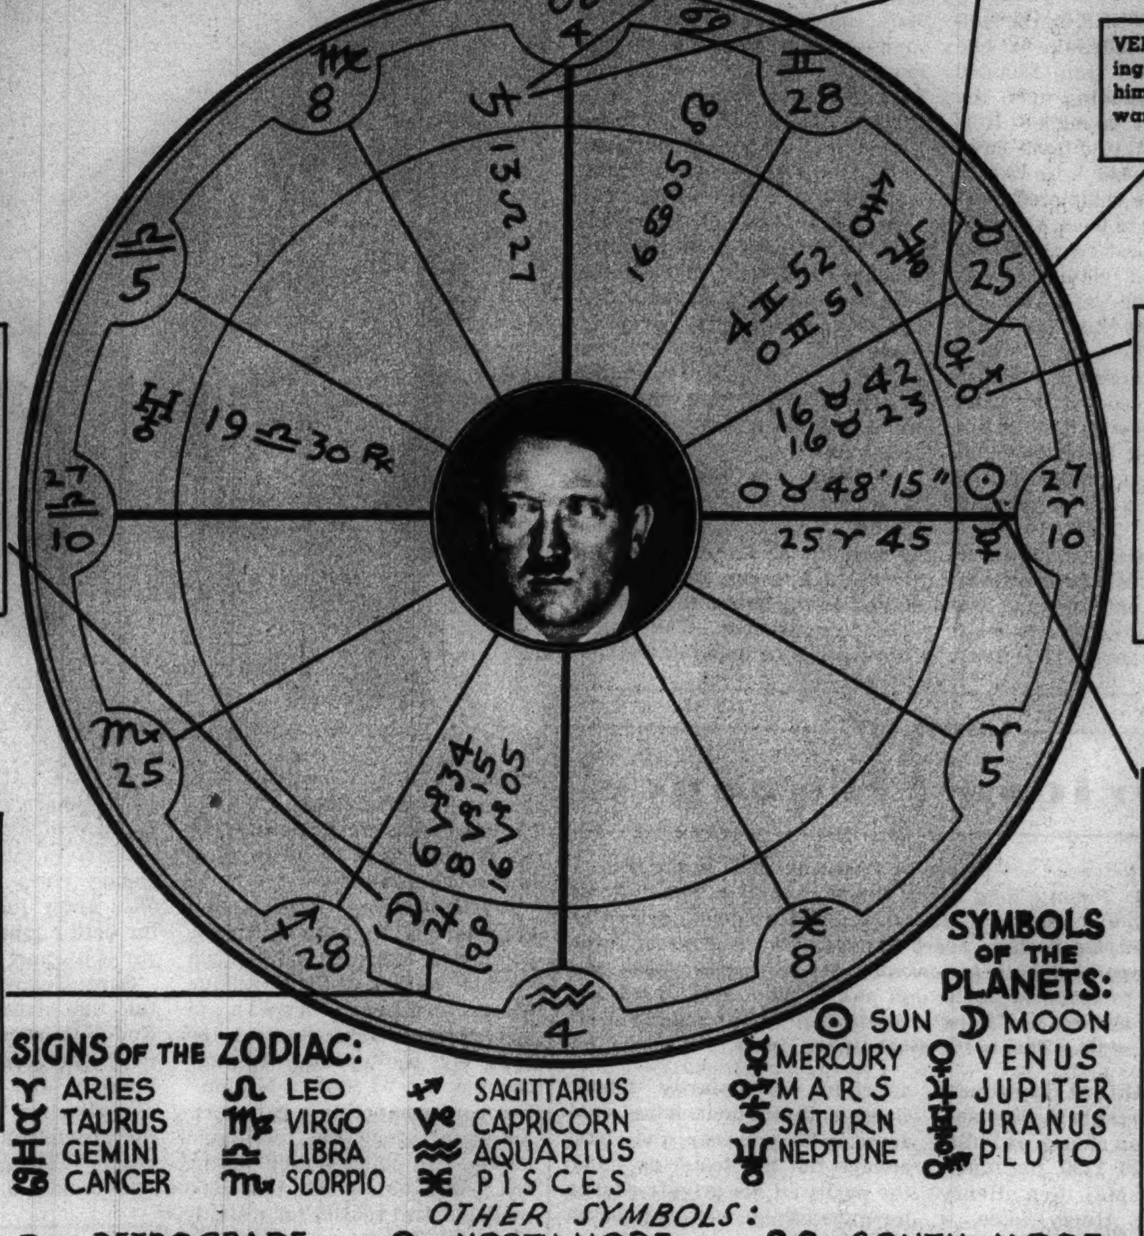
VENUS—his ruling planet, gives him a leaning toward art and music.

MOON—in Capricorn, placing the public, in Hitler's opinion (as in Napoleon's), in the role of catspaw to his inordinate ambitions.

MARS—planet of forceful retaliation, here in conjunction with Venus, upsets his normal tendencies, which might have led to an inconspicuous life.

Strength shown in this sector indicates ability to perceive opponent's weaknesses and to cover up his own, a key to his success at Munich.

SUN—foundation of character, being in Taurus with Venus and Mars, gives him stubbornness that holds him to purpose of revenge once it is stimulated, indicating that appeasement attempts will fail.



In the horoscope the inner circle (containing the picture of Hitler's face) represents the earth, with the twelve psychological departments of life radiating out into space. The outer circle is the zodiac. The planets (including the sun and moon) are indicated by symbols, and their positions are shown in degrees and minutes by the inner group of figures. Sign included in location figure indicates planet's position in zodiac.

By WYNN

THIS is a powerful horoscope, more powerful even than the usual horoscope that indicates rise to considerable power. But Hitler's end will be defeat at the hands of enemies he could have had for friends had he used his great inner powers well. The years 1939 and 1940 are his most critical so far.

Every minute spent in attempting to appease Hitler is wasted, especially in the balance of 1939. Now is the time to stop him, for he is at his weakest spot since gaining power in 1933. He was pitifully weak at Munich, but he is even weaker now. This present weakness is shown by Saturn's recent entry in Hitler's seventh house and its transit over his sun, Mars, and Venus (his ruling planet). This is the most disintegrating vibration known.

Hitler feels this—feels the foundations shaking beneath him. For this reason he will bluff to his full extent—and this man is a natural showman, able to make anything look like what he wants it to. August, September, and October this year carry vibrations—those of Mars—that make him more extravagant and expensive to Germany than usual.

Hitler has convinced many of his apologists that he has some supergift of divine guidance, but his horoscope does not bear this out. He is an exceptional individual and an accomplished actor. But his psychic department, which is supposed by some to be the source of inspirations that come to him, is soon due for a few crossed wires and probable short-circuits, particularly when dealing with other nations. He is tempted this month to bite off much more than he can chew or digest.

It is right now that his opponents can defeat Hitler if they will bring him to a showdown, for he is not going to be as weak again for many years. Every month after February of 1940 brings him stimulus to action.

Beginning the latter part of this month and continuing through September and October, Hitler will have almost irresistible desires to increase his importance and power. He would back down, however, if met with a show of force. He doesn't want war, for he knows that his power and position will disappear directly after hostilities break out. Nevertheless his is a horoscope that produces the causes of war he couldn't finish—by dividing other nations against themselves. He is one of the most dangerous men in history, because of his technique.

Two Stars in Color

● DEANNA DURBIN was born in Winnipeg, Canada, Dec. 4, 1922, and her real name is Edna Mae Durbin. When she was 1 year old her family moved to Hollywood. As soon as she was able to talk she began singing children's songs. By the time she was 10 years old her family decided that she had a remarkable talent which should be cultivated. Lessons followed, and it wasn't long before she was giving recitals and singing at social gatherings. A Hollywood actors' agent happened to hear her sing at a recital and immediately started her upon a professional career. She was given a contract with Universal and signed to appear on national radio broadcasts. Her first film was "Three Smart Girls," a surprise hit. She's 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 112 pounds.

● ERROL FLYNN was born in the north of Ireland on June 20, 1909. Educated at the Lycée Louis-le-Grand in Paris and at St. Paul's school in London. While in school he indulged in the usual college sports—boxing, swimming, rowing, and rugby—and had no thoughts of the stage or screen. He is a champion boxer and also swims, rides, and plays tennis. In 1928 he was one of the British contestants in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. Flynn played the rôle of Fletcher Christian in the English production of "Mutiny on the Bounty," a part taken by Clark Gable in the American version. He has traveled on every continent and especially in the east. He married Lili Damita, actress, in June, 1935. Mr. Flynn is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Are You Hunting a Job?

Advice from One Who Hires

By HELEN McFARLANE

I WORK in an employment office. I am employed; I have a job; I draw a pay check twice a month; so perhaps I haven't a chance to obtain the applicant's true point of view.

But I have interviewed job hunters for a year and a half now, and I have developed a pretty definite theory about them.

A person looking for a job must learn to depend a great deal upon the first impression he makes, and it won't be a good one if he comes in chewing gum, with a dirty face, with unbrushed hair, with unkempt clothes; if he says, "Have ya gut any applicashuns to give out?" or "I gut ta have a job—anyt'ing will do."

Nor will it make a good impression if he sneaks into the office as though he were going upstairs at 1:30 in the morning with his shoes in his hands; or if he whispers so one must strain to catch his every word.

No employer is going to be interested in a pompous person who knows it all, uses an extraordinary vocabulary, or who is snooty to the people who work for him; neither is he anxious to give much of his time to some one who whines about bad luck or who is looking for a shoulder on which to cry.

Being unemployed is one of the most tragic things in the world. I know; I've seen how it affects strong, husky men; their eyes are tired and hopeless; I've seen younger men with white knuckles standing out on clenched fists; and I've seen the eyes of women and girls fill with tears and their lips tighten into a pinched line. But, worst of all, I've seen despair, resentment, and perplexity on the faces of the boys and girls who have finished school, who are finding that there are no places in the world for the majority of them.

● This article was contributed to The Tribune in the hope that it will be of help to "a great many prospective employes" who might be "excluded from a final choice because of their inattention to some of the small but important things."

I can't give jobs to all of the people to whom I talk, but I can give a suggestion or two:

Keep your chin up and put your best foot forward. Be confident in your NATURAL self, but don't be overbearing or proud.

See that your appearance attracts attention by its good taste, not by its offense to the eye (and, in more cases than you'd realize, to the nose).

Treat all with whom you come in contact with the same courtesy that you intend to accord the person who may hire you. (How do you know that a report on you isn't turned in by every one to whom you talk?)

Be a positive character, not a negative one. Have something to offer, be it ever so small. True, a stenographer has had special training; so has an accountant and a draftsman. But no training is required of an office boy or a messenger or of a file clerk. Ask for information regarding these positions, so that you'll appear to have something definite in mind. Nothing is more difficult for an interviewer than to be expected to decide what an inexperienced person is best fitted for, as he probably knows little of your likes, preferences, and outside interests that help to form your aptitudes.

All this may not be sound policy to personnel administrators, but there are a few hints that may be helpful to you when you are looking for a job. As I said, I actually know how much attention is given to the appearance and manners of the applicant, and therefore I cannot stress too strongly their importance in accounting for the consideration that you receive.

Yes, I have a job now, but if I didn't I know I would give a lot more thought to the things mentioned here than does the average applicant with whom I have talked within the last eighteen months.

"I actually KNOW how much attention is given to the appearance and manners of the applicant."

Europe's Man of Mystery

Hitler's private guests in Berlin and in Berchtesgaden claim that Kannenberg and his wife, the photographer Heinrich Hoffmann and his wife, can be considered as closer to Hitler than anybody else at the present moment, except possibly for Dr. Otto Dietrich, his friend and press chief. Kannenberg, Hitler's intimates explain, can throw you a full course dinner on half an hour's notice, while his wife delights the heart of Hitler through her expert arrangement of flowers.

Flowers are very important in the home of Germany's dictator. Every day you can see the small trucks of Berlin's most famous florists stop at the different entrances of the chancellery, with attendants scurrying up and down the broad, impressive staircases past the sentries standing guard as if they were made of stone. The result is, according to some of the diplomats, that if at official functions you just don't know what topic to pick for the dinner conversation with the enormous storm trooper or Schutzstaffel man opposite you, talk flowers to him and you'll fare quite safely. The Fuehrer likes flowers, and your subleader has made a point of knowing about them, too.

In the chancellery one special small apartment is reserved for Hitler's press chief, Dr. Dietrich. He has a villa in one of Berlin's nicest suburbs where he lives with his family, but his duties so frequently compel him to be within Hitler's reach that Hitler ordered the arrangement of special quarters for him. His little daughter then comes downtown to visit father, who proudly takes her in to see Hitler and the other men in the chancellery. Bodyguards, secretaries, and high officials are unanimous in their praise of the poise and charm of the tot, who is about 5 years old.

• • •

Quiet, with alert eyes and an ingratiating manner, Dr. Dietrich has been with Hitler for more than twelve years. His shrewd judgment, his coolness and genuine kindliness have helped bridge over many a conflict and remove quite a good deal of friction in a country where every man is keyed up to the highest pitch, eager to enforce plans which are almost revolutionary in nature, at least in the eyes of the average German.

Lunch takes about three-quarters of an hour, after which Hitler leaves the chancellery to visit an exhibition, to drive to new plants in the vicinity of Berlin, or to call on one or the other of his aids. In summer time he may drive to the Schorfheide to visit Goering and enjoy the lake and the forests; or, if he must return to town quickly, he may run out to Schwanenwerder, where Goebbels has his summer residence. The countless new barracks, military schools, and training quarters being erected around Berlin were visited by Hitler, who carefully watched their progress, having helped supervise the architects' plans for these huge blocks of buildings, which are small cities in themselves.

If the weather is bad Hitler will roam the chancellery and look at collections of paintings, prints, and sculptures of young German artists kept in readiness for his inspection. Architectural plans and models are submitted to him. On such afternoons Hitler sketched the new water fountains now gayly spouting in the gardens of the chancellery or helped map out the new plans for the reconstruction of Berlin, Hamburg, and other cities. It is safe to say that there is not one new big building erected at the expense of the government which was not submitted to Hitler before its construction was decided upon. It is the same with German buildings in foreign countries. The plans for the German embassy in London, which was rebuilt at great cost when the present foreign minister, Von Ribbentrop, was ambassador in London, were devised under Hitler's guidance. When the Germans decided they needed a new embassy in Washington the projects were presented to Hitler by the wife of Germany's ambassador, Frau Dieckhoff. The plans have been dropped for the moment.

Heinrich Himmler

The widow of Hitler's favorite architect, Frau Professor Frost, carries out Hitler's suggestions for interior decorations and submits sketches for interiors to him. Great efforts are being made to create a new style that in some dim future might rank with Empire, Chippendale, or other styles distinctive to their periods. It is a goal toward which Hitler is striving, and the wives of his subleaders are anxiously attempting to emulate him or make new suggestions and thus win Hitler's favor.

Late in the afternoon Hitler returns to one of his offices, where his aids report to him and where secretaries are ready to take dictation. Press Chief Dietrich presents a summary of the day's news and the reaction in the foreign countries. If in the course of the day Hitler has heard of an important report in a foreign paper which Herr Dietrich either overlooked or considered unimportant, a full translation is ordered for Hitler's perusal.

The corridor in the Reich chancellery through which officials and foreign diplomats must walk on their way to the reception hall.

In recent months army men were daily visitors, since Hitler takes the keenest interest in military problems. He has worked his way through countless manuals of strategy and military books of all descriptions.

• • •

Occasionally, when there are no formal receptions, Hitler will give a small tea party for visitors from abroad or for his aids and their wives. If he knows them better he will surprise them with an invitation on their birthday. Recently many of the presents he has given to his friends or their wives and relatives have been engraved with his initials, which also now appear in extra big size on the entrance to his big study. During these receptions nobody is allowed to smoke. Formerly this rule prevailed only so long as Hitler was present; now the rule is that in the entire chancellery nobody may smoke.

After dinner, which is similar to lunch, Hitler and his aids go to the opera or to the theater, or they view new films in the hall he had built specially for that purpose. Recently Hitler has developed a great interest in the lighter arts. Formerly only opera singers and the heavier type of music could be heard in the chancellery; now young dancers, including young Americans and other foreigners, have been invited to display their art at formal and informal receptions. The number of women among the visitors to the chancellery has increased. Frau Himmler, the wife of Germany's supreme chief of all police forces, and Frau Morel, the wife of Hitler's chief doctor, often act as chaperons when Hitler and his aids invite the younger generation. While almost no American films can be seen publicly in Germany, Hitler sees almost all of them. They are frequently shown to him before they go to the censor. American firms complain that the Germans keep their films for weeks on end. Though the authorities are fully aware they can't run in Germany because of the import restrictions, American films are studied most closely by the German movie producers before they return them.

At official functions Frau Goering usually acts as Hitler's official hostess, her charm and naturalness winning her many friends among foreign and German visitors. At these functions you can see Hitler preside in white tie or in his new gala outfit—a white coat with a silver and gold belt. He enjoys his glass of "herva" while his guests sample the best of German wines chosen carefully from the chancellery's cellar. Formerly elaborate menus were printed, but nowadays the real menus are being kept secret—if chicken or turkey is served it appears as mere chicken or turkey and not with the hifaluting names they deserve because of the truffles, spices, herbs, champagne, or other extra titbits used to turn a fowl into a fancy bird fit for a state banquet. Even the names of the wines are kept off the menus, much to the disappointment of some of the old gourmets who enjoy collecting the menus that they expect in some future day will bring back the memory of the delicacies they tasted.

Until a year or two ago every Nazi would assure you Hitler never would marry. Now they don't feel so sure about it. They claim that when Hitler and Mussolini met in Munich the Duce of Italy urged the Fuehrer of Germany to relax a little more; that his people would love him even better if he were "closer to earth and not quite so ascetic" as he appeared then. Relaxing, the Duce claimed, helped you remain young and able to withstand better the self-imposed strain of dictatorship, in which a whole nation allowed one man to bear almost the entire burden of responsibility.

Hitler gives autographs to Bavarian peasant girls. Mussolini advised him to get "closer to the earth" and become less the ascetic leader.

• • •

Gay parties have taken and take place in the chancellery, with scores of Germany's most famous artists helping beautify them. Movie stars, actors and actresses, singers and pianists, painters, sculptors, and architects will proudly tell you: "The Fuehrer is happiest when he can forget his care of state in the midst of his artists. We are closer to him than many of the politicians who take themselves so very seriously." Stage managers tell of Hitler's interest in the practical side of their work. In the Berlin opera he made several suggestions for altering some of the settings, some of the mass movements on the stage, and the stage managers, who at first reluctantly gave in to his wishes, feared he would be tempted to emulate the activities of the former German kaiser, but Herr Tietjen, director of the Berlin Opera house, says with all appearance of sincerity that "every suggestion the Fuehrer has made has proved a great success."

If you talk to Nazi politicians they will tell you the Fuehrer is happiest when he is among his "old fighters" and can talk of the days of his fight with them and discuss social problems. To judge by the expression on Hitler's face at these different functions one is tempted to say that the artists nowadays speak with more justification, though the cordial relations of Hitler and the old fighters cannot be doubted.

Hitler himself rarely retires before midnight or 1 o'clock. When there is a crisis or he is preoccupied with a new problem he will talk of the various aspects of the situation for hours on end to the men of his entourage, their wives, or other visiting friends. The small circle of intimates includes his adjutants, Captain Brueckner, Brigadier Schaub, Press Chief Dietrich, Herr von Hewel of Ribbentrop's staff; his personal physician, Dr. Brandt; his chief physician, Dr. Theo Morel; Frau Morel; the chief of his police forces, Himmler, and his wife; Heinrich Hoffmann, his chief photographer, on whom he bestowed the title of professor, and his wife; his major-domo, Kannenberg, and his wife. In Berchtesgaden the visiting house guests—artists, officers—join the circle. As the hours go by the men on duty will signal to each other and unobtrusively one after the other slip out until only a few remain clustered around Hitler. If Hitler reaches a conclusion, coins a phrase that he finds important, one of the secretaries may be summoned or Dr. Dietrich will jot down whatever notes Hitler wants to be noted. Such sessions are strenuous, and the strain tells on the participants. Frequently you see the men who went to the Berghof for a comparative rest return more exhausted than when they left their Berlin offices.

On less tense days Hitler retires early to study the books picked for his perusal by his propaganda minister, Goebbels, or books he ordered himself. From time to time he requests outsiders whom he met through some fluke of chance to work out a full report on the living conditions in their part of Germany or similar problems, and Hitler will study them to compare them with the official reports of his men.

In recent months Hitler has taken up the study of the stars and planets. In the pavilion on the Kehlstein, the mountain in the Bavarian Alps near his Berghof through which he had a shaft blasted to make a lift, he spends many hours studying the heavenly bodies. He has conferred with astrologers at length and has learned the art of making a horoscope. The names of Hitler's astrologers are kept secret with utmost care. Not completely satisfied with the knowledge gleaned from them, Hitler is studying old books which his representatives have bought him in Germany and abroad. His fondness for sketching and designing stands him in good stead, making it easy for him to draw horoscopes in expert fashion. He makes his own analyses of the constellations and works out his own interpretations, comparing them with those of his experts.

Just how far his study of the stars has affected his decisions is hard to establish. Every Nazi who should know will answer, according to his own reaction to astrology—those who believe in it will tell you most seriously the Fuehrer goes only by the stars. Those who lack the faith will ridicule any such assertion. One thing is certain—Hitler has transformed his pavilion on the romantic Kehlstein into a regular observatory, and he is devoting quite a lot of his time to the study of the stars and books on astrology.

With as wide and diverging a range of interests as those displayed by Fuehrer Hitler and his uncanny ability to adapt himself to his audience and to sense trends, it is quite natural that every one of the twenty or so closest to him would give you a totally different picture of the man who today rules Germany. Only in one point they all agree—men and women—they are all ready to blindly obey his orders, whatever they be.

IS YOUR DOG A "Jitterbug"?

Not a sign of nervous ailments, excess shedding, listlessness, or other common troubles among 250 dogs raised by Swift exclusively on Pard and water.

"Dogs need not be troubled by common ailments"—indicates 5-year canine study! Listlessness, loss of appetite, diarrhea, and other common ills, attributed by leading veterinarians to faulty feeding, never occurred among the 250 pedigreed dogs raised exclusively on Pard in Swift's Research Kennels!

And, too, these thoroughbreds—representing 4 consecutive generations—have shown above-normal growth, along with unusually fine conformation to breed. Facts like these indicate the additional benefits your dog would get through a steady diet of Pard.

Veterinarians in increasing numbers are recommending Pard for all breeds. For your dog's health and happiness—start him on Pard now!

Dr. W. J. McK . . ., of Illinois, says "30 years of experience have convinced me that hit-or-miss feeding is the worst enemy of canine health we have to contend with." Dr. McK. recommends Pard to correct and ward off many common ailments.

The Story of Artificial Light

● This is the first of three articles on the history of artificial light, the development of electrical rays, and the story of an American pioneer in electricity.

By GREER WILLIAMS

MAN PRODUCED artificial light for the first time when he learned to burn wood. His discovery of fire and its uses, in fact, is one of the turning points in the history of mankind, seeming to mark the moment when the evolution of intelligence unquestionably distinguished man from ape.

As far back as scientists have been able to trace the descent of man—which is 500,000 to 1,000,000 years—they have found indications that he used fire to warm himself, cook food, ward off wild beasts, and light his night activities. Charcoal was found among the bones of the Peking man, one of the two earliest primitives known.

It is not known whether the Peking man of north China relied on natural sources of fire, such as volcanoes or lightning, or had learned the art of fire making. By the time the Cro-Magnon man arrived on the scene around 20,000 years ago, however, fire making was probably generally known. The Cro-Magnon drew pictures on his cave walls by firelight.

Some one of these early men, perhaps the Neanderthal of 40,000 years ago, noticed that the grease from roasting meat gave off a bright light, and began using a dried and spigoted bird or fish as a torch. Splinters of wood were also soaked in grease for this purpose.

• • •

It was then a short step to the oil lamp, which has been traced to 4,000 or 5,000 years before Christ. The earliest were simply shallow dishes of grease in which wicks were dipped. The grease melted and crept up the wick to feed the flame. Slaves built the inner chambers of the pyramids by this light.

But these early oil lamps were smoky and malodorous and not very handy. The invention of the candle, as a result, was a great forward step. Its braided cloth wick, encased in wax or fat by dipping or molding, provided a much steadier, more convenient light—with less odor. The first candle was made by the Phœnicians from beeswax. The tallow candle was introduced about 200 B. C. Paraffin candles awaited the discovery of petroleum in the 1850s

Aimé Argand, Swiss chemist, wanted a hotter, brighter flame than that of the candle. In 1784 he invented a whale oil lamp using the draft principle of modern furnaces. He changed the shape of the wick from flat to tubular and set it in a circular burner over the fuel tank. Then he placed a short metal chimney around the burner. As a result air containing the oxygen necessary to combustion did not hit the flame from all sides, but only from below, creating an updraft through the chimney.

Only one more improvement was needed to provide a practical reading lamp. Quinquet, a French druggist, set a glass chimney on top of Argand's lamp. Virtually the same lamp is used in rural areas today, with the addition of kerosene, first developed as a fuel in 1820.

Nevertheless the candle continued to hold favor well into the pioneer days of the two modern systems of lighting—gas and electricity.

Combustible gas was first found coming from the ground. In 1691 the Rev. Dr. John Clayton of England captured a "spirit" in a bladder by heating coal in a retort. He produced a jet of flame from a hole pricked in the inflated skin.

A Scotsman, William Murdock, was the commercial pioneer of gas lighting. He produced gas in large quantities from coal and in 1792 lighted a house with it. The public remained skeptical of the claims made for gas until 1812, when the Westminster Chartered Gas Light and Coke company was founded in London. In the next few years gas was piped through the city. Baltimore was the first American city to use gas as a public utility, creating a company in 1817.

Water gas—made by breaking down water into hydrogen and oxygen and adding carbon from coal and petroleum—and acetylene gas—made by combining calcium carbide with water—were not developed until some years later.

The expression "in the limelight" was given to the language when Henry Drummond, an Englishman, in 1826 found that lime placed in a gas flame glowed brilliantly. The light was too glaring for home use, but was widely used in theaters.

Drummond's discovery reflected an intensified search for materials producing incandescence—that is, a white light at a high temperature. The Welsbach mantle, invented in 1885, achieved this. Dr. Carl Auer, count of Welsbach in Austria, found that certain "rare earths"—oxides of such lesser known elements as thorium and cerium—incandesced without being readily consumed. He saturated a cone of cotton cloth with thorium and cerium and then burned it, a white shell remaining. This mantle increased the illumination of a gas jet tremendously. It enabled American gas lighting companies to compete successfully for many years with the latest development, electric light.

The first electric light produced by man was merely a spark. The earliest electrical experiments on record are those of the Greek philosopher Thales, who lived 600 B. C. Thales found that rubbing amber would produce sparks and that certain iron ore was magnetic. Magnetism was universally exploited in the mariner's compass, but friction electricity remained only a curiosity for 2,400 years.

Then in 1819 the son of a Danish barber, Hans Christian Oersted, demonstrated that magnetism and electricity were the same thing. He placed a compass needle beside a charged wire and instead of pointing north it now swung toward the wire.

The case for electromagnetism was clinched in 1831 when Michael Faraday of London and Joseph Henry of Albany, N. Y., working independently, found that electricity could be generated from a magnet.

The golden era of electrical discoveries properly dates from June, 1752, when Benjamin Franklin in his famous kite flying experiment at Philadelphia proved lightning and electrical sparks were the same thing.

The use of electricity to produce a continuous light awaited two discoveries—the battery and the electric arc. In 1786 Luigi Galvani, Italian biologist, found that the leg of a freshly killed frog would jerk if touched with two different metals, such as iron and copper. Three years later, after disputing with Galvani about the cause of the phenomenon, another Italian scientist, Alessandra Volta, showed that an electric current was created by bringing contrasting metals together.

Volta, who gave his name to the unit of electromotive force, stacked copper, zinc, and cloth disks soaked in sulphuric acid and water, and for the first time produced a continuous current of electricity. This was called a voltaic pile.

In 1801 Sir Humphry Davy, English pioneer of electromagnetism and teacher of Faraday, hooked 2,000 voltaic piles together and created an electric arc. He used two pieces of charcoal (carbon) as the positive and negative poles for the current generated. Placed close together, the two points produced a brilliant yellow spark.

It was later proved that this was no ordinary spark, but an arc caused by the incandescence of carbon particles torn off as the carbon electrodes became white-hot. The resistance of the carbon, a poor conductor, to the current caused the great heat.

The arc was the first practical electric light. As Davy's original was improved upon the arc evolved into a source of light equal to hundreds of thousands of candles. Its brilliance, indeed, made it better suited to street than to home lighting. It was of little utilitarian importance, however, until the introduction of the first practical dynamo, or electric generator, by Z. T. Gramme of Belgium in 1870.

The dynamo operated on the principle discovered by Faraday—that electricity can be generated from a disk whirling between the poles of a magnet. Its development brought man's knowledge to the point where Thomas A. Edison could use his genius to create central power stations and a system of carrying the electricity from the dynamos into homes and factories.

His biggest single achievement, however, was the invention of the incandescent filament lamp.

The arc lamps developed by Charles Brush of Cleveland, O., were coming into use in city street lighting when in 1879 Edison, working in his Menlo Park, N. J., laboratory, created an incandescent lamp which burned for forty hours.

• • •

Credit for the preliminary work in this lamp's development should go to Sir Joseph Swan of England, who in 1860 determined that the success of an incandescent lamp depended on preventing oxygen from reaching the carbon filament. In the presence of air it burned up rapidly; in a vacuum, however, the carbon glowed brightly without oxidizing.

It wasn't until Edison, however, that the principle was efficiently applied. His first incandescent lamp was a charred cotton thread (carbon filament) in a glass globe from which the air had been exhausted. But forty hours of light was not enough, and Edison set about finding materials with higher melting points, so that filaments could withstand the terrific heat for longer periods. He tested no fewer than 6,000 vegetable growths, and used bamboo for some time. Both he and Swan developed a still better filament, cotton dissolved and squirted through a die into a fine thread.

The eventual answer, however, was the metal tungsten. Dr. William D. Coolidge of Schenectady, N. Y., in 1912 produced a ductile tungsten which serves the most exacting requirements of modern lighting.

Dr. Irving Langmuir, also of Schenectady, gave the modern incandescent lamp its final touch when a few years later he saw that the vacuum principle could be carried too far. Certainly a vacuum made the filament burn longer, but the higher the vacuum the hotter the filament became. Eventually it boiled away, causing the glass bulb to turn dark. He decided that the lack of pressure was responsible for this and concluded that an inert gas—one that would not cause oxidation of the filament—would be the answer to greater lamp life. Nitrogen was introduced.

As a result the ordinary electric light today is a tungsten-filamented, nitrogen-filled incandescent lamp which is good for 1,000 hours, against the 300 finally achieved by Edison, and uses only about one-sixteenth as much energy per candlepower. This lamp produces the light of 1,000 candles for the price once paid for five tallow tapers.

Mostly About Dogs

Scotty—Ancient Breed—Maintains High Position in Popular Esteem

VARIOUS breeds of dogs get the public's favor, rise to the dizzy heights of popularity, and then they often pass out of the spotlight. But the Scottish terrier seems to be one of those breeds that year after year continue to be favorites. In recent years this well liked breed hasn't felt the impetus of a popularity wave or any concerted drive to make it the number one dog in the country, It just keeps right on in its position as a breed that people like in the home, a show dog which many breeders prefer, and a terrier that is among the leaders in American Kennel club registrations.

The Scotty is of a size that many people want for a companion dog in a medium-sized home. Moreover, the Scotty has the disposition and the coat that appeal to many dog fanciers. He's a stanch, rugged little dog with an individuality that is unmistakable. The standard of the breed calls for a "keen, sharp, and active expression," which is quite fitting for the Scotty, for he comes of a very old and fighting line of terriers. The early dog which Stonehenge calls the "hard-haired Scottish terrier" was a splendid vermin killer. It knew how to take care of itself. Those early dogs were compact, muscular, and excellent fighters and were used for sporting purposes like the early fox terriers.

Dog fanciers were lauding the courage of Scottish terriers many decades ago. When we look over old books which were written in early England we find descriptions of the Scotty like this:

"As a dead game animal the Scotch terrier is not to be surpassed by any breed except bulls and bull terriers, but the courage of the better dogs is so exceptional that it is no disrespect to any other dog to place them for pluck in a class by themselves, and pound for pound there is no dog but a bull terrier which can beat a hard-haired Scotchman by far. Still he has a natural advantage over the bull terrier, for his hard coat and thickly padded feet enable him to go through whins [low vegetation] and rocky places where the other would be useless, and he is far more easy to control, though naturally of a pugnacious disposition. His intelligence and love of home, his pluck, docility, and affection for his master, should make him a favorite with all who want a varmint dog; and nobody who once gets a good one, of the right style and stamp, will care to let him go."

No one can make a positive statement regarding the exact origin of the Scotty. As is the case with so many breeds, the Scotty's early story is lost back in the evolution of the terriers bred in the Scottish highlands. Most lovers of the Scotty firmly believe that their favorite breed is the most ancient of all the highland terriers. They will refer you to many authorities who wrote about dogs in 1570 and later to prove their point. All of these men described an "earth dog used in hunting the fox and the brocke" (badger), and their descriptions of this dog fit closely to what might well have been the forerunner of our modern Scotty.

The coat of the Scotty, rather short (about two inches), and with a dense undercoat, is hard and wiry. This type of coat could be an asset in nearly every respect so far as the average dog owner is concerned. But unfortunately many owners fail to trim their Scotties, with the result that far too many of these dogs are seen with unkempt, woolly coats which spoil their appearance. The Scotty, like the wire, Airedale, Sealyham, and other terriers, should have his coat taken down with a stripping knife whenever the hair gets too long. This is a barbering operation that removes all the dead hair and encourages the growth of a new hard coat.

DOG NOTES

There are more than 200 companies engaged in the manufacture of dog foods in the United States. Approximately 200 other concerns manufacture dog remedies and supplies.

Few persons realize how many expenses are involved in raising a litter or puppies from purebred stock. An investment in the breeding stock of several hundred dollars, the cost of a stud fee, clean quarters for the mother and her pups, special foods for the puppies when they are weaned and immediately after weaning, veterinarian fees, cost of immunization against distemper, and medicines are just a few of the expenses which must be charged against a litter. So it's not surprising that a breeder must ask a reasonable price for a puppy from healthy pedigreed stock.

The first advertisment for a lost dog to appear in an American newspaper was printed Feb. 22, 1782, in the Providence (R. I.) Gazette,

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.
(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine)

A sleeping child is an obedient model. If you take care not to wake it you can arrange lights and camera for a good picture.

For Universal Interest Use Children as Models

EVERYBODY likes pictures of children. It is an amazing fact that they appeal even to people who do not particularly care for children. So if you are an amateur photographer it will be worth while for you to look into the secrets of successful child portraits, whether you plan to snap children of your own for the family album or the neighbors' kids for pictorial effect.

Chief of these secrets is to capture the natural, care-free, unposed charm of children. To many amateurs this means making "candid" shots. Taking somewhat too literally the call for unposed pictures, they will follow the child from a distance in order not to disturb it and will shoot roll after roll of pictures recording the child's activities. But while many of these pictures may turn out to be excellent action shots, the majority will leave the spectator cold.

The main reason for this is that portraits—whether "candid" or posed—and action shots are two different things. In a child portrait you naturally expect to get a good look at the child's face, especially its eyes. Pictures snatched at random will rarely give you a chance to get the proper angle on the face and capture an expression of the kind you would want to show. At the same time you will have all sorts of other odds against you. The expression may be right, but an unfavorable background or deep shadows across the face may ruin your picture.

Therefore pose your subject if you want to get a good portrait, but pose it in such a manner that the picture looks unposed. Gain the child's confidence by playing with it and talking to it in its own language. Avoid creating the impression that the snapping of a few picture is a very special occasion or involves work or strain of any kind.

Try to confine the child to a carefully selected spot by using subtle tricks, and when it has become absorbed in conversation with you or in play, watch for the right moment to shoot. You can create this moment, if it does not come spontaneously, by resorting to the famous "watch the birdie" method in any of its countless variations. But it is better to center the child's interest on a toy, take up a low camera position which permits you to cover the larger part of the face free of distortion, and make the shot while the child is actually absorbed in whatever it is doing.

Get as close to your subject as conditions permit, avoiding extraneous detail. But don't go too close, for the best child portraits are full-length pictures, including the whole body. This does not mean that the child has to stand erect. It can sit at ease or assume any other pose that permits you to show the face in the picture.

As in all forms of portraiture, you should focus on the eyes. But at the same time you should take care that as much of the entire figure as possible is in focus. To get sharp focus throughout the picture, try to keep all parts of your subject approximately the same distance from the camera. Hands or feet stretched out toward the camera will appear blurred and oversized. If you shoot in strong light you can get increased sharpness by stopping down your lens diaphragm. Naturally you should hold the camera steady and snap at sufficiently high shutter speed to "stop" action in your subject. Speeds of 1/25 to 1/50 second are sufficient to stop any but the fastest movements of a playing child.

Get variety in your child pictures. Don't use all your film for the same pose, but snap the child in different settings. If you are photographing your own children there are many ways to build up a family album. Take pictures of them at fixed intervals, such as birthdays. The number of candles on the birthday cake will date the picture. Snap all "firsts" in their lives—the first ride in the baby carriage, the first steps, the first day to school.

Above all, take care to include some "story interest" in every single picture, and don't neglect to snap an occasional picture story. A series of pictures showing the baby getting his bath or lunch, exploring a new toy, raiding a box of candy, meeting a new companion, or just going through a normal day's routine will be a source of lasting interest and pleasure.

If you show two children in the picture, have one of them concentrate on the other to establish one main point of interest.

LENS NOTES

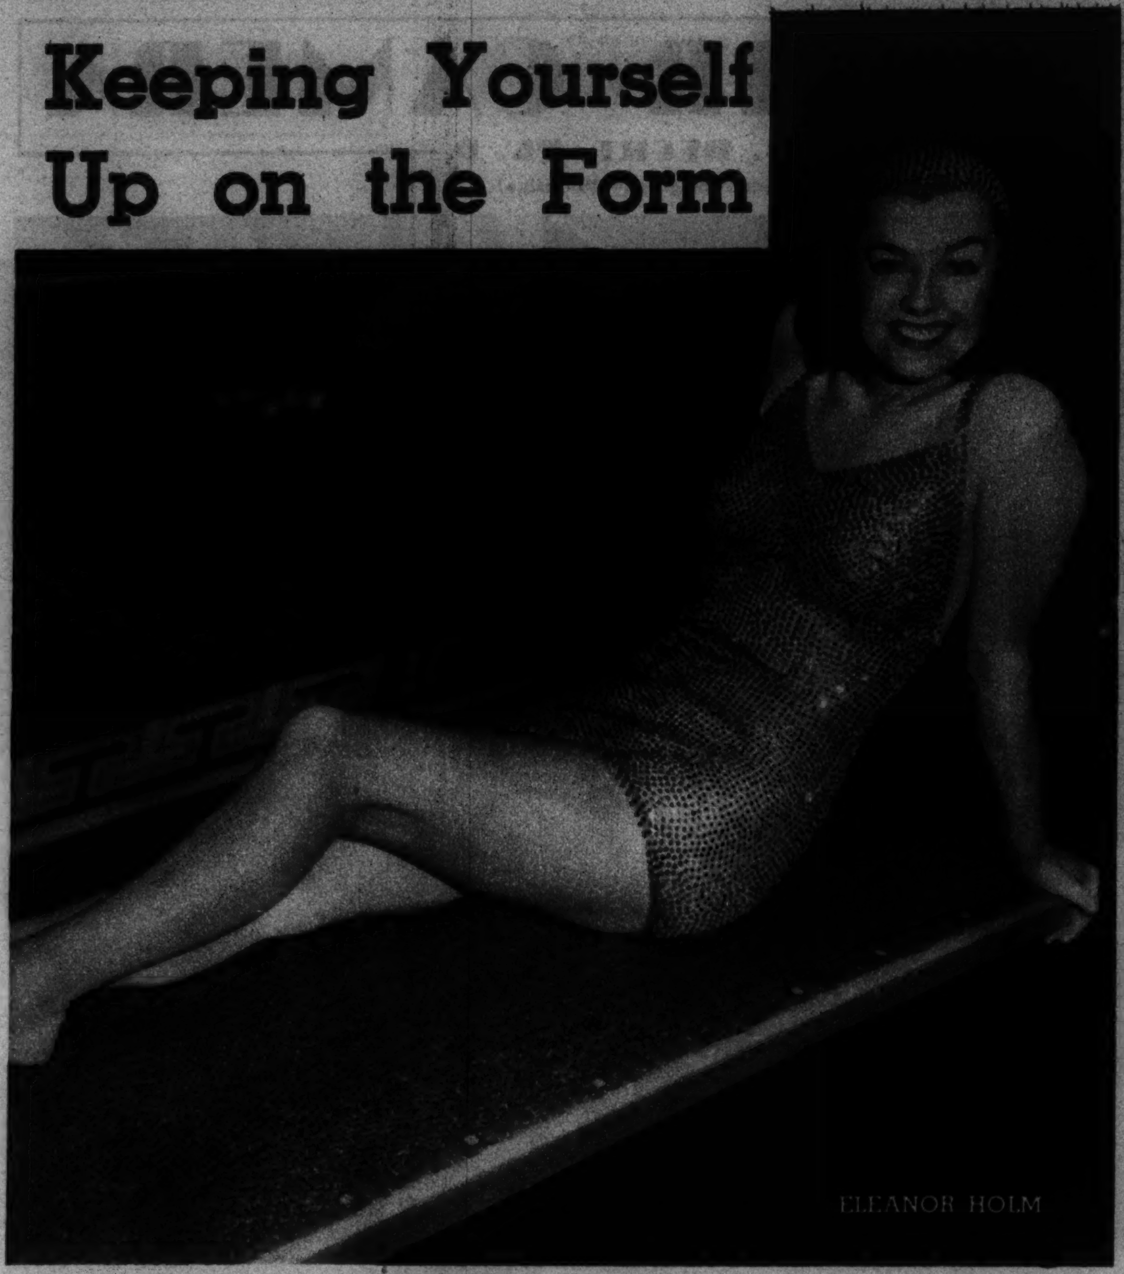
NEVER PUT your camera on the sand while taking pictures on the beach. A single grain of sand in the shutter can cause no end of trouble. Keep the camera in its case or wrap it in a piece of cloth.

Two box cameras fastened together can be used for taking stereoscopic pictures. Both must be exposed simultaneously. The shutter releases on the two cameras can be synchronized with the aid of wire or rubber bands.

If prints become wrinkled or cracked you can frequently repair the damage by soaking in water and drying. Another method is to moisten lightly the back of the print, put it face down on a sheet of glass, and press it with a warm iron.

To protect prints in your album from losing their finish by rubbing against pictures mounted on the facing page, fasten sheets of tissue paper or cellophane between the pages of the album. Worn or wrinkled sheets can be easily replaced.

Keeping Yourself Up on the Form



ELEANOR HOLM

In Sports the Correct Way Is the Easiest and Beneficial Way

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

IF YOU WANT summer sports to give you grace and a good figure, strive for better form. Sports badly played can develop the wrong muscles. It will pay you to play the game correctly. Let an instructor or some one well versed in the sport show you the correct stance in golf, the right stroke in swimming, the follow-through movement in tennis.

Good form means an economy of effort. Watch the champions. Study their action pictures. Notice how graceful they are in slow-motion movies. At times their movements are sheer poetry. Alice Marble serves with her whole body in harmony. Eleanor Holm swims with such rhythm that it looks easy and simple. Actually the right way is the easiest once you learn how. Good form will put power into your stroke or your serve with the least amount of effort. It will make your body more beautiful.

The amateur dabs the ball across the net by a stroke from the elbow or by straining the shoulder. The movement looks jerky and ugly. But the expert follows through with her whole body in a lovely flowing line. Maybe you just play tennis as a pastime and don't care whether you win or lose. Maybe you just want the exercise. But if you seek more than a red face and perspiration, learn to use your muscles correctly. Next winter your carriage will be much more impressive when you walk into a room.

Good form in swimming teaches you rhythm and coördination. Your arms and legs must move in unison to send you through the water swiftly. Half-hearted strokes won't make your neck and shoulders beautiful above an evening dress. Bad timing won't make you more at ease on the dance floor. We suspect that the diver who splashes the breath out of her stomach time after time is likely to be the awkward girl who stumbles and commits faux pas at social gatherings.

The golfer who takes her stance correctly tucks her hips under and look better in her clothes off the course. She has acquired an invaluable posture habit. Her sister who swings a careless club and careless hips doesn't send the ball as far or carry herself as well.

You can play pingpong with jerky taps and slams or pushes, or you can win the set with your whole body in beautiful action. You can bounce up and down on a horse and look foolish, or you can rest your weight on your thighs and become part of the horse's rhythm.

You've heard people make fun of the way a girl throws a ball. Watch how a boy does it. Isn't his method more artistic as well as more powerful? The ball fairly ripples from his fingers, while the girl shoves it with an ugly push. Perhaps nowadays girls do throw better. They probably have more grace than their older sisters and aunts.

If you learn to play a sport well, with perfect form, you not only improve in that particular game, but skill in any one thing has a way of overlapping and making you more skilful in everything else. Substitute grace for skill in that sentence and it is equally true. Swim beautifully and you'll grow lithe and slim. Be a good golfer and people will admire the way you walk. Learn coördination in sports and you'll have more grace.

Pick your favorite sport. Cultivate good form in it. It will be a delightful way of gaining a lovely figure and harmony in every gesture and step.

The Summer Bread Line

Deviled biscuits are quick rolls with a meat filling. The cheese straws accompanying them in this picture are easy to make, too.

Half a Loaf Is Better Than None, These Three Better Than Many

By MARY MEADE

WELL, WELL, what have we here but three good kinds of bread to serve with hot-weather buffet suppers and luncheons! The muffinlike shapes in the top picture are something new—"deviled biscuits." On the plate with them are homemade cheese straws. And in the other photograph you see a loaf of whole wheat date and nut bread.

If you serve the deviled biscuits and cheese straws together be sure there's a delicious, crisp cold raw vegetable salad to go along with it. The salad shown here consists of tomatoes, lettuce and watercress, and green pepper rings. The drink is iced coffee. You'll need a dessert, too—perhaps a fresh fruit sherbet or Bavarian cream.

DEVILED BISCUITS

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup shortening
⅔ to ¾ cup milk
1 cup ground cooked meat

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Cut in shortening. Add milk enough to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a floured board or pastry cloth and knead gently for half a minute. Roll out to a fourth inch in thickness. Brush with melted butter and spread with ground cooked meat. Spice the meat a bit with mustard or chili sauce if you like. It isn't necessary. Roll jelly roll fashion and cut into one-inch slices. Place on greased pans or in greased muffin cups and bake in a moderately hot oven, 400 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes.

CHEESE STRAWS

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
¾ cup grated sharp cheese
½ teaspoon paprika
Dash of cayenne pepper
3 to 4 tablespoons cold water

Sift flour and salt together; add shortening and cheese. Cut and mix until thoroughly blended. Add paprika and cayenne. Add water gradually to make a stiff dough. Toss on lightly floured board or pastry cloth. Roll the dough about a fourth inch thick. Cut into strips one-third inch by five inches, using a sharp knife or pastry wheel. Place on ungreased baking sheet in even rows and bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for 10 to 12 minutes, or until straws are a delicate brown. To curl cheese straws, curve them in a circle when they come out of the oven.

WHOLE WHEAT DATE AND NUT BREAD
(Two loaves)

2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup evaporated milk
1 cup water
1 cake compressed yeast
¼ cup pecans
¼ cup dates
1½ cups whole wheat flour
3½ cups white flour (more if needed)

Heat half of water to boiling. Pour over sugar, salt, and shortening. Combine yeast with other half. Beat egg, add milk. Combine mixtures. Add flour and knead until smooth and elastic, add dates and nuts. Place dough in greased bowl and let rise until double, about two hours. Punch down and shape into loaves. Place in greased bread pans. Cover and let rise again until double in bulk. Bake at 400 degrees for about 45 minutes.

Yeast bread made with whole wheat and white flours is delicious when dates and nuts are added. The recipe on this page will make two loaves.

HOLLAND Again REDUCES FURNACE PRICES!

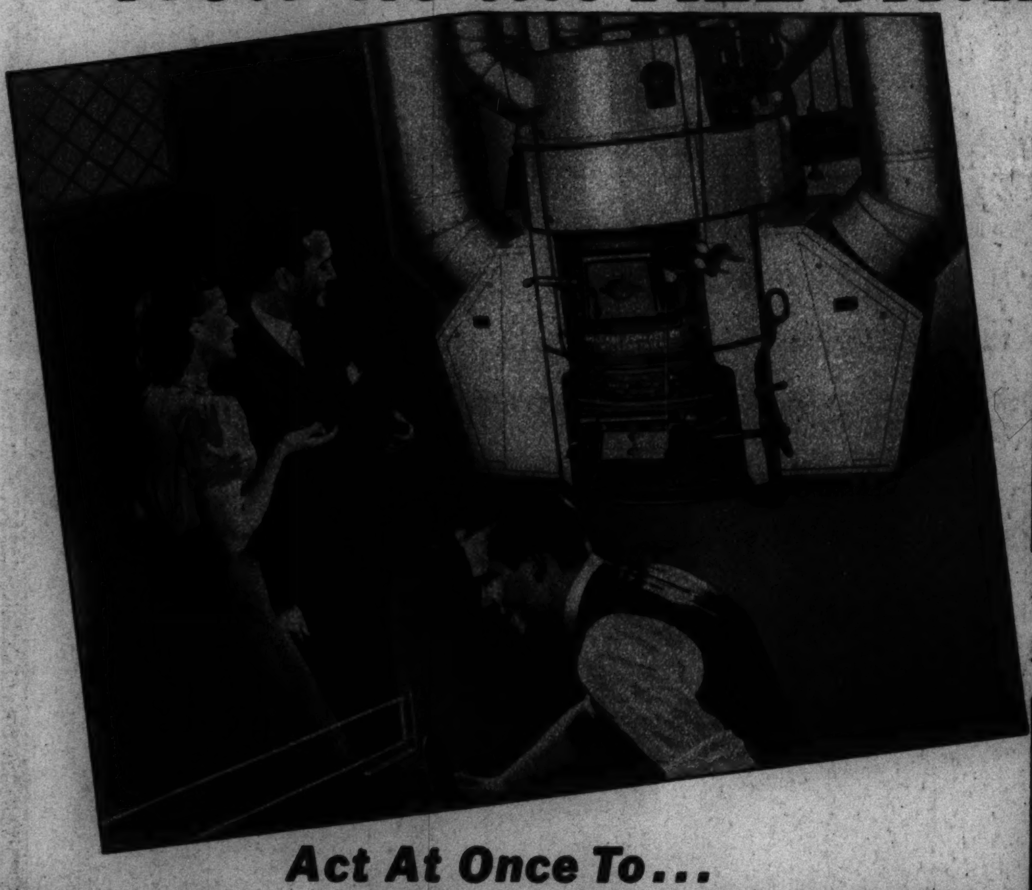
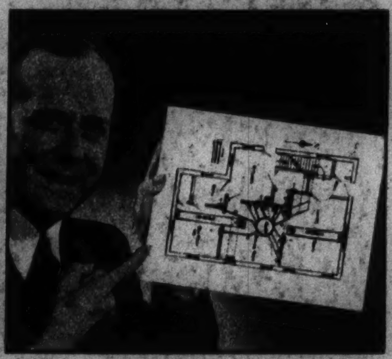
Guaranteed PERFECT HEAT IN EVERY ROOM

Now at an ALL-TIME LOW in Cost!



SCIENTIFIC ENGINEERING ASSURES AMPLE CAPACITY FOR SEVEREST COLD WEATHER

Holland's specially trained engineer makes a thorough analysis of every room—accurately measures cubic contents and computes every kind of heat loss in determining the heating capacity needed.



The engineer's analysis enables him to plan a heating system with exactly the right sized furnace and the right sizes and number of pipes to assure perfect heat in every room.

The local engineer's carefully worked-out plans are then critically examined by senior engineers at the factory. No plan is okayed unless it provides ample heating capacity for all parts of the home.

When the plan is okayed by factory engineers, the system is installed by Holland's own specially trained mechanics under the engineer's supervision—nothing short of perfection is ever tolerated.

Act At Once To...

SAVE MONEY...NOW AND FOR YEARS TO COME

● For many years superior methods and tremendous quantity production have made it possible to produce and install Holland heating equipment for less than any other. Now, still further increased production to meet the 1939 home building boom has brought prices even lower. It is, therefore, truer than ever that a Holland heating system will cost less than any other which matches it evenly—pipe for pipe, casting for casting and size for size.

MONEY-SAVING EFFICIENCY

Holland's superior methods give you much more than just a lower price. The Holland furnace has fifteen outstanding features, each of which plays an important part in cutting down fuel bills, reducing furnace tending, increasing comfort and making the furnace last longer. Many of these features are patented so they cannot be duplicated in any other furnace regardless of cost.

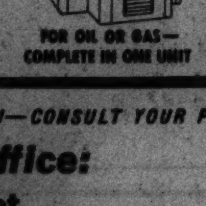
What's more, every Holland installation is planned by a qualified heating engineer who employs the most accurate, scientific methods. When he analyzes a home, he knows the exact heating capacity needed. You may be sure, too, that anything less may reduce the first cost, but will soon more than make up the difference in higher fuel and repair bills that will continue for many years to come.

If you wish to compare Holland's estimate with others, demand for your own protection that all shall exactly equal Holland's specifications. Then, you will surely find Holland's bid the lowest of all. No less important, you deal directly with the manufacturer—no middlemen—no one who can dodge or divide responsibility.

3 YEARS TO PAY

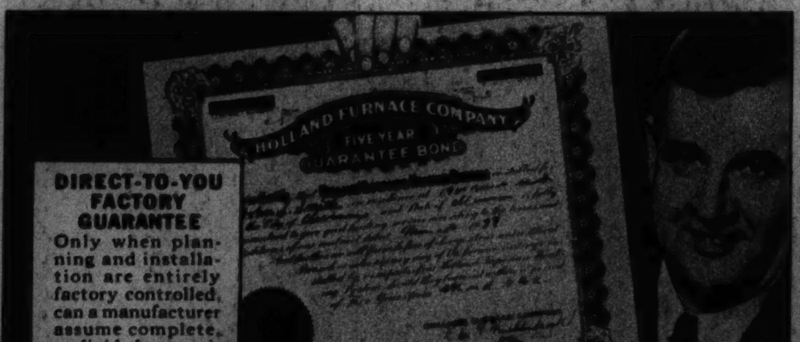
Still another decided advantage is Holland's extremely liberal financing. You virtually make your own terms—up to three years to pay. Call the nearest factory branch and find out what Holland can do for you.

AUTOMATIC AIR CONDITIONING
ALSO LOWER PRICED



FOR OIL OR GAS—COMPLETE IN ONE UNIT

Advanced engineering has created almost unbelievable efficiencies and economies in this remarkable Automatic Furnace Air Conditioner. Cuts costs materially in complete winter air conditioning with automatic oil or gas heat. Also provides decided cooling effect in summer. Get full information and new low prices from nearest branch.



DIRECT-TO-YOU FACTORY GUARANTEE
Only when planning and installation are entirely factory controlled, can a manufacturer assume complete, undivided responsibility the way Holland does.

FREE FURNACE INSPECTION
Holland's specially trained engineer will make a thorough inspection of your entire Heating system at your request. No obligation and no cost except for repairs if any are needed.

AUTOMATIC HEATING
Holland Furnaces are ideal for all types of automatic heating with coal, oil or gas. Ask about Holland's own special automatic stokers and oil or gas burners.

New way to keep regular LEMON with SODA

Taken first thing daily on arising or the last thing every night, it's beneficial in two ways. It has a natural, gentle laxative effect for most people, hence, aids elimination.

Second, it helps keep the system normally alkaline, and adds the additional protection of vitamin C found abundantly in lemon juice.

1. Squeeze juice of one Sunkist lemon into tall glass half full of water. 2. Put half teaspoonful of bicarbonate soda in another glass. 3. Pour back and forth rapidly. 4. Drink when foaming subsides.

It is non-habit forming, non-irritating. Try it 10 days. See if you don't benefit.
